CAUSE AND THE CENTER EARTHQUAKE UNKNOWN

A Canadian Observatory Placed the Center at the Mouth of the Saginaw River in Michigan—Quake Extended From Sudbury, Canada, to Florence, N. S., and West to the Mississippi River—New York Skyscrapers Withstood Their Greatest Test—Women and Children Prayed During the Tremors.

New York, March 1 (By the A. P.).—Scientists labored today to determine the cause and the center of the internal disturbance which caused the earth to roll and toss in its bed last night.

Although, and, indeed, because seismographs at Fordham and Harvard universities were literally "on top" of the wave, it was impossible to determine the center here and an appeal was made to Oxford observatory in Oxford, England. Scientists there stated this afternoon that the quake had been registered so imperfectly that sufficient evidence for a statement did not exist. A Canadian observatory placed the center at the mouth of the Saginaw river in Michigan.

R. B. Hill, in charge of seismographs at the Museum of Natural History, stated that the tremors were caused by the slipping of a rock mass along the line known as Logan's Fault, on which the last earthquake experienced here in 1914 was attributed.

A recent published opinion of Dr. David Todd that an earthquake was overdue in New York because increased weight was constantly being placed upon a "fault" which lies in the strata directly beneath the city, was recalled. The fact that the tide yesterday reached its lowest point was considered as having a possible connection with the tremor. Efforts to connect the quake with the recent eclipse were scoffed at by scientists, who said that danger of an earthquake was least during a total eclipse.

The debated question as to whether the skyscrapers of New York will ever be tumbled down upon the heads of its millions of inhabitants was renewed by the tremors last night. It is said that the solid bedrock upon which the city is built constitutes an effective safety device.

Others hold to Dr. Todd's fear of the final cave-in of the fault within the rocks. They point out that the jar and the shudders of the earth last night fulfilled Dr. Todd's recent prediction that a major disaster here would be preceded by "a gentle quivering coming from nowhere."

Astonished residents of the city and its environs continued today to exchange experiences of the pranks played by the earth during its short awakening for a space estimated at two minutes. The perplexities visited upon people in this section were repeated as the wave rolled on its journey from Sudbury, Canada, to Florence, S. C., and as far west as the Mississippi river and Denver.

Tunes were played on crystal chandeliers, goldfish were washed from their bowls, chairs were rocked by an unseen hand, telephones tinkled but no voice answered, and houses "rolled like ships in the ocean."

Visited by such ghostly phenomena, people poured from their homes into the streets in certain sections where the undulations seemed to reach a crest. Police and firemen, themselves none too sure of the fitness of things, reassured frightened inhabitants in the congested quarters, where skimpy tenement houses were most responsive to the restless earth.

Women prayed and children cried during the tremors, the exact nature of which was not known by most who experienced it until later. Then they laughed in relief. Residents of the Italian district, many with tragic memories of other earthquakes, were panic-stricken.

On Broadway the usual Saturday night crowd in search of a thrill was cooped up in theatres and did not know until later they had missed the sensation of dancing on the shifting crust of the earth. The sensation was diminished throughout the city by the rumble and roar of the elevated and subway trains. The general impression of most who did feel the movement was that an explosion had taken place.

Police were of the opinion that had the giant office buildings of the business district not been empty at the time, there might have been loss of life if the confusion noted within certain sections, where people poured into the streets, had been repeated. The watchman at the Woolworth building, tallest in the world, said he felt no swaying.

The skyscrapers generally withstood what was undoubtedly their greatest test. Neither the 1914 quake nor the two which preceded it within the last forty years approached last night's diversion in severity. There was no confusion in the subways, where the tremors were lost in the rattle of the trains.

JUMPED FROM WINDOW IN FRIGHT AT QUAKE

Towanda, Pa., March 1—Frightened when the building in which he lives was shaken by the earthquake at 9.25 last night, Francis McMahan, Sayre barber, jumped from a second story window to the pavement below. Both ankles were so badly fractured that he may never be able to walk again. At the hospital tonight his injuries were termed "very serious."

The earthquake was felt distinctly in this vicinity. Dishes were broken, and people ran from high building in fear the structures were falling to pieces. One man claimed to have been rolled out of bed by the shaking which lasted more than a minute.

SAYS NEW YORK STATE IS SUBJECT TO EARTHQUAKES

Albany, N. Y., March 1.—Eastern New York state, through which runs a branch of the "great fault," is subject to earthquakes, and other quakes, in addition to the one which shook the east yesterday, may be expected, Dr. John H. Clarke, state geologist, said here today.

Dr. Clarke said he had filed six weeks ago with the board of regents a request that a bureau be established to study the possibility of seismic disturbances, and at that time predicted the state would be shaken by quakes, although he did not attempt to say when they might be expected.

Explaining that the "great fault" begins at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river and extends to Montreal, Dr. Clarke said that a branch fault ran from Montreal south through the Champlain and Hudson valleys in an irregular course, continuing as far south as New York.

The "faults," he explained, were lines of fractures caused by movements of the earth's surface in the making, and the St. Lawrence and Hudson rivers lie in profound "fault" lines.

The Hudson, he said, had been found to have a deep channel south of Albany, borings in the river bed indicating that the rocky sides of the channel met far below the surface.

WHAT SCIENTIST HAS TO SAY ABOUT THE EARTHQUAKE

Cleveland, March 1—Last night's earthquake was only one of a series of subterranean disturbances of the United tates, Rev. F. L. Odenbach, scientist at John Carroll University, here, declared tonight.

Although only two distinct shocks were felt, the quake was recorded on the university's seismograph for an hour and three minutes. The primary phase at 9.24.16, lasted fifteen seconds with a slightly greater agitation for five seconds at 9.26. The final phase, which lasted until 10.25 was recorded on another line.

Father Odenbach estimated the center of the disturbance between 525 and 675 miles northeast by east from Cleveland, probably in Maine.

No damage was reported here.

"In 200 years," Father Odenbach said, "Chicago will have her canal to the Mississippi. Cleveland and Toledo and all Canada cannot stop it. At the rate the land is being tilted toward the southwest, Chicago will get all the water diversion she wants, because Lake Michigan will simply have to drain off into the Mississippi Valley.

"In 10,000 years Niagara Falls will be dry. The great lakes drainage will be to the west and south, as it was thousands of years ago. There is a natural canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi where a river once flowed."

SCULPTOR BORGLUM HAS ARRIVED IN NEW YORK

New York, March 1.—The New York American will say in a copyrighted article tomorrow that Gutzon Borglum, who was recently discharged as sculptor of the Stone Mountain Confederate memorial, on his arrival here today declared that he destroyed his inaccurate working model of the project because of his belief in "the inalienable right of an artist in his own creation."

"The authority and nal control of authorship has been recognized since the beginning of creative work," he is quoted as saying. "I shall gladly rot in jail before I compromise the slightest. Let the small minds of my enemies makes or a journeyman printer can who think a local stonecutter or shoe-do the work of a sculptor, go as far as they like. I am ready for the fight.

Borgum arrived here from Greensboro, North Carolina, this afternoon. He was arrested at Greensboro last night on a charge growing out of the destruction of his models and will return there next Saturday to fight the charge. Meanwhile, says the American, he is conferring here with wealthy friends whom he expects to support him in his fight for the ownership of his own creations.

AIRCRAFT COMMITTEE TO HOLD MEETINGS

Washington, March 1.—Despite that its stormy investigation must end before noon, Wednesday, the house aircraft committee plans to hold at least one, and possibly two more hearings.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, has been called for tomorrow, and it also was thought likely tonight that one or two other witnesses might be heard at that session.

Some committee members are of the opinion that Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant army air chief, should be given an opportunity to answer those who have contradicted his statements since he was last on the witness stand.

Among those who have challenged the testimony of the general, is Secretary Weeks, who in reappearing before the committee yesterday, declared Brigadier General Mitchell had deliberately violated President Coolidge's instructions in publishing certain magazine articles on aircraft without the approval of the war department.

All hope of sifting the vast, contradictory mass of testimony in time for a report to the present congress has been abandoned, and a resolution has been introduced to ask authority to defer it until the next congress convenes.

ARMY PLANES FAILED TO MAKE SCHEDULE FLIGHT

Macon, Ga., March 1.—Major Thomas J. Lanphier announced this afternoon that the twelve army airplanes which reached here yesterday from Selfridge field, Michigan, would leave for Miami, Fla., tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. Eleven of the planes took off this afternoon but were called back after 20 minutes when it was found that the twelfth was delayed by motor trouble.

The planes started from Selfridge field early yesterday morning in an effort to reach Miami before dusk. They were delayed, however, at Dayton, O., where one of the planes was damaged on landing, and it was decided on arrival here yesterday afternoon to complete the trip to Miami later.

PETITION TO COOLIDGE ON WORLD COURT ISSUE

New York, March 1.—A petition urging President Coolidge to bring up the world court issue at the special session of the senate beginning March 4 has been forwarded to the executive by sixty advocates of the court, it was announced tonight. The signers include five republican governors, nineteen college presidents, twelve delegates to the last republican national convention and business and professional men and women.

The ptition was forwarded to Washington last Saturday by George W. Wickersham. "The public interest would be well served if you could find it possible to send a special message to the senate, recommending action by that body upon American adherence to the permanent court of international justice upon the terms already recommended by President Harding and yourself," read the petition.

"We believe it unnecessary again to point out the country-wide approval of your position in this matter.

"The fact that in this special session the action of the world court protocol that is required of the senate under the constitution would have the undivided attention of that body, seems to ust to make its consideration at that time advisable.

"We are confident that public opinion throughout the country would overwhelmingly support you should you deside to recommend action."

Among those signing the petition were: Governors Adam McMullen, Nebraska; Clarence Morley, Colorado; Aram Pothelier Rhode Island; Franklin Billings, Vermont; and Ralph Brewster, Maine; Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus, Harvard; A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard; James R. Angell, president of Yale, and John Grier Hibben, president of Prin ton.

The man, who said he was "Chief" Red Wing, complained that the woman had struck him over the head with a tomahawk and had inflicted other cuts about the body with the same instrument.

The two were taken to police headquarters and charged with breach of the peace. The woman showed a marriage license and "Chief" Red Wing produced papers coming from Canada stating that he was "Chief" of the Chippewa Indians.

The two were released on bonds.

Measures Doomed to Failure In Congress

Connecticut Library 1925

The Crampton Bill to Reorganize the Prohibition Unit Among the Measures to be Left Over.

Washington, March 1.—With only two days and a half to go, the 68th congress probably will not pass any of the several important administration measures remaining on its calendar.

While it appears likely that there will be a last minute fight over reclamation projects in the interior department appropriation bill, leaders believe they will be able to dispose of all the regular supply measures before adjournment sine die at noon, Wednesday.

In addition, they expect to get final action on the rivers and harbors authorization bill which was passed last night by the senate. Differences with the house on several score amendments remain to be adjusted, but the big obstacles to the agreement were removed when the senate refused to attach riders for the Cape Cod canal purchase and the Gooding long and short haul railroad proposal.

While the senate agriculture committee will undertake tomorrow to report a farm relief bill, there is little prospect of enactment of the recommendations of the president's agricultural conference because of the differences between administration leaders and members of the farm bloc as to the form the legislation should take.

Republican leaders favor senate action on the Dickinson bill which the house approved as a substitute for the Capper-Haugen cooperative marketing measure, but members of the farm bloc desire to throw the Dickinson proposal into discard because they agree with Chairman Carey and other members of the president's conference that there had better be no legislation than to have this measure enacted.

Among other measures that appear doomed are the Underwood Muscle Shoals leasing bill, the Cramton measure to re-organize the prohibition unit, the McFadden branch banking proposal, the $150,000,000 public buildings bill which has received house approval, and the Anthony migratory bird refuge measure.

While both house and senate will hold sessions day and night before adjournment, leaders are convinced that they can do little more than clear up conference reports on the appropriation bills and odds and ends.

Action of the senate in refusing to add the Cape Cod canal purchase measure as a rider to the rivers and harbors bill spelled the doom of that proposal as far as this congress is concerned. This proposition has been pending in congress for four years and has received house approval.

Every measure that fails of enactment at this session automatically will be wiped off the congressional calendar and in order to get action in the future, each must go through all the routine of legislative machinery from introduction through committee consideration to action by the two houses.

FUNERAL OF PRESIDENT EBERT TO BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Berlin, March 1—(By the A. P.)—The funeral of President Ebert will be held at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Wilhelmstrasse Palace, which is being used as the executive mansion, Chancellor Luther, who is acting president, will deliver the oration. There will be no religious services.

The body will be taken under military escort through Wilhelmstrasse, along Under den Linden and through the Brandenburg Gate to the Reichstag steps, where the hearse will halt while President Loebe of the Reichstag deliver an address on behalf of that body and the public will have an opportunity to pay its respects to the dead.

The procession then will move across the Tiergarten through the Friedensalle to the Potsdamer Station. The funeral train will leave for Heidelberg in the evening and interment will take place in the Berg Cemetery in Heidelberg Thursday morning.

Wilhelmstrasse was thronged throughout the day and late into the night by crowds which moved slowly past the executive mansion where the body of Herr Ebert lies. Two soldiers in gray-green fatigue uniforms and green field helmets were the only guard that stood before the palace. Crape draped over two lanterns behind the main entrance to the mansion was the only sign there of mourning.

As today throughout Germany was a day of mourning for all those who fell in the world war the attendance at Church services everywhere was especially large. The congregations of the Berlin churches passed by the mansion after the conclusion of services. During this demonstration in honor of the President there was a general tolling of church bells. The colors of the republic, red, gold and black, were worn by many persons who passed the mansion. The greatest calm prevailed throughout the day.

STONE TO DON ROBES OF SUPREME COURT TODAY

Washington, March 1.—Harlan Fisk Stone, of New York city, plans to put on the robes of office tomorrow as a member of the supreme court of the United States.

He will be the third attorney general in recent years to go upon the bench of the highest court, filling the vacancy caused by the voluntary retirement of Judge McKenna, a former attorney general, and joining Justice McReynolds, likewise promoted from th edepartment of justice.

With the induction into office of Justice Stone, five of the nine members of the court will have been placed there during the last four years. Four of them, including Chief Justice Taft, were appointed by President Harding.

The ceremonies attending the elevation of Mr. Stone to the bench will be comparatively simple. Wearing his gown, Mr. Stone will enter the court room with the other justices. Taking a position behind the screen at the rear of the bench, he will remain there until Chief Justice Taft announces that he is present to take the oath of office and the clerk of the court reads his commission. He will then present himself on the bench at the side of the chief justice, who will administer the judicial oath, the court and the audience estanding.

A formal welcome on behalf of the court will be extended by the chief justice and the new justice will then be ready to take his seat at the foot of the bench to the left of the chief justice.

MILLERAND WAS GUARDED WHILE MAKING A SPEECH

Marseilles, France, March 1.—(By the A. P.)—One thousand policemen and a similar number of so-called "secret service men," the latter of whom notwithstanding they were in plain clothes, were as conspicuous as the uniformed men, today were on guard around the hall where former President Millerand delivered a speech. M. Millerand spoke without the slightest interruption. Counter demonstrations organized by the left groups were held in another part of the city. These also were carried out without interference.

M. Millerand's address was devoted to detailed criticism of the Herriot government's policies. The speaker scored financial management of the financial affairs of the treasury by the left groups in parliament, spoke in opposition to recognition by the government of the Russian soviet government and characterized as justified the rupture of relations with the Vatican. He failed, however, to suggest any constructive idea by which the financial crisis might be remedied.

The reduction in military service to one year, to which the Herriot government is pledged, also came in for adverse criticism by M. Millerand. The speaker declared the impression created by the suppression of the French ambassy to the Vatican had been painful in Belgium, Canada and the United States. "Religious sentiment is a moral force, which no government in any country can afford to spurn," he added.

In the financial realm, said M. Millerand, the present government had succeeded in losing the confidence of other countries, financial markets, which now were necessary more than ever to France.

The speech marked M. Millerand's official reentry into politics. He is a candidate for the senate for the Paris district, the election for which will take place April 5.

PHOTOS TRANSMITTED 3600 MILES OVER 'PHONE WIRES

Washington, March 1.—Transmission of photographs over telephone wires 3600 miles long simultaneously to three cities was tested here today by the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and was described by officials to have been a complete success.

It was the first time such transmission of photographs had been attempted to more than one city at once and over so great a distance. Nearly a dozen pictures were sent to New York, Chicago, and San Francisco, only seven minutes being required for each print. Officials of the company here were in touch by telegraph with their offices in the three cities and were told that the experiment was without interference.

The demonstration was arranged, the officials said, as a final test before announcing establishment of a general trans-continental picture transmission service, and to perfect arrangements for sending pictures of the presidential inauguration Wednesday.

One of the pictures transmitted today was of President Coolidge, taken as they departed this morning from the First Congregational church. Within seven minutes after the negative was placed on the transmitting machine, the picture was available for publication in New York, Chicago and San Francisco.

FEDERAL CUSTOMS AGENT KILLED BY EXPLODING BOMB

The Bomb Was Concealed in His Car at Niagara Falls, and When He Pressed the Starter the Bomb Exploded—Orville A. Pewster Was Instantly Killed, and a Friend, Elmer Whitacre, Was Fatally Injured—Pewster Had Been Active in Suppressing Liquor Smuggling in the Vicinity of Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 1.—Orville A. Pewster, a federal customs official, was instantly killed here this afternoon by the explosion of a bomb. Elmer Whiteacre, a friend, was fatally injured.

The bomb was concealed in Pewster's automobile and when he pressed the starter the explosion occurred.

Pewster had been active in suppressing liquor smuggling here and was a brother of Lucas Lee Pewster, former county leader of the Ku Klux Klan. He was a widower and lived with his brother and his two children.

Early Saturday evening he parked his car in front of his home on Tenth street and did not touch it again until about 4 o'clock this afternoon when with Whitacre he started downtown. Pewster took the wheel and Whitacre went to the front of the car to crank it if necessary. Pewster stepped on the starter and there was an explosion that shook the neighborhood. Whitacre was blown 40 feet away and Pewster was thrown into the wreckage of the automobile.

Part of Pewster's head was blown off and both legs were torn from the body. Parts of the automobile were found imbedded in nearby houses and buildings for blocks about were shaken.

Whitacre was sent to a hospital alive. The surgeons have scant hope of saving his life. He is 24 years old and has been a close friend to the older official for a number of years.

T. M. Hennessy, chief of the customs inspection service here, and the local police could find no clues, except a metal box, about an inch and a half square, inside of which was a small spring, and projecting from which there was a short stub of copper wire.

Pewster was not known to have any enemies, although he had caused many arrests. His most recent case was that of a man, arrested for an alleged attempt to bribe Pewster after he had been caught with liquor in his car.

Officials tonight expressed the opinion that Pewster was the victim of the liquor and narcotic smuggling ring that has been operating all along the Niagara frontier for the past six months. Pewster, with other special investigators, has been responsible for several arrests.

James A. Gordon, special agent in the United States secret service and Special Agent Brown, will begin at once an investigation into the recent cases Prewster has been associated with, in a search for clues.

STOCKHOLM IN MOURNING FOR HJALMAR BRANTING

Stockholm, March 1 (By the A. P.).—Flags were at half-mast today throughout Sweden, Denmark and Norway in honor of Hjalmar Branting, former primo minister of Sweden, who died last week. Stockholm was in mourning.

Under gray, sunless skies, at 2 o'clock this afternoon a great funeral procession moved from M. Branting's house in the suburbs through Stockholm toward the 600 year old church, Stor Kyrkan, where funeral services were conducted. Thousands of persons lined the route of the cortege, bareheaded and silent, in honor of the dead political leader.

Inside the church were King Gustave and all the members of the royal family, the members of the diplomatic corps and Ira Nelson Morris, former United States minister to Sweden. In addition there were present delegations from all parts of Sweden, and representatives of Sweden's official bodies and the League of Nations and of Scandinavian and foreign socialist bodies and trades unions.

The coffin was borne on a large open vehicle which was preceded by a band playing funeral marches. It was followed by members of the cabinet and by carriages containing Mme. Branting and members of her family.

After the ceremony in the church the cortege to the Adolf Frederik cemetery was augmented by large numbers of representatives of various organizations from throughout Sweden. It is estimated that 50,000 persons lined the route to the last resting place of the famous socialist leader.

At the graveside orations were delivered in several languages. Darkness fell before the obsequies, which were the most impressive ever seen in Sweden, ended, and the people left the flower-covered mound under which M. Branting rested.

DEFENSE OF OLYMPIA MACRI MAY BE OUTLINED TODAY

New Haven, March 1.—The defense of Olympia Marci, held at the county jail, without bail by the coroner following the shooting of John Bagnano, on Church street Thursday, will probably be outlined at a conference tomorrow morning between the girl and her attorney, Joseph Koletsky.

Following the appointment of Mr. Koletsky as counsel, the lawyer took steps for a conference with his client at the county jail but was informed by the jail officials that upon orders of the coroner, no one could see her. Mr. Koletsky then appealed to Coroner Eli Mix who at first refused to issue an order to the jailers to permit a conference, pointing out that the law gave him absolute power in such cases. He finally agreed to permit a meeting between the girl and her counsel, however, and the conference was planned for tomorrow.

Medical Examiner Dr. Marvin M. Scarbrough has reported to the coroner on an autopsy on Bagnano's body. According to the report, three bullets entered the body. One through the heart caused death.

PROGRESS TOWARD INT'L GOLD STANDARD

Washington, March 1.—The year 1924, is regarded by the federal reserve board as one of definite progress toward re-establishment of the international gold standard.

Reviewing world as well as domestic economic conditions in its report for the calendar year 1924, made public today, the board calls attention to the increased confidence in the European financial situation, the return to parity of exchange in three countries, and the facilitation of foreign borrowing. These, it suggests, are important factors in making dollar credits and gold available in those countries which are seriously attempting to establish sound monetary conditions.

Settlement of the troublesome reparations question and the restoration of sound monetary conditions in such countries as have made steps in that direction have increased the confidence of the American investors in European securities, the board believes. It feels also that, backed by this confidence, there has been a tendency to increase investments by Americans abroad and to take up a large volume of foreign loans, governmental and private, here.

"The volume of such loans in 1924" the report continues, "was nearly three times as large as in 1923, and larger than any year since the war."

While a large part of the loans was used in the purchase of goods in the United States, several countries used dollar credits thus obtained in supporting the exchange value of their currencies.

The board reiterates in its report the declaration, made some weeks ago, that there was a better balance between industry and agriculture at the end of 1924 than there had been at any time in more than four years.

"The industrial readjustment," the report continues, "together with an improvement in the position of the farmer, was an important factor in bringing about a business recovery during the last quarter of the year."

It adds that there had accompanied the European revival a markedly better demand there for American agricultural products.

HOLD UP IN CIGAR STORE ON BROADWAY, NEW YORK

New York, March 1.—Nathan Nagulowitz, manager of a cigar store at Broadway and 60th street, learned this morning that "let's go" does not always mean farewell.

He was dusting his counter when two well dressed young men with umbrellas came in out of the rain. They insisted upon expensive cigars—and were conversational.

"Looks like a mean day," one said.

"Yes," Nathan answered politely. "Looks like it might turn to snow."

The young man went to the door to see if it had turned to snow. Nathan was busy at his work again. He heard: "O. K., pal. Let's go."

"So long," Nathan answered affably. Then he looked up into the muzzles of two revolvers.

"I tried to stall," Nathan told the police, "but they said if I wanted to stay healthy I should open the safe. They took $200 tied me up with a rope and walked out."

WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic, tucked away in the little valley of the river which bears the same name, found itself within a safety zone from the earthquake which swept the Atlantic coast. The vibrations were apparently felt all around this vicinity coming as close to Willimantic as Storrs, nine miles away. A seismograph would probably have detected a slight tremor which was not felt on the surface. It was recollected here that an earthquake had been predicted to follow soon after the total eclipse of the sun.

The complaint was turned over to First Selectman Russell A. Andrews for action.

The alleged contention of Rev. F. C. Williams of this city that non-inflammable motion picture film (cellulose acetate) would not burn was disproved before the judiciary committee of the legislature at Hartford last week, when Superintendent of State Police Robert T. Hurley demonstrated that the film would burn, although very slowly. There appeared to be more smoke than fire, but Superintendent Hurley pointed out that smoke was more dangerous than fire to cause a panic. It was maintained by Rev. Mr. Williams that as the film would not burn, schools and churches showing motion pictures printed on such film should not have to pay a fee to the state police for an inspection of the fire hazards of the places where the showing of the firm was no more dangerous than the showing of glass slides.

HOTEL CAMPAIGN WORKERS SPEED TOWARD $200,000 GOAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, March 1.—The encouraging total of $179,600 was the amount announced as having been reached in the hotel community campaign in Willimantic, at the last noon meeting of the workers, Saturday. This is an addition of $24,000 since Friday noon and establishes a new daily mark in subscriptions for the campaign. A high notch of $200,000 has been set for this (Monday) noon's report. The campaign comes to a close Tuesday. The goal, a mark of team leadership sales, remained in its original pen, on the table occupied by Team Manager Raymond A. Parker and associate salesmen. Challenges had been made at Friday's meeting and the excitement waxed high as amended reports came in during the meeting. At the eleventh hour Walter Abbe, one of Manager Parker's teammen came in from Hartford wnth a subscription of $4,000 and his aggregation immediately took "the cake." The executive committee under General Sales Manager James B. Fullerton and Division A under Manager James P. Bath, also had a little bet on. Even a momentous additional subscription made on the spot by Louis A. Kingsbury failed to capture the prize for the executives, as Division A reported a subscription of $5,000 from Mrs. H. C. Murray, received in the morning mail, in addition to $1,400 from the remaining two teams in that division. Harry N. Bullard read a communication from Mrs. Caroline Young O'Brien a native of this city, with business headquarters in New York, who fully endorsed the hotel movement locally and offered to take as many subscriptions as her means would allow. Harold C. Lincoln, a classmate of Mrs. O'Brien at Windham High school was chosen to make the sale of the stock to her. L. F. Hartson, of Norwich and Windham, an executive committee salesman read a letter from William J. McAneeney, vice president of the Hudson-Essex Motor company and summer resident of North Windham, in which th elatter offered his subscription for 20 shares of the stock. The total amount invested to date represents 169 stockholders.

NEW HAVEN AUTO THIEVES CAUGHT SUNDAY MORNING

Willimantic, March 1.—The efficiency of the local police department led to the arrest of two young men, Edward Sullivan and James McFarland, each 19, within less than three hours after the youths had stolen a Ford sedan in New Haven. It is claimed that Sullivan figured in a fist battle in a restaurant and pool room on State street, New Haven. He was either ejected or ran out from the place and with McFarland boarded the sedan which is owned by Louis Esposito of New Haven. The boys headed toward this city where Sullivan's parents reside. In South Manchester the machine ran out of gasoline and they were given a ride into this city by Jack Green who was on his way to Willimantic with a load of Sunday newspapers from Hartford.

Lieutenant Frank McLean had received word of the theft of the machine at 2 a. m. and when the youths arived here about 4 o'clock they were held up by police officers. They admidded the theft of the car and were held on a charge of taking an automobile without permission of the owner. Officers William Hurley and Roderick Lariviere were sent to bring the machine from Manchester to this city and early Sunday afternoon it was called for by a New Haven party and returned to the owner. Sergeant William Connelly and Officer Callaghan, of the New Haven police department, took the young men into custody for a hearing in that city Monday.

JEWETT CITY

The question people were asking Sunday was "did you notice any earth quake?" This, after hearing about one Saturday night over the radios, and reading the Sunday papers. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McNicol say that at about 9.35 their house swayed so much that the electric dome in their dining room and chandeliers were in motion fully a minute after the house stopped rocking. They discussed what the cause could be, as there was no wind, finally decided it was caused by some trembling of the earth. H. T. Jeffers of Lisbon said his house rocked. But the shock was not generally noticeable in this vicinity, as the majority of people knew nothing about it. People who live where there is heavy traffic and are so accustomed to the jarring of their houses would not have noticed an earthquake. One woman said her house was being so continually jarred by heavy trucks on the state road, that she had to straighten the pictures on the walls every day. So evidently, the Griswold and Lisbon section was not particularly affected. The Cloud Digger hit it right when he said in his forecast of September 21 that his earthquake predictions had more than been realized, but the end of those disturbances were not yet, and that he looked for several big ones in the next six months.

He also said that March would come in like a lion, and certainly no more howling, raging wind and rain storm has prevailed in many a night, as swept over this borough Sunday night. It was "off again, on again," with the electric system for a short time, umbrellas turned wrong size out, hats disappeared are still going evidently, for they were not not to be retrieved in the fifty-mile gale.

NEW LONDON WOMAN UNAWARE THAT HOUSE WAS BEING ROBBED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 1.—Three breaks occurred Friday and Saturday nights and from all appearances the burglaries were perpetrated by one or more boys, who, the police believe are responsible for several breaks of stores and residences the past few months; for in each of the breaks Friday and Saturday nights, the work of the thieves is identical with the methods employed at the other burglaries. This is particularly evident in the strewing of burned matches about the floors of the places robbed.

Friday night, the tobacco and candy store of Jeremiah J. Lyons, corner of Bilinman and Truman streets, was entered, the crooks prying open the Truman street door with a jimmy, or similar implement. The only plunder obtained was about $5, which was found in a cash register and composed of pennies, nickels and dimes. No other plunder in the place was disturbed.

Saturday night the residence of Horace Dart, 27 Warren street, was entered as was the residence of H. W. Clark, 960 Bank street, these residences being within a short distance of each other. At the Warren street house entrance was obtained by a bedroom window being smashed, which permitted the unlocking of the window. The crooks obtained a lady's watch and a man's watch, the latter having a chain and charm attached. At the residence of Clark, entrance was gained by a rear window being forced. The plunder taken included a watch belonging to Mrs. Clark and a Liberty bank containing about $3. Mrs. Clark was in the house at the time of the burglary, but was on the second floor, so did not hear the crooks at work.

A Ford automobile, the property of C. E. Beach, proprietor of a garage on Howard street, caused slight damage this forenoon in a peculiar manner. The car was in the highway and repair work was being done on it by Beach. Without any warning, the car got into motion and before Beach could bring it to a stop it crossed Howard street, the sidewalk, and collided with the building owned by Mrs. Emma Pace, corner of Howard and Hamilton streets, smashing a door and plate glass window.

Mrs. Esther A. Turner is seriously ill at her home, 24 Waller street.

Leroy Newbury, driver of an ice cream delivery truck, is to be in the police court Monday morning to answer for causing a collision on Howard street by which Charles P. Fuller, a newspaper carrier more than 70 years old, was knocked down and injured. Newbury stopped his vehicle on the east side of Howard street when young fellows called to him from the walk, and thus caused a jam in the traffic by which a towel delivery vehicle crashed into a passenger automobile operated by Thos. Stackhouse. The Stackhouse car was forced against Fuller, who was crossing the street and the old man was thrown, but escaped going under the wheels. It is claimed that the Newbury car was parked where it should not have been and where street signs notified motorists that stopping was prohibited by ordinance. The cases against the drivers of the autos other than Newbury were before the court Saturday and then the fault came out. The case was so complicated that the men accused Saturday were discharged as not having been reckless in the operation of their cars. The situation was forced upon them and they did the best they could to avoid the crash, the Towel car being driven against the curbing and there overturning, in an effort by the operator to get away from the collision, or from striking Fuller.

An automobile truck owned by the Central Coal company, Bank street, was wrecked Saturday forenoon and the two occupants of the vehicle, Clark W. Smith, 23 Latham street, Groton, the driver, and Stefan Kalinowski, a helper, of 91 Crystal avenue, were injured, but not seriously when a New Haven railroad freight train struck the truck at the coal company's crossing. Besides the damage to the truck, the fence surrounding the coal company's screening house, together with the structure, was damaged.

The truck had been to the coal dock to be loaded and when it was returning to the scales to be weighed, had but just started across the tracks when an eastbound freight train here down upon it. When Smith saw the approaching train the locomotive was but a few feet away from the truck. Smith did not have an opportunity to give the truck added power or to reverse his engine, so that the truck was caught by the pilot of the engine and carried about 15 feet between the rails and the fence and screenhouse of the coal company, before the train was brought to a stop. Smith and Kalonowski were caught in the cab of the truck, the latter escaping with minor bruises and was able to continue at his work; but Kalinowski suffered severe bruises and lacerations. He was treated by a physician, after which he was sent to his home.

British schooner G. A. Andersen, Capt. Charles Knickle, which was seized by the crew of the United States destroyer Jouett of Montauk Point a week ago, together with the schooner's cargo of 1,670 cases of whiskey, was taken in tow Saturday by the coast guard cutter Redwing and taken to Providence, where Capt. Knockle and his crew of eight men will be presented before a United States commissioner charged with violation of the navigation laws. The Anderson, according to Captain Knickle, was en route from Lunenberg to St. Pierre, Miquelon, and he was unable to account for the vessel's getting off her course about 200 miles.

Thomas Brennan, 16 Jefferson avenue, was arrested by Patrolman George Labous Saturday night, charged with breach of the peace by William Brown, Niles Hill road. The accused furnished a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Brown went to the Y. M. C. A. during the early evening and in walking about the building came in contact with Brennan, who remonstrated with Brown, it is alleged, when the latter was observed watching Brennan, a habit which, it is claimed, Brown has cultivated. Brennan with little or no hesitancy, it is alleged by Brown, then attacked the latter and administered a severe beating to Brown, with the result that the man beaten up sought Brennan's arrest.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Many an accusing eye was trained on Oneco, Saturday night, after an earthquake shook this part of the country up a bit, but did no damage. The Cloud Digger had predicted dire things for February, though he said nothing about an earthquake. Someone usually is blamed for everything and in this particular instance the Cloud Digger seems booked for the responsibility. But maybe he had nothing to do with the affair.

It may be regarded as a queer experience to go through an earthquake and not know anything about it, but such was the experience of thousands of people in Danielson and communities in the immediate vicinity. It appears within the realms of accuracy to state that the great majority of people here knew nothing about the earth tremor until after it was all over and a host of people first learned of it through radio reports and the dissemination of the same by telephone and otherwise.

The theater audience did not hear of the affair until after they had left the Orpheum. Hundreds of people about town first learned of it when their radio sets or telephones brought them the news.

Nevertheless, the earthquake was distinctly sensed here by hundreds of people. At the central telephone exchange, housed in a brick structure, the metal lockers where the operators keep their belongings were shaken and rattled as though by some giant hand. A clock hung on the switchboard swung back and forth like a pendulum. The quake did not cause any interruption or interference with the service. At Dayville, George S. Michie, sitting quietly at home, felt what appeared to be a swaying of his home. Mr. Michie mentioned another peculiar phenomenon of the quake—the blinking of the electric lights, which might be accounted for a number of ways.

Their attention called to the fact that there had been an earthquake, numbers recalled peculiar experiences such as beds shaking and other like unusual disturbances that they could not account for at the time.

No reports were available Sunday of any damage to property in this territory, where it would appear, the shock was not so severe as in Providence.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Pierce of East Killingly who died at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, Thursday, were conducted Sunday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood by Rev. Harvey H. Conklin of the Methodist Episcopal church. The body was entombed at Westfield cemetery. Relatives acted as bearers.

At 2:30 Sunday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood funeral services for Leroy LaPlace, who was resident near Alexander's lake and who died last Thursday at the hospital in Putnam, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. The body is to be taken to Deep River, Conn., today (Monday) for burial. Mr. LaPlace was a native of Essex.

The body of Charles Back, of East Killingly, was forwarded Saturday by A. F. Wood from his undertaking rooms here to Florence, Mass., where services were held and burial took place. Mr. Back was a native of Holland, Mass., but had been resident hereabouts for several years.

There were 54 prisoners at the county jail in Brooklyn at the week-end, a sizeable family for an institution that figured largely in talks about doing away with the institution, about five years ago. The Killingly town court ticketed two, accused of intoxication and found guilty, for a stay at the institution, Saturday morning. This town furnished three prisoners for the jail the past week.

Dr. Henry Hallam Saunderson, a Brighton clergyman, rated one of the most interesting and fascinating lecturers before the public today, is to speak before the Killingly Woman's club at Killingly High school auditorium Wednesday afternoon. It has been said of Rev. Mr. Saunderson that probably no preacher reaches so large a congregation. It is related that he preaches to 500 people every minute of daylight. That he never stops preaching, though his sermons are shorter than most texts. This sounds like a riddle, but it may be explained by stating that he is the man who "occupies" the wayside pulpits that one may see on the grounds of hundreds of churches throughout the country. He writes the little sermons they display on neatly arranged cards and they go before the eyes, eventually, of a congregation rated at no less than 2,000,000 people. The Killingly Woman's club is alive with anticipation over Rev. Mr. Saunderson's approaching visit to Danielson.

The dog poisoners continue their despicable work in the town of Killingly. Possibly dog poisoners is not an accurate description of the men who are distributing poison along fox trails but the effect of their work, largely, will excuse that description of them. Week end reports were that three more dogs recently have died from picking up poison. Two of the dogs—shepherds—were owned in the East Killingly section and Mashentuck section of the town. The other dog—a rabbit dog—was owned near Horse hill. The rabbit dog is believed to have picked up the poison that killed him while on his way home from a day in the woods with his master, who was chopping.

PUTNAM

At the last meeting of the Rotary Club Attorney Charles A. Torrey gave the members of the Putnam club some insight into the workings of the state board of education of which he is a member from Windham county. In 1919 he was appointed for a four year term and not long ago was reappointed for six years more on the board. He calls membership on this board the greatest joy of his life. He spoke of the make-up of the board, one man from each county and a member-at-large. He also told of the attainments of many of the board members, several being leaders in fields of higher education. Meetings are each month or oftener if occasion demands. Mr. Torrey mentioned that the governor and lieutenant governor are ex-officio members of the board, and commented on the fact that the new governor, Mr. Trumbull, always makes it a point to attend board meetings.

Under the control of the board are more than 300 paid employes, subdivided under several department heads. An appropriation of $5,000,000 for two years' work of the board of education is required. The board has supervision over all matters pertaining to the common schools, and over the high schools, in the respect that no high school can take students from another town unless the act is first approved by the board. The state pays one-half the tuition expenses and one-half the transportation expenses of high school students who go to school in another town than their own.

Mr. Torrey spoke of the valuable services of A. B. Meredith, commissioner of education, saying that he was worth to the state ten times as much as the Board paid him. Under his direction the qualifications for the teaching in the public schools of the state have steadily grown higher. Within four years it will be necessary for every would-be school teacher to have taken a normal school training course, or its equivalent.

At the close of his talk Mr. Torrey confided to the club that he had many more things about the board which he would like to tell them, and he was given a hearty invitation to come again and tell the members all that he knew.

Attorney Howard C. Bradford made an announcement of the death of ex-Senator John Ash, and made a motion that was adopted for the appointment of a committee to draft resolutions on the death, to be made a part of the records of the Club, a copy to be sent to the members of the family and to be published in the newspapers. This committee consists of Lucius H. Fuller, Howard C. Bradford, Alexander Gilman, Warren Averill and Ellsworth L. Kelley.

At the meeting of the members of the Windham County Bar Association, held Saturday in the office of the clerk of the courts, Edgar M. Warner, in this city, favorable action was taken on the application of Arthur T. Kelley, of Willimantic, who applied for admission to the bar.

At a meeting last week the Canada-American Society of Putnam, installed officers. The installing officer was the Deputy Edmund Perreault. The mistresses of ceremony were Mrs. Arthur Beauregard and Mrs. Albertina Knoll. The installation music was played by Mrs. Delia Durocher. After the exercises there was a card party at the home of Mrs. Beauregard, at which Mrs. Nida Tetreault won the first prize and Mrs. Eugene Tetreault was given the consolation award.

The last meeting of Putnam Grange was Neighbors' Night. A number of visitors were present from Killingly Grange and from Quinnatisset Grange, Thompson, and furnished the entertainment for the evening. Some of the members of Quinnatisset Grange gave a farce, "The Separation of the Browns," and a brief address was made by the master, Alexander Maitland. Killingly Grange's program was a minuet danced by four young ladies in Colonial costumes, also violin solos. An address was delivered by the master, Rev. Charles Downs on "Could George Washington Tell a Lie if He Were Living Today?"

Refreshments were served by the home economics committee and there was dancing. About 100 were present.

Miss Mildred Rosenwald, ten year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Rosenwald of Main street was operated on for appendicitis at St. Vincent's hospital last week and is reported to be doing well.

Mrs. J. Frank Boyce of Pittsfield, Mass, was the guest last week of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Boyce.

Rev. Thomas McGarry of Ansonia was the guest for a brief visit last week of his sister, Miss Mary McGarry.

Miss Gladys Chaffee, who is a student nurse at the Boston City hospital, been spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Morris Patterson.

Harry F. Prentice is spending a week with relatives at Ellington.

The meeting of the Woman's board of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Wednesday afternoon.

Gregor Burnette of 27 Church street entertained six little friends at his home, on Saturday, noting his seventh birthday. Games and refreshments made the after pass quickly. Those present were Thelma Smith, Nancy Covell, Silas Wheelock, Jr., Ronald Carmac, Benton Miles and Thomas Toulan.

Arbor Day programs will be carried out by a good share of the subordinate Granges of the county and many of them will feature their programs by the planting of trees on town commons, in cemeteries and other places, for beautifying the appearance of the community.

Miss Jessie Maynard is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Charles Gulle of West Thompson.

Gerald Allard of Putnam is making a name as an athlete at Storrs College. During the current basketball season he is playing left guard on the Storrs' varsity team, and is often mentioned for his clever guard work. At Putnam High he played a good game at forward on the basketball team.

The T. M. H. S. basketball team at Thompson, has three more victories to be added to its season's quota. Coach Keyes' boys proved far too strong for Burrillville, while Stafford bowed to the locals, 65-30. Wednesday, a game was played at the Pomfret school. Tourtellotte won, by a margin of ten points. The Pomfret boys had a strong team and with more practice would doubtless be a winning aggregation.

Mrs. Frank Shea has returned to her home after undergoing a serious operation in St. Vincent Hospital, Worcester.

Mrs. Alice Nordfelt has returned to her home at Swampscott, Mass., after having spent several days with Mrs. Ruth Chandler.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Putnam and children of Westboro, Mass., have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoumbelis and daughter, Maria, of Sunnyside spent the past week in Medford, Mass., the guests of Harry Stoumbelis and family.

Mrs. Lewis T. Champlin entertained at Auction Bridge at her home on Grove street in honor of her guest, Miss Louise Wetherall, of Attleboro, Mass. Others present were: Mrs. Eben Holden, Mrs. Nelson Lowne, Mrs. John Moss, Mr. Arthur Keith, Mrs. William Wheaton, Mrs. E. S. Duffy, Mrs. A. S. Macdonald, Mrs. K. T. Phillips. Miss Constance Russell and Mrs. Fred Prince. Prizes were awarded Mr. Lowne and to Mrs. Wheaton. A luncheon was served.

The members of the Social Circle of the Baptist church spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ruth Chandler. There was a business meeting, sewing and sociability. Candy was served by the hostess.

A surprise party was given Mrs. Charlotte Foley at the A. O. H. hall in celebration of her birthday. Whist, dancing and playing of games made the evening pass pleasantly. Refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pierce have been entertaining their son, Ralph of Pittsfield and Miss Blanche Munyon of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. Sophie Pratt has moved from Bradley street to 182 South Main St.

This wanton killing of dogs in what may be assumed to be the result of an illegal and nefarious way of getting foxes, is getting under the skin of many an honest sportsman and many another man who may not be a sportsman, but loves a good dog and cares well for the one he owns. Eventually, the feeling stirred up at this time can lead to no good. Ceaseless watching and the following of certain clues has given a few, at least, a more or less definite opinion as to where some of the responsibility rests but lacking positive proof the necessary action for prosecution cannot just now be taken.

If one is an operator of a motor vehicle, this is the second day on which he should possess an operator's license for the year beginning March 1. All the old licenses for operating expired at midnight Saturday. A great number of motorists have taken the precaution to obtain renewals. Those who have not and find themselves confronted by an officer demanding to see a 1925 license, any day now, will have no just cause for complaint. And what one pays in court for driving without a license to do so deducts not a penny from the cost of the little card the law says one must have. The checkup of drivers may come any day.

At the masses of St. James' church Sunday, prayers of the congregations were asked for Rev. Daniel McCarthy, M. S., who died at Hartford the past week. Father McCarthy, who had never served in the local parish, was one of the younger priests of the Missionary Order of LaSalette.

All deposits made in the savings department of the Windham County National bank, Danielson, Conn., on or before March 5th will draw interest from March 1st.—adv.

Following the earthquake Saturday night radio receiving sets in many cases were notably louder and clearer in their production. Earl N. Bassett of Broad street was receiving from California for a period of 53 minutes without interruption and very clearly, this being unusually fine reception.

DEATH OF WALTER WILLIAMS AT LOS ANGELES SATURDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, March 1.—A telegram received by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Coffey, of Brooklyn, Sunday morning brought news of the death Saturday in Los Angeles of Walter Williams, for many years a resident of Brooklyn. Mr. Williams, who was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Williams, an old family in the Brooklyn-Canterbury section of Windham county, had been in California for about twenty years. He met with serious misfortunes in that state about nine years ago when a flood practically wiped out his holdings, but he later acquired considerable land and was so successful in disposing of portions of it as real estate values increased that he had gained wealth and independence within the past few years. Last summer Mr. Williams made his first trip east in twenty years and visited with friends in Brooklyn, Canterbury and other towns hereabouts where he has many acquaintances. Mr. Williams, the telegram indicated, died following a surgical operation.

He leaves his wife, who is a western woman, but no children. John Williams of Jewett City, is a brother of the deceased. Another brother, George, is believed to be resident in Willimantic, it was stated in Brooklyn Sunday.

STATE TRADE SCHOOL ACTIVE IN MANY AND PRACTICAL LINES

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, March 1—Franklin Baker and Henry Tourtellot, of Putnam, have entered the textile classes for training in the regular cotton manufacturing course. Ronald Champeau of Putnam and Terrill Rice of Norwich have entered the electrical department. Eugene Gutkneckt of Jewett City has enrolled in the carpentry course.

Students of the cotton manufacturing course have recently completed 1000 yards of oxford and approximately 600 yards of sheeting. Both of these items have been a means of valuable instruction in plain weaving. Work involving a greater diversity of experience comes in the making of madras patterns and in finer jacquard work. The making of this cloth includes everything from the opening of the bale to the weaving, including calculations and estimating. It is expected that the new Draper Automatic Loom now on order with the Draper Corp., will be delivered soon.

The carpentry department boys have recently completed mill work and interior finish for a new residence being built on School Street. This work consists of two colonnades with bookcases, china closets, medicine cabinets, and other items of interior trim. This department is now in an excellent position to take on work of a more extensive nature and is hoping to secure a house to build as early as possible.

Installation for light and power being done by the boys in the electrical department at the Putnam Foundry is progressing favorably.

The home economics department is lending opportunity for practice teaching to two senior students from Storrs College. Evening classes in home economics have been very satisfactory and well attended this year. In fact, all classes are holding up better this year than last, the only department closed so far being drafting.

Athletic activities of the school this winter show 7 basketball games played to date—Won 6; Lost 1.

It is expected to hold the annual open night this year Tuesday, April 7th. At this time the entire school will be in operation. On account of the crowded condition of the past two years it is being considere dto extend the period of inspection from mid-afternoon until 9.30 in the evening.

Classes in machine shop practice are busy on a variety of work including the making of small tools, special machinery, and general repairs to school equipment.

Boys who are nearing the completion of their courses are Richard Wheeler, Stonington, electrical dep't; Harold Foskett, Woodstock, Charles Hanley, Pomfret and Sotir John, cooperative high school student from North Grosvenordale, machine dep't; Anathol Fortier, danielson, carpentry dep't.

A greater demand for the specific training which the school offers in the various trades and additional inquiries for types of courses not already incorporated in the school program would seem to indicate that expansion of the trade school facilities will be a necessity at no distant date.

EARTHQUAKE TREMOR NOTED IN WESTERLY AND PAWCATUCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, March 1.—Westerly and Pawcatuck people, in common with those of other parts of the earthquake area of the country, at 9.25 Saturday night, experienced to a greater or less degree the vibrations and shocks reported. As in other sections, the intensity and duration of the movement or motion depended upon position at the time. Parties in upper stories, and especially in buildings which were erected on made land, noticed the tremors to a greater degree. The occupants of the Briggs building on Main street, in Westerly, and the Barrows block, on the Pawcatuck side of the Pawcatuck rive bridger, both of which structures are supported on caissons in the river bed, noted an exceptional vibratoin. Members of the Westerly Cycle club, on the third floor of the Briggs building, and the occupants of the stores and Lyric theatre in the Barrows block, in several cases approached the exits in readiness to make a hasty get-away. From Avondale telephone calls were sent to Westerly to know where the explosion was which caused the pictures to sway on the walls in the rooms of the houses there.

LONGWORTH AND TILSON.

From the size of the vote in the Republican caucus of house members at Washington, there does not appear to have been the close contest that was claimed between Nicholas Longworth and Martin B. Madden for the speakership of the lower branch of Congress after the fourth of March. However broadly the view might have been held that a competent man would be named whichever succeeded in the contest, it is quite evident from the vote that Longworth is regarded by his colleagues as the man for the place.

Connecticut has been particularly interested in this contest because of the feeling that has prevailed that Congressman John Q. Tilson should be named, because of his ability, as the presiding officer of the house. As the leading parliamentarian of the house there seems to be a basis for the belief that he might have made an excellent run had he consented to be a candidate, and yet the splitting up of the Longworth support through such a candidacy would doubtless have turned the outcome in favor of Madden, thus leaving Tilson defeated and weakening his chances of becoming floor leader, the office which Longworth now holds.

The choice of Congressman Tilson as floor leader to succeed Longworth when he becomes speaker reflects credit upon the house. It means recognition of the ability of the Connecticut representative and places him in a position of big responsibilities concerning legislative programmes. His advancement directs attention to the type of man which has been representing Connecticut. It comes as no surprise to Connecticut, and it cannot fail to be regarded as the logical step in the house. The unanimous action of the republicans concerning the floor leader indicates the appreciation that is felt for the judgment and ability of Congressman Tilson and the confidence that is displayed in his handling of the office. In the house as well as in the senate Connecticut has chosen men who have risen through the character of their service to conspicuous places in the national law making body.

PRESIDENT EBERT.

When President Friedrich Ebert took over the task of guiding the German republic there was more or less comment over the fact that he was a harness maker by trade. Less has been heard of that since there has been opportunity to watch the manner in which he has administered the trying duties of his office. What was mentioned in a belittling way at the time of his choice as president is now brought up at the time of his death as simply a mark to show what wonderful strides he made during his lifetime. From harness maker to statesman of outstanding prominence was not impossible. His trade did not stand in the way of hard work, and it did not interrupt or send off the track Germany's change to the republican form of government. There were those who did their best to make it but the Ebert influence was always sufficiently strong to keep it in line and going ahead.

Opposition developed from the same source from whence came the fight against a republic. The monarchists were and are bitter enders. They have failed successively to accomplish their objects but they have nevertheless brew the cause of an endless amount of trouble which has not only handicapped the Ebert government but proved to be a detriment to Germany. President Ebert was a little cleverer than his opponents and the benefit of his work in stifling down the monarchists and dispelling the gods was felt in the results obtained for Germany under the Locarno agreement.

It is unfortunate that Germany has been deprived of his guidance and influence at this time. The effect upon the country is bound to be felt, not from the character of his service but the high standard of his statesmanship there are reasons for hoping that they will stand forth as examples to be continued in the years that are immediately ahead. Ebert's influence should be felt for a long time to come.

THE AIRCRAFT INQUIRY.

When the investigation is completed by the house aircraft committee there may be quite as great a division of opinion as seems to prevail at the present time concerning the aircraft making the capital ships of the navy obsolete. It is evident that those standing in high places, those upon whose responsibility rests in providing the proper defense of the nation are not unmindful of the importance of the aircraft. Yet they are not willing to concentrate their whole attention upon the air service and put what has been the first line of defense into the discard. Time and developments may force them to change their views. They are apparently open to conviction.

Among those who are directing attention to the increased importance of aircraft there is a lack of agreement. There are those who believe that the air service should be entirely separate. Others who are equally strong in their advocacy and support of the air service do not favor such unification. They believe that the army and the navy should each develop its own aircraft service. No less an authority than Major General Patrick of the air service department opposes a separate air service and declares that this country is 18 months ahead of any other on defense planes, its chief weakness being in the number of bombing planes. Admirals Jones and Sims differ over the supremacy of the bombing plane over the capital ship, and yet there isn't any of those who have been called to testify who have refused to admit the importance of the air service.

It is a case where doctors fail to agree. There are enthusiasts on both sides of the controversy. Some would centralize attention on the air and treat the navy as a relic of the past. Others are cognizant of the defensive value of the first line of defense and are unwilling to think of parting with it until different conditions exist. The discussion holds forth the possibility of coming to a thorough understanding of the situation henceforth. It is inevitable that the years ahead must show greater attention given to the aircraft. How soon capital ships can be discarded is a question that cannot be determined without very careful consideration.

CONNECTICUT EARTHQUAKES

Earthquakes in Connecticut are by no means unheard of. When Professor Bateman of Yale declares there have been 230 recorded since the settlement of New England there must of course be many which antedate the memory of the present generation. But the dish-rattling jars that invariably characterize the earthquakes in this part of the country have been heard by many, and like the yellow day and the eclipse of the sun have been the subjects of prolonged discussion.

Even as there have been earthquakes in this neck of the country for a long period of years they can also be expected in the future, but there is a high degree of satisfaction in the minds of the people of Connecticut and New England that there is no reason to expect anything serious therefrom. This has not been and is not now regarded as earthquake territory. Scientists are disposed to believe that nothing like the San Francisco experience can be anticipated in this region, and for lack of something more positive there are good reasons for placing confidence therein.

The seriousness of the Saturday night disturbance is indicated by the fact that a great number of people knew nothing about it, of it they did hear it mistook it for a noise that is frequently heard like the jar from a heavy auto truck.

While New England has had many quakes, according to the scientists, they as well as its tornadoes have not been of such a serious type as those which devastate and destroy in other parts of the country. Hence there's nothing to get nervous about.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY.

What must be regarded as forcing parents to assume the proper degree of responsibility concerning their children is the action taken by a juvenile court judge in Philadelphia in ordering the parents to spank daily for 47 days the two boys who robbed a hardware store.

Possibly that will be another case of hurting the parents more than it does the boys, but it is evident that the judge figures that it is because there has been too little attention to corrective measures on the part of the parents that the youngsters found it easy to depart from the straight and narrow path.

How many more instances are there where the rod is being spared and the child spoiled? How many more parents are there who should be more seriously concerned about providing the right kind of training and guidance for their children instead of permitting them to run wild and drift into the ways of vice and evil?

In two households in Philadelphia there may be more serious attention given to such responsibilities. It is preferable, however, that the corrective measures should be applied at a time that will prevent the first indulgence in crime rather than employed in stopping further indulgences.

Children which are left to the training they get in the street and to the influences which they encounter through bad associations may not be hopeless, but they are unfortunate in having parents who are so unmindful of their duty toward them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: March starts out in the wet column.

The days of the present congress are numbered, and the number is small.

The last day for obtaining new driving licenses proves to have been only a half day.

Let March try to dampen the ardor of the boy with the marbles and see what the results are.

It is all right to plan the new garden now, but the real fun will come when the weeds put in their appearance.

Now that the assessors and board of relief have finished their work we'll soon know what the tax rate is going to be.

Fixing the town rate of taxation may be a cut and dried job, but enough should be present to show that there is some interest in it.

Borglum is obtaining notoriety even though the Stone mountain memorial is not completed. But whether it is to his credit is another matter.

There are some members of congress who are so used to extravagance and the throwing away of other people's money that they have difficulty in complying with much needed economy.

The oxygen and carbon dioxide treatment for alcoholism is apparently needed according to the report of the Massachusetts commissioner of health who declares alcoholism to be causing the highest death rate in 20 years.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Cornmeal and vinegar will remove fruit stains from the hands.

Try to have the heels of all your shoes about the same height.

Never serve roasts without first removing any skewers or strings that may be attached.

Scallop boiled rice with tomatoes and season with cheese.

Raw carrots will clear the complexion and are very good in salads.

Bacon should never be kept in the ice compartment of the refrigerator.

Be sure to thoroughly dry the iron frying pan after washing. It rusts very easily.

Add a slice of lemon to the water in which old potatoes are boiled to make them a good color.

Use the egg slicer to slice boiled beets. The slices will be more uniform and the task will be shorter.

Floors should be waxed with the grain of the wood.

Garnish the dish, but not so much that it is difficult to carve or serve.

Keep as many foods as possible in fruit jars in your icebox. Jars take up less room than dishes.

For mixing flour and water use a fork or eggbeater to make it smooth and free from lumps.

After frying fish wash the pan as usual. Then put a little vinegar in it and boil for a few minutes. The vinegar will remove all fishy odors from both pan and kitchen.

Jelly should be poured into the glasses as soon as it has cooked sufficiently. If allowed to congeal and poured, it will be cloudy.

Put a piece of bread into the pot when boiling greens; it will entirely destroy the disagreeable smell which is apt to drift out of the kitchen and into every other room in the house.

SALTED NUTS

Almonds, pecans, peanuts or other nuts may be salted and browned with butter or oil either in the oven or by deep fat frying. Nuts with thick skins should be blanched first in boiling water and then dried.

To brown the nuts in the oven spread them out in a flat pan with two teaspoons of oil to each cup of nuts and roast in a hot oven (about 450 degrees F.) If roasted peanuts are used keep them in the oven for five minutes. If raw nuts are used roast them for 10 to 15 minutes, stirring frequently to keep the color uniform. Drain off any excess of fat on absorbent paper, then lay on waxed paper and sprinkle with salt in the proportion of about one teaspoon of salt to each cup of nuts.

To brown nuts in deep fat put one cup of oil in a small saucepan. When the fat is hot submerge a few nuts at a time in a small strainer, brown evenly, drain and salt. Raw nuts require from three to six minutes to brown; roasted peanuts require three minutes or less.

POOR ECONOMY

Don't use lard that is not absolutely fresh for pastry. A least little rancid taste will ruin your baking. Render it clear and sweet again and use for frying and buy fresh for the pie-making.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Green vegetables do not contain much nourishment as compared to cereals and tubers (potatoes,) but they form a pleasing variation in diet and supply a large proportion of mineral salts and acids which are believed to be of service in keeping the skin fresh and clear and the digestive system in order.

A good hair tonic may be applied two or three times a week. Here is a recipe planned especially for very oily hair. One-quarter ounce bicarbonate of soda, one-quarter ounce borax, two ounces cologne water, one ounce rectified spirit, one-half ounce cantharides, four ounces bay rum, thirty grains quinine sulphate. Massage for five or ten minutes.

Never rub the eye that has the cinder in it. Your eye will fill up with tears caused by the irritation and sometimes that washes the object away. If not use an eye-cup, if you have one, and some clean boiled water, cooled enough to use. If you have no eyecup, fill a glass to the brim with water, instruct the victim to place his face over the water and wink quickly into it. This is often a successful means of washing the cinder out.

Here is an exercise for developing graceful muscular co-ordination and poise: Kneel on the floor on one knee, the other leg stretched out straight in front. Raise both arms above the head, elbows slightly bent, forefingers touching. Bend the trunk backward slowly; raise the trunk and bend forward. Raise the trunk and repeat. Reverse the position of the legs and repeat the bending backward and forward.

OFTEN NEGLECTED

Everyone these days is very particular to have sanitary glasses from which to drink and avoid using the same tumbler another person has used. And yet just as great a transmitter of disease is often neglected for weeks, the telephone mouthpiece. It should be wiped out every few days with a weak solution of lysol or carbolic acid to prevent the spreading of colds, grippe and other germs.

LAMP SHADES

Pretty lamp shades can be made from goffered linen trimmed with chintz, cretonne, or braid and beads. Others that look beautiful over a bright light have alternate panels of plain and jazz silk. A good many shades are also being made of real Java silk in flames, red, rose, green, gold, and blue; these are trimmed with a fringe of drop beads and are seen in goffered linen, chintz, silk, and cretonne. Some new ones are almost plain, with colored silhouette figures upon them. Silk gimp, satin ribbon, and gold lace are extensively used on candle shades and there is a new bead fringe which represents a string of jewels.

Candles are now shown with silhouette figures to correspond with the shades. Some of these are much too pretty to burn but probably when lighting times comes a substitute will be found. There are, too, some very attractive candles in apple green, old rose, and pale blue, ornamented with gold.

THE DOORMAT

In these days of houses with doors opening right into the living room, a doormat of some sort is an absolute necessity. The rough cocoa mats are perhaps the best dirt removers and can now be bought in attractive bordered designs. They wear forever, too.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Coats were shown with cape effects, and cape collars were also a marked note on dresses.

Evening dresses are featured either with knee-length overtunics or in one piece effects with skirts slightly draped at one side of the front.

In colors, ecru is the marked note, used in kasha, in crepe marocain and in wool jersey.

Marocains printed in black and white checks are also conspicuous, used in dresses of ensemble costumes.

Chiffon is the fashion. The gayly printed fabrics are being almost universally used for tea and semi-formal evening costumes.

The newest lingerie is almost as varied in colors as the rainbow. Crepe de chine and georgette are the materials which are trimmed with a multitude of laces.

Feather trimmings are prominent, and bertha effects. Black chiffon evening dresses are strongly emphasized.

Nile green, cyclamen and dull red are also favored, the red on the order of burgundy or wine color.

Two new braids are vying with the panama, milan and bangkok straws for the small high-crowned spring hats. These are known as exotic and Bengal. All the straw braids are very fine and there is a tendency of galalith, enamel, leather and celophane.

Ostrich feathers are worn whenever it is possible to wear them, on coats, wraps, cloaks, hats and on the cuffs of the really smart gloves.

In former years it was fashionable to wear summer furs around the neck. Now they are being worn around the borders of the kasha, flannel or silk coats, which are such an important part of the ensemble.

LATE WINTER HATS

What makes the late winter hats cost more? Embroidery. The shapes are small with just enough brim to turn up a bit in front. The crowns are high and draped, the material usually is silk faille and the creation is covered with embroidery in jewel tones, violet and the spring flower shades.

WARM WEATHER COLOR

Those who read the signs of the times forecast wild colors on the links and country club verandas this summer. They say the vogue for printed silks for sport clothes, now so marked in the south, is sure to journey northward with the warm weather. The wilder the colors and designs of these prints the more fashionable the costume.

HOUSECLEANING THE COFFEE POT

Every so often the coffee pot requires more drastic measures than a mere washing to remove the dark marks that accumulate from continual usage. Boil the discolored pot in a strong solution of borax and water and then wash as usual and it will be spotless.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When using material for a frill, measure the length required and then add half as much again. This will make a nice frill, neither skimpy nor too full.

Mark the lines to be hemstitched with a contrasting cotton to the material to be hemstitched. Then they will be noticed easily and the garment will not be returned with just enough of the stitching overlooked to prevent you from wearing it when you wish.

If you are reknitting a sweater you will find it much easiner if the kinks are first taken out of the yarn. First wind it in a skein. Then tie it together firmly and wash it in lukewarm water. Fold in a towel and place on a radiator or close to the heater to dry. The kinks will have disappeared when the yarn is dry.

CARE OF HOUSE PLANTS

Insects are not very troublesome to house plants. If any appear they can be disposed of if the proper steps are taken immediately. Insects are grouped into two classes: Those which eat parts of the plant and those which secure their food by sucking out the plant sap. Those which actually eat parts of the plant are known as chewing insects and are best destroyed by picking them off the plants, says a horticulture magazine. They may also be destroyed with a spray of arsenate of lead. The arsenate is added to water at the ratio of one tablespoon to one gallon of water. Sucking insects may be destroyed by dipping the plant in oil emulsion or a proprietary tobacco extract. This material may be sprayed on the plants but the dipping process is more satisfactory.

THE BALKY SALT CELLAR

The time is approaching when the salt sticks in the shaker and proves very annoying. A few grains of rice in the shaker will help, and a little cornstarch added to the salt also keeps it from caking; but at the same time adulterates the salt. Perhaps the wisest choice of salt holders for the summer months is the open cellar. It certainly means less irritation and more salt.

KEEP IT DARK

Burned food means a careless cook. And if you should by any chance spoil something through burning, don't tell everyone about it. We are not allowed to boast about our good points in this world and why should we select our mistakes for broadcasting? Just remove the evidence before anyone returns home for dinner and plan something else. You are not apt to repeat the performance for years to come.

FABRICS FOR SPRING

Silks and chiffons are vieing with woolen materials for pre-eminence in the spring tailleurs. The new tailored suits are almost universally distinguished by the short two-button, double-breasted packets with notched lapels. Deep folds are replacing pleats in skirt construction.

CONCERNING WOMEN

One and a half million women and girls in Japan are now engaged in office work.

At Karatsu, in Japan, the work of coaling ships is performed by women and girls.

One of Mexico's most famous poets of the early days was a woman, Juana Ines de la Cruz, whose writings are read wherever the Spanish tongue is spoken.

In the Patent Office at Washington there is a woman's department, with the specifications of the patents arranged in chronological order.

Miss Sybil Overton, known as the prettiest woman physician in England, is the first woman to be appointed Medical Inspector of Factories.

In Rumania women are employed as builders and, with their skirts tucked up, climb ladders with pails of cement or loads of bricks just like the men.

JUST A SUSPICION

When just a faint trace of onion is desired, either rub the inside of the bowl with a cut onion before putting in the other ingredients or use onion salt in the recipe instead of plain salt.

CANNED FOODS

Where possible canned vegetables should be placed in a colander and the water from the faucet run through them to remove all taste of the tin.

RECIPES

Russian Mayonnaise: Cook an egg in boiling water for five minutes. Peel, and remove the white. Put the yolk into a bowl; mash well, stirring thoroughly until very creamy. Add salt, pepper, mustard to taste, the juice of a lemon and enough oil, little by little, to thicken the mixture.

Continue the stirring and mix in one-half cup of thick cream. Chop the white into small pieces and add the last thing. The dressing should not be too thick.

Shoulder of Lamb Saute: Cut a shoulder of lamb in pieces for serving, having them about an inch thick. Cover with boiling water, let boil about five minutes, then simmer until tender. Skim the pieces from broth, roll them in flour mixed with salt and pepper, and let cook in a little hot fat, bacon, or salt pork until lightly browned on one side then turn to brown the other side. Make a sauce with the broth; salt and pepper. This makes a change from ordinary boiled or stewed lamb.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Troubles of a Dog Warden

Mr. Editor: I was dog warden for Putnam. You recently printed a statement to the effect that one woman used a kitchen broom on me. I deny the fact under oath, but she did give me a thumping in the morning when I went after the dog and again in the afternoon when I took the chief with me. The dog referred to as on the veranda was in the highway and got home. They were not at home and I took it. I then went to the chief and told him the circumstances and he said it was all right. After that he changed his mind. In the case where the citizen was told by telephone, I was the one who telephoned and stated that I had the dog. When I took the wardenship I was told by an exwarden that they would not uphold me in court and I found it out.

There was a complaint from a neighbor that a dog had not been registered. I brought the man into court and the prosecuting attorney got up and said that as he was coming to his office he counted eight dogs but the warden went two, or two and a half miles into the country to get this man in court. I want to say that the man who tried to obey the dog laws was a gentleman in every case where I got the dog, but those that did not, well—

Albert's Future in Doubt for Years

When there appeared the possibility for which he had not been prepared, Albert, nephew of King Leopold of Belgium, trained diligently, but for years his future depended on the whim of an irascible old man, and once he saw his right given to another.

At the time of his birth, his chances of becoming king of the Belgians were remote, and he was made ready for a military career. He attended military school, was drilled as a common soldier and gradually worked his way up to the rank of major. Deeply interested in his calling, he was one of the most studious and hard working officers of the grenadiers.

With the death of his brother there opened the possibility that he might become king and at 17 his intensive training for sovereign began. King Leopold gave no indication of his choice of a successor and was notorious for his low morality, many hatreds and capriciousness, but Albert, more serious and reserved than ever, devoted himself to his studies, visited the Belgian people at their work, and disguised as a newspaper reporter, observed activities of other countries.

After six years of preparation he received the announcement that Leopold, worried because he had not married had chosen his brother-in-law as successor to the throne.

Continuing his studies in medicine, Albert went to Munich, where he met and married the daughter of a famous oculist, at 25. Following the birth of a son to the young couple a year later, Leopold publicly proclaimed Albert as heir to the throne. Soon afterward came Albert's trip to the Belgian Congo, and his report to Leopold regarding the conditions there so angered the king that he never spoke to him again.

Upon's Leopold's death, Albert, at 34, became the ruler of a dissatisfied and unprotected people. Winning their confidence, he finally induced them to strengthen their military forces, but the move was made too late to be effective when the World War broke out.

Then came King Albert's valiant stand against the invaders of his betrayed country, his hardship and grief and his ultimate victory for the rights of his people.

Today, at 49, he is beloved at home and honored by all the world.

Tomorrow—Arkell Started Over Again at 40

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George Brandes, whose new book discussing modern religion is attracting much attention, years ago established his place as the foremost literary light in Denmark, a keen critic, a brilliant thinker and an undoubted genius. He was born in Copenhagen, of Hebrew parentage, and is now nearing his eighty-fifth year. At 20 he had studied law, philosophy and the arts with sufficient assiduity to shine brightest among the brilliant young men of the University of Copenhagen. His first work was published in 1866. It was an examination into the relations of science and faith, and he was vigorously attacked by the orthodox for his views. In the years that followed 1883 Brandes lived out of Denmark, and wrote book after book covering stretches of subjects. His writings were translated into many tongues, and won him great fame. While he has not labored of late with the energy of his younger years, he is no idle man.

English as She's Spoken

The third grade was having spelling. The pupils were pronouncing the word spelling it and using it in a sentence. One of the words in this particular lesson was "each." The teacher called on John to spell, pronounce and use it in a sentence. He pronounced and spelled it correctly, but this is the sentence he gave: "Our dog has the each."

POETRY

THE TRUE KINSHIP OF MAN.

Father of Nations, whom we hold
Shepherd of races, far and wide,
Within whose shelter and whose fold
Both happy and oppressed may hide,
Be in our hearts lest we recant
Love's creed thou taughtest us to chant

Nothing of the faiths which we believe,
Nothing of worth can we bestow
Upon the nations, nor achieve
The workе to which all men we owe,
Unless we love, unless we love;
Unless thou givest of thy love.

Teach us the true kinship of man;
Widen in us the vision seen
Of God's great, all-embracing plan;
Show us what sacrifice may mean,
If we but love, if we but love,
If we of thee receive thy love.
—H. Zwickenden, in The Continent

TO A WATERFOWL.

Whither midst falling dew,
While glow the heavens with the last steps of day,
Far, through their rosy depths, dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the fowler's eye
Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong,
As, darkly painted on the crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink
Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide,
Or where the rocking billows rise and sink
On the chafed ocean-side?

There is a Power whose care
Teaches thy way along that pathless coast,
The desert and illimitable air,—
Lone wandering, but not lost.

All day thy wings have fanned
At that far height, the cold, thin, atmosphere,
Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land,
Though the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end;
Soon shalt thou find a summer home and rest,
And scream among thy fellows; reeds shall bend,
Soon, o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven
Hath swallowed up thy form; yet, on my heart,
Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,
And shall not soon depart.

He who, from zone to zone,
Guides through the boundless sky thy certain flight
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will lead my steps aright.
—William Cullen Bryant.

English willow, because of its lightness and adaptability, is largely used in making artificial limbs.

"Peddler's French" was a term used for the speech of thieves and beggars of London a century or so ago.

Hard coal may be stored in substantially any quantity without deterioration or loss by spontaneous combustion.

A telephone is a lucrative investment in Japan, owing to the government's policy of issuing only a limited number of new instruments each year. After a certain period a subscriber may sell his telephone. This buying and selling has become a recognized business in large cities, the individuals thus employed being known as telephone brokers.

James Corrigan, a farmer living near Castile, N. Y., killed a beef and discovered in the animals's stomach six suction cups and six feet of three-quarter-inch rubber hose, belonging to a milking machine. And the man from whom the cow was bought declares that he never had a milking machine during the 13 months the cow was in his possession.

Total exports of coal in the United Kingdom during 1924 amounted to about 61,851,000 long tons, as compared with 73,450,000 in the preceding year and 73,400,000 tons in 1913. The decrease is due to the increased production in the Ruhr district. While exports to certain continental countries, such as France, Italy, Germany and Belgium, were smaller in 1924, increases have been noted to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Spain and Argentina.

Two brothers, plowing a field near Pleven, Bulgaria, to plant it to grapevines, recently turned up some heavy objects that to their ignorant eyes seemed like gold. They were vases and statuettes, fifteen in all. To be on the safe side the two men gathered up their finds and disappeared. But rumors of the occurrence got out and the local authorities started to investigate. They found in the field the cover of a vase that had been overlooked. It weighed ninety grams and an assay proved it to be pure gold.

At a springfield (Mass.) fruit store, the Boston Globe relates, a woman, pointing to alligator pears, asked, "How much?" "Forty-five cents each," replied the clerk in apologetic tones. After a superficial examination and some hesitancy, the woman said they weren't good enough, and asked if the store had any better ones. Assuming this was a bit of byplay on the part of the woman, the clerk decided to assist her in gracefully avoiding a purchase, and reaching under the counter, picked one from the same box as those on display. "These are 75 cents each," he informed her. "I'll take a dozen," came the woman's reply, and she did.

MAJ. FRANCIS LOWELL HILLS TO HAVE MILITARY BURIAL

The funeral services for Major Francis Lowell Hills, 80, who died suddnely Friday at his home in Marblehead, are to be held at Cambridge on Tuesday. Burial with military honors will be at West Point from which academy Major Hills was graduated in 1866, he never having missed a year's attendance since at the June exercises.

In recent years, as one of the oldest living graduates, Major Hills has been greatly honored at West Point, his career and character being held up to the cadets as an inspiration and example of all that was honorable and true.

Throughout his life he has always taken the deepest interest in boys and young men, especially in those who through injustice, or misfortune, seemed discouraged. To these he gave most uplifting influence, assisting in their education, tutoring them himself and giving his personal aid and devotion even to self sacrifice, but always with success. Almost his last conversation was upon this subject expressing his great interest and delight in the progress of a cadet at West Point.

Because of his high sense of honor he was chosen, after his graduation at West Point, to guard Jefferson Davis during his imprisonment at Fortress Monroe, after his capture by Gen. James H. Wilson.

Retiring from the army Major Hills followed his profession as a civil engineer, in which work he became distinguished.

In the last '70's he was in charge of reconstruction work on the Atlantic coast, in the U. S. government lighthouse service, with offices at Charleston, S. C.

From there he became chief engineer of maintenance and ways and bridge building on the old N. Y. P. R. R., now owned by the N. Y., N. H. & H. General James H. Wilson was president.

Resigning from this position he became chief engineer of the Wilmington and Northern railroad, now absorbed by the Philadelphia and Reading, and he was pleasantly located in Wilmington for fifteen years.

At the close of the Spanish-American war in which he was actively interested, he was appointed by President McKinley to be director of public works in Porto Rico, where he lived in the palace at San Juan with his friends, General Guy V. Henry, military governor and General Fred Grant, who was in charge of all military forces on the island.

The extensive work laid out by Major Hills, in the building of roads in all harbor and sanitary improvements in Porto Rico, and in establishing the American banking system, has been successfully continued ever since.

The last duties of Major Hills were in the building and managing of some large cotton mills in Alabama.

Since then he has lived in Marblehead, until suddenly stricken in his home.

It was at singular coincidence that the brilliant life of his close friend, General James H. Wilson should have ended but a few days previous in exactly the same way.

Born in Boston, Sept. 8, 1846, of fine old New England stock, Major Hills attended the public schools until receiving his appointment to West Point.

He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, was one of the founders of the Society of Founders and Patriots of America, a member of the Essex Institute, of the Association of Graduates of the U. S. Military Academy, and of many other clubs, societies and organizations. He is survived by his widow and three children, Miss Martha Higginson Hills, of Marblehead, Mrs. George Colt Butts, of Norwich, and Mrs. Henry Atherton Nichols, of Cambridge, Mass.

The cause of the fire was undetermined but fire officials said they believed it to have started from wires short circuited by the earthquake.

FRENCH TROOPS EXECUTED SIX NEGRO CANNIBALS

Bordeaux, France, March 1.—Six negro cannibals, among whom was a man sixty years old and a woman seventy, recently were executed by French troops at Victoria French Guinea.

The old man told the courtmartial that the liver was the choicest morsel of human flesh, while the aged woman admitted she preferred to eat the flesh of children "in the hope of becoming as young as them again."

The cannibals were convicted of killing and eating eleven persons. They faced the firing squad bravely.

Toulouse, France, March 1.—LaDepeche today publishes a despatch from its correspondent in Biarritz saying that all debts left there by Osborne C. Wood have been paid. The correspondent adds that the amounts paid include a check for 35,000 francs, alleged to have been cashed for Wood by the proprietor of the casino, who is said to have lodged a complaint against Wood when the bank upon which it was drawn declined to honor it.

According to the correspondent the alleged complaint of the proprietor of the casino against Mr. Wood had been withdrawn.

SAYS PRINCIPLE OF "GET" PREVENTS PEACE AMONG NATIONS OF EARTH

In his address, Sunday evening, at the Central Baptist church, Fletcher S. Brockman, associate of Dr. John R. Mott, head of the Y. M. C. A. of America, characterized the European legations in Peking, China, as reminding him of a pack of dogs snarling over a bone, and said that the spirit of "Get," caused the world war and if nations continued along these lines civilization was doomed to failure and man was damned.

The address by Dr. Brockman was the second of the series of Lenten addresses being given at local Protestant churches under the leadership of the Y. M. C. A., and in opening his remarks he stated that these would be more of conclusions of 30 years in travel outside of the United States.

Everyone is agreed, he said, that there is one thing radically wrong with the world and that there is one thing needed to change this. The answer to the problem is, how to get along with each other. The world has made many successes, civilization has done so, but it has made one big failure. Especially during the past 100 years we have progressed rapidly in all kinds of inventions, but two peoples have not yet learned to live together. Read the pages of history, dreary stuff that reminds one of a grave yard as it is read. Read of the Hebrew nation, Carthage, Rome and other great nations, dead, burial and almost forgotten. Thinking people are now looking to England, Japan, India, Italy, all wondering how long they can survive. How long can America last, is a question in the minds of many. We are a young and great nation but what will the story of the ages tell? Things found in Egypt, China and other old countries show us that we have gone ahead but little; that man reached the state of civilization that we now enjoy, some 4,000 years ago. Our architecture, art and literature are certainly no greater than that of centuries ago. We have done some wonderful things and these fool us into believing we have gone ahead in civilization.

The Orient viewed the progress of Europe and America with wonder and Japan immediately set out to learn this way of living. China also did so, changing her government, putting in schools, railroads, flying machines and the telegraph. Then the war came and they saw the civilization of the west and were dismayed at the terrible destruction. They saw 10,000,000 lives destroyed by the civilized west and they said, "The west has not found the way of life, we were mistaken, they found only toys to play with in life." A marvelous change came over the Oriental countries. They turned away in horror and said, "We cannot lay the foundations of that western life if it is to bring us to the end it has brought to Europe." They saw that the foundation of that civilization was not permanent. Doesn't it make one wonder what this world will be when our great-grandchildren are men.

The reason that brought on the European war was because nothing had changed. The same factors that brought on this war are still in the world. Japan today fears a civil war at any time and some in Japan and America would have it that these countries are to fight. I don't believe this is altogether true, but things are still at large that caused the European war and they might bring about such a war.

Then there is the feeling among classes. Classes haven't learned to live together even after all these years of civilization. In Russia there is terrible hatred, Japan fears a class war. Even in America in our south, there are 15,000,000 negroes and about the same number of whites. The understanding between them is not as good now as it was when I was a boy in the south. Conditions exist that might bring terrible things any moment.

Why all this trouble? Man is the only enemy of man. What is the cause of it all? There is only one cause. The dominating element in civilization has been wrong, all wrong. Its power has been turned in the wrong direction and must be directed right or mankind is doomed and damned. We have made one thing dominant in life and that is, to get, get, get. Jesus said that it was not what a man has. You and I and the world have been saying that life consists in the abundance of things a man has. We give our reverence to the man that has; if he's got it, he must be big. A man with little, must be little for it's what you've got that makes you big.

Isn't that how we think of countries today? As an American abroad people say "You're an American, isn't it wonderful to be an American. You've got the richest country in the world. It's a great country."

Europe simply put gun cotton to use before Africa and Asia. Put it into ships carrying guns and sent those ships out to GET. In Peking the legations are like a lot of snarling dogs over a bone. They were all there to get something out of poor, helpless China. That's why the last war broke out and the logical place for it to have started was in Peking.

In business the "Get" has been great. Many merchants practice "get" six days a week and read about "give" on the seventh. If this spirit of "get" meant war in 1914 it will mean it in 1928 and 2000 years from now it will still mean war. Jesus saw this and preached the other principle, "give." It was the spirit of Get that dominated the Roman empire and that made it trod on the wondrous culture of Greece and desolate the Hebrew nation. Jesus said this would bring ruin, that you cannot build civilization that way. He saw and preached the principle of going the opposite way. "A grain of wheat must go into the ground and die before bringing up its fruit."

The principle of the world and the principle of the Gospel are exactly opposite each other. Lay a watch here and tell boys it belongs to the first to "get it" and you'll have a pile. Give them guns, bombs, and knives and tell them the same and you'll have bloodshed. Europe didn't mind the war as long as she got something, this was the policy that forced poor China into the Boxer war.

Heathen people are attracted to the teachings of Jesus but they ask us why it is that Christian people live the opposite way. They ask if the teaching of Christ is the right way, they ask if He meant what He said. We say he did and then they say, "But look at Europe and America," they teach Christianity but send their merchants to us to rob us. If nations lived the life as taught by Christ there would be no need of missionaries.

In some countries Christians have played a part in keeping it Christian for a time. Secretary Hughes and President Harding did this in the arms conference. When the news reached the Orient, people would not believe it, but when it was confirmed they said—what is this—this is something different in the world.

I am not a pacifist but peace is an apple, a fruit borne by the tree of the right principle and by treating each other like brothers. Following the Golden Rule, peace must come.

Peace can never come through world courts, leagues of nations, arms conferences and laws laid down by men. Peace can only come through a life of unselfishness; only when nations resist that temptation in the teaching that what you've got is what makes life.

Jesus said, "Peace I leave with you." He described the only way to peace and the only way the only principle on which permanent civilization can be laid and this is exactly opposite the principle of the world today after centuries of being.

POINTS OUT DANGERS IN BOULEVARD SYSTEM

A possible adaptation of the so-called "boulevard system" in some of the larger cities of the state is suggested for consideration as a means to speed up traffic and reduce congestion, in a paper entitled "Some Aspects of Connecticut Highway and Street Traffic" delivered by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles before the Connecticut Society of Civil Engineers at a recent meeting. When universally authorized and installed as, for example, by a state law—it is pointed out that the system is dangerous but the position is also taken that inasmuch as it facilitates movement of traffic to have such a system wherever consistent with safety, it should be considered as a possibility.

The view is expressed that, with the constantly increasing number of motor vehicles on the public highways, authorities having to do with traffic regulation must be on the alert to avoid congestion and resultant accidents. "Even now it is clearly necessary," says the department statement, "that no motor vehicle which cannot attain a fair rate of speed should hereafter be capable of registration except by special permit. The policy of the state must be toward smaller units of transportation with smaller loads, moving faster and a more individual and thorough supervision of traffic movement."

It would be necessary to amend the Connecticut law to permit the use of the "boulevard system" in cities of this state, as it would be in opposition to the right of way rule. "but," says the statement, "if amendment to the state law could be had whereby certain streets in certain cities could be open for this system under limitations to be prescribed by the authorities, congestion would be done away with on those streets." Such thoroughfares as Farmington Avenue in Hartford, Fairfield Avenue in Bridgeport and Whitney avenue in New Haven are the kind the department has in mind.

The object of the "boulevard system" is to speed up traffic on such main highways by permitting motor vericle operators to forget any entering streets for the time being. Anyone entering upon the boulevard from a side street does so at his own risk. An example of the boulevard system in active operation is North Michigan avenue in Chicago. On this avenue, traffic moves on an average of 25 to 35 miles an hour. It has an automatic open and shut system of signals which is supposed to allow people and vehicles to enter and cross.

"But the boulevard system has a great many serious limitations," according to the department's statement. There is little doubt that statistics of accidents will show that more pedestrians are killed and injured and more serious collisions occur on systems of this kind than on corresponding systems under the right of way rule in the east. Therefore the system would have to be modified if adopted by Connecticut cities in the light of the experience of cities which have it in operation.

Various other proposals for meeting the problem on streets and highways presented by the increase in traffic are discussed in the department's pamphlet, and the drawbacks as well as the probable advantages are set forth.

BODY FOUND FLOATING IN POND NEAR COLCHESTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Colchester, March 1.—An unidentified body was discovered about noon today floating in the water at the north end of Babcock's pond, which is located about three miles from Colchester on the Middletown turnpike. The body was found by Charles Standish of Westchester Society, Colchester, who noticed it floating near the dam from the road, which at that place is about 150 yards from the dam.

Mr. Standish notified Medical Examiner Dr. Cyrus E. Pendleton of Colchester, who, with Officer Riley, had the body taken out of the water and examined for identification marks. A spectacle case bearing the name of Frank B. Morse of Torrington, Ct., a key made by Yale & Towne for the Art-Metal Construction company of Jamestown, N. Y., to which was attached a key bearing No. 390, and a $5 bill and 86 cents in change were found on the body.

Medical Examiner Pendleton had the body removed to the undertaking establishment of M. T. Wall of East Hampton, where it will be viewed by the Torrington authorities tomorrow when they come here ot try to identify it.

Officer Riley communicated with the police in Torrington on Sunday afternoon and gave them a description of the man. The Torrington police believe he is a Mr. Smith of that place, who has been missing from Torrington since around Thanksgiving, as the description Officer Riley gave them tallies with that of Smith.

The man is about 50 years old, five feet, 150 pounds, bald, smooth faced, with large scar over the right eye on the top of the forehead. His clothing is black pants, a black overcoat, heavy green mixed sweater, black vest, blue work shirt, black shoes and stockings.

Colchester authorities were under the impression, when the body was first found, that it was James Armstrong of Rhode Island, who has been working about Colchester in the sawmills, but up to a short time ago has not been in those parts, and his description compares somewhat with that of the dead man. The Colchester police believe the man had fallen into the pond while crossing the bridge and the body had floated, when the ice broke up, to where it was sighted by Mr. Standish. The body was in a bad state of decomposition and it is thought it had been in the water for over a month.

RAIN CUTS ATTENDANCE AT FIRST LENTEN SERVICE

The severe rain and wind storm cut down the size of the congregation at the Lenten service at St. Patrick's church, Sunday evening. It was the opening service of the series held annually during the Lenten period at St. Patrick's church and the preacher was Rev. Raymond J. Kennedy of Hartford. Mr. Frank L. Gerrard presided at the organ and conducted the musical part of the service.

The Ten Commandments formed the theme of the sermon given by Father Kennedy. St. James tells us that he who breaks one commandment is guilty of breaking all, said Father Kennedy. The man who says "I can keep all of these commandments but this one or that one" is spoiling the future of his soul. Though it may not be serious to you individually, perhaps there are trivial things in your mind and heart that are separating you from the Lord. Man is given these commandments by the Master as tools. Many of these tools have been thrown away. If you reject one of these commandments or tools it may be just the one that will cause you to lose your soul. Just as one gets dizzy while looking down from a great height, we may be on the point of entering into heaven when we suddenly lose our balance and then lose our soul. It is our own fault if we do not reach the other side in safety.

The only reason a man can have for saying that this commandment or that commandment does not fit in his life is that he has created unto himself a law. That law is, self first, then the things of the world, and God, last. How foolish of us to make unto ourselves this law which stands against the law of God. The will of God is clearly, simply expressed and we must follow it. It will behoove us well to look and see how we stand with the Father.

SUPERNUMERARY RESIGNS AHEAD OF CHARGES

Edward Kozlowski of 76 North Main street, a supernumerary policeman, has resigned from the department and turned in his badge, it has been learned, following developments which have resulted from the raid a week ago Saturday night at the house of illrepute on Wauwecus Hill, for conducting which Nicholas Nesota is now in jail to await the May term of the superior court.

Since the raid, information has come to the police commissioners, it has been learned, that jitneys owned by Kozlowski and operated by him or his employes have frequently been employed to take men to the Wauwecus Hill place, where liquor was to be secured, so that the commissioners were all ready to prefer charges against Kozlowski, but he has forestalled this action by resigning. His resignation will be read at the council meeting tonight (Monday).

GROTTO CEREMONIAL WITH LARGE CANDIDATE CLASS

Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., conducted a ceremonial in impressive form with a large class of candidates Saturday evening in Grotto hall, preceding the work with a fine supper at 6.30 at the Masonic temple which was served by members of Sachem Chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., with Mrs. George Fraser, chairman of the committee in charge. Music by the Grotto orchestra enlivened the supper hour.

Kenneth Fox was in charge of assembling the class and about 300 members were gathered in the hall for the ceremonial, which was carried out in full form under the direction of a committee consisting of Edmund Hindle, Day Fillmore, Harold Kramer and Harold Dahl. The evening concluded with an excellent entertainment programme given by a troupe from Hartford. This included the Five Steppers, dainty dancers and singers, George Gillette, comedian, and Mae Ducy, cabaret singer, whose selections made a hit. The entertainment committee was Louis Brown, James Jones, Elmer Johnson, R. C. Brittin and Robert Gray.

During the evening, Secretary George N. Chappell called attention to the Grotto national convention in June at Atlantic City for which a most inviting itinerary is offered at a moderate rate. It is desired to make up a party of 35 to go from here and Secretary Chappell told the members that it is imperative to make up the list by this (Monday) night in order to take advantage of the rate.

BLEACHERY STOREHOUSE HAS ROOF SECTION BLOWN OFF

During the height of the wind and rain storm Sunday night a section of the roof on a five-story building at the plant of the United States Finishing company in Greeneville was blown down on to the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad. About 9.30 o'clock the gale got under the metal roofing and, rolling it up, cast it down on to the rails. Train service was blocked for a short time until the debris had been removed from the tracks.

The building, located near the foot of Fifth street, is used as a storehouse. Goods stored in the building were somewhat damaged by the rain. No one was hurt.

Several homes and other buildings were unroofed during the height of the sixty mile gale. Some of the roofs were reported down and for a while the police station and office of the gas and electric plant were besieged with telephone calls of wires down and house lights out. Fairmount, Ward and Mt. Pleasant streets were reported without house lights.

A large boulder on the Jewett City road was undermined by the heavy rain and rolled from the bank down on to the highway, according to a report received at police headquarters.

JOHN D. IS BECOMING A REAL EXPERT ON THE GOLF COURSE

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 1.—John D. Rockefeller, at the age of 85, is smiling his way around the links daily and playing better golf than many men half a century younger. Improvement in his game has been accompanied by better health. Today friends who have played with him and watched him revealed a few psychological and technical reasons he had given for the excellence of his play.

First of all he thinks golf should be regarded as a medium for attainment of health and happiness in pleasant companionship. With this mental attitude, he is not so much concerned over his score, although usually he breaks 46 for the first eight holes of the Ormond Beach course. He never plays more than these holes in any one day. His record for the eight is 41, and he has made par threes and even birdie threes.

When heated in the progress of a round he never takes cold water. His invariable drink for cooling purposes is lukewarm. An attendant carries specially prepared barley water.

"You will notice," Mr. Rockefeller said, "that if you are heated and drink ice cold water the perspiration will cease, so I drink warm water and do not find it distasteful."

Friends who engage in a foursome with him have received this advice often when, while waiting at a tee, they helped themselves liberally from cold water taps.

Many the golfer whose ball takes an unhappy hop into a sand trap or a shied into the rough throws up his club in the air in disgust. Not so Mr. Rockefeller. He hurls his club in the air in glee when he makes a good shot.

In one round, after a poor start of a difficult hole he gave a definition of an optimist and a pessimist.

"A pessimist," he said, "is one who sees disaster in every opportunity. An optimist is one who sees opportunity in every disaster."

Whereupon Mr. Rockefeller took out his midiron and made such a recovery that he was able to get a six on a 435-yard dogleg hole. Par for a professional tournament player would be five, but many a good golfer would be content with a five.

In making a shot Mr. Rockefeller uses great power of concentration. No noise disturbs him not even the click of a camera, which is unusual for any golfer. This is despite his excellent hearing. Sometimes he hears amusing remarks made by a member of the gallery 40 feet away and joins in the laughter.

Once has been observed a gold-star mother in the background of the green, and he deferred making a stroke in order to step out of his way to console with her for the boy lost in the war. He had even stopped mothers with babies to tell them how healthy and healthy they looked.

In the view of experts Mr. Rockefeller has attained what professionals have difficulty in teaching duffers—the state of being relaxed in muscles and concentrated mentally.

"I have learned to approach the ball in a passive state," he puts it. "That is the right psychological attitude."

General Adelbert Ames, 89-year-old veteran of the Civil war, who has been Mr Rockefeller's golf chum here for some years, is an envious admirer of the old magnate's game, and his remarks during a round are much appreciated by the gallery.

Mr. Rockefeller gave the general a private lesson recently with benefit to the general's game.

"You must go back slowly with your club and describe a perfect circle in the swing," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Then his club sent the ball flying 250 yards straight down the fairway.

At the next tee the general took a mighty drive with such success that he was amazed.

"Am I myself or somebody else?" he asked. "That is not like me. It is like Mr. Rockefeller. He plays with mechanical precision."

Mr. Rockefeller's health has so improved that he no longer diets. Having overcome digestive trouble, he eats practically anything that anyone else eats and his appetite is good. He is careful, however, to avoid too heavy meals.

SCHAEFER STANDS GOOD CHANCE FOR BILLIARD TITLE

Chicago, March 1.—The phenomenal cue work of Jake Schaefer, former world's champion, has been the outstanding feature of a week's play in the international championship three-cushion billiards tournament which will be concluded here Tuesday night, with three games to be played, none lost, stands at the end of six contests and has the highest average, grand average and high run in the tournament.

Schaefer at the age of 31 is now completely living up to his inheritance, his father, Jake Schaefer, having been a billiard wizard. The son gained world attention as a cue star in 1921, when he defeated Willie Hoppe, for the 18.2 balkline championship, only to lose it a few months later to the veteran, who has held the championship with that exception since 1908.

Schaefer's performances here have been in a tournament marked throughout by superb playing. The leader himself won one match of 400 points from spot and another in two innings, and two other matches were won in four and five innings respectively. The longest match so far was run through 27 innings and the lowest individual grand averages better than 16 points.

With four more matches on the schedule, the tournament lacks much of being decided yet in spite of Schaefer's lead. K. Suzuki, the Japanese, with no games won and four lost, and Welker Cochran, Hollywood, with one contest won and four lost are out of the running for first honors. Hagenlacher, the German, who defeated Hoppe in one match and lost only his contest with Schaefer, is which he had no opportunity to cue a ball, stands second in the list and is still a competitor, as are Horemans, the Belgian champion, and Hoppe. Each of the latter two has won two and lost one.

Schaefer meets Suzuki tomorrow and if he wins cannot be kept from the championship without an added contest. Hoppe and Horemans will play tomorrow night in a match which will eliminate one of them from the running. The Belgian and German entries will meet in the final match for each of them Tuesday, and the same day Hoppe will play Schaefer.

The standings:

WESTERLY FIVE WINS FROM FALL RIVER TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, March 1.—Before a gallery of about five hundred basketball fans in the state armory on Dixon street on Saturday evening the Armory Five quintet defeated the Fall River Legion basketball team by a score of 36 to 26. The game was fairly close during the first period, when about half way through the score was tied, it being 6 to 6. Later the Armory Five took the lead so that when the period was completed the score was 13 to 8 in their favor. In the second session the teams were but four points apart following a rally by the Spindle City Legionaires. Whirlwind "Fiddle" Morley then showed his "stuff" and the score jumped by leaps and bounds to the final standing. Left Forward Holton of the Fall River team was the outstanding star for the visitors and with company of his class a different score would have been hung up.

BULKELEY WINS FROM LEOMINSTER, 22 TO 18

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 1—Bulkeley, after three months of disappointing basketball, rose to new heights Saturday evening at the State Armory and gained a clean cut victory over Leominster High school of Massachusetts. Making a strong finish with Huck Taylor, sensational Bulkeley forward producing many of the thrills of the evening by his expert caging of the ball and all-round dexterity, Bulkeley finished out ahead of her Bay State rival by a score of 22 to 18. It was easily the best game that Bulkeley ever participated in this year, and after a slow start, the contest bloomed into a real basketball duel with the best team on top.

Incidently, the game was the sixth consecutive victory for Coach Canty's formidable aggregation of basketball tossers. There was not a doubt in the minds of the fans present that Bulkeley had regained its lost prestige, when the locals were handed a sound thrashing by Hartford last month. There was improvement in every movement of the players in contrasting the play of the previous game.

The playing of the entire team was superb. But the individual play of the scintillated Huck Taylor was a performance in itself. Taylor demonstrated just how valuable he was to the team, and was a streak of lightning on the floor. There was nothing which could hold him, and nothing did. He was in and out, as slippery as an eel and giving the opposition plenty to think about at all times during the conflict. He accounted for 16 points which comprised 7 field and 2 foul goals. This was two less than the Leominster five could amass between them, and was a remarkable performance which will not be duplicated for some time. The score:

CHAPMAN TECH. LOSES TO BRIDGEPORT HIGH

(Special to the Bulletin)

Bridgeport, March 1—Chapman Tech High of New London climaxed the most unsuccessful month in basketball ever to be experienced by this five, when they lost their seventh consecutive contest to Bridgeport High Saturday afternoon at the High school gym by a score of 24 to 8. The Park City athletes were too strong for their much weaker opponents, and gave early indications that the game would turn into a victory for Bridgeport.

Bridgeport began an early offense which was fruitful to the extent of four points in less than two minutes of play. However, Tech gave a much better account of herself in the remainder of the half, although the locals had little difficulty in finishing in the front. It was the second half in which the visitors, at least held their own. The guard work of the Bridgeport back court men, Mahi and Cadrone was too much for the Whalers, but after a number of unsuccessful attempts to pass the five man defense of the Park City five, Andrews broke through long enough for a score from the field. It was the only basket from the field hung up by Chapman Tech. However in this respect, Bridgeport also failed to bag an unusually high total, counting but eight times. Fouls made by both teams featured the scoring efforts and the scores of both teams was swelled considerably by this means.

Although the Red and Black lost, they gave a good account of themselves throughout. For Bridgeport ranks with the best in the state, and it was to a comparatively low score they were held if all things are considered. Andrews played best for Chapman Tech. The score:

CONN. AGGIES DEFEAT RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE FIVE IN LAST HOME GAME

Storrs, Conn., March 1.—Playing before the largest crowd of the season, the Connecticut Aggies defeated Rhode Island State here Saturday night by a score of 38-26. It was the last game of the season for Coach Dole's team and it was played before a crowd that packed Hawley Armory to its doors.

The game was rough and hard fought throughout, was featured by the sharpshooting of Captain Balock and Makofski of Connecticut and the splendid team work and defensive play of the entire Aggie five. Schofield, star Connecticut forward, was banished from the game in th efirst half along with Hill of Rhode Island, for swapping punches.

A killing pace was set with the first whistle, with both teams working hard to obtain an early lead. Great defensive play was shown by both teams in the early stages of the game, with Connecticut displaying the best. Makofski of Connecticut scored first, getting an easy shot from under the basket. He helped himself to two more shortly after, and the Aggies were leading 8-0 when Captain Balock made two throws from the foul line. Connecticut's stonewall defense, with "Gerry" Allard of Putnam playing a prominent part, kept the Rhode Islanders from scoring a point during the first eight minutes of play and the Engineers were able to make but three baskets from the floor in the first session. Hill, Braley, and Jensen were the only men that seemed abit to connect for Rhode Island, and their baskets were made from well out beyond the foul line. Balock and Makofski gave the Rhode Island defense no end of trouble and they laid down a perfect barrage of shots on the Rhode Island basket. At half time, the Aggies were leading 21-6.

The same killing pace was maintained in the second half, with Rhode Island working desperately to come from behind. The work of the Engineers showed to better advantage in the second session, but it was no better than the brand displayed by the Aggies. Captain Balock and Makofski continued with their basket shooting, keeping the Aggies to hte front at all times. Captain Pinto of Rhode Island put up a great game in this session, scoring three times from the floor.

Freshmen Win.

Coach Alexander's Freshmen five staged a strong comeback tonight in their last appearance on the home surface when in a well played game they doned the Rhode Island yearlings by a 36 to 21 score. Despite the recent loss of Captain Hadley and Williams, the Aggie Yearlings came through with flying colors and the team showed great improvement over the brand of play displayed against Brown last Wednesday. After getting away to a slow start that allowed the Rhode Island cubs to take the lead Connecticut's offense got under way and had baskets by Eddy and Watson soon put the Aggies cubs in the van. Alexander's men outshot and outpassed their opponents and at half time were leading 17 t o11. The Storrs combination maintained its lead in the second half and the Rhode Island cubs failed to threaten. Though at times they flashed a clever attack. Haire was the man upon which the Engineers offense hinged and he turned in some pretty work, making six baskets from the floor and six from the foul line. Eddy and Watson lead the Connecticut attack with 21 and 10 points respectively. The Aggie taam was working together as a man and their play showed a great improvement over that earlier in the week.

Co-Eds Badly Beaten.

The Rhode Island State Co-Ed basketball team overwhelmed the Connecticut Co-Eds in basketball here on Saturday afternoon by a score of 54 to 13. Taking the lead at the start the Rhode Island girls forged ahead rapidly to the front and after the first few minutes of play there was no doubt as to the final outcome. It was merely a question of how high they would run up the score. In Duggan, Hally, and Burdick Rhode Island had a trio of forwards that scored at will, and they had no difficulty in breaking through the Connecticut defense. Grant put up the best game for Connecticut scoring every point made by the Storrs team.

CADETS BEAT SUB BASE FOR SECOND TIME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 1—Whatever differences in opinion players and fans had as to which was the better team, the Coast Guard Cadets or the Submarine Base five the differences were settled Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A., when the Cadets gained a 33 to 27 victory over the Submarine Base for their thirteenth victory of the season. This second defeat for the Sub Base dispells the supposition that the first game of the series for the City championship which was won by the Coast Guard by a one point margin was a lucky victory for the newly crowned city champs.

There was plenty of hard tussling in the contest Saturday. Neither team paid any attention to respecting a player who had the ball. Numerous fouls were called due to this rough play, and the Coast Guard Cadets were the worst offenders of rules. Two of the Cadet players had three personal fouls charged against them, while two others had two fouls. Not one player on either team was able to escape being charged with a personal foul.

There was bad feeling between the two teams from the start. The previous game which the Cadets won by one point was also a roughly played game, and it seemed at times that some of the players were merely out there to get someone. Outside of this the contest was thrilling. Perhaps it may be added that the roughness is what was expected to some extent, and produced its thrills to those who expected a contest such as this.

The Cadets did not wait very long to start the ball rolling and collected eight points before the hoop had been washed for the gobs. Coughlin and Linholm led this early attack, with fouls added by French and Linholm to swell the total. The Base got busy after conceding this eight point handicap to their bitter rival and made things much more interesting than in the opening minutes of play time. The gobs lacked aggressiveness in the first half, and although they played hard they were no match for the better trained Cadet team. The half ended with the Coast Guard in the lead by a score of 18 to 12.

Showing an improvement in her play in the final half, the Base was able to outplay the Coast Guard as far as floor work was concerned, but were held even in the scoring. The two centers French for the Cadets and Murphy for the gobs were the only players who were able to break through the opposing team's defense for well timed scores. French dropped in three double deckers and Murphy matched his number with a like total. A last minute rally by the Sub Base managed to bring the score closer as the game ended.

NURMI BEGINS STRENUOUS TRACK CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

New York, March 1.—Paavo Nurmi, returning from Louisville, where he captured a National A. A. U. track record, faces the hardest stamina test of his American visit when he starts in the 71st regiment games here tomorrow night, the first of eight contests which will take him through Hamilton and Toronto, Buffalo, Milwaukee and Cleveland.

On Wednesday he appears in the 106th Infantry meet in Brooklyn, runs in Hamilton on Thursday, Toronto on Friday, Buffalo on Saturday and Milwaukee the following Monday. On March 10 he will take part in the Ohio state championships at Cleveland and two days later he will be back in New York for the Greek-American A. C. competition.

Saturday will bring the fourth annual indoor championships of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America to New York. The entry list of 820 men representing 22 institutions indicates that Pennsylvania, last year's champion, will have a fight on its hands.

When Fulton Was Matched Against Langford

When Fred Fulton was matched against Sam Langford, according to a story told by a well-known sporting writer, the Minnesota battler asked a negro the best way to beat the Boston Tar Baby.

"De bes' way, Mistuh Fulton, is to take a club, and when he ain't lookin' jess bust him on de head, and when he turns round with evuh so much surprise, jess bust him again."

"And then?" asked Fulton in suspense.

"Nuthin' then—only don't miss dat second hit, dass all."

Mozart

It is doubtful if anybody knows the exact spot where Mozart is buried. A violent storm was raging at the time of the funeral, and the hearse went its way unaccompanied to the churchyard, and his body was committed in the paupers' corner. In 1859 the city of Vienna erected on the probable spot a monument to his memory.

Plant for Your Fish

The best plant for aquarium purposes is sagittaria. The variety known as natans is of moderate size, says Nature Magazine. An aquarium of a size 9 by 15 by 10 inches high should be started with about a dozen such plants, well-rooted in coarse sand or grit, one and one-half to two inches deep.

Indian Monsoons

The heavy rainfall in India is caused by the monsoons or winds blowing part of the year from one direction, alternating with winds from the opposite direction. The southwest monsoon blows from April to September and is surcharged with vapor from the Indian ocean. It condenses in torrents on the heights of the Chats and forms the rivers which flow to the east.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Take Care

Little children, you must seek
Rather to be good than wise,
For the thought you do not speak
Shine out in your cheeks and eyes.

If you think that you can be
Dress and cruel and look fair,
Let me tell you how to see
You are quite mistaken there.

Go and stand before the glass,
And some ugly thought contrive,
And my word will come to pass
Just as sure as you're alive!

All you have and what you lack,
Is the same as what you wear.
It will see reflected back;
So, my little folks, take care!

And not only in the glass
All your secrets come to view;
Looking-glasses, as they pass,
Will perceive and know them, too.

Every sadness shown in blushes bright,
Every eyelids drooping down,
Like a violet from the light;
Every frown in a sneer or frown.

All of which my boys and girls,
Every root of beauty starts;
Somewhat less about your curls,
More about your minds and hearts.

For it is what is good, and dear
In your thoughts and feeling far;
That is sure as you're alive,
Or will know for what you are.

—Alice Cary.

Tiger-Lilies

Were not lady-slippers,
Nor yet the sweet-pea blossoms,
Nor yet the flaky roses,
Red, or white as snow,
Like the chalk-ed lilies,
The heavy Eastern lilies,
The gorgeous tiger-lilies
That in our garden grew.

For they are tall and slender;
Their mouths are dashed with carmine,
And when the wind sweeps by them,
On their emerald stalks
They bend so proud and graceful—
They are Circassian women,
The favorites of the Sultan,
Queens of our garden walks.

And when the rain is falling,
I sit beside the window
And watch them glow and glisten,
How they burn and glow!
O for the burning lilies,
The tender Eastern lilies,
The gorgeous tiger-lilies,
That in our garden grow!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Red and rosy cheeks are a sign of good health. When children's cheeks are rosy it means that the blood is flowing faster and more freely and filling all the tiny blood vessels of the skin. The easiest way to acquire rosy cheeks is by breathing fresh air and playing outdoor games. Sometimes we see people who have very little color in their faces. Their skin is pale, in fact, almost white. They are pasty colored and unhealthful looking. When a person is sick a long time and is confined indoors the skin loses much of its red color. There are also some kinds of diseases that take the red color out of the blood. Boys and girls who stay indoors continually and don't get out in the fresh outdoor air and sunshine do not have healthy looking rosy cheeks.

The air inside a building is never as pure and fresh as it is outdoors and as we know it is fresh air that gives us health we can see why we should not spend too much of our time in the house. We also know that when there are several people in a room the fresh air soon gets used up and unless the supply is renewed through open windows or reliable ventilating systems staying in such a room is harmful. Breathing impure air often results in broken down health and disease of many kinds if we keep up such a practice.

Everyone should try to get outdoors for a while every day. This is one of the easiest and best methods of making the blood rich and red. Working and playing outdoors makes the heart beat faster because our bodies need them demand more and more fresh and pure blood. The lungs have to breathe faster to supply the necessary oxygen and the heart to purify the blood. The blood carries food to all parts of the bodies and thus nourishes the body and makes it strong and helps it better able to resist the attack of injurious disease germs.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Our Student Government

Dear Uncle Jed and Wideawakes: I thought maybe you would be interested in our student government, in our school. We organized this body a little while before our Thanksgiving recess.

The duty of the student government is to punish all pupils in both the primary and grammar room, that disobey any of our laws.

Also in case of the teacher's absence the president is to take charge of the room, and carry on the usual lessons.

We have a president, vice president and secretary, and six members of the governing board, which decides the punishment of a guilty "prisoner."

We have an executive, judicial, and legislative body, which the old pupils organized, with a constitution and oath.

The oath is to be taken by all of the school children before they can become a "citizen" of the school.

Only four cases have been brought before us so far.

In case of a trial the president is to act as judge, vice president as attorney general, and secretary is chairman of the governing board.

The officers are all chosen from the higher grades, and a governor general is appointed for the primary room.

This plan has proved very successful in our school so far, as the younger children behave much better and do not disobey the laws, and we all including our teacher, Miss Goodwin, are very much pleased with it.

The First Paper Makers

Dear Uncle Jed: A great many years ago it was discovered that the wasps and hornets were the first paper-makers. Instinct taught them how to find the fiber and how to make it into nests. The paper they make is not like the paper on which this is printed, but quite likely it is made out of the same kind of fiber.

They live in colonies which consist of the queen, drones and workers. In the spring the queen, which is the only member of the colony that lives through the winter selects a place for a nest, makes a few cells and places in them some eggs, and then builds a paper wall about them. Then more cells are made, more eggs laid, and as the young wasps become big enough they are put to work to increase the size of the nest. Before the summer is gone there will be three or four hundred in the colony.

The wasps have stings to defend themselves with, and if you get them angry, you will have to look out or they will sting. They do it so quickly, the only safe way is to let them alone. The large hornets are very useful in killing flies and other insects. If you ever find a large, hungry hornet in a room where there are many flies you can almost hear the poor creatures telling how frightened they are at the presence of such a monster. We do not know what they say, but we are very sure they are talking to one another about the hornet.

There are a great many kinds of wasps, as many as nine hundred, the books say, but they are not all found in the United States.

The Bird's Home

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you a story about, The Bird's Home.

Each mother bird has her own way of making her nest, but there is one thing almost all of them try to do, and that is to hide it. They cannot put their little home out in plain sight, as we do our houses, because so many creatures want to rob them. Squirrels, snakes, and rats, and some big birds, and cats and many others, like to eat eggs and young birds.

So most birds try, first of all, to find good hiding places. Some tiny warblers go to the tops of the tallest trees and hide the nest among the leaves. Orioles hang the swinging cradle at the end of a branch, where cats and snakes and naughty boys cannot come. Song sparrows tuck the little home in a tuft of weeds on the ground, and bobolinks hide it in the deep grass.

After a safe place has been found, they have to get something to build it with. They hunt all about and gather small twigs, or grass stems, or fine rootlets and pull narrow strips of bark off the grapevines, and birch trees; or they pick up strings and horse hairs, and many other things. Robins and swallows use mud. As they go on building, the mother bird gets inside the nest and turns around and around to make it fit her form, and be smooth and comfortable for her to sit in.

When a nest is made, it must be lined. Then some birds go to a chicken yard, and pick up feathers, and others find horse hairs. Some of them pull off the soft down that grows on plants, or get bits of wool from the sheep pastures, or old leaves from the woods, and make it soft and warm inside.

Some birds homes are only platforms, where it seems as if the eggs must roll off, and others are deep burrows or holes in the ground where no one can get in. Some are dainty baskets hung between two twigs, and others are tiny cups of felt with lichens outside. There are as many different nests as there are kinds of birds to make them.

What I Saw

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you what I saw today. At recess time at school we heard some noise. We looked over in the distance and what do you suppose we saw? We saw an airship. It was quite low. The bell rang so we had to go in. I didn't want to. When we got in we looked out of the window and saw a crowd of people going up the road. We wanted to see what it was. After school let out we went up to see what it was. A man told us that the airship had almost landed. It had got to the top of the trees. I wish it had landed.

The Benefits of Reading

Dear Uncle Jed: Reading plays an important part in anyone's life. No person can do anything without knowing how to read. You will hardly find any kind of people who can't read.

The Indians had their signs for reading. They would make all kinds of marks.

A person can get an education by reading good books, not novels. All of our great men read books, and from that they got their education. A man who wants to go into business will be pretty bad off if he doesn't know how to read some kind of language.

In the United States there is a library in almost every town, city and state.

Every child can get a book from these libraries but they must return them.

All great men have said that anybody ought to read some books. History books are the best to read. They give us some knowledge of our ancestors, and other people. In fact there is no reason, why a child of today should not read good books.

My Trip to New York

Dear Uncle Jed: As I am old enough to write a little story, I am going to write one to you.

Last winter my mamma took me to New York. I stayed with my grandmamma. She lives in a great big house, called a tenement house. Lots of people live in that house.

In New York you see lots of cars that make a great noise. I also saw the Bronx Park. That's a great place to go. My uncle took me to the moving pictures. I slept there, instead of looking at the pictures.

In New York City there aren't any trees at all. Just houses and houses. I couldn't sleep there, because everything makes such a rattle.

We stayed there a week and then we went home. I like Norwich a million times better than New York!

Now Uncle Jed, I am going to stop writing.

An Escape

Dear Uncle Jed: As Jannet was swinging in the swing her father had made for her the previous day she heard a rustling sound in the bushes. A moment after three gypsies came up in back of her.

She jumped up and started to run. She succeeded in keeping ahead of them but at the same time that her hopes were high she was met by two more and captured.

They took her to their cave. She was put in to a cave which was not occupied. They locked the doors and went back to the fire.

While they were talking Jannet was thinking. She was thinking of a way to escape. She knew she could not break anything without being heard. The caravan was behind some bushes. The gypsies were on the other side. Although they could hear everything they could see nothing. The cave had an opening at the top for the air. It was quite large. Jannet's eyes soon saw it.

She stood on the seat and opening the slide she looked out. She saw the gypsies seated around the fire and all seemed to be in very interesting conversation. Now was her chance. It seemed very daring but Jannet was brave. She hoisted herself up and finally got on the roof. She jumped and ran but she did not escape from the keen eyes of the dog. He barked. She ran on. Soon the whole camp pursued her. She used her strength and energy. She jumped the wall. She was now safe in her own yard. She ran and told her mother. When the people heard this they praised Jannet for her courage and bravery. The gypsies were put in jail.

Your Future

Dear Uncle Jed: There is a splendid future for anyone who wants to make use of it. Young or old if you have the chance of being promoted higher take it. Today there are many ways which anyone can learn if he or she has a mind to, such as high schools, trade schools, colleges, (if you ever get there) and many other different institutions. If anyone has a will they can learn many kinds of trades which are very useful in later years, such as carpenters, plumbers, electricians, engineers, surveyors, masons, machinists, and many others. But there is no use in trying to go to schools if you do not make any use of what you have learned. Some go to these institutions to have a good time, but, there are some who try to do well and always succeed. So if you ever go to any schools of any kind "try your best."

Daniel Boone

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about Daniel Boone. Daniel Boone was the first settler in Kentucky. When any man went to Kentucky he seldom came back again. Once a man was eaten by a bear. Some were eaten by wolves or killed by Indians. Boone and his brother were the only ones in Kentucky. After awhile Boone needed more powder and bullets. He needed horses. So Daniel Boones brother went to North Carolina for bullets, powder and clothes.

Daniel Boone did not mind staying alone. Once a mother bear tried to kill him. He fired his gun but the bullet did not kill the bear so he held out his long knife in his hand. The bear ran against it and was killed. Then he saw four Indians in back of him following his tracks but they did not see him. He went this way and that. Then he went up a little hill. On the hill he saw a long wild grapevine on a high tree. Then he cut the vine at the root. Then he gave a push. The vine carried him far out. When the Indians came to the place they did not know where he had gone. One night he heard something coming. He said it might be Indians. He heard steps of horses. Then he saw his brother riding on one horse leading another loaded with powder, bullets clothes and other things Daniel Boone needed.

Why We Have Valentines Day

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to write and tell you why we have Valentine's day. Long ago there was a priest named Valentine. He was noted in all the country round for his kindness. He nursed the sick, comforted the sad and was always ready to give help to any one in need. Valentine dearly loved the children and those who went to him for food or clothes were never turned away. After this kind priest became too old to go about among his people he was very sad because he thought he could no longer be of any help to them. Then he remembered that he could write loving messages to the sick and sorrowing. Soon his friends began to watch for the kind words that were sure to come. Even the little children would say, when they were sick I think Father Valentine will send me a little letter today. After a time no more letters were received and soon the news went abroad that good old Valentine was dead. Then every one said that such a kind man was good enough to be called a saint and from that day to this he has been known as Saint Valentine.

It was not long before the people began to celebrate his birthday by sending loving messages to their friends.

All Hallow's School

Uncle Jed: On a sloping hill is the property of All Hallow's. It is a brick building three stories high. The high green or pale yellow vine clinging to the wall and the towering maple trees near by with a bed of tulips at their feet get the attraction of the people passing by. As you go up the cement sidewalk leading to the front door you face the most wonderful Agnus Dei surmounted by a marble cross. In the hall there is a beautiful statue of Christ, very attractive to the little ones. A staircase sufficiently large will bring you to the second floor which is like the first. On the third floor is Saint Joseph's hall, bright, large and spacious where the most interesting shows are played or given.

Two Great Men

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about America's two greatest men. Their names were George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. George Washington was born in wealth but Abraham Lincoln was very poor. Lincoln was known as "honest Abe." His mother taught him a great many things. She died when Lincoln was twelve years of age. Do you see what a wonderful man he was? Lincoln was a man of truth and peace also Washington. I hope the Wide Awakes have all read or heard the story of Washington when he chopped the tree and of his truth when his father asked who did it. It would make a good example for us to follow. When the children played soldier George always led, and was captain. His home was at Mount Vernon where he lived until he died. He married a widow by the name of Martha Custus. She had a daughter by the name of Nellie Custus who was given a harp which cost $1,000. When I am older I hope to visit his home also the tomb in which he lies. You cannot go into the rooms of his home but there is a rope at the entrance where you can stand.

A Lump of Coal

Dear Uncle Jed: A lump of coal is brought in and laid down upon the grate in order to make the fire better. It is a thing we see every day, so we reflect very little upon it, but a piece of coal is, in reality, a thing of wonderful qualities, and of equally wonderful history. In some states in the union there are mines of great value.

Deep pits are dug by men in order to obtain the coal. Some coal mines are many hundreds of feet deep. Coal usually lies in layers or beds with layers of sandstone and hard clay between them. When men find a bed three or more feet thick they dig into it, sending out the coal in lumps. If it is hard and brilliant it is called hard coal. There are different kinds of coal.

Plunger the Osprey Returns

A tragic thing it is to see
A wreck where home and love should be.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Plunger the Osprey, more often called Fish Hawk, and Mrs. Plunger had gone only far enough south to be sure of good fishing during the winter months. They didn't like to go south. They are great home lovers and they would have liked to have stayed there on the edge of the Green Forest close to Farmer Brown's all through the year.

"But they are good neighbors," said Peter Rabbit . . .

All the time they were away their thought was of home, and so you may be sure that they started for home just as soon as they dared to. It wouldn't do to get up there before the ice was out of the river and the ponds. They must have fish, and of course no fish could be caught while the water was frozen over.

Now, as I have said before, the Ospreys are great lovers of home. Year after year they use the same nest, adding to it and always putting it in good condition. When that nest was first built it was comparatively small. But after several years it had become a huge mass high up in a tree on the edge of the Green Forest not far from Farmer Brown's. During the winter the snow had added to the weight of the great mass, and the strain had been too much for the tree. In a heavy gale of wind the tree had gone crashing to the ground, carrying the great nest with it.

"I wonder what Plunger and Mrs. Plunger will do now?" said Chatterer the Red Squirrel as he and some of the other little people gathered around to view the ruins.

"Probably they'll move away," said Sammy Jay. "For my part I had just as soon they would. There is too much smell of fish around their home to suit me."

"But they are good neighbors," said Peter Rabbit. "They never bother any one. If they move away I hope they won't move far."

Plunger and Mrs. Plunger moved northward by easy stages, fishing as they moved along. But when they were almost within sight of home they hurried. They were so eager to get back there and to look over the old nest and plan what they would do to it that it seemed to them they couldn't wait. There was a certain place from which always in years past they had first seen the old home tree with the big nest in it. When they reached this place this time both strained their eyes. Then Plunger looked at Mrs. Plunger, and there was a question in that look. He saw the same question in her eyes. What had happened?

The tree and the nest were gone? At least the Ospreys could not see them, and they didn't know what to make of it. How they did hurry! When they were near enough of course they saw the nest on the ground with the broken tree. At first Mrs. Plunger couldn't be comforted. She flew around and around over the spot where the nest had been, all the time crying mournfully. She felt just as you would feel if you should come home and find your house all knocked to pieces. Yes, sir, that is the way she felt. Plunger felt almost as badly.

"What shall we do?" cried Plunger. "Shall we build another home over nearer the Big River?"

"Don't ask me any questions now," replied Mrs. Plunger. "I cannot decide anything yet. Oh dear! Oh dear! It is dreadful to lose a home like this!"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

No one will want to miss Excuse Me, Rupert Hughes' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which opened yesterday at the Breed theater for it is one of the funniest pictures of the season. Based on the author's famous stage farce, the film reveals a continuous procession of fantastic situations on a Pullman car journey across the continent that keep the audience in a roar of laughter.

Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel appear to fine advantage in the hero and heroine roles, while Renee Adoree, Walter Hiers, John Boles, Bert Roach, William V. Mong, Edith Yorke and Eugene Cameron are important cogs in the wheels of this train of comedy. Alf Goulding was the director and John Boyle the photographer.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news, a cartoon and an Educational comedy.

Strand Theatre.

A fine picture story with a superb cast is on the screen of the Strand today. The Truth About Women having its initial presentation last evening and giving immense satisfaction. Not alone is the romance, vital, strung with vibrant intensity, chockful of suspense and entertainment, but it moves along to its dramatic climaxes in throbbing, pulsating fashion, due to its bully presentment. The principals in The Truth About Women include such a notable array of stars as Hope Hampton, Lowell Sherman, Mary Thurman and David Powell.

The co-feature of the double feature program at this theatre is J. B. Warner in Behind Two Guns.

For those who enjoy really good pictures will do well to take advantage of the Strand offering today. Tomorrow and Wednesday William Desmond will be seen in a picture of feature length, The Measure of a Man, and what is one of the best pictures of the year, Lou Tellegen and Pauline Frederick in Let Not Man Put Asunder. The latter feature while being shown at the New York theatres, received flattering endorsements from both press and public and can without fear of successful contradiction, be classed as one of the year's leading ten photodramas.

Strand Theatre.

In announcing the coming of Hoyt's Musical Revue at the Strand for Thursday, Friday and Saturday it will come to Norwich with new scenery, new costumes, and in fact the 1925 review has everything new but the title. With a company of 32, comprising 12 beauties easy to look at and eight principal funmakers who will, for 90 minutes offer one of the funniest and novel entertainments seen in Norwich this season.

The photoplay feature during the engagement of the musical show will be that popular star, Hoot Gibson, in The Saddle Hawk and W. C. MacNaughton, the Strand manager, desires to emphasize the fact that feature was intended to be released by Universal Film company April 1 but in line with the policy of the Strand to try and get the newest and best for his patrons he called up American Feature Film company of Boston (who have the rights for Norwich to distribute Hoot Gibson features) and prevailed upon film company for the first showing in the state of this favorite star. Norwich amusement lovers should attend the Strand in large numbers and encourage the Strand's genial manager for his efforts in obtaining the best for the local theatregoers.

Broadway Theatre.

Comparison tells the story. Yet, no matter how hard you will try, there is no show in the city that can be compared to the program that is being offered at the Broadway theatre the first half of this week.

The Keith program opens with J. & B. Lester in A Night at Home. This is a team of exceptional athletes.

Aaron & Kelly call themselves The Broadway Steppers and how they can step! They are as clever a pair of dancers as one would care to see and the dancing is for the most part eccentric and humorous.

Billy "Swede" Hall & Co., with Miss Jennie Colburn, in an original character gem, "Hilda," will set your funny bone going. Clever songs, dances and comedy which makes a hit.

Donohue & Morgan, in The Long and Short of It, set a style in skits with their rapid fire song and comedy.

Hathaway & Co. in The Death Cabinet, offers the world's most mystifying illusion novelty and if they won't set the town a talking, nothing will.

Thrills—and more thrills were the order at the Broadway theatre last night when the Irvin Willat Paramount production, The Story Without a Name, was shown for the first time in Norwich. The picture features Agnes Ayres and Antonio Morene.

Here's a real old-time hair-raiser, produced by the man who made the all-color picture, Wanderer of the Wasteland. Arthur Stringer wrote the story, one of love, intrigue and adventure, which carries audiences from palatial home to desert island and back again in a series of actionful scenes that more than please.

The Story Without a Name is "there." It has interest and appeal. What more could you ask?

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

New York, March 1—Raising of the New York Federal Reserve rediscount rate from 3 to 3 1-2 per cent. was the principal topic of interest in this week's financial markets. Heavy speculative selling of stocks took place on the day after the increase was announced, but the offerings were well absorbed and practically all the lost ground was recovered on Saturday when both the railroad and Industrial averages were lifted to within striking distance of the record highs for all time.

Bond prices fell back, the natural result of higher interest rates. Sterling exchange dropped over a cent immediately after the local bank rate was raised on the theory that it would result in the withdrawal of American bank balances from London. Subsequent cables predicting an increase in the bank of England rate next week brought about a sharp recovery which carried demand bills above $4.76 1-2, or about 2 1-2 cents above the recent low. French exchange was heavy on reports that the bank of France's note circulation was near the statutory limit.

Time money and commercial paper rates stiffened perceptibly the average increase being one-quarter of one per cent.

GIRL STRUCK BY AUTO DIES FROM FRACTURED SKULL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 1.—Sophie Goldstein, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Goldstein, 56 Jefferson avenue, was fatally injured Saturday evening when run over by an automobile operated by Mrs. Ruth Heikel, 611 Broad street, on Jefferson avenue and almost in front of the child's home. The girl was rushed to Lawrence hospital following the accident, but died from a fractured skull 15 or 20 minutes after she had been received for treatment at the institution. The funeral was held this afternoon, with burial in the Hebrew cemetery, Jordan.

The child had been sent to a cobbler shop diagonally opposite her home and, instead of wearing a hat, the youngster placed a boat about her head. As she concluded her mission to the cobbler's the child started back home. She ran to the street, not noticing the approach from the eastward of the automobile, and in another instant the child stepped directly in front of the car, before Mrs. Heikel could apply the brake. The child was struck by the fander and thrown to the macadam highway, the right front wheel passing over her head, crushing it badly. Mrs. Heikel became hysterical and Thomas Grippo, who was near by, rushed to the child and after placing her in the car operated it to the hospital.

Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman conducted an investigation and decided that Mrs. Heikel was not responsible for the fatality, it being shown that the automobile was traveling at a rate of speed estimated at not exceeding 12 miles an hour, and that the child ran from the sidewalk without any warning.

LOCAL MEN IN PLUNGING CAR WRECKED NEAR MARLBORO

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 1.—An automobile owned by Harry B. Sloan, of Union street, and operated by his son, Patrolman Howard B. Sloan, of Broad street, was wrecked Saturday afternoon on the Hartford turnpike, near Marlboro, the car, an Essex sedan, being wrecked and both the owner of the machine and the driver sustaining numerous severe bruises and lacerations. The machine was being operated from Waterbury to New London and when rounding a curve, Patrolman Sloan either lost control of the steering wheel or the gear became disabled, for the machine plunged off the highway and climbed a boulder, wrecking the machine almost beyond repair. The machine was abandoned. The two men were taken to the office of a physician in Marlboro, where their wounds were dressed after which they came to their homes here. Patrolman Sloan will be unable to resume patrol duty indefinitely.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
Power Told in Motion Pictures

Under the auspices of the Norwich Association of Operating Engineers a three reel motion picture "Power" will be shown at the Community House, on Tuesday evening March 17th.
John A. Holland, president of the Connecticut State Association of Engineers, also connected with the engineering and inspection division of The Travelers Insurance Company, and H. D. Larrabee, manager of The Eastern Connecticut Power Company, will be the speakers. Both men are well known citizens of Norwich.
Mr. Holland's subject will be "The Engineer, His Importance in the Community, What He Has Accomplished in the Past and What He Hopes to Achieve in the future." Mr. Larrabee's subject will be, "The Economies of the Modern Power Plant."
This picture "Power" will tell the story of the growth in the use of steam power from the first crude piston engine to the steam turbines of the present day. The animated drawings will be used profusely throughout the film to show such things as the operation of a steam turbine, how alternating current is generated, etc. By means of such drawings the location and relative importance of water power is compared with the coal deposits of the United States, and a Chinese wall of coal builds itself completely around the United States to illustrate the tremendous quantity of coal mined each year.
The latter part of the film is devoted to actual construction scenes of a large central power station, and ends with an animated chart which indicates that we are just upon the threshold of a period of remarkable power development, which in the next seven years will duplicate all the central station capacity of the last forty years.

PICTURES AND ADDRESS AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

At the 4 o'clock service at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon notwithstanding the very stormy weather a good sized audience gathered. After the opening exercises consisting of hymns, scripture and prayer, and vocal solos by Hugh Kinder four reels of moving pictures were shown: the first two were beautiful scenics on spring and summer, showing various animals and birds and how they came forth after the winter was over; the scenery was specially fine. One real on Sodom and Gomorrah was exceedingly realistic and true to the Bible narrative, showing the terrible destruction of the cities and the turning of Lot's wife to a pillar of salt because she looked back. The closing reel was of Abraham and Isaac, and very touching was the portrayal of Abraham taking his son Isaac to offer him for a sacrifice according to God's command; the appearance of the ram in the thicket which was offered instead of Isaac.
Between the reels Edwin Hill, general secretary, made brief remarks as follows: "The reel on spring suggests to us very definitely God's care of all his creatures; how wonderfully he cares for even the smallest of his creation; it reminds me of the scripture passage, "A sparrow shall not fall to the ground without the father's notice." The reel on summer shows how very busy all animals are, and the lesson for us is that the busy is the safest life; the idle time of the young is certainly the danger time; it is always best to keep busy. The lesson from Sodom and Gomorrah it seems to me is that "unless the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain," and whatsoever a man, a city, a nation or a world soweth, that shall it also reap." We have stamped on our silver dollars, "In God We Trust," but judging from their fruits, there are many who care little for God in our land. Many a nation has gone down because it forgot God. The reel on Abraham and Isaac among other things teaches us that any man who gives up his best to God receive back untold blessings from the loving Father. The audience was greatly interested in the service.

TAFTVILLE

Every seat was taken at the sacred concert given at Sacred Heart church Sunday evening. The group of artists included Henry LaFontaine, organist at St. Mary's Memorial church, Norwich; Rodolphe Palmondon, tenor, Ulysses Paquin, basso; and Mme. Chamberlain-Paquin, pianiste.

Mr. LaFontaine needs no introduction to Taftville people. His playing is at all times faultless, and in the musical numbers he had chosen for the evening, his audience had ample opportunity to enjoy good organ music. For the opening number, Mr. LaFontaine gave Flagler's Organ Processional, and for the opening of the second part of the program, he played Nevin's Shepherd Tale; Berceuse from Jocelyn (Goddard) and Rockwell's Postlude in C. His most enjoyable number was the recessional, War March from Athalie, that most majestic of all marches.

Mr. Palmondon possesses a tenor voice of unusual range and sweetness. He was formerly the soloist for the Colonne and Lamoreux Orchestra, and has appeared at the Paris Opera. Among his solo numbers were Handel's Air from the Messiah, and LeRepos de la Sainte Famille (Berlioz). The group of four short songs that he gave were greatly enjoyed by the audience. These included La Fiancee de la Mer (Blackmore Brittany, (Farrar); Roses, (Le Command) and Lis et Noisettes (Du-

Mr. Paquin of the Orchestra Fouree of Paris, who for four years was tenor soloist at St. Patrick's Cathedral and Carnegie Hall, New York, sang numbers which showed his deep and powerful basso to great advantage. His first solo numbers were Dreux si tu (Bachoc) and these were followed by Veux (Bach) and Le Songe d'Herode the plaintive and melodious Les Adieux de Wotan by Wagner.

Mr. Plamondon and Mr. Paquin sang several duets, their voices harmonizing wonderfully. Their numbers were Fecisti ubi es (Dummond); The Cruiz (Faure); Salvete Flores Martyrum (Lucas) and Tableau de Famille (Neumann). Their best number was perhaps from Bizet's beautiful opera, Les Pecheurs de Perles, popularly known as The Pearl Fishers.

Mme. Chamberland-Paquin accompanied the singers on the piano throughout the evening. She is a pianiste of rare ability, and contributed greatly to the success of the pleasing program.

St. Jean Baptiste Society held its regular monthly meeting Sunday afternoon in Parish Hall, with a large attendance.

Miss Roberta Crowe has returned to South Manchester, after passing the past several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crowe of South A street.

The bi-monthly communion service was observed Sunday morning at the Taftville Congregational church. In the evening at the meeting of the Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavor, the leader was Miss Bertha Monty.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree have returned to Goodyear after spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue have returned from Westerly, R. I., where they have been the guests of Thomas Whitehead.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sullivan and Edward Scott of Lonsdale, R. I., and Mrs. William Scott of Woodstock, N. H., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Hindle of North Third avenue.

STATE POLICE IN MAN-HUNT FOR GARDNER LAKE COTTAGE LOOTER

Eight state policemen from the Groton barracks put in Saturday night and all day Sunday at Gardner Lake in a hunt for the man who has been looting cottages around the lake, and came close enough to him at one time to draw shots from a revolver that he carries. When one of the state policemen came upon the man and shouted to him to stop he sent two bullets whizzing past the officer's head and then turned and ran like a deer.

The officers got close enough to the man to recognize him as the one who has been suspected of the looting, a Polish resident of that section who is said to have gone crazy.

The fugitive led the officers a chase all around the shores of the lake, his speed in running and his knowledge of the paths enabling him to shift from one part of the lake to another ahead of them, and then he was chased from one section he would appear in another where he would take refuge in a cottage until the pursuit had again caught up to him and obliged him to make another shift.

C. V. Pendleton and Perry H. Corning, whose cottages were entered by the man last week, were with the state policemen Sunday, and Mr. Pendleton got close enough to the man to capture him if he had been willing to shoot him down if he had had a shotgun, but as Mr. Pendleton had a revolver he did not want to use the weapon for fear of injuring the man severely or even killing him. The officers have been intent upon catching him alive, but since it has been found that he will shoot when cornered they will be obliged to use their revolvers to protect themselves.

Investigation at the lake by the state police has disclosed that every cottage, with the possible exception of the Nickerson and Fitch Dolbeare places, has been entered and many of them have been looted or the interior messed up by the fugitive preparing meals in them or throwing the furnishings around.

Practically all the articles that were taken from Mr. Corning's cottage have been recovered, most of them being found in the Roberts cottage, where the looter had left them. A hunting coat taken from the Corning cottage was recovered Sunday when the man was nearly captured by Mr. Pendleton. He was wearing the coat, which he threw off as he ran away and escaped.

The state policemen are staying at the lake and will continue their search for and pursuit of the man until he is captured.

It was announced from the pulpit of St. Patrick's church at the three masses Sunday that the orator at the parish celebration of St. Patrick's day is to be Rev. M. Afterwards he was priest in charge of the Roman Catholic missions in and about Niantic.

The address will be delivered on the evening of Sunday, Feb. 15th, That morning, at 7.30, the members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and their auxiliaries will receive holy communion at St. Patrick's, as the religious celebration of the Feast of St. Patrick, noted by millions of Catholics of Irish birth or blood the world over.

DIOCESAN SOCIAL SERVICE EXPLAINED BY FR. REILLY

Since the incident of the Good Samaritan parable, the Catholic Church has been engaged in works of charity, said Rev. John J. Reilly, at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, alluding to the acknowledged value of that church's charitable activities in orphanages, schools, hospitals, homes for the aged, dependent and friendless. In this diocese, charity is taking a concrete form in the ever-widening labors and influence of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, which Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan is particularly fostering and promoting.

The Diocesan Bureau of Social Service is the official organization of the diocese for developing and coordinating social service activities throughout the diocese. The headquarters of the Bureau is at 244 Main street, Hartford, and there are four branch offices—Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury and New London. The Bureau operates through three departments: Child Welfare, Family Welfare and Group Activities. A staff of social workers, specially trained for this work, carries on the activities, assisted by the auxiliary groups—the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women and the Connecticut Council of Catholic Men.

At present there are about 800 Catholic children in the five Catholic child-caring institutions and about 500 Catholic children in the County Homes of the state. Besides, there are 1,265 children's cases under supervision of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, 234 in free foster homes, 145 in boarding homes, and 553 returned to relatives. These figures indicate the volume of Catholic Child Welfare work.

The total number of family welfare cases under supervision is: Hartford 302; Bridgeport 643, New Haven 440, New London 115, Waterbury 308, total 1,808.

Father Reilly's plea was for generous cooperation in the present drive for new members being made by the auxiliary councils of men and women, in each town.

It was the first Sunday in Lent, the epistle read being 2. Corinthians 6, 1-10. The gospel was Matt. 4. 1-11, Christ's fast of forty days in the desert. Rev. Myles P. Galvin assisted in giving Holy Communion, aiding the Rev. Paul Regan, of LaSalette Seminary, Hartford, who assisted in hearing the great number of confessions on Saturday afternoon and evening. The offering was the annual collection for negro and Indian missions.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE ON SHETUCKET STREET

A machine owned by George A. Dawley, 42, of Voluntown and one owned by Leo Turcotte, 25, of Jewett City, collided on Shetucket street shortly after noon Saturday. The accident happened near the Thames National bank. Both drivers were instructed by Officer Daniel J. O'Neil to proceed to police headquarters. It was found out that the brakes on Mr. Turcotte's machine were faulty and that they failed to hold with the result that he could not stop in time to avoid the accident.

Mr. Turcotte's machine received a bent fender and other damage to the extent of about $60. Mr. Dawley's machine was damaged to the extent of about $15.

Washington Party at Scotland Hall.

A very pretty Washington party was held at the Scotland road hall Thursday evening when fifty members of the S. R. S. C., and guests, sat down to a prettily decorated table where chicken pie, mashed potatoes, pickles, cake, coffee and nuts were served. After the supper dancing was enjoyed under a canopy of red, white and blue streamers. Music was furnished for old fashioned square dances by the Greenman orchestra and for the round dances by the Misses Fontaine and Marsan of Taftville. The social committee co-operating with the supper committee can be highly congratulated on the success of the affair.

WINS HONOR MEDAL FOR INSURANCE WORK

Home office officials of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston and State Agents Robens and Hunt with their company agents gathered in the City club in Hartford, Saturday, at a dinner given to honor Louis M. Crandall of this city who, during the year 1924, won the state leadership by producing and paying for a volume of business that put him in the lead of all the other agents of the company in the state.

Mr. Crandall, local manager of the company for the past four years, has not only won the state leadership this year, but has had the distinction of having his name appear on the state honor roll every week for the past two and a half years. This is an unusual record in itself, but, in addition, he has written an amount of paid-for, accepted and delivered business that has won for him the company's special Tiffany Medal "For Conspicuous Merit" which was offered to any agent who wrote from three hundred to five hundred thousand dollars worth of business during the year 1924. Mr. Crandall holds forty-fifth position among the company's agents in America. His record is considered very unusual by insurance men, owing to the fact that he is Principal of the Norwich Commercial school, teaches in the Wheeler School at North Stonington and takes a very active part in civic, fraternal and religious work in addition to his insurance duties.

Mr. Crandall's experience as former secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, as director of the Norwich Building and Loan association, as a member of the Connecticut Underwriters, the Eastern Commercial Teachers' association, the Hartford Ad club and as secretary of the Norwich Chautauqua association, as well as being a graduate of a half dozen schools, colleges, universities, and a student and graduate of many special courses, author of scores of magazine and newspaper articles on business training and a former educational director for Gimbel Brothers of New York city, a past instructor at Connecticut college and Bryant and Stratton college seems to have given him just the necessary foundation and backing needed to the successful management of this branch office of one of the largest and oldest financial institutions in America. For several weeks past he has been receiving congratulations from his former students all over New England, as well as from his many local friends who have known of his good fortune.

In accepting the medal from the hands of the superintendent of agencies, Glover H. Hastings, Mr. Crandall stated that the credit for winning the medal should readily be divided with the old policy holders and friends in the territory, his friends in the home office and in the state office and with his wife and children who have encouraged and aided in so many ways in making the record possible. After presenting the medal, Superintendent Hastings surprised Mrs. Crandall by presenting her one of the famous Virginia Lucky Stones, and complimented the local medical examiners for the splendid co-operation and interest they had shown during the year. The local medical examiners and their wives, Dr. and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne and Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Freeman, were among the invited guests. After a careful explanation of the new policies niw⅞momokr.kiwiluin-brr-now being issued by the company, Mr. Crandall accepted a half million dollar quota for the year 1925.

EVANS IN WORCESTER JAIL, PLEADING GUILTY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Worcester, Mass., March 1—Robert L. Evans, 33, Norwich, Conn., is in the local jail facing an appealed sentence of one year in the house of correction on a charge of living unlawfully at a local address with Miss Helen Mason, 25, a waitress, also of Norwich and Miss Mason is in the city hospital in a critical condition following an attempt she made on her life after her arrest early Saturday morning by Worcester and Connecticut officers at Woodstock, Conn. She had left Worcester about a week ago and was employed as a nurse in a Woodstock family.

Miss Mason was wanted here in connection with the arrest earlier in the day of Evans, who was taken at his boarding house after his wife had come to Worcester to run down clues leading to the whereabouts of her husband, who she said, had been missing from home for a month.

Mrs. Evans was in court Saturday morning when the case was called but no testimony was required owing to the fact that Evans pleaded guilty. Mrs. Evans was in a condition bordering on hysteria after her husband had been sentenced and tearfully asserted she was sorry for having prosecuted him.

MUST PROVE AGE IF LICENSING OFFICIALS DOUBT

To verify the age given by many applicants for licenses to operate motor vehicles in Connecticut, the state department of motor vehicles is requiring birth certificates, in suspicious cases. During the past year, drivers' licenses were taken away from 36 people who were found to have misrepresented themselves to be over the minimum age of 18 years, and several prosecutions have been initiated by the department. A number of cases which arose in the past few days during the rush for 1925 operators' licenses are now under investigation.

Birth certificates are required by the department whenever the age of an operator or applicant is called in question and there are no previous records in the department to establish the age of the person involved. It is a curious fact that many of the complaints drawing the department's attention to under-age drivers come in letters from the parents or brothers and sisters of the drivers, who have evidently remonstrated in vain with the under-age drivers. Other complaints come from neighbors or acquaintances who sometimes prove to be people who have been unable to qualify for licenses themselves because of the age limitation, and resent the licensing of others in similar circumstances who have misrepresented themselves to the department. The state law is specific, prohibiting the licensing of persons under 18 years old, and, however skillful a driver may be, the department has no discretion whatsoever in such cases.

On the other hand, the department has had experiences with some parents who have assisted their children to deceive it as to the age of sons or daughters seeking licenses. In a recent case, a father brought to the office of the department at the capitol one of his older sons and swore that he was a younger son, a boy under 18 years of age, who had applied for a license. Of course licenses obtained by misstatement on application are null and void from the date of issue.

STAFFORD SPRINGS PRIEST HAS HIS POEMS BOUND

A former assistant at St. Patrick's church, Norwich, Rev. Felix J. O'Neil of Stafford Springs, has collected his verses in book form. Fifty-two of the most highly praised ones, long and short, have been bound into one volume entitled Songs From the Hills. The cover design, stamped in gold, and the title-page, in red and green were designed by the author himself, who is known to be equally handy with pencil, brush and quill.

Several of Father O'Neill's hymns have been set to music.

HOUSE AND SENATE HELD SHORT EVENING SESSIONS

All of the Regular Appropriation Bills Have Been Passed—Senate Spent the Entire Day Wrangling Over Conference Reports and the Cramton Prohibition Bill—Houses Are at Odds on Amendment to Appropriate $8,000,000 For Construction of Public Buildings.

Washington, March 2.—With all of the regular appropriation bills out of the way, neither the house nor the senate was in a mood tonight to remain in session in an effort to clear the legislative jam.

The house adjourned at 6.30 p. m. after a session of eight and one-half hours, during which it passed a dozen measures under suspension of rules, accepted senate amendments to the rivers and harbors bill, and adopted the conference report on the interior department supply measure.

The senate quit at 7.30 p. m., after spending the entire day wrangling over conference reports and the Cramton prohibition bill. By receding from its amendment for the elimination of Pullman sur-charges, the senate put the independent offices appropriation bill on its way to the president. It also put the finishing touches on the interior bill.

Leaders declared it was almost unprecedented for either house not to be in session the second night before the de adjournment of congress. It appeared certain, however, that tomorrow's sessions would extend well into the night and that both houses would meet Wednesday in an effort to dispose of miscellaneous measures. Although the regular supply bills, carrying funds for government operations during the coming fiscal year, have been sent to the president the final deficiency bill still is tied up by a dispute between the house and senate over a senate amendment to appropriate $8,000,000 for the construction in towns in 40 states of public buildings heretofore authorized. The conferees eliminated the amendment, but the senate refused to accept the report.

There was another hitch today in the plan of republican leaders to get action at this session on legislation carrying the cooperative marketing recommendations of the president's agricultural conference. The senate agriculture committee voted to substitute the Capper-Haugen bill which the house had rejected for the Dickinson measure, and as a result it appeared practically certain that neither of the bills would become law.

Quick action was had on one measure of importance, that appropriating $19,000,000 for additional hospital facilities, for world war veterans.

The senate spent nearly all of its time discussing the Cramton bill reorganizing prohibition enforcement activities. This finally was laid aside for the house branch banking bill which is the senate's unfinished business. This did not fit in with the program of administration leaders and Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader, moved that the senate proceed to the consideration of executive business. He said it was "useless for the senate to remain in session tonight and wear itself out when there is not a single senator on this floor who believes this bill can be disposed of."

The motion resulted in a clash between Senators Curtis and Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, who had called up the bill, the latter announcing he would not yield for the purpose outlined by Mr. Curtis. After a hubbub, the Kansas senator succeeded in getting the floor in his own right and presented his motion over the protest of several senators. There were demands for a roll call, but the motion prevailed 43 to 34.

In the executive session, which followed the fight as to whether the senate should remain on the job tonight was renewed but the republican leader finally carried his point for a recess until 12 o'clock tomorrow. It was understood that on this occasion the vote was 44 to 33.

There was no demand in the house for a night session. During the day, Speaker Gillett, attempting to expedite business, recognized motions to accept senate amendments to bills, adopt conference reports and pass other measures under suspension of the rules exclusively. A similar program is planned for tomorrow when the house will convene at 10 o'clock.

GIRLS TO TYPE LETTERS ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

In the not distant future girls sitting in ordinary New York business offices will be able to tick out typewritten messages in London, more than 3,000 miles away.

This revolution in telegraph methods was forecast by Donald Murray at the Institute of Electrical Engineers, in London.

The machine which has made this vision possible is the startstop printer or teletype, the business man's printing telegraph—the Ford car of telegraphy. It is provided with a typewriter keyboard, which can be worked at a rate of forty to eighy words a minute over any distance from 100 miles to 6,000 miles. Any girl typist can use it.

A new type of aircraft propeller, the invention of an English woman, is said to have proved highly successful in official tests.

"INAUGURAL RALLY" IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, March 2.—Wall Street witnessed and old-fashioned "inaugural rally" in today's stock market in which popular issues were lifted up one to 7 1-4 points on total transactions well in excess of one and one-half million shares. The average of twenty leading industrial stocks was elevated nearly 1 1-2 points to 124.06, a new high record for all times, while the average of 20 leading railroad stocks, recording a slightly larger gain on the day, duplicated the record high figure of 104.85.

The active demand for stocks, which originated largely with professional traders, was based on a variety of factors. These included reports of substantial improvement in many lines of business, due to the recent spring-like weather; the adjournment of congress on Wednesday, which removes the fear of adverse legislation for at least nine months, barring an unexpected special session; rumors of merger negotiations involving several large railroads and oil companies, and prospects of special dividend distributions by several prominent railroads, public utilities and industrial concerns.

PERIL TO ST. PAUL'S IS TERMED URGENT

Maj. Harry Barnes, speaking at a meeting of the London Society in the hall of the Royal Society of Arts, suggested that the city corporation should take measures to allay the apprehension roused by the report of the royal fine art commissioners in the proposed St. Paul's Bridge.

"I say with a sense of the greatest responsibility," he added, "that the stability of St. Paul's Cathedral is causing the greatest anxiety among all those charged with the care of it. "If we really want to save the national monument from disaster immediate steps must be taken to avert it."

Irregularities In The Bureau of Engraving

House Committee Reports There Has Been a Duplication of Bonds, Some Fraudulent.

Washington, March 2.—A comprehensive audit of the public debt was recommended today by a majority of the house committee which investigated charges of irregularities in the bureau of engraving and printing in a report which declared that duplication of government bonds, "some fraudulent, the proportion not yet determined," had been disclosed. The report, filed late today, was signed by Representative King, republican, Illinois, Stegall, democrat, Alabama, and Stevenso, democrat, South Carolina.

Chairman McFadden, in a minority report, declared he could not subscribe to the majority findings, which he described as "incomplete." If hearings had been continued to permit the treasury to present additional witnesses, he added, the majority report might have "stated different conclusions and necessarily different recommendations."

The fifth member of the committee, Representative Strong, republican, Kansas, "in separate minority views, asserted that while there had been duplicate numbered bonds issued by the treasury, he had not found that these bonds were spurious or fraudulent, nor that the government did not receive full payment for them.

The committee majority declared that the evidence, presented during a year's investigation, had disclosed:

"1—That there has been duplication of bonds, some fraudulent, the proportion not yet determined.

"2—That the report of the treasury relative there to is incomplete, contradictory and evasive, and the testimony if offered to show innocent error, was refuted.

"3—That records have been falsified the extent of which is unknown to the committee.

"4—That indifference to duplicates has been prevalent.

"5—That legal remedies have been neglected in the payment of duplicates.

"6—That destruction of bonds was conducted in haste and that destruction records are not dependable.

"7—That bonds were destroyed in violation of law, of regulations, and of the presidential order and evidence of duplication thus removed.

"8—That, under a theory of economy, evidence not destroyed has been rendered useless and the government also thus deprived of its main safeguard against future fraud.

"9—That the will of congress has been overridden in the repurchase and sale of millions of dollars worth of bonds.

"10—That questionable methods were employed in handling these funds.

"11—That substantial actual losses to the government have resulted.

"12—And that the extent of these trosses has been rendered uncertain by failure of records to agree.

Report on Military Activities in Germany

Shows the Germans Persist in Determination to Maintain Officers Fof an Army of War Strength.

Paris, March 2—(By the A. P.)—The opinion of Marshal Foch and his colleagues of the allied war committee is that the report of the military control mission shows the Germans persist in their determination to maintain a complete staff of officers for an army such as existed prior to 1914. Also, the committee believes, Germany is educating not only officers and subalterns to this end, but, under all sorts of camouflage, is training enough young men to mobilize a strong fighting army whenever it wishes to do so.

This, the committee says in a written opinion which the ambassador's council will consider tomorrow, is of far graver import than the discovery of unauthorized war material, although it is pointed out that the existence of illicitly manufactured rifles, machine guns and parts of cannon, emphasizes the seriousness of the situation.

Among the details of the control mission's report to which the military experts refer is the discovery in steel mills of secret shops walled up from the eyes of the curious where are stored patterns and moulds for the most improved type of cannon, and even unfinished tubes that in a short time could be completed into guns ready to fire. Tips given by German pacifists led to many finds of this sort, including more new rifles than would be required to arm the entire German army on the basis of Versailles treaty.

Information given by workmen employed in chemical factories led to the finding of conclusive evidence that facilities for the production of asphyxiating gas have been left intact as they existed at the end of the great war. The report on this point confirms evidence which the allies have had for some time to the effect that the Germans had erected new factories that could almost instantly be devoted to the production of vast quantities of the most deadly weapons which the war developed and which had just begun to demonstrate how deadly it could be made when the conflict ended.

These discoveries, in the opinion of the military experts, are rendered all the more important by proofs of the the existence of a military staff school and the training of young men of Germany for an army such as that with which the country entered the great war.

AUTO SWERVED FROM STREET INTO A CROWDED SIDEWALK

New York, March 2.—An automobile driven by Mrs. Gertruda Daley of Neponset, Mass., ran down Thomas E. Butler, of Medford, Mass.; on Madison avenue today, when her car swerved from the street into a crowded sidewalk, snapped off a fire hydrant and stopped after breaking through the plate glass window of a bank.

Butler, who sustained minor injuries, swore out a complaint charging Mrs. Daley with felonious assault. She furhished $500 bail for a hearing Wednesday. Later they discovered they both were guests at the St. George hotel.

Mechanics told Magistrate Corrigan that the steering mechanism of the car, which Mrs. Daley had purchased in Washington and was about to drive to Boston, was out of order.

REDUCES AUTHORITY OF RAILROAD LABOR BOARD

Washington, March 2—The supreme court's decision today, holding in effect that railroads are not compelled by law to submit labor disputes to the railroad labor board, and are at liberty to determine whom they will recognize as representatives of their employes, is expected to have a considerable effect on the board's authority.

The court's decision was handed down by Chief Justice Taft, in cases brought against the Pennsylvania railroad company by two labor organizations, which charged conspiracy to defeat the provisions of the transportation act and to deprive them of rights by coercion and threats through refusal to treat with their representatives.

It had been indicated that, in event the court upheld the stand of the Pennsylvania Company in recognizing only representatives of grievance committees organized among its own employes in wage and other disputes, a number of other railroads would ignore the railroad labor board under similar conditions.

FORMER SENATOR CLARK DIED OF PNEUMONIA

New York, March 2—William Andrews Clark, former United States senator from Montana, died this evening at his home here.

Death was due to pneumonia, Mr. Clark had been sick a week.

At the bedside of the former senator, who was 86 years old, were his wife, three daughters, and two grand-daughters.

Mr. Clark's eldest daughter, Mrs. Mary Clark Culver Kling, was married last week to Marius de Brabant of Los Angeles.

William Andrews Clark was the last of the three Montana mining magnates —Heinze, Daly and Clark. Arriving in Bannack, Idaho, in 1863, with $3 capital after an overland journey of 65 days in a prairie schooner, he became forty years later, a multimillionaire and a United States Senator. He was born in Connellsville, Pa., on January 8, 1839.

NEGRO ASSAILANT OF YOUNG GIRL LYNCHED

Rockyford, Ga., March 2.—An unidentified negro who confessed to attacking a 14 years old white girl near here this morning was lynched late this afternoon about two and one-half miles from Rockyford. He was captured after a chase lasting nearly the entire day and was wounded in the back with a rifle shot.

The negro was burned at the stake. He was brought back to the scene of his crime and identified by his victim. He was then carried into a field where brush and wood were piled about his manacled form, and after gasoline had been applied to his clothing, the wood was set on fire.

The victim uttered but faint outcries and was stoical throughout the experience. There was little disorder. Men well known in the community were in the mob. There was no attempt at concealment. The negro's name is unknown.

EARTHQUAKES CONTINUE IN SAGUENAY DISTRICT, QUEBEC

Residents of the St. Lawrence and Saguenay Valleys Are Apprehensive—Three Fatalities Have Been Reported—One Church Collapsed and Scores of Homes Were Damaged by Tremors and Fire—Advices From Remote Sections Picture the Phenomena as of Far More Disastrous Consequences Than Was at First Reported.

Quebec, March 2.—Three persons dead, scores of homes damaged by tremors and fire, one church collapsed and general consternation among the residents of the St. Lawrence and Saguenay valleys are the known toll of the earthquakes of last Saturday night and Sunday morning.

In the Saguenay district it was reported the quakes had been almost continuous since the first ones prior to Saturday midnight, the last having occurred at 10.10 a. m., today.

Several wooden houses were badly damaged by the shocks. Thirty chimneys on houses were demolished and some of the villages were struck by falling brick.

As lines of communication are restored, telephone and telegraph bring from remote sectors of the quake zone accounts picturing the phenomena as of far more disastrous consequences than was at first reported.

An expectant mother, Mrs. Alphonse Auger of Quebec, fainted from fear at the height of the earthquake, and today she died.

Mrs. Edgar Harvey of Tadousac and Mrs. Eugene Bureau of Ste Anne De La Parde, died of heart disease, induced, according to coroners, by shock.

The Roman Catholic church at St. Hilarion, 60 miles from Quebec, collapsed with the first violent tremor. A new stone structure and one of the most beautiful in this section of Canada, it had only a few minutes earlier been thronged with worshippers attending a special service.

Several frame residences in St. Hilarion were demolished by the vibration; about 30 chimneys toppled; and a score of families became temporary refugees. Church people, terrorized by the intermittent earth tremblings and rumblings, joined the priests of St. Hilarion in searching the ruins of the structure throughout the night, in a vain effort to locate and recover the Sacred Host and holy vessels.

Reports are that the home and general store of Rene Gagne at Herbertville were destroyed by quake and fire, with a loss of $26,000. At St. Felicien the property of Syprien Gagnon was burned, with a loss of $20,000. The college of Ste. Anne De La Pocatiere sustained $10,000 damage.

A number of fissures are reported to have appeared in the earth at Yamachiche. Many buildings there appeared today with walls fallen, roofs collapsed and foundations gaping. There was considerable destruction of household furniture but, as far as can be ascertained, no loss of life or injury to residents.

Testimony of 85 passengers aboard the government ice-breaker Mikula appeared to strengthen the theory of some scientists that the seat of the earth disturbance was a fault originating in the St. Lawrence and Saguenay valleys.

The vessel was proceeding up the St. Lawrence just before midnight, Saturday, when, according to passengers and crew, she was shocked from stem to stern, as though she had struck a rock or submerged derelict.

Captain O'Hearn stopped the ship, took soundings and examined the engines, the passengers being meantime in a state of near-panic. Finally the skipper diagnosed the true cause of the ship's actions, and his explanation restored order.

The time and place of the drawing also will be kept secret, "in order that the plays to be judged will obtain no undue publicity," it was announced.

FISHING BOATS DISCOVERED WITH LIQUOR ON FISH

Washington, March 2.—Correspondence between Representative Bacon, republican, New York, and Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billiard, coast guard commandant, revealed today that fishermen are being stopped by coast guard craft because off Block Island and Gloucester, fishing boats have been discovered with liquor under the fish.

Mr. Bacon transmitted to the coast guard chief a protest from fishermen in his district who objected to being disturbed unnecessarily because of the liquor search. Admiral Billiard made it clear no fishing boat rum smugglers had been located in Bacon's district of Long Island.

The coast guard commandant recalled that his branch of the government had helped the fishermen through the years and aided in saving their lives and craft and hoped they would realize that the guard now has a difficult job.

JOHN W. DAVIS VISITED SENATE PRESS GALLERY

Washington, March 2.—John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president in the last national election visited the senate press gallery today as a "plain lawyer" and chatted with the correspondents there, some of whom had accompanied him through the campaign.

Mr. Davis asserted flatly that he was "out of politics" although he intended to devote whatever capacity he might have in that line, "in the future as in the past, to the democratic party."

Nothing could be more futile, he said, than a discussion of candidates four years hence. Party conferences at this time he thought should be confined to discussion of ways and means and to perfecting the organization with the party so conducting itself, in the meantime, as to gain public confidence."

FRIEDRICH EBERT TO BE BURIED IN HEIDELBERG TODAY

Heidelberg, Germany, March 2—(By the A. P.)—Friedrich Ebert, the first president of the German republic, will be buried here on Thursday in a grave in Berg cemetery near that of his mother. The chief mourners on behalf of his native city will be the workmen who were his boyhood friends in the days when, as the son of a Heidelberg tailor, he was apprentice to a saddlemaker and learned the trade which introduced him to organize labor and paved the way for his entrance into the politics of the new Germany.

As Heidelberg is occupied by French troops, no German troops will participate in the interment ceremonies. The German gendarmerie, however, will act as escorts and pallbearers. Chancellor Luther will speak at the grave and there will be also other addresses by Heidelberg officials.

WESTERLY MAN DIES IN HOSPITAL IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, March 2.—After traveling from Westerly, R. I., to this city, Ciro Bianchi, 56, of 35 John street, Westerly, R. I., died today in St. Raphael's hospital. Hospital authorities said death was due to pneumonia.

Bianchi was on his way to this city in an army ambulance which figured in an accident at Saybrook. He was not injured in the accident and was brought here from Saybrook in the hospital ambulance.

Endeavoring to reach St. Raphael's hospital as soon as possible, the driver of the army ambulance lost control of his machine on the Post road in Saybrook and the car crashed into an automobile operated by Miss Olice Clark, of Saybrook. Both machines were thrown off the road and considerably damaged, the patient in the ambulance did not suffer any ill.

An army ambulance was used because of the absence of any other in Westerly, it was said.

CONFIDENT THAT HE CAN MAKE GOOD AS WRITER

New York, March 2.—Cecil Short, 17, of Winchester, Ky., came to New York today to be a writer. He was met by detectives. Cecil had come on a freight train.

"Sorry to cause you this trouble" he said. Then he fainted. At Westside court, after a hearty meal, he told his story.

"My father wanted me to be a farmer, but I wanted to be a writer. They laughed at me, so I just came to New York.

"Down my way it's quite a disgrace to be jailed and you won't lock me up, will you? I know I can make good, now that I'm here."

Magistrate Barrett told him it would be necessary to hold him until his father was notified but that he could work on his writing while he waited. Cecil strode out with a bright face, beside a burly attendant.

Cecil refused to show the contents of the manuscripts that bulged from the pockets of his wrinkled shirt. He said he was afraid somebody might pirate his work.

REPORT ON UPRISING OF INDIANS ON SAN BLAS COAST

Panama, March 2.—Supreme Court Judge Francisco Osss, who was sent to the San Blas coast by the government to investigate the Indian uprising of last week, in which a number of Panamans were killed, has returned to Panama and made his report to the minister of interior Lopez.

The secretary has filed a strong protest with John Glover South, the American minister, over the use of numerous American flags by the San Blas Indians on their sloops. Senor Lopez says the Panaman government is exerting every effort to arrive at a settlement of the dispute with the Indians without further bloodshed, but that it "will not tolerate such mockery."

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 2—Three special agents from the department of justice in Washington are expected here Tuesday to take part in the search for the criminals who murdered Orville E. Pruester, federal customs officials, who was blown to bits by an infernal machine on Sunday afternoon. The men will work under the direction of Colonel William J. Donovan, deputy attorney general in charge of the criminal division and have been given information by Colonel Donovan concerning the workings of the Niagara frontier rum runners and the methods to be pursued in tracking them.

Although the local district attorneys office made claims of progress on the case, no arrests have been made. The federal district attorney declared that he had found clues in the answers of several men brought to his office immediately after the murder.

WILLIMANTIC

As a result of the storm Sunday night, Street Superintendent John S. Sullivan had his full force of men on the streets Monday, making repairs on washed-out gutters and cleaning out storm sewer manholes. Especially were they busied on Valley and Main streets where the leaves and rubbish clogged the flow, and sent the water up over the pavement and in some cases into the cellars of the buildings.

About one hundred stations of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company were put out of commission. The storm also played havoc with the service of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company causing the house and street lights to go out at intervals for from two to five minutes, during the evening. The cause was attributed to the breaking of a high tension wire at Eagleville.

It is said that the effects of the earthquake Saturday night were noticeable at Windham Center, Brick Top hill and South Coventry. Rev. William Martin Brown, at his home in Windham, claims to have felt vibration of the rocking chair in which he was sitting and at the same time a shaking of the house which lasted for perhaps two seconds. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Anderson, on Brick Top hill report a distinct shaking of the house and jarring of the furniture. Other residents of Brick Top tell of stoves being moved four inches out of "true," and that in one instance a lamp was shaken off a table to the floor. Louis A. Kingsbury is said to have felt the quake at his home in South Coventry.

In the police court Monday morning John Shea, of Walnut street pleaded guilty to a charge of assault on Eddy John, Saturday night, at the pool room on Jackson street owned by the latter during an argument between the two. John signalled Officer Frederick Lamothiere who arrested Shea. Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a fine of $5 and costs, which amounted to $10.15. This was paid.

A similar case was that of George St. George, arrested by Lieutenant McLean shortly before midnight, Sunday, on complaint of Kalil Tellage, an employe in the lunch room of Sam Haddad on Union street. St. George wandered into the lunch room about 10 o'clock and when he became boisterous and Tellage put his head around the door to see what was the trouble, seized him by the hair and swung at him. Haddad came in and took a hand in the matter, and between them St. George was put out. After hearing the police officers' testimony in the two cases, Prosecuting Attorney S. B. Harvey said that the practice of going into places of business and beating up the proprietors is a new one and one that must be stopped. The man was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $10.35, which he paid.

Rev. A. A. Jalbert sang the high mass of requiem at the funeral services of Mrs. John L. Cronin from her home in Baltic Monday morning, mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception being at 9 o'clock. The bearers were Terrence Coughlin, Thomas, Robert and James Moran, John Sullivan and Peter O'Neill. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery in Willimantic. The committal service was conducted by Rev. A. A. Jalbert and Rev. Charles M. Kelly. Killourey Brothers were in charge.

Reports from Willimantic for February for contagious diseases made to Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating show eight cases of scarlet fever, four of lobar pneumonia, three of bronchial pneumonia, three of diphtheria, and two of whooping cough.

Concerning the reports of scarlet fever cases in Willimantic the report that a case was being treated at St. Joseph's hospital was denied Monday afternoon. A patient coming in from Chaplin with symptoms of that disease was denied admission. The report of similar cases at Storrs Agricultural college was also denied by the physicians in authority there and the college officials, but acknowledgment is made of two cases in the mild advanced stage, in the infirmary, where two freshmen, Allen Parrell of Danbury, and Arnold Larsen of Bristol, are being treated in isolation.

Three gallons of chemical were used by Engine company No. 1, which turned out in response to a still alarm for a brush fire in the vicinity of the municipal stone crusher, shortly after 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. George Tormey was given a surprise party Saturday evening at the home of he sister, Mrs. Emma Deuel. Music and games were enjoyed and luncheon was served by the hostess.

Among damage to property caused by the high wind, Sunday night, was the total destruction of the chimney on the house in North Windham owned and occupied by Myron Lyon. The chimney was unusually tall, standing eight feet high on the flat roof of the ell of the house. The force of the falling bricks was so violent as to break the rafters and loosen the plastering in the house, and the wall paper was ruined by the rain which rushed in. Hardly three inches of chimney were to be seen Monday morning above the level of the roof. The damage is estimated at about $150.

Two chimney fires were reported in outlying towns Sunday evening, one in the chimney of H. Seplowitz in North Windham, and the other on the Governor Peters place, in Hebron, occupied by Edmund Horton. The fires were not serious, although considerable excitement prevailed. Neither town has fire protection and the owner of the house in North Windham was in New York. The blaze was discovered by one of the children, who noticed the unusual brightness outside, and remarked that it must be an automobile coming. As the light continued to grow brighter, Mrs. Seplowitz ventured outside and found the flames shooting up from the chimney. The neighborhood was alarmed and the fire was put out with no great resulting damage.

Hebron Town Hall was crowded on Saturday evening to see the Dramatic club's comedy, A Regiment of Two. The play deals with the old situation of two more or less henpecked husbands, who, in order to obtain a night's freedom once a week, pretend to join the Thirty-ninth regiment. When the regiment is ordered to the Philippines, these two leave for a fishing trip up the St. Lawrence, and returning at the time when they understand the regiment is due to come home, find their wives mourning their supposed deaths and carrying on what seems to them a most unnecessary flirtation with a strange man from the west. The cast included Charlotte Raymond, as Lena, the German maid; Roger Porter, excellent as Arthur Sewall, the younger of the two "soldiers"; Mertelle Goodwin as Mrs. Sewall; John Demasko, very good as the browbeaten Ira Wilton; Randall Tennant as Harry Brentworth, actually a member of the Thirty-ninth; Raymond Smith as Conrad Meltzer, "der blummer"; Dorothy Foster, as Laura Wilton, the young and charming daughter of the house; Alan Maclin, delightfully cast as Lord ReReginald Dudley; Miss Susan Pendleton, as Mrs. Ira Wilton, and Moe Friedman as "Parson" Jim Buckner, a long-lost brother from Texas, who made a big hit. The audience was very appreciative. Miss Pendleton, Mr. Smith, Mr. Friedman and Mr. Macklin receiving perhaps the most applause.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Campherole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. The sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a mechanic by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Campherole. You can imagine my surprise after using Campherole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Campherole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Campherole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 1917 High St., Camden, N. J.

HOTEL SALESMEN JUBILANT AS THE GOAL IS NEARED

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 2—One of the most successful meetings of the entire hotel campaign was held Monday noon when it was announced that the amount subscribed over the week end was $13,900. This raises the total amount of subscription to $192,500.

The meeting opened enthusiastically with the singing of "America". A double quartette, Arthur Roy, Robert H. Fenton, John D. Roy, Harold C. Lincoln, Edward Rocheville, Arthur L. Clark, Harry W. Standish and John Charles H. Caswell sang a number of F. Ahern under the direction of selections of which the last was "Swee' Adeline."

Group champions stood Monday afternoon as follows: 1 in A; 6 in B; 7 in C and 11 in D. In Division B, groups 5 and 6 were tied for honors, but Manager Mustard relinquished the right to hold the pennant to the other. In Division A, groups 1 and 2 were deadlocked in the amount subscribed, but the former had the greater number of subscriptions. On the roll of honor among the salesmen are John D. Roy on Group 2, Walter Abbe in Group 6, Harold C. Lincoln in Group 5, and Raymond A. Parker in Group 3. Quite a bit of ceremony attended the hauling over of the goat from Raymond A. Parker's group, which has retained it since the opening of the campaign, to the group headed by "Al" Picha. He was presented to the tune of a funeral dirge by the manager of the losing team to Manager Parker, in return for which Manager Parker received a bouquet of forget-me-nots. But Ray's team came back with a challenge for the next day, which was accepted with an added proviso that at the last meeting Tuesday noon, the losing manager shall also submit to the indignity of having the tail of his shirt cut off by his rival with a pair of scissors, in full view of the entire organization.

H. N. Bullard of the executive committee introduced G. Tistefano, of the G. D. Tile Company, which has subscribed to the amount of $2,000 in stock. The subscription was secured by Mr. Bullard and P. J. Twomey.

New Gypsy King

Hail to the King! His Royal Highness, Frank Mitchell I, has just assumed reign over some 1,500,000 gypsies scattered throughout the country, and will hold his court at his home in Harlem, the center of a large Romany colony. He was chosen to succeed the late King Nicholas John by unanimous vote of 500 electors, who traveled to Harlem from far and near to select the new monarch. King Frank says he will continue the reforms begun by King Nicholas, urging his subjects to keep their children in school, to obtain regular medical attention in case of illness, and to keep out of the courts.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Miss Ethel Abbie Smith, 34, died at the home of her parents, Arthur E. and Susana Aldrich Smith on High St., Monday morning. Besides her parents she is survived by two brothers, William of New York and Henry of Providence.

Amelie Marionek, age 2, daughter of John and Elizabeth Marionek died at the Johnson Memorial hospital Monday.

Property owners of Stafford are manifesting a good deal of interest in the town meeting to be held Wednesday evening. The present tax rate is 17 mills, but the town and school expenses have considerably increased and it seems doubtful if the same rate will be sufficient to meet the requirements of the term this year. The increase of $166,545 in the grand list will add some to the amount of tax is to be collected.

Very few residents of Stafford Springs felt the earth quake Saturday night. Some people in the northwest section of the town say that they felt a slight tremor about 9.25 Saturday night and believe it was due to the quake.

Joseph Hochberg has sold out his business to John W. Jackson and Mrs. Minnie Briggs of Bristol.

The branch library recently opened in Stafford Hollow is being well patronized. There are now 40 persons taking advantage of the privileges of the library.

COLUMBIA

A rubbish fire was the cause of considerable alarm about noon Saturday in the rear of the home of Frank Mitchell, close to the Green. Mr. Mitchell had set fire to a heap of rubbish near his house and the high wind had driven the flames close to the building. An alarm was sent out and men with brooms and pails soon appeared, putting out the fire before the house was damaged.

A meeting of the members of the Columbia Congregational church was held at the chapel Friday evening to consider the proposition of Mrs. Mary B. Yeomans to wire the church and donate fixtures for electric lighting, providing the church would lay a hardwood floor. As the evening was very disagreeable and a very high wind was blowing, there was only a very small attendance. Estimates ranging from $700 to $1,000 for laying the floor were received. Discussions in regard to additional expenses for carpets, etc., followed, and it was finally decided to appoint a committee of two men and two women to visit other churches and obtain all the necessary facts and figures to make the proposed improvement and to report at another meeting to be held in two weeks.

Mrs. Howard A. Rice has been ill during the past week with grip and was unable to attend to her duties at the library Friday afternoon. Mrs. Clayton E. Hunt acted as substitute.

The body of Frank J. Badge of Brooklyn, N. Y., son-in-law of A. A. Latham, was brought to Columbia Saturday for burial in a plot recently purchased in the center of the Columbia cemetery. Mr. Badge died Wednesday last from pleuro-pneumonia after a short illness. Many relatives from distant cities attended the burial services, which were conducted by Rev. C. C. Haun, pastor of the local Congregational church.

The subject of Rev. C. C. Haun's sermon Sunday morning was Christ, the World's Saviour. He spoke of the efficacy of the universal gospel as compared with all other influences in the world, also the consecration of our lives to God.

The usual dance was held at Utley's hall Saturday evening, there being a good attendance.

In the reference last week regarding the installation of the officers of the local lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen it was stated that the installation was performed by John C. Trant, field manager, of the order. Mr. Trant was present, but the installation was by William Burleson of Willimantic, district reputy.

George H. Champlin, who went to Atlantic City Tuesday last to attend a meeting of representatives of the highway departments of different states, returned Saturday.

Mrs. Katherine Michalis has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Elsie, to Edward Miner of Hebron, the wedding to take place at the Columbia Congregational church Wednesday, June 3, at 3 p. m.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Citizens of Killingly will learn with satisfaction of the prospect of a further reduction in the town debt this year, probably by as much as $5,000 or $6,000. The selectmen are now preparing the budget that will be presented for the consideration of the voters at the adjourned annual town meeting—the financial meeting—to be held later in the present month. It is not unlikely that the tax rate will remain at 18 mills this year. The budget which the selectmen are preparing will set forth in detail the estimated costs of meeting the expenses of the town, that all may have an opportunity of studying it and familiarizing themselves with it prior to the meeting at which the appropriations will be made.

More reports of minor damage came in Monday following the wild southeast gale of Sunday afternoon and night. It appears that the storm kicked up more of a rumpus in this vicinity than the earthquake of the preceding night. A number of chimneys toppled over under the lashing of the storm and window glass was in demand Monday to replace panes broken under the force of the big blow. Such damage as resulted to the lines of wire service corporations was being repaired by crews of linemen and other workers during Monday. Another of the large buildings in Danielson to lose a chimney in the gale was the Keystone block. Radio aerials were included in outside equipment that went down during the storm.

Belated effects of the earthquake were apparent here Monday. Any number of people are all fussed up over the prophecies that other quakes are impending. They have not started to sell their property or otherwise rid themselves of earthly possessions, as did some of the adherents of the idea that the world was to end on Feb. 6, but they are not at all comfortable mentally and are very ill at ease because they believe there is something in the forecasts of more earthquakes to come. As control of such things is at present vested, it is not probable that their feelings can be relieved to any extent by a guarantee of immunity against the earth shaking itself up a bit if it happens to get in the mood. What with a total eclipse, a partial eclipse, an earthquake and severe storms, not to mention a prediction of the end of the world this has been a season exceedingly trying on the nervous and credulous.

There is nothing like seizing an opportunity, even though unseizing it is a subsequent necessity. This tale has to do with a man who thought he saw an opportunity, seized it and then unseized it. The first heard of him was about midnight Sunday, when he made a demand upon Napoleon Allen, who lives near the Killingly town farm at Dayville, for compensation for damages to the fender of his car, said damages alleged to have been sustained when the machine was in collision with a swing that had been blown by the storm out into the highway near Mr. Allen's place.

Mr. Allen awakened Mr. Bassett, superintendent of the town farm, and his neighbor, to have his counsel and advice in the affair. Getting a searchlight, Mr. Bassett came out and looked the situation over. Having looked, Mr. Bassett pointed out to the automobile driver that his machine had not hit the swing; in fact, was stopped a considerable distance from it. In view of this oversight, the driver then stated that another car had hit his machine when he turned out to avoid hitting the swing. Making further inspection of the car, Mr. Bassett discovered that the hub cap on the wheel under the damaged fender was crumpled and gave evidence of having had it out with a rock. This was called to the attention of the driver, who thereupon decided that he did not care to collect any damages from Mr. Allen, or any other person who asked so many embarrassing questions, of a man looking with wide open eyes, even though it was midnight, on what appeared to be a shining opportunity. Without even asking them to pay him for the time he had spent in trying to bamboozle them he drove off in the direction of Massachusetts, whence have come many clever men, any number of them honest.

A boulder that was washed out of the embankment bordering the state highway just north of the tunnel between Taftville and Jewett City during the storm Sunday night might have been a cause of disaster for persons traveling the route. At least two Danielson men reported the obstruction, but both saw the boulder in time to avoid a collision with it. Dr. William A. Mills and J. Dyer Potter of the Brooklyn Savings bank were the drivers who reported the rock. Mr. Potter says that, in his opinion, it was so large that a man would have difficulty in moving it. Other smaller rocks were in the highway near by, having come down from the embankment in the slide. There was sufficient space for a car to pass, but were another car approaching from the opposite direction, with blinding lights, there could have been a serious accident.

F. J. Arrigan was telling an earthquake story Monday that he brought out of Providence, where he spent a part of Sunday. There is a clock in the rooms of the Royal A. C. in that city. It has consistently and at all times refused to run until the earthquake shook it up Saturday night and since then it has been going and keeping perfect time.

As a change from a steady diet of motion pictures throughout the winter, the Chic Chic revue at the Orpheum theatre pleased the audiences at Monday's shows. This tabloid musical show is rich in amusement and attractive settings and it received a cordial welcome here.

Measurements appear to indicate that fully an inch and a half of rain fell during the heavy southeast storm of Sunday. The storm made a quagmire of country highways for miles around. These roads have been in turn cut up and frozen during the alternately cold and mild weather of the past two weeks, making travel over them anything but a pleasure.

If weather conditions permit, it is likely, it was stated here Monday, that work on the construction of the state highway in Plainfield, this contract started last year, will be resumed in a week or ten days.

Providence rum runners recently captured near Putnam by state officers from the Danielson barracks felt keenly the fact that the entire experience, including loss of their illicit cargo, court costs, et al., cost them in the neighborhood of $2,000, so a Providence paper states.

A new high record for number of fire alarms in a twelvemonth period in Danielson has been established. Up to Monday afternoon 36 alarms have come in since April 1 of last year, April being the month for the beginning of each year's record. Prior to this year the largest number of alarms in 12 months was 34. Very few of the fires of the past year have caused any serious damage.

More men who served in the armed forces of the United States in the World war and are resident here received their bonus certificates Monday.

Mrs. Katherine O'Neill and Mrs. Anna Walsh of Dayville are in New York for the early days of this week, attending a convention.

Saturday afternoon a meeting of those interested in forming a dog owners' association is to be held at the Bohemian club. Joseph Birch said Monday that all Windham county people who are interested are eligible to attend. One aim of those promoting the association, which will be a mutual affair, will be to hold dog shows in Danielson, these shows to be patterned after those held in various sections of the country.

Four weeks from tomorrow morning, those who are watching the calendar for the event will tell you, the trout fishing season of 1925 will open.

Games will be played and refreshments served following the study hour of the Crusaders at the Baptist church this (Tuesday) evening.

Members of Killingly grange had a profitable and interesting evening Monday when Farmers' night was observed. There was a social hour following the addresses and other business of the evening.

SPEAKER DARBIE PROMINENT, BUT HE DID NOT KNOW IT!

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, March 2.—There is a sequel to that incident which occurred a tthe capitol in Hartford last week when Speaker E. L. Darbie, dropping in at a committee hearing for a few minutes, stopped to inquire the name of an organization that a speaker before the committee represented. He was given the name, and remarked that he never heard of it, only to be told by the speaker that only prominent people belonged out in eastern Connecticut. Mr. Darbie was amused upon returning to his office here to ascertain from his stenographer that, months ago, he had been named as a member to the legislative committee of the organization and that a letter was at hand inviting him to attend a meeting of its members in Norwich at an early date. Such, indeed, is fame!

PUTNAM

At the annual city meeting held Monday morning in the municipal building the appropriations totaling $51,730 recommended by the common council for the current year were voted without protest. The amounts for the several departments are:

Fire department $10,000; police department $11,500; city court $1,800; highway department $9,000; sewer upkeep $450; general expense $3,500; street lighting $8,500; city clerk $400; city treasurer $400; interest $5,400; janitor $480; fuel and light for city building $300; total $51,730.

The tax rate was fixed at nine and one-half mills on the dollar for the general expense and a special rate of one and one-half mills to pay the interest and part of the principal of the sewer debt. Only a few citizens attended the meeting.

Funeral services for Mrs. Charles Kelley, a former resident of Putnam were held here Monday with burial in Grove street cemetery. Her husband, a former well known contractor of Putnam, died fifteen years ago. Mrs. Kelley continued to make her home here until two years ago, when she went to Maryland to live. Her death occurred Friday. There are no children.

Louis Salwitz, of Bridgeport, was presented in the city court Monday afternoon charged with owning and keeping liquor. He was represented by counsel and entered a demurrer to the proceedings, but he did not testify. Judge Geissler found him guilty and assessed a fine of $200 and costs of $26.72 which he paid. Salwitz, according to the police, was transporting liquor from Providence to Bridgeport when his car broke down a few miles from this city and he was obliged to abandon it. When he got back to his home he reported that his car had been stolen.

Charles Leone of Putnam ran into the car of F. O. Marion on the Killingly road Sunday night, slightly damaging it. In court Judge Geissler decided that he was guilty of the charge of reckless driving and imposed a fine of $25 and costs of $28.50. Leone paid.

Putnam retail merchants are unanimous in their declaration that the special dollar day sale of Saturday attracted more people to the city than any similar event since the series of financial disasters began two years ago with the collapse of the Manhasset Mfg company and culminated in the closing of the First National bank last August. It was also declared that it was a "buying" crowd and that the total of the day's sales would probably equal the largest day of the holiday season. All of which is encouraging to the business men and citizens generall of the town that has been hit the hardest by the business depression but which has refused to lose its courage.

Tourtellotte Memorial High school basketball team kept up its winning record by defeating Putnam High school, 26 to 14 in the school auditorium Friday night. MRS. IDA W. BATES, ILL, SUICIDES AT WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, March 2.—Mrs. Ida M. Bates, 67, who committed suicide at the home of her daughter in Worcester Sunday was a highly esteemed colored woman who had lived in Putnam nearly all her life, was a property owner, and well educated for one born in slavery. Her husband Joseph Bates, drove a stage couch between Putnam and Woodstock for several years, he died in 1900. Mrs. Bates took up the work of nursing and she had been employed in many families.

She has been in poor health since the first of the year and a few weeks ago she locked herself in her house in Putnam and an entrance to it had to be forced. A month ago she went to Worcester to visit her daughter, Mrs. Edward E. Smith. She became worse after her arrival and was treated at St. Vincent's hospital. At 8 o'clock Sunday morning, when Mrs. Smith went to her room with her breakfast, she found her dead. Mrs. Bates had fastened one end of a bathrobe cord to a bed post, tied the other securely around her neck and then threw herself off the bed to the floor. She had been dead some hours when her daughter found her. She leaves one other child, Mrs. Arthur Gould, of North Grosvenordale. The body will be brought here for burial.

"Mother—can't I have five cents?"

"Bobby's mother gave us some money to go to the movies," the child lisped excitedly, "and could I have five cents to buy some candy to eat at the show?"

"Here's a better idea," the mother said. "Father brought home some Life Savers last night, and I'll give you some of them. They are the best candies for children."

How true it is!

These china-hard circles of pure goodness are just the thing for sugar-hungry little tummies so easily upset by sweets that are too rich. And for tiny teeth that fare best with candy very carefully chosen.

The ideal candy for children

The active bodies of growing boys and girls crave sugar. Their blood requires it.

But children's candy should be pure; also you must control overeating. Life Savers answer both problems:

Be generous with them

Rich sweets, hurriedly eaten, upset little stomachs. Not so with Life Savers. Children eat them slowly because they are so hard and because they want to enjoy longer those delicious, delicate flavors.

You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers; they are so pure and wholesome. It is far better to let children have the right candy regularly. They are less likely to overeat than when they get it only now and then.

Also, Life Savers leave no sticky, sugary debris to start tooth decay. They are safe for children's teeth. Have Life Savers always handy at home when the youngsters call for sweets. There is no candy better for them.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

TRUCK FREIGHT LINES.

At this session of the general assembly the legislators are asked to place the motor trucks under the control of the public utilities commission, the same as the railroads, trolley lines and bus lines. It is legislation which has been proposed for the purpose of dealing with a situation which has been developing for several years, and one which is rapidly changing.

There has been introduced a bill for this purpose under the apparent belief that there should be no further delay in dealing with this problem, and it is known that when regulations are required the quicker they can be undertaken the easier they are to get acquainted with, the lighter is the task of enforcement and the quicker the desired benefits will be obtained.

More and more trucks are being employed. Greater and greater quantities of goods are being moved in that manner and the inference is natural that there will be many more of them before there are less. Not only are the Connecticut highways becoming congested by the volume of traffic, of which the big motor trucks are a conspicuous part, but there are many truck routes which cross the state in all directions, while there are those which use the Connecticut highways simply as a connecting link.

Regulation of such transportation lines as the steam lines and the electrics was long since deemed desirable. More recently the placing of the bus lines under similar control was considered necessary. In all these instances it has been believed that the utilities commission which directs the regulations of these was the proper agency for such work. Sentiment runs along the same line when there is brought up the matter of establishing regulations for truck freight lines. The bill as proposed would apply to motor trucks serving as common carriers, on any street or highway with established routes and would give the utilities commission jurisdiction over routes, rates, speed, schedules and continuity of service. It doesn't apply to private trucks or trucking concerns doing a general pickup and delivery business.

GROWING FIRE LOSSES.

Instead of trying to see how small the fire loss in the country can be kept one would get the impression from the losses, decade by decade, that the real endeavor was to see how much property could be burned up. There is food for serious reflection in the way in which fire losses have jumped by leaps and bounds in the past two decades.

Back in 1903 the fire loss of the nation reached a total of $145,302,000. By 1913 it has reached a yearly total of $203,763,000, while in 1923 the total mounted to the sum of $535,372,000. That represented a gain of $58,000,000 from the beginning to the end of the first decade, but an additional jump of almost $332,000,000 at the end of the second decade.

It is to be realized, of course, that the country has grown in the two decades, but even so it has failed to increase in the exercise of care and fire prevention as fast as it has developed otherwise. During the second period of ten years there have been different conditions established. Any fire loss in the second period represented a larger sum than the same fire loss would have in the first mentioned period. This is due to economic conditions. Prices have advanced and property is worth more. Losses go likewise, but there appears to be no good reason why that should drive the fire losses in the second period to practically six times what they were in the first. It gives the impression that while economic conditions have been changed carelessness has also been on a rampage.

In the state of Connecticut during 1923 the fire loss mounted to the sum of $5,433,973, a large proportion of which might have been prevented and of the remainder the causes could be classed as partly preventable. Nearly a half million loss in this state was occasioned by matches and smoking, defective chimneys being responsible for over a third of a million, heating apparatus of various kinds for nearly another third while unknown causes, in which prevention might have played a most important part, reached a total of over two and a half million.

The wisdom of decreasing the fire loss instead of increasing it ought to need no extended argument.

THE TOWER AT PISA.

Periodically there is a state of nervousness developed over the discovery that the leaning tower of Pisa has continued to settle, or to get out of plumb. There is more than one generation of those close by this structure which has been warned of the danger.

The latest claim is made by a royal commission which finds that after investigation that the tower is out of true by nearly 14 feet. It is not a new condition, but one which the report would have us believe is getting worse. Whether the tower was intentionally constructed out of true, or whether it developed that way after completion through sinking on one side doesn't appear to be clearly established. The builder isn't here to be consulted and the concern now must be as to what must be done to prevent the toppling of the old tower if in fact it is in danger of toppling.

The tower because of its leaning proclivities has long since become famous. It was constructed in days when the less thought might have been given to a suitable foundation than is done today, and it is natural that engineers are today much better prepared to deal with such a situation and even to remove and replace the foundation than they would have been centuries ago. That may be the solution of the trouble with the leaning tower. Should that become necessary it would mean nothing new, such has been done in fact to provide the heavier foundation required for monuments, the height of which has been increased after construction had been partially completed under original plans.

Perhaps there would never be any thought of bringing the tower at Pisa to an exact level. That would mean the destruction of its attractiveness. But there may be sufficient reason for preventing it from leaning to a greater angle, and if the filling in of a trench at its base does not accomplish what is expected the new foundation is not out of the question, if it can be judged by other accomplishments in that direction.

MUSCLE SHOALS COMMISSION.

Studying the Muscle Shoals situation is a course that has been advocated from many directions. It is believed that experts should dig into the various phases of the matter and give congress and the country the benefit of their discoveries for the purpose of guiding it in determining what should be done with it.

A means of avoiding delay and getting the big plant into operation at the earliest possible moment was provided by the legislation which congress has failed to act on and which is doubtless sidetracked for the session. The idea of government operating has been frowned upon but it will be a year or more before congress will do anything in the way of disposing of the plant. In the meantime it must continue to stand idle.

As long as congress is unwilling to legislate at this time concerning Muscle Shoals there is of course a chance for a commission of experts to get busy and see whether they can find anything that will be of service to the next congress relative to that plant and what should be done with it. While congress is resting such an inquiry will not be impeding legislation.

The fact that the house looks with favor upon the idea gives it the needed start. It is no more than the president recommended some time ago before it seemed probable that action might be taken at the present session. It will at least dispose of such a step and increase the probability of some action during the next session. The fact that a commission may be named doesn't necessarily mean that it will alter opinions or change in any way the ultimate action by congress. It doesn't appear that it could do any harm.

TAKING LIVES OF INCURABLES.

It has been no secret that crimes which have been committed have been the guiding influence for others. There are those who are not willing to lead but are adept at following. They are impressed by the methods employed by others and they are not slow in adopting them. Is it possible that numerous cases of murder, suicide or robbery within a short period of time, are the result of such an influence?

In this connection it is to be noted that within a few weeks there have been several instances where persons have deliberately taken the lives of others and then given themselves up, making the plea that they did it to relieve the suffering of those who were fatally stricken and could not survive. It was a French girl who started the latest case of that type, and she was acquitted by a jury. Since then another case of similar character has come to light in Paris and within the past week there have been two cases of that kind in this country. The idea is apparently making an appeal regardless of the fact that it means the taking of life in violation of the law.

There have been those who have advocated from time to time that there should be a law which would permit the ending of life in a humanitarian manner where persons are stricken with incurable diseases and are great sufferers as well as great burdens. The idea has some supporters but there has always been an unwillingness to attempt to give such a right by law. Nevertheless there are those who are ready to act regardless of the law, or who seem to think that they can establish their own. Where will it end?

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, D. C., March 2.—Representative Schuyler Merritt, with the strong support of the other members of the Connecticut delegation, has taken up with the post office department the matter of issuing memorial postage stamps in honor of Nathan Hale.

The third assistant postmaster general, who is in charge of such matters, expressed a keen sympathy with the proposition, and Mr. Merritt is hopeful a memorial issue of stamps will result.

George Dudley Seymour of Connecticut, now occupying the old Nathan Hale homestead, brought the question to the attention of Mr. Merritt, who lost no time in his endeavor to secure from the government the converted honor for Hale.

Mr. Merritt suggested to the department that a stamp in common use, like a one cent or a two cent stamp would be highly desirable, as stamps in daily use would bring the career of Hale to the attention of the youth of the country and so set a noble example of patriotism. But he was informed that two cent stamps bear the head of Washington and one cent the head of Franklin, who was the first postmaster general of the United States, and that if a Hale stamp is issued it would probably be of a different denomination. The question of a design was talked over by the assistant postmaster general and Mr. Merritt. It was suggested that a reproduction of the famous Hale statue in New Haven be used. Either the head, or a full length figure. If the latter it is not unlikely it might be a white figure against a blue background, something after the design of French stamps, which has proved very effective from an artistic viewpoint. It is not certain a memorial stamp will be issued, but the Connecticut delegation, headed by Merritt and Tilson, will make every effort to secure it.

The election of Longworth to the speakership is very largely due to the coupling of his candidacy with that of Congressman Tilson of New Haven for the floor leadership.

Tilson could not be elected floor leader unless a vacancy was created in that office through the election of Longworth to the speakership. And thus it was, that New England, with her powerful delegation took a firm hand in the proceedings. New England preferred Longworth to Madden, and its delegation would have voted [illegible] for Longworth anyhow, but it would not have worked for him as it did in this instance, had it not been that the Tilson candidacy depended entirely on the Longworth victory. So Tilson became a very valuable asset to the Ohio man, as was shown in the big majority he obtained.

While Longworth won on the first ballot, Tilson was named Longworth's successor by acclamation, not a dissenting voice being heard.

It's a safe statement to make that the entire republican side of the house wanted Tilson as their floor leader, and Connecticut, as well as Tilson personally, has received a high tribute at the hands of the house.

That Tilson is admirably equipped for the office is not questioned. He is thoroughly versed in parliamentary tactics; he is a tremendous worker, alert, and always present at sessions. He has voice, poise and a ready good nature and tolerance for "the other fellow" that makes him a prime favorite with representatives of all factions. The "regulars" are his firm followers; the insurgents admire and respect him, and the democrats feel their interests will not be jeopardized by any future action of Tilson as the floor leader on the opposition, for Tilson never fails to play a fair and square game. So everybody is satisfied with Tilson's election.

"Where shall we place Mr. Gillett?" is one of the vexed questions with which the republicans of the senate must deal at their caucus and in committee assignments.

The custom of the senate that new members must go to the bottom of the line under the seniority rule has seldom if ever been broken. Yet how can the senate of the United States ignore the fact that Speaker Gillett, when he enters that body the fourth of March, will bring to that body a record of congressional service rarely equalled and a prestige second to none in the entire congress of the United States.

Mr. Gillett is making no demands for special recognition, although it goes without the saying that he would appreciate whatever courtesy the senate may bestow, if exceptions to the rule of seniority are made in this instance.

The senate works under the old New England saying of "Him as has, gits"; and it's the man who has worked his way up from the fag end of a committee to the top place, through continuous service that gets the chairmanship. He gets his choicest seat in the senate chamber and is consulted regarding his office rooms.

But all the same, it is questioned here if the senate will be wise to follow too closely the seniority rule in placing Mr. Gillett where his legislative experience will count for no more than the newly elected senator from some other state, whose first plunge into congressional activity will be taken with his oath, on March 4th.

Political wise-acres and friends of Mr. Gillett believe his remarkable record in congress should have recognition of some sort.

"And what is Mr. Gillett's congressional record? Does someone ask, that he should receive special recognition at the hands of the senate?"

Thirty-two years of continuous active service in the house, speaker of the house and one of the most active workers in that body, with an untarnished record and universal respect and confidence of the entire congress, regardless of partisanship, is the foundation on which the friends of Speaker Gillett base their claim that he should be recognized with unusual courtesies when he enters the senate.

Personally there is no question but what Mr. Gillett would have preferred to remain in his present position of speaker rather than change from the lower to the upper branch of congress. And why? Because as speaker of the house he stands next in prestige and precedent to the vice president of the United States, when that official is performing the functions of his office, and next to the president pro tempore of the senate when that official assumes the duties of the vice president.

As speaker of the house he receives a salary of $12,500 instead of the member's salary of $7,500. He is furnished with an automobile, a chauffeur, and the upkeep of the car. He is so high up in the political scale that the president annually gives a dinner in his honor, as one of the regular state functions of the White house. He is in a class by himself. And all this Mr. Gillett voluntarily relinquished last November when he chose to be elected as junior senator from Massachusetts instead of retaining his exalted position as the speaker of the house.

Down in the great war, state and navy building, as the headquarters of those three branches of government are styled, are many trophies, and not least among them are the flags that decorate the walls of the reception room beyond the closed doors of which the secretary of war sits in conference with men who "run things" in the military section of government affairs. The present secretary is Hon. John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, whom it is said President Coolidge strongly desires shall remain in office. Mr. Weeks has not made known his decision but it is reported he will stay a while longer, as he and Coolidge are warm personal friends and as a rule, hold the same opinion on military affairs.

But to return to the flags: As one enters that large heavily oak paneled room, flags are seen on every side. Perhaps the most interesting are three that are in glass cases hung close to the ceiling. Over the mantel in such a case, is a faded Stars and Stripes that the guide points out as the one which draped the casket of Lincoln, as his body was taken from Washington to Illinois for burial; nearby are the flags that were flying over Fort Sumpter at the beginning of the Civil war—they too are faded, but safely enclosed in glass. The latest acquisition to history flags placed in the reception room of the secretary of war, is a big Old Glory that General Allen brought home after the world war. It was the last American flag to be lowered on the Rhine, when the American troops quit German soil.

Another interesting bit of past history in that room, is a clock that stands in the middle of the mantel, just under the Lincoln flag, and may be so placed with special significance. It is the clock that ticked away the time in that very spot, when Jefferson Davis, leader of the southern insurrection, was secretary of war.

HOT COFFEE

Norton paused uncertainly in his walk. The girl was neatly, even daintily dressed. Her hat, which she had put down on the bench beside her, had an air of smartness. Her dark hair curled deliciously against the nape of her neck. That was all that Norton could see. Her face was hidden in the curve of her arm and the slender form was shaken with sobs.

Norton had plenty of time. He liked to start early for his office so as to enjoy a walk through the park each morning. There was a chance to render assistance, or sympathy at least, to a damsel in distress. So he paused, his mind finding and repeating a dozen possible causes for her grief.

What he could see of her looked like a nice girl—delicately bred, tenderly cared for. He approached.

"I beg your pardon," he said, gently. "You are in trouble? Can I be of any help?"

The girl turned a lovely, tear-stained face toward him. She was quite young—bare 20, he guessed—with the bluest eyes he had ever seen.

"No, you can't, thank you," she said, decidedly. "I'm crying because I've left my husband, if you want to know and I've no place to go."

"Oh, but," began Morton, shocked. "That is serious. Must you leave him?"

"Yes, I must! He's a brute!"

"May I sit down?" asked Norton. She nodded.

"Can't we talk it over?" he asked, seating himself beside her. "I'm an old man, you see," he added with a whimsical smile. "At least twice your age, and with twice your experience. Perhaps, between us, we might find a way —"

"There isn't any way," she insisted.

"He abuses you?"

"Hits me, you mean?" The blue eyes widened. "Oh! No! Or course not."

"What then?"

"He's so disagreeable!" He voice broke. "He just complains about everything all the time. The potatoes are not done enough! The meat's done too much! And this morning—the coffee—" She stopped with a little sob.

"Don't cry," begged Norton. "Was the coffee so bad?"

"I don't know. I never drink it. It was cold, he said. And he was nasty about it. He said he guessed I'd never learn—I was too stupid. As if it mattered! About the old coffee!"

"It seems to you," said Norton, "that coffee could not possibly be important enough to bring tears to those pretty eyes of yours, doesn't it?"

"Can it be?" she asked.

"I am going to answer that question by telling you a little story. Do you know where Johnson & Birdsalls shoe factory is, across the river?"

The blue eyes lighted with interest.

"Yes, I know," she said.

"Well, I happen to be manager in one department there," Norton continued. "At the first of next month there will be a vacancy in my department. I have to select the man to fill it. There are two men in line for it. It means a desirable advance for either of them. For many reasons I would prefer to give the job to the younger man. He has more real ability and I think takes more interest in his work. But I am going to give it to the older. Do you know why?"

"No," she answered, breathlessly.

"Because the job requires above all things a pleasant disposition. The man must meet strangers who come to do business with the firm, and meet them with a smile, not with a grouch. And this younger man about whom I spoke was married about six months ago to a girl who can't or won't learn to cook. She feeds him burnt steak and underdone potatoes and cold coffee. As a result he has nervous indigestion. He's hungry half the time, which means that he is nervous and irritable nearly all the time. And he is going to lost out."

The blue eyes stared, fascinated, at Norton.

"Do you mean that Fred—that the young man is going to lose that job because his wife gives him cold coffee for breakfast?"

"That's just what I do mean," said Norton, solemnly.

The girl was silent a long time. The lovely eyes grew very thoughtful. "Oh, I'm going to learn to cook," she said at last.

Then the girl picked up the smart little hat, crushed it down over her dark curls and held out her hand.

"Thank you," she said, primly. "And good-by. You've been very kind."—Exchange.

Arkell Started Over Again at 40

Life had been pleasant and the future looked bright to Bartlett Arkell as he approached middle-age—then suddenly he was shouldered with disastrous bankruptcy not of his own making, and had to start over in a strange calling.

Son of Senator Arkell, the national committeeman and owner of Leslie's Weekly and other magazines, the boy's early days at his home at Canajoharie, N. Y., were happy. After attending public school he entered Yale, from which he was graduated. He became devoted to athletics, enjoyed society, traveled extensively and took a keen interest in politics and literature.

Active and ambitious, he entered the office of his father's publishing business and still was enjoying life and its prospects just before reaching middle age when the concern failed.

Then came the search for other openings. With three other young men of his old home town, none of whom had much money, he was introduced to the old-fashioned method of curing bacon by smoking slowly over beechwood and hickory. None knew much of business, but knew much of business, but knew good food, and they started a packing business in an old grain warehouse, 40 feet square.

The young associates had no ideas other than the treatment of pork and their early progress was slow. Their field was limited because the bacon would not keep more than a few days. Selling in boxes did not help much so they bought the rights to a glass vacuum container made in Germany, hopefully submitted it to financial men and a leading packer of the country, and were told in an elaborate report that it was not suitable for the packing business.

Stunned, but still determined to succeed, they found a crystal glass suitable for the containers and had machines invented to slice the bacon thin. With little experience and with limited capital, they progressed but slowly and not until they had been in business ten years did they see a profit.

Next the Beech-Nut Packing company put out peanut butter. Success came and other products were added until today the company issues more than 30 food products, and Arkell, its president, is rich and one of the most active business men in the country.

Tomorrow—Wister Forced to Seek Health.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Though little known to the public at large, Fred H. Bixby, one of the members of the new federal agricultural commission, is a well known figure in the cattle industry by reason of his position as president of the American National Live Stock Association. His organization exercises a strong influence in congress, but Washington has seen little of Mr. Bixby himself. He is essentially interested in cattle, which he raises along with sugar, oranges and grain on his 15,000-acre Los Alamitos ranch, near Long Beach, Calif. His herds are said to range over 100,000 acres of his state and 15,000 acres of the Tonto National Forest Reserve in Arizona. He was formerly president of the California, and is now actively interested in a number of large land, financial, industrial and other corporations of southern California.

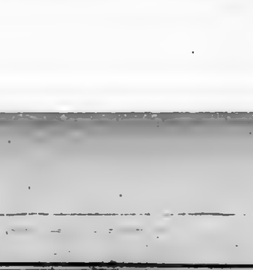
The Sympathy of Farmer Brown's Boy

You'll find that for another's sake
The sympathetic heart will ache.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Plunger and Mrs. Plunger the Ospreys couldn't seem to get over the loss of their nest. You remember the tree in which it had been had blown down during the winter. They had lived there in that particular place for so many yetrs that it seemed to them that they just couldn't give it up. Plunger had suggested that they build a new home nearer the Big River.

"I don't want a new home nearer the Big River! I want my old home!" cried Mrs. Plunger. "I want my old home!"



"I want my old home," cried Mrs. Plunger

Plunger tried to comfort her, but she refuse to be comforted. Finally he suggested that they build a new nest in a tree near the one that had fallen. Together they looked over the trees right around there. Somehow they couldn't find one that just suited. It seemed to Plunger that Mrs. Plunger was very hard to suit. But he was wise enough not to tell her. He circled overhead or sat about patiently, waiting for her to make up her mind.

Now of course Farmer Brown's boy knew what had happened. That nest was in plain sight from his dooryard before the tree was blown down. So he had known at once when the tree had blown down, carrying the great nest with it. He had wondered what Plunger and Mrs. Plunger would do when they returned and found their home destroyed. Now, as he watched them and saw how mournful they were, his sympathy for them led him to long to do something to help them.

But what could he do? There were trees for them to build in, so what was the use of worrying about them? "I do hope they'll stay around somewhere near," said he. "I certainly would miss them if they should take it into their heads to go way off somewhere to build a new nest. I wish there was something I could do to keep them here. It certainly is tough on Plunger and Mrs. Plunger to lose a perfectly good home like that. I sympathize with them. There they go over to the Big River fishing. I wish if didn't feel so helpless. But what can a fellow do for such great big birds as those Ospreys. I can't put the tree back up again, and I can't put their nest up in another tree. Just then his eye rested on something out in the barnyard leaning up against the barn. He remembered something he had read. His face brightened. He looked over toward the Big River. Plunger and Mrs. Plunger were just two dark specks in the sky. Then he started over for the place where their old home had been. And as he went he whistled. You see an idea had come to Farmer Brown's boy.

"Perhaps it can be done and perhaps it can't," said he to himself. "If it can I'd like to try it. I wonder what they would think of it. Yes, sir, I wonder what they would think of it. I wonder if they would make use of it. I'll have to get Dad to help me do it, and perhaps he won't want to take the time. I certainly can't do it alone. Then if after all that work the Plungers didn't like it and wouldn't use it I would feel foolish."

He looked all around near the place where the tree of the Ospreys had stood. Finally he went back to the barn and there was a smile of satisfaction on his face.

Stories That Recall Others

Look Before You Leap

Mr. and Mrs. M. had planned an early Sunday morning trip, during those days when autoing was a real pleasure. A suit Mr. M. would need was sent to the cleaners with a request that it be delivered not later than Saturday afternoon. When the family was not at home it was customary for the delivery man to hang the garments on the knob of the front door.

When the couple returned home late Saturday evening their hopes were dished, for there was nothing hanging on the front door. The cleaning establishment was called and a promise was made to do all possible to locate the driver and suit. After an apparently very busy night the cleaner called at 6 a. m. to report neither the driver nor the suit could be found. They were to leave at seven and Mr. M. decided another less cherished suit must be used. He stepped out the back door for the milk and much to his amazement there hung the much talked of suit, where the driver had put it on Saturday.

President John Quincy Adams did not attend the inauguration of his successor, Andrew Jackson, March 4, 1829. He was taking his usual morning horseback ride.

WESTERLY AMBULANCE IS WRECKED AT SAYBROOK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, March 2—The ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary Corps was wrecked at Saybrook about 4.40 o'clock Sunday afternoon when it was in collision with a Buick sport model auto driven by a Miss Clark of Old Saybrook road, who was accompanied by a girl friend and came out of a left side street.

Dr. Harold D. Kenyon was operating the ambulance and was accompanied by Charles D. Maxson and Harvey Meikle and had a patient, Siro Bianchini, of 25 John street, Westerly, who, accompanied by his son, was being taken to New Haven hospital, having suffered several shocks at his home, that he might be near his son who works in New Haven. The ambulance's left hind fenders were smashed, running gear bent, a hole smashed in the rear end and the front end rear hanger supports for the engine broken. Captain Thomas Henry of the Groton barracks, being in Saybrook at the time, investigated the accident.

An ambulance was called from New Haven and Mr. Bianchi removed to New Haven hospital where his death occurred on Monday afternoon, although he suffered no injuries from the accident nor did any of the other parties in the mixup. Westerly Sanitary Corps is maintaining service as usual and the ambulance of the corps was called as it was on Monday afternoon to carry a scarlet fever patient to Providence on Monday afternoon.

COUNCIL WANTS POLICE BILL AS PROPOSED OR NOT AT ALL

The court of common council at its March meeting Monday evening in the council chamber went on record, unanimously, by a roll call vote, as opposed to any amendment to the local police bill in the General Assembly. The sentiment of the council was "the bill or nothing." Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman of the board of police commissioners, informed the council that it has been rumored that the legislative committee to whom the bill has been referred are going to amend it. Mayor Waters stated that he and the corporation counsel had attended a committee hearing on the bill at Hartford and that the committee seem in favor of the city having an outside police committee appointed by the mayor, thus taking the police committee out of the council.

Sewer Assessment Hearings

Three hearings on sewer assessments were held beginning at 7 o'clock. These sewers were reported at the last council meeting as completed and the hearings on the assessments were set for Monday night. The hearings were on the assessments for the sewer in Summit and Carpenter streets, the sewer in Burton avenue from Smith avenue to Mowry avenue, and the sewer in Roath street from Cliff street to North Cliff street.

The regular council meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters. The city clerk read the return of publication on the proposed ordinance concerning the salary of the mayor, clerk and treasurer of the city. Alderman Henry Gebrath moved that the proposed ordinance be adopted and published according to law and the motion was adopted. Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

Petitions Received

From Dorothy C. Potter for sidewalk grade in front of No. 45 Hedge avenue. Referred to the public works committee. From Anthony Marchinkovitz for removal of two trees in front of his property at No. 72 Roath street. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden. From William Moleski for permission to place to disc signs in front of his place of business No. 312 Main street. Petitioner claims auto parking in front of his place interferes with his business. Referred to police committee.

From R. C. Plaut and about 150 others asking that Police Officer Henry Fenton be placed back on the night beat he formerly patrolled on Main and Water streets. When this petition was read by the clerk, Mayor Waters said he didn't believe an officer should be allowed to go to the public to pick out the beat he wants. The mayor expressed the opinion that an officer should go to his superiors on a matter of that kind. However, the mayor said he had no objection if the police commissioners see fit to put the officer back on his former beat.

From E. T. Rogers and others for a fire alarm box at Boswell avenue and Pratt street. Referred to the fire commissioners. From St. Joseph's church for an electric light in front of the church on Cliff street. Referred to the police commissioners with power.

The resignation of Frank P. Welch as a member of the board of gas and electrical commissioners was received and accepted, Mr. Welch giving as the reason for his resignation the fact that he is leaving Norwich.

Salaries Ordinance Constitutional

An opinion in relation to the constitutionality of the proposed ordinance concerning the salaries of the mayor, clerk and treasurer, by Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., and Attorneys Arthur M. Brown and Henry H. Pettis, was received by the council and accepted. The text of the opinion is as follows:

My opinion having been requested in relation to the constitutionality of the following proposed ordinance presented to the council at its regular meeting held February 2nd, 1925, which reads as follows:

"An ordinance of the City of Norwich concerning the salaries of its mayor, treasurer and clerk.

Be it ordained by the court of common council of the City of Norwich:

Section 1—On and after May 16th, 1925, the mayor of the City of Norwich shall receive as compensation for his services as such mayor, a salary at the rate of $2,500 per annum, payable at said rate monthly, to wit: on the first Monday of each month.

Section 2—On and after May 16th, 1925, the treasurer of the City of Norwich shall receive as compensation for his services as such treasurer, a salary at the rate of $1,800 a year, payable at said rate monthly, to wit: on the first Monday of each month.

Section 3—On and after May 16th, 1925, the clerk of the City of Norwich shall receive as compensation for his services as such clerk and as clerk of the court of common council of the city, a salary at the rate of $750 a year, payable at said rate monthly, to wit: on the first Monday of each month.

Section 4—All ordinances and parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed."

I would state that my opinion is that said ordinance if adopted would be constitutional. The only possible claim that might be raised against the constitutionality of said proposed ordinance would be that it would be in conflict with the twenty-fourth amendment of the Constitution of the State of Connecticut, which reads as follows:

"Article 24—Neither the general assembly nor any county, city, borough, town or school district, shall have power to pay or grant any extra compensation to any public officer, employe, agent or servant, or increase the compensation of any public officers, or employe, to take effect during the continuance in office of any person whose salary might be increased thereby, or increase the pay or compensation of any public contractor above the amount specified in the contract."

In the case of the treasurer and the clerk no such claim could be made as they have been receiving the same salary as that set forth in the proposed ordinance during their present terms. In the case of the mayor, the salary would be raised during the present term of the occupant of that office and he would, if holding that office on and after May 16th, 1925, receive a larger compensation for the performance of the duties of mayor than he is now receiving.

The question of whether such an increase of salary or compensation would be unconstitutional has been considered in three cases by the supreme court of the state of Connecticut; the first relating to an increase of salaries of judges then in office by the legislature to take effect before the end of their terms; the second an increase of salary in the case of a policeman made by a city to take effect during his continuance in office; and the third relating to the increase of pay by a school committee of the salaries of school teachers, for the balance of the school year for which they were then employed. In all these cases the supreme court held that the state, cities, towns and other public bodies may enact laws or ordinances fixing the future compensation of officers in office for their future services at a rate greater than such officers are receiving at the time of the passage or adoption of such laws or ordinances and that the prohibition of the 24th amendment exhausts itself in forbidding the payment or grant by the public bodies named in said amendment of gratuities or extra compensation. And the supreme court has defined extra compensation to be "compensation in addition to, in excess of or larger than, the compensation prescribed by law or settled by contract" and has also distinctly and clearly held that the 24th amendment does not forbid the establishment in the regularly ordained manner of compensation for the future services of an officer of a public body at a sum or rate larger than that already established for the office which he holds. The cases to which I refer are McGover vs. Mitchell, 73 Conn. 536; Sullivan vs. Bridgeport, 81 Conn. 660 and The State ex rel. Marsh vs. Lum, 95 Conn., 199, and I will quote the conclusion of the opinion in the last case:

"Applying these settled principles to the situation before us, it is clearly apparent that the action of the school committee in making these substituted contracts for the increased pay, was not within the prohibition of the amendment. It in no way involved the payment of a larger sum than the original contracts provided for the teachers' services prior to the date the increase took effect. It provided for increase of compensation for future services and not for the bestowment of a gratuity or the grant of extra compensation."

The State ex rel March vs. Lum, 95 Conn. 205, 206.

The proposed ordinance which simply says that whoever shall be mayor of the city of Norwich on and after May 16th, 1925, shall receive a salary larger by $1,500 than that now paid the mayor, clearly does not come within the prohibition of the 24th amendment as that prohibition has been defined by the supreme court of our state and is clearly constitutional if adopted prior to May 16th, 1925. If the same ordinance were adopted after May 16th, 1925, thus purporting to increase the compensation of the mayor for past services it would be in my opinion clearly unconstitutional as being in violation of the prohibition contained in the 24th amendment to the constitution of the state.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIAM H. SHIELDS,
Corporation Counsel.

The board of water commissioners in a communication to the council called attention to the need of increasing the city's water supply

The water department's communication which is signed by John J. Corkery, president of the board, is as follows:

At the regular meeting of the board of water commissioners, held at their office, Friday evening, Feb. 27, 1925, several plans for increasing our water supply were discussed.

The board of water commissioners have realized for sometime that we cannot rely upon our present watershed of four and eight tenths square miles to furnish a dependable supply of water in dry years. On October 20th, 1923, our reservoirs were at the lowest point for the year. We had stored at that time about sixty days' supply and we predicted that a similar condition or a more serious one might come again in a short time unless we made provision for it. In October, 1924, conditions were worse than in 1923 and continued to grow still worse until the pump at Trading Cove was started on December 22nd, 1924, at which time we had about 35 days' supply of water stored.

The board of water commissioners feel that the time has come, when we must increase our water supply if we are to avoid another shortage of water and in order that there should be no unnecessary delay, we have adopted the following resolution which we trust will meet with your approval:

That application be made to the present general assembly meeting at Hartford, that the city of Norwich be permitted to issue bonds to the amount of one million five hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of increasing the water supply, on condition that the citizens in the city meeting approve of said action

The communication was accepted by the council.

Corp., $120; Stanley Golembiewski and Vincenta Golembiewski, $80; Kostanti Oldzey, $40. Total, $990.

The new sewer in Maple street from Asylum street to No. 123 Maple street was reported completed at a cost of $3,103.56 and the following were named as especially benefited by the layout and construction of the sewer: James L. Tourtelotte, Minnie W. Tourtelotte, Edward G. Willey, Warren T. Willey, Clara E. Moore, Robert Goldstein, Lillian W. B. Crose, Carrie V. L. Pierson, Isaac Gefaud and Robert Goldstein and Julia Haefner.

The report was accepted and on recommendation of the committee, Mayor Milo R. Waters, Henry Gebrath, Alfred G. Lillibridge and Nicholas J. Spellman were named a committee to hear said persons and all others in interest in reference to a proposed assessment for the sewer and the hearing was set for 7.30 p. m., April 6th.

Parking Rule Changes.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of Louis Ouillet et al., asking for a change in the present city ordinance relative to parking on West Main street and also the matter of an earlier hour for the taking effect of the night parking rules in certain places, reported that they had considered the matter and recommended several changes in the present rules.

The committee recommended that Section 39 of the present traffic rules be amended to read as follows:

Section 39—No person shall park any vehicle on either side of West Main street from Washington square to the bridge over the west channel of the Yantic river or on the northerly side of said West Main street

NORWICH TOWN TAX LAID AT 24½ MILLS

A town tax of 24½ mills on the dollar was levied at the adjourned town meeting held Monday evening in the town hall, after a brief opposition when an amendment to fix the tax rate at 23 mills was voted down. The new tax is an increase of 2 mills over the tax fixed last year, which was 22½ mills.

The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock by Town Counsel Henry H. Pettis and just a dozen legal voters of the town were present, this number including the town officers and a reporter.

Moderator Pettis asked if there were any business to come before the meeting and Arad R. Manning offered a resolution that the sum of $7,500 be appropriated to meet the exnenses incurred in the recent special election for United States senator. It was voted.

Moderator Pettis then called for the levying of the town tax and John C. Donovan offered a resolution that a tax of 24½ mills be laid on the grand list and that one-half a mill be appropriated to the sinking fund of the town.

G. Warren Davis immediately asked for an explanation of this large tax, asking if it were not the largest tax ever laid in the town of Norwich. Moderator Pettis called on Miss Selectman William Murray, who said he could not say whether it was or not. In explanation of the tax rate he said that the public schools had asked for $12,000 more this year; $2,000 was needed for the tax map, $2,000 more needed for public health nurse service, $5,000 more for the Norwich Free Academy, $1,000 for the dedication of the war memorial and other extras had been asked. This alone, he said, was over a mill.

Asked by Mr. Davis what the 24½ mill tax would raise, Selectman Murray stated that it would raise $539,556.24 as each mill raised approximately $22,000. This amount was needed, he said, because town expenses had been figured at $184,424.26; schools at $256,582.62, an increase of $12,000; Otis library $4,500, a gain; Norwich Academy $65,000, increase of $5,000; public health nursing $10,000, increase of $2,000; dedication of Soldiers' Memorial $1,000 extra; tax map $2,000, addition $2,000; hydrants voted, three, totalling $650; special election, $2,500, extra; almshouse $1,500, extra, these increases and extras representing the increase of 2 mills in the tax.

Mr. Davis then stated that it seemed as though this was the time to cut down taxes and he offered an amendment to the motion—that the tax levied be 23 mills.

Moderator Pettis then stated that the time to consider the cost was not at this time, but when appropriations were asked for. If you do not vote this rate then the selectmen will not have the money to pay the bills you have voted to contract, he said. I think, myself, he said, that economy should be practiced but it is too late now for the money has been ordered spent and the entire increase is because of votes of previous meetings not because any town officials' salaries have been raised. The time to think of the tax rate is when appropriations are asked for, he said, not afterwards.

A vote was then taken and the amendment offered by Mr. Davis was lost. The tax of 24½ mills was voted and the meeting adjourned at 8.11 o'clock.

VICE PRESIDENT BUCKLAND EXPLAINS N. H. R. FINANCING

J. G. Buckland, vice president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, met about [illegible] manufacturers and business men at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon in the directors' room of the Chamber of Commerce, giving them a very clear explanation of the refinancing of the New Haven road to enable the so-called [illegible] case of refinancing.

F. B. Rogers, president of the Norwich Manufacturers Association presided at the meeting and after introducing Dudley H. [illegible] representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers association to the gathering of the New Haven road brought a word of appreciation from President E. Kent Hubbard, president of the association for the part that the industrial interests of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island had played in participating in the refinancing through the bond issue.

Vice President Buckland followed Mr. Harmon, stating at the outset in his talk that subscriptions to the loan total today $23,352,000 and there is a proposal now to increase the subscriptions to $30,000,000 and scale the allotments down 25 per cent. As an example of the way the employes of the road have supported the bond offer, he said that 3,174 employes, outside of the officers, have subscribed over $556,000.

Going back over the financial history of the New Haven road, Mr. Buckland gave a resume of the conditions which led up to the need of this refinancing which has now been successfully accomplished. In 12 the road borrowed 27 1-2 million, the largest part in France, on 15-year 4 per cent bonds. When the war came up and France needed all the money it could raise, arrangements were made through J. P. Morgan & Co. for an exchange for all the bonds that should be brought over from France. Because of the fall of the franc a considerable profit came to the New Haven road through this exchange, amounting to about $450,000.

In 1918 the road came under federal control and in the first year a surplus of $2,000,000 was changed to a deficit of $7,283,000. Deficits continued to increase because wages were advanced without an increase in rates and in the last year of federal control the deficit was $27,420,000. But in the next year when the road was again under private management the deficit was reduced to $15,426,000 and the next year by $10,000,000 more. In 1924 there was a surplus of $2,998,650, the first year in which there was a surplus after federal control ceased.

When the European loan came due in 1922 the company was not able to finance it but it borrowed $2,500,000 from the government with which to pay off those bond holders who would not agree to an extension and it secured an extension of three years from the others. This left $23,000,000 falling due April 1, 1925. The company has no floating debt and no bonded debt of any consequence falling due near this time.

Mr. Buckland closed with a mention of the problems that must be met in connection with the development of new methods of transportation, the trolley, the motor truck and the airplane.

J. A. Atwood of Wauregan, one of the Connecticut committee [illegible] ing the re-financing of the New Haven road, was called upon by Mr. Ketson and spoke briefly from the standpoint of a manufacturer and a banker, saying that from both viewpoints he felt justified and indeed felt it a duty to assist in the refinancing and the companies in which he is interested in this state and in Rhode Island will participate, he said.

The meeting adjourned after Mr. Ricketson had expressed for himself and his associates their thanks to Mr. Buckland for his address and their congratulations for the success of the re-financing plan.

PLAINFIELD AND TAFTVILLE MEET IN FIRST GAME FOR E. C. TITLE TONIGHT

The opening game of the three-cornered tournament for the basketball title of Eastern Connecticut will be played this evening at Parish hall, Taftville, when the Plainfield Army-Navy team clashes with the Taftville Army-Navy quintet. This series has become an annual affair and draws large crowds from all parts of the eastern section of the state.

The Plainfield management has not yet announced the lineup for the Plainfield team but it will be more or less of a mystery team that takes the floor against Taftville this evening. Mr. Salisbury, manager of the Plainfield aggregation, who has strongly maintained that each team should be strictly local, has refused to make known the names of any of his players who are to represent Plainfield in the title tilt. However, due to Mr. Salisbury's unwillingness to name his team, it is the belief of the majority of fans in this section that he has lost confidence in the ability of his home town players to hold down the Taftville team made up strictly of local talent and has secured the services of a few topnotch ball tossers from the western part of the state to make victory certain.

To make certain that the crafty Plainfield manager slips nothing over on the local team Manager Murphy has secured two players who are equal if not above that Mr. Salisbury can put on the floor. These men are "Fiddle" Morley, formerly of the Boston Whirlwinds, and Dutch Ford of the Hartford Knights, who will be used if Mr. Salisbury puts on any thing but a Plainfield team. Manager Murphy has not announced his lineup but says that the following men besides Morley and Leonard will be in uniform: Joe Belair, Harry Mills, the Coleman brothers, Eddie Murphy and Danny Murphy.

In the preliminary game the Plainfield Buddies and the Army-Navy Seconds will meet in battle for the second championship. The game is scheduled for 8.15 o'clock.

EDDIE BURNS WILL PASTIME WITH FREDERICK THIS SEASON

Eddie Burns, who has played semi-professional ball on local diamonds for the past few years with the Submarine Base and then with the Electric club, will go to the Frederick, Md., club of the Blue Ridge league this summer. Eddie signed a contract with the Frederick team at the baseball meeting in Hartford early in the winter and will report to the club next month.

Burns is a Riverview player with the Frederick team and it was through Bank's recommendation that Burns landed with the Frederick team. Burns is the fourth baseball graduate to be developed on the Riverview team. The others are Shine, with Frederick, Tony Rotti, Baltimore and Joe Faber of Norwich.

Eddie Burns is one sweet little second baseman who more than covers his bag and with a batting average of around .300 should be a shining success for the Frederick club. Eddie has many friends in this section who will wish him success in his baseball career.

AUSTRALIANS TO MAKE DESPERATE TRY FOR CUP

New York, March 2—The selection of Gerald Patterson, James O. Anderson and John B. Hawkes to carry Australia's colors in the 1925 Davis cup contest indicates, in the view of observers here, that the Antipodeans plan a supreme bid to lift the historic trophy, which has been in America's possession for the past five years.

Patterson and Anderson rank close in the ton of the group of the world's leading singles stars. They have not been together on the Australian team since 1922 and if both are at their best the United States will face the most formidable challenge it has had since bringing the cup back from Australia in 1920.

1924 Anderson was ill and far below his best form, but in 1923, he sprang a sensation by conquering William Johnston in the first singles matches of the challenge round. The next day he and Hawkes forced Tilden and Williams, America's pair, to a record five-set match before losing. The effects of that gruelling contest told on Anderson, however, and he was an easy victim for Tilden in the final and deciding day's play.

Last season, Patterson was beaten in the challenge round singles by both Tilden and Vincent Richards.

FOOTBALL RULES UP FOR DISCUSSION ON MARCH 13-14

New York, March 2—Recommendations for a number of important changes in the football playing code, as framed by college coaches and officials, will be acted upon when the football rules committee holds its annual meeting at the Hotel Pennsylvania, March 13 and 14. At the same time no radical shifts are likely to develop at the meeting, which was called tody by E. K. Hall, chairman of the committee.

Agitation to alter the rules governing the forward pass, which served as a lively mid-winter topic, appears to have subsided and the national rule-makers are not expected to change the aerial game or any of its features.

Four changes which have been urged by officials and coaches include: Abolition of giving first down on offside penalty unless penalty gives offensive team ball beyond point to be gained; restoration of kickoff to kickers' 40 yard line, instead of midfield, with permission to use tee of not more than four inches in height; fixing responsibility of watching roughness against kicker upon head linesman, instead of referee; and abolition of giving first down on blocked kick behind line of scrimmage if recovered by kickers' side, unless ball is recovered at or beyond point to be gained.

HOPPE BEATEN BY HOREMANS HAS NO CHANCE TO RETAIN HIS CUE TITLE

Chicago, March 2.—(By the A. P.)—Willie Hoppe, world's champion at 18.2 balkline billiards, tonight lost his chance to retain the title in the international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament here when he was defeated by Edouard Horemans, Belgian champion, 400 to 36 in seven innings.

Hoppe's elimination made the championship aspirations of young Jake Schaefer who today won his fourth straight victory without a defeat by beating Suzuki, Japanese player, 400 to 175, in 14 innings, even brighter. Schaefer and Hoppe meet tomorrow night. If Schaefer beats Hoppe, the championship will be his. If he loses to Hoppe, he will be tied for the title with the winner of the match tomorrow afternoon between Horemans and Erich Hagenlacher, the German.

SCHAEFER BEATS JAP BUT IS IN POOR FORM

Chicago, March 2—(By the A. P.)—Young Jake Schaefer, whose sensational shooting had been the feature of the international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament, suffered a lapse of the almost perfect artistry of his last two games here this afternoon, but defeated Kamekichi Suzuki, Japanese champion, 400 to 175 in 14 innings. It was Suzuki's last game of the tournament, he having lost 5 straight games.

Schaefer's grand average was cut from 92 4-13 to 59 2-27 by the contest. He remained in the lead in standings as a result of the game and had the edge on the Japanese all the way, but apparently was trying too hard to pile up a grand average of 100 or better and lacked the confidence and brilliance that featured last week's matches when he went out from spot in one contest and ran 400 in two innings in another.

Experts declared, however, that the former champion's lapse today is the best thing that could have happened to him in view of his match tomorrow night with Willie Hoppe, world's champion, which probably will decide the title. The reaction of today's contest, offers the relaxation necessary for good work tomorrow, Schaefer's critics said. Schafer had high runs of 130 and 122 in the thirteenth and seventh innings, respectively, while Suzuki's best was 53.

Tonight Hoppe met Edouard Horemans, the Belgian champion. The score by innings:

Schaefer—3, 8, 49, 2, 5, 1, 122, 0, 14, 0, 4, 10, 130, 52. Total 400; innings 14. Average 28 8-14.

Suzuki—10, 0, 7, 48, 5, 2, 53, 0, 0, 40, 1, 1, 7. Total 175; innings 14; average 12 7-14.

ARMOUR WINS COAST GOLF TITLE WITH A 289

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 2—Tommy Armour, Miami, former amateur golf champion of Scotland, won the coast open golf tournament here today with a score of 289 for the 72 holes played over the Pasadena golf and country club course. Fred McLeod, who with Harry Hampton, led the field at the close of the first day's play last Friday, finished second with 293 and Joe Kirkwood, professional at the Pasadena club, third, with 294.

Walter Hagen, British open champion, shot a brilliant round of 70 for 295, finishing in seventh place while Bobby Jones, national amateur champion, played ragged golf, spotted with sevens and eights, and was outside the money with 308.

Yale Boxers Win Easily

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The show at the Palace Theatre for the first three days of this week is unusually good and was well received at its initial performances yesterday. Hoffman's Dancing Revue with its five dainty maidens offered wonderful dance entertainment and the management should receive much credit for being able to bring such an excellent production to Norwich. Mr. Hoffman is the man who taught Rudolph Valentino his dance routine for the Four Horsemen, also the dance numbers in Orphans of the Storm and many other pictures. Smith and Brooks the two shieks are a real humorous pair with their artistic comedy. Ray and Esther Valley is a splendid singing act and no doubt have the most gorgeous settings of any act that has ever been seen in Norwich. Burns and Kane were a riot and held the audience in stitches over and over again they were called back. Freehand Brothers close the show with a marvellous perch equilibrist act. Altogether with the feature picture Idle Tongues it is a well proportioned bill and should be seen by everyone.

Admirers of Doris Kenyon have opportunity to see their favorite in one of the most appealing roles of her screen career in First National's current offering, "Idle Tongues."

The picture is an adaptation from Joseph C. Lincoln's novel, "Dr. Nye," and portrays Miss Kenyon as the sweetheart of the village physician who is in disgrace. Percy Marmont has the physician's role.

Miss Kenyon's success in Rudolph Valentino's "Monsieur Beaucaire," "The Ruling Passion," "The Conquest of Canaan" and other pictures has made her a permanent fixture in the stellar realm of screendom. Prior to her entry into motion pictures, she was a stage favorite of top rank.

She is a graduate of Columbia University and began her stage career immediately after quitting school.

Others in the cast of "Idle Tongues" include Claude Gillingwater, in another of his famous "sour grapes" roles; David Torrence, Vivia Ogden, Lucille Ricksen, Dan Mason, Malcolm McGregor and "Slim" Hamilton.

The picture was produced by Thomas H. Ince under direction of Lambert Hillyer.

Sunday Afternoon Concert at Palace.

There are to be three Lenten concerts instead of the two that have been formerly announced. The added concert, which will be included in the course at the original price $2.00 with 50 cents for reserved seats, will be an organ recital by Dr. Erb, concert soloist, assisted by Mrs. Burgy, soprano.

Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, head of the department of music at Connecticut college, a musical prodigy at the age of 15, when he made his appearance in Pennsylvania, as a church and recital organist, has since played as concert organist in more than half the states of the Union, literally from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico.

Mrs. W. Clayton Burgy, soprano of the Park Congregational church, before coming to Norwich, was soloist of the Philadelphia Opera company under her maiden name, Vandalia Hissey. She was a protege of Mrs. Stotesbury, a well known society woman of Philadelphia.

The concert of March 8, is to be a "Tiffany concert." Marie Tiffany, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company has, in her time, and she is still very young, "sung many parts," to paraphrase the familiar saying. She also has created parts for important premiers at the Metropolitan.

The concert of March 15 features two Norwich musicians, each distinguished in the role he will take at this concert. Frank Farrell prepared for concert work in Paris and Berlin under Alberta Jonas and later under Alexander Siloti, famous Liszt student. Mr. Farrell has been heard frequently in New York and throughout New England, where he has received much favorable press criticism on his brilliant style, his artistic technique, his particularly easy execution.

As an accompanist, Frederick Lester stands unique. Mr. Lester has created a name for himself among the many musicians who have for years been favoring Norwich with their art. Mr. Lester will play the orchestra accompaniment to Mr. Farrell's Liszt Concerto. He will also accompany Miss Tiffany.

Lionel Storr, bass baritone, will sing at the Farrell-Lester concert. The Musical Leader says "Mr. Storr has as fine a resonant and deep basso voice as it is possible to imagine."

Tickets are in the hands of a large committee. The cause is a dormitory for Connecticut College. Reserved seats on sale at Palace theater after 9 a. m., March 5, 6 and 7.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Real Estate Transaction

Through the agency of Panek and Busch, Robert Walker of Occum, Conn. sold his cottage house to Paul Kalinowski of Versailles, who is to remodel and make his future home.

Breed Theater

A picture whose action moves with the rapidity of an express has been found at last. It's Excuse Me, the picturization of Rupert Hughes' famous stage farce which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today. This joyous farce tells of a pair of nearly-weds who find themselves abroad an express train at night searching for a minister they will never find because he has doffed clerical garb for mufti.

The characters in this uproariously funny photoplay are brought to life by a cast of tried and true cinema favorites. Conrad Nagel and Norma Shearer are the marital aspirants, and Renee Adoree is the French friend who almost disrupts their romance. The supporting cast includes Walter Hiers, John Boles, Bert Roach and William V. Mong. Alf Goulding was the director, and John Boyle was the photographer. Excuse Me is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

The Pathe news a cartoon and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Broadway Theatre.

If you want to see the best available in vaudeville and pictures, now is your chance to see it at the Broadway theatre.

The B. F. Keith vaudeville is superb and the picture very good.

James and Bernice Lester in "A Night at Home" offer a routine.

Aaron and Kelly follow with a line of songs and dances. These two Broadway steppers are eccentric dancers and as such are great.

Billy "Swede" Hall & Co., with Madlyn Jourue and Jos. F. Carter offered an original comedy gem, "Hilda." If you want to laugh and feel as you should it will pay you to see them.

Joe Donohue and Ruth Morgan in the "Long and Short of It" set a style in skits. Comedy patter, songs and dance are their specialty.

Hathaway & Co., in offering "The Death Cabinet" really presents the world's greatest illusion novelty. It is baffling, mysterious and defying.

The much-heralded Paramount picture, "The Story Without a Name," made from Arthur Stringer's radio adventure-romance, recently featured as a Prize-Title story in Photoplay Magazine, opened at the Broadway Theatre yesterday.

Agnes Ayres and Antonio Moreno are featured in the principal roles. Moreno has the role of a young scientist and inventor who has been experimenting in secret for the U. S. government. The picture opens with the first test of his invention, and with it the "death ray" makes its motion picture debut.

Here's a feature that has gotten pages of publicity in the papers of the nation of late brought to the screen in as timely a production as we've seen in many a long day. And the novelty of the picture does not end here by any means. The radio, too, plays a prominent part in the production, which is a fast-moving melodrama—a de luxe thriller in other words.

Broadway Theatre Soon.

Pretty dainty little "Resista," weighing only 96 pounds has proved the superiority of mind over matter. This little girl sets at naught the laws of nature and gravity by making it impossible at will for any man no matter how strong to lift her off the floor. Newton was a wonder and gave the world some wonderful information when the apple fell on the end of his nose but Resista would present an entirely new problem to the discoverer of gravity.

If she so desires any one with sufficient strength to lift her can do so, but if she wills otherwise no power in a human frame can lift her tiny toes off the floor.

Resista offers an entertainment scientific and humorous to a high degree with just enough of the spice of mystery to induce persons to see her over, and over again.

You'll see this great attraction which has toured the world over at the Broadway theatre, the last of this week in addition to the regular programme.

Here is something you must not miss.

Watch this paper Thursday for more news of interest to everyone.

WESTERLY

The town council held its March meeting in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall Monday morning at 9.30.

The full council membership was present, President Clifford W. Campbell, Councilmen Thomas Morrison, George B. Utter, Louis J. Rossi, Charles S. Fowler, John D. Nichols and Farquhar Smith as well as Clerk Everett E. Whipple and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

Amendment of the Westerly zoning act in the Rhode Island legislature, R. I. H. B. No. 695, was brought up by Councilman Utter, when he proposed a vote, seconded by Councilman Fowler, that the members of the General Assembly from Westerly be instructed by vote of the council that amendments be adopted for the enabling act, so that the necessary three weeks notice could be given and authority granted for the ordering of, public hearings on the proposed amendments, the council so voted.

The matter of extending the time for holding open the polls on election days, a previous act on which subject was lost in the Rhode Island Senate filibuster shuffle a year ago, was introduced by Councilman Utter, who said that the Bradford Dyeing Asso., Sullivan Granite company and others generally approved the proposed amendment extending the open time from 5 to 7 o'clock while the George C. Moore company favored the opening at an earlier hour, namely 6 a. m. The council voted that the Westerly members of the general assembly be instructed to have enacted into the election law the change that Westerly polls remain open on Election day until 7 p. m.

Councilman Farquhar Smith recommended the election of Patrolman Michael Curtin as Sergeant of Police of Westerly, it being seconded by Councilman Rossi and the council voted the appointment without discussion.

Councilman Rossi brought up the matter of increasing the salary of the chief of police, Thomas E. Brown from $1900 now received to $2080 a year, or a weekly salary of $40 he to continue as superintendent of motor vehicles of Westerly. The increase in salary was voted by the council to begin at the next town officers' pay day.

Appointment of a new harbor master was the next matter presented by Councilman Smith, Capt. Frank H. Robinson, of the tug Westerly, was voted harbormaster, Daniel F. Larkin and Roger Dunham, previous named harbormasters by the Westerly council not having qualified. Need for a harbormaster exists, due to the "smelt war" which has been going on during the past week in the waters of the Pawcatuck river, where two boats with no trespass signs have been anchored, with mud hook and chain, it is reported and rival smelters have leased bank privileges for their "draw," which would tear the seines of the smelt fishermen.

Angelo J. Cappuccion asked the councilmen why he should not be granted the permit to erect a gas filling station at the corner of Crandall and Atlantic avenues, at Pleasant View. Councilman Utter of the building committee recommended that no action be taken on the permit, as this section was deemed a residential one and Councilman Rossi said that the granting of this permit was still in the hands of the committee. Councilman Rossi moved the granting of the permit for Robert Chase to erect a gas station on the Post Road, previously held up, be now granted as a "business section had been spotted there" by zoning experts and the council so voted. Other building permits O. K.'d by the council were: Mrs. E. McNeil addition to cottage of Ladora W. Keator at Watch Hill; John Murano, 76 Oak street, raising house one story; Thomas Morrison, Rocket St., garage; Mabel A. Saunders, 47 Granite street, construction of bathroom over the present one; Pasquale Furcola, 32 Pierce street, garage; Frances M. Giuliano, Pleasant View, cottage; Elizabeth Leon, Spring street, garage; George B. Sharpe, Park avenue, 2-car garage; Daniel Larkin, to turn toward the ocean and alter at Watch Hill, the cottages "West Wind" and "Twin Gables." Fred B. Rogers, Winnapaug Pond, Pleasant View, a cottage; H. H. Caswell, Shore road, residence; Lillian F. Mager.

Richard J. Rooney of Ames P. Chapman post, Sons of Veterans, appeared to ask the council to find a suitable place for cannon given the town, now in the G. A. R., post rooms of the Memorial and Public Library and if they were unable to do so to turn them over to the sons of veterans who would do so. He said that at one time there were over 200 Grand Army men in Westerly, where now only 9 remain. The cannon Mr. Rooney wanted placed before next Memorial day and said that the Sons of Veterans were going to carry on the work formerly accomplished by the G. A. R.

Frank W. Coy, asked that action be taken to prevent the parking of automobiles on the sidewalks of Union street, of which his tenants at 8 Union street had complained, as it was often necessary to step out in the street in front of passing automobiles. The council decided to refer the matter to the police committee. Highway Engineer A. L. Leon, who was present suggested the placing of two no parking signs with a chain between there.

Highway Engineer A. L. Leon requested for the reason of the number of complaints which had been made with the highway department of Westerly, that Manager David Novogrod have the rubbish removed from the sidewalk in front of his recently burned theatre, the Bliven Opera House, on Main street, he said he thought the matter in the province of the Westerly town council or the police committee. The clearing up of the situation was left in the hands of the town council.

Russell L. Slocum was voted a special dog officer.

A letter applying for appointment as patrolman on the Westerly police force was received from Fred Ferraro, 37 years of age, who has recently left the navy with the rank of chief boatswain's mate, was received and on motion of Councilman Rossi referred to the police committee.

A letter signed "Mrs. M. Duffy," from Bradford, complained to the Councilmen "that a place on Pierce street run by a woman, was a full fledged saloon, where men and women congregated and purchased liquor." Following this letter was a complaint from Lydia Richmond of New York whose house was burned recently at 102 Main street, in which she took to task the Westerly police authorities, relative to what she terms "wholesale appropriation" by trespasses of goods from her house, saying that china 200 years old and pieces of furniture had been taken.

Quite different was the letter read from Ida S. Ripley, president of the Women's City Club of Boston, to the Councilmen, that they convey the appreciation of the Boston women for the treatment and protection given them when they visited Westerly on the day of the eclipse.

The report of Samuel C. Webster, health officer, for February showed 27 contagious diseases, as follows: chicken pox, 1; German measles, 10; scarlet fever, 15 and mumps, 1.

The report of Chief of Police Brown showed seven arrests for February as follows: Disorderly conduct, 1; operating automobile without a license, 1; maintaining a restaurant without a permit 1; intoxication 2; and insane persons 2. One liquor raid was made. Joseph Pickering was granted a victualling license.

The matter of the Rhode Island State census enumeration, in which State Director George H. Webb desired the appointment of seven Westerly enumerators before March 15, was considered and referred to Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple, with authority to refer a list to the state director.

Town Solicitor Ferguson reported a lease signed by Maria E. Burdick, who was injured July 9, 1924, at the corner of Main and Broad street, when she fell at a place where changes were being made in the grade of the street and sidewalks. She suffered an injury to the socket bone of her right arm. Actual damages of $477 were shown and the release signed was for $500, it being approved by the councilmen.

It was voted that Joe Grabbo be sent a bill for use of the Oak street highway where a part of his barn encroaches on the thoroughfare.

Council President Clifford W. Campbell was voted a committee to secure from Ralph Rosso on Pierce street where a lot recently purchased by him is in the way of a continuation of the street, if it should be built on the line of the old Norwich-Westerly electric line.

Superintendent of the sewerage system, Thomas McKenzie appeared before the council to ask it to vote authority for the Westerly legislators to see an amendment to the Westerly sewerage and drainage bill, whedeby the amount to be borrowed might be raised from $400,000 to $600,000, to care for increased costs and uncollected assessments.

The council voted to ask the Westerly legislative representatives 1 to have enacted such recommendations as were approved by the Westerly water commissioners, who have charge of the sewerage installation and the recommendation of the water commission for the legislation of an amendment to the sewer act passed by the general assembly, which would authorize the town to raise $600,000 instead of $400,000 as provided in the original act.

Superintendent McKenzie told of the work planned for the extension of the sewerage system in Westerly, which will probably start within the next two weeks, providing suitable weather prevails. It will cost $75,000 to complete the system, he said, and $30,000 is due the town for extended assessments.

Town Clerk Whipple was directed to officially notify Westerly Health Officer Dr. Samuel C. Webster to bring into the next council meeting a list of property owners who have not connected their estates with the sewer mains where they have been installed. Th following were voted an appointment of their sewerage assessments: Joseph P. Matthews, $145.50; Phebe W. Buffum, $830.27; Joseph Ruisi, $148.50; Maria De Simone, $223.75; Margaret Pickering, $99; and Thomas Saddow, $148.50; total $1597.52.

The following were granted milk licenses:

MYSTIC

The earthquake Saturday evening was felt in Mystic, particularly on the east side of the river in the business section, although on both sides of the river it is reported that houses shook. The earth tremors seemed to be felt more near the waterfront but were very marked as far east as the section of East Main street beyond the monument so that it would seem as if the earthquake occurred in a comparatively narrow vein.

Has a Bald Head

The curious appearance that the bald head and neck of the bald ibis gives is heightened by the bright red coloring of the top of the head and the pale blue of the neck and sides of the head, says Nature Magazine. The general color of the plumage is metallic green. This rare ibis is a native of the mountainous parts of South Africa. It is comparatively little known.

Origin of Word "Picnic"

The word "picnic" first came into usage in the Finger lake country of northern New York over a century ago, the residents of the town of Hector first using it. The town had a Sunday school that decided to give an outing by "picking" up their "knicknacks" and going into the woods. From this the word developed.

POETRY

THE FIGHTING RACE.

"Read out the names," and Burke sat back,
And Kelly dropped his head,
While Shea—they call him Scholar Jack—
Went down the list of the dead.
Officers, seamen, gunners, marines,
The crews of the gig and yawl,
The bearded man and the lad in his teens,
Carpenters, coal passers—all.
Then, knocking the ashes from out his pipe,
Said Burke in an off-hand way:
"We're all in that dead man's list, by Cripe!
Kelly and Burke and Shea."
"Well, here's to the Maine, and I'm sorry for Spain,"
Said Kelly and Burke and Shea

"Wherever fighting's the game,
Or aspice of danger in grown man's work,"
Said Kelly, "you'll find my name
And don't be long about it short," said Burke, getting mad.
"What is the touch and go for life?"
Said Shea, "It's thirty odd years, bedad,
Since I charged to drum and fife

SONG: TO CYNTHIA.

Queen and huntress, chaste and fair,
Now thy temple's laid to sleep
Seated in thy silver chair,
State in wonted manner keep.
Hesperus entreats thy light,
Goddess excellently bright.

Earth, let not thy envious shade
Dare itself to interpose;
Cynthia's shining orb was made
Heaven to clear, when day did close;
Bless us then with wished sight,
Goddess excellently bright.

Lay thy bow of pearl apart
And thy crystal shining quiver;
Give unto the flying hart
Space to breathe, how short soever;
Thou that make'st a day of night,
Goddess excellently bright.

The Rossiyskaya Museum at Leningrad, Russia, has received an interesting document from the Moscow government. It is the census return which was filled in by the czaristic family in 1897. The answer of the czar and czarina to the question, "What is your profession?" was "Master and mistress of the Russian empire."

A world's fair is to take place in Belgium in 1930, in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the kingdom. New London

Alterations are to be made to the Hotel Royal, 37 Bank street, for F. H. Gavitt, proprietor. The plans call for changes to the first floor, which will provide two stores, with modern plate glass and copper fronts and interior improvements. NORWICH TOWN

The Drop-In class of the First Congregational Sunday school held a special meeting recently at the parsonage, when plans were formulated to hold a food sale. Members of the parish will assist, by contributing food.

The First Congregational Home Missionary Society is to meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Avery, of West Town street.

In his Sunday morning sermon at the First Congregational church, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached from John 17:19, "And for their sakes, I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth."

Morning worship was followed by the celebration of the Lord's supper, Rev. Mr. Bailey officiating. There was a large number of communicants.

Herbert Avery was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, when the topic was The Friendship of David and Jonathan.

At this service, special music was furnished by a quintette of young women. The mid-week prayer service of the Congregational church, Thursday evening will have for its theme, The Beginning of His Ministry, Luke 4:14-30.

Acts 26:18 was the text of Rev. James B. Aldrich at the Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist church. To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins and inheritance among them which are sanctified by faith that is in Me.

The Sunday evening sermon and the Young People's Christian Endeavor service at the Methodist church were omitted, because of the severe rain.

Rev. Mr. Aldrich was in charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the sheltering arms, bringing a helpful message to the members of the household. He was accompanied by a number of young people from the church who provided the singing. Miss Hazel Gruthers accompanied at the piano for the hymns.

The earthquake Saturday evening was distinctly felt by a family resident on Town street. Members who had just retired were rocked in their beds and the windows shook and rattled so, it seemed as though some one was breaking into the house.

Neighbors in the same locality were not aware of what had happened until told Sunday morning by those who had experienced the tremor. Heavy autos trucks and vans in passing over the state highway in this section of the town, often jar the houses for several seconds, when pictures slide on the walls, dishes rattle on the tables and in some houses ceilings have been cracked by the sudden vibrations from the many heavy trucks going in both directions during every twenty-four hours, Sundays not always excepted.

In another part of Norwich a woman observed a peculiar ray of light in the sky, Saturday evening, quite out of the ordinary, which attracted attention. When the account of the earth quake was noted in the Sunday papers the question arose as to whether the strange streak of light was an accompanying feature of the quake.

MINSTRELS CLEVERLY GIVEN AT OSGOOD MEMORIAL

A very pleasing entertainment was given Saturday evening at Osgood Memorial under the auspices of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church, which was enjoyed by a large audience.

The programme consisted of a revue, A Reverie of a Bachelor, featured by Lyle Fillmore with Mrs. Charles A. Saxton at the piano. During the reveries there were twelve tableaux, making this part of the programme most effective.

During intermission a fine programme was rendered by the Park Incidental orchestra. The closing entertainment was the Park Church Men's Club minstrels, a clever and entertaining feature with George L. Ingalls filling the part of interlocutor.

The programme was as follows:

Revue—A Reverie of a Bachelor, Lyle Fillmore; Mrs. Charles Saxton, piano. Tableaux, Old Fashioned Girl, Marion Mitchell; Lass With Delicate Air, Mrs. Clifford Wilson; Tell Me Little Gypsy, Mrs. W. Turner; Shall I Have It Shingled or Bobbed, Frank Crowell; Memory Lane, Ebb Learned; selections from Rose Marie—very special, Bruce Rogers; All Alone, Geo. Turner; June Night, Eben Learned; closing chorus, Medley by Rogers and entire company.

The committee in charge of the entertainment comprised Mrs. Raymond B. Sherman, Mrs. Edward Harris, Mrs. Aurien E. Payson and Mrs. Henry D. Johnson. In charge of the pictures were Mrs. Frank Hempstead, Miss Trumbull, Miss Nellie Loring, Mrs. F. T. Sayles, Mrs. Harrison Gray, Mrs. Natalie Eastwood and Miss Hannah Crowell. The minstrels were in charge of Bruce Rogers and costumes for the end men were furnished by the Saxton Woolen Co., and assistance was given by Mrs. Branche and Mrs. Smiley.

SPEAKS TO MEN AT RICHMOND RADIATOR PLANT

The subject presented at the noon meeting of the Richmond Radiator Co., Monday by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was "Not Our Own." The meeting was under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

The following is an outline of the theme presented:

The greatest writer of the New Testament said, "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." This was a blow aimed at a man's pride. It hit hard the self complacent man who feels that he is all in all in himself alone. Very strangely there are those who magnify their so-called independency. As an actual fact there is no such thing as an independent man or woman; an independent school, church, work shop, or even nation. When a man has acquired considerable prosperity we say he is independently rich, but we are using language very loosely. It may be that he is rich enough to quit his unusual line of work, but that does not mean retirement from society, or from those duties, obligations and responsibilities which the ownership of wealth entails.

The speaker then showed that we are not our own, 1. Because we can not always carry out our own plans. Forces outside of ourselves like the weather or an attack of sickness limit our activities. 2. Man is not his own in the regulation of his business. The silent mill is evidence of this. 3. We are not our own units of the social order. Man must obey the laws or organized society; he must respect the rights of others. 4. Intellectually he is dependent on what others have said and done as a stimulus to his own thinking. 5. Man is not his own in the life he follows in the work shop, an idea on which the speaker laid his greatest stress.

SHOWS HOW SUN BATHS HELP IN TUBERCULOSIS

The beneficial effect that sun baths have on the swollen necks of tuberculosis children was demonstrated on Monday by Dr. William Carroll by reports of cases and exhibitions of patients at the meeting at Undercliff, Meriden, of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria.

From a study of 100 cases, treated in various ways, Dr. Carroll arrived at the conclusion that, although other methods have often succeeded, the others do not succeed with so much certainty and they do not give as scarless results as does the use of sunlight.

Dr. Cole B. Gibson, the superintendent at Undercliff, reported his efforts to devise for the tubercle bacillus an enemy similar to the one that is now in use against such diseases as dysentery and chicken cholera. This enemy of germs is called the bacteriophage, that is, a something that devours bacteria.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

People living along the shore between New London and New Haven were starting a movement for a railroad line to connect these two cities, in 1850. Over $50,000 was subscribed for soon after a meeting was held and it seemed likely that the railroad would soon be a reality.

Other items taken in part from the Courier of 1850 are as follows:

Tuesday, February 26, 1850—Norwich people in common were pleased to learn of the election of Hon. J. C. Fremont to the senatorship from California. The eventful life of this patriot has always been of interest to the people of the country, and, even when he was rebuked by the president and dismissed from the army, the people of the country applauded him. Later they learned that he had declined the appointment to succeed Colonel Weller as boundary commissioner under the late treaty with Mexico. News that he has been elected senator comes as a pleasant surprise to his friends in the east and many will greet him when he arrives at Washington after his trip from San Francisco, which was started in January.

Mr. Hunter, of Virginia presented a petition in the senate Monday, asking for the erection of the Washington monument in front of the capitol.

Zebulon R. Robbins, collector, has published a notice that people in Norwich owning taxable property are to be served a warrant that they must pay a town tax of eight cents on the dollar on list of 1849.

Thursday, February 28, 1850—The independent steam propeller line between Norwich and New York. B. C. Smith master of the Jersey Blue 277 tons measurement, is making regular trips at a charge of $1 the trip and has been well patronized. J. H. Havens, E. A. Bill and A. H. Almy & Co. of Norwich are agents for the line.

In his address on Charter Oak, delivered by Isaac Stuart, Esq. of Hartford, at the town hall last evening, interesting facts were brought out concerning this grand old tree which played so important a part in the early history of the state. Mr. Stuart told of the boys setting off a firecracker in the hollow of a tree, resulting in its catching fire and burning badly. He also told of the huge pile of wood removed from the tree, two cart loads, and of the hollow left within large enough to hold over twenty men. In closing he said that the oak should live to a green old age as the inside had been painted over to preserve it.

At the convention of the delegates of the twenty-first senatorial district, Edmund Freeman, Esq., of Mansfield, was unanimously chosen for candidate for the senatorship.

The project of a railroad from New London to New Haven, along the shore of the sound, so ardently desired by many people, has assumed a shape of promise within the past few days. Influential gentlemen from New London and New Haven met and plan to issue stock for the road, one man offering to purchase stock to the value of $15,000 as a starter. The freight, it is expected, will be heavy over this road and it is believed that it will secure a heavy travel between Boston and New York, the present trip being through Hartford, which is a round about way of travelling for many people.

Saturday, March 2, 1850—The inhabitants have raised the sum of $30,000 towards building the railroad from New London to New Haven.

Archbishop Eccleston, Catholic hierarch of Baltimore has notified Rev. C. P. Montgomery, D. D. O. S. D. of Zanesville, Ohio of his election as Catholic bishop of California.

J. G. W. Trumbull and Walter Lester, trustees of the Norwich Car manufactory have published a notice that the sale of the manufactory at public auction has been postponed until March next.

At the senatorial convention held in this city yesterday Dr. Ashbel Woodward was unanimously chosen as candidate for senator. Dr. Frederick Morgan received the nomination for senator at the whig convention of the 9th district.

SPIRIT VIBRATIONS CAME THROUGH HEAVY STORM

The heavy rain and windstorm of Sunday night had its effect upon the number attending the service at the Spiritual Academy but none upon the powers of the medium, Mrs. Isabel C. Bradley of Boston, as she told her audience in some cases, she said, mediums are unable to get the spirit vibrations in stormy weather or while people are talking.

Mrs. Bradley, who is blindfolded while giving messages, read about twenty ballots which had been sent up to the platform, advising many as to future courses of conduct in relation to changes that they are thinking of making. Notes were given in each case which were recognized by those receiving messages, one woman was told that the one she suspects is the right one, and in another case the message told a woman that she had lost something, an apron with yellow lace on it, which the receiver of the message admitted was right. A father sent a message to his daughter about her physical condition, which Mrs. Bradley said she had no right to reveal, but she would say that if the woman wouldn't be so mum about herself she would have a better chance of getting the right treatment and medicine.

Rev. A. P. Blinn, who announced that Rev. Millicent Wilson of Boston would be the medium next Sunday, made a brief address at the opening of the meeting and a violin solo was well rendered by Mrs. Charles A. Dowsett. Rev. Mr. Blinn spoke of the conviction in the minds of Spiritualists of the reality of materialization in the present age just as it had been a reality in Biblical times as indicated by the appearance of Moses and Elias upon the Mount of Transfiguration. Paul's hearing of the voice on the road to Damascus and the appearance of Jesus to his disciples in the upper room after his resurrection.

Feel Achy After Every Cold?

ARE you lame and stiff; tired and nervous—constantly troubled with backache and twinges of pain?

Have you given any attention to your kidneys? Grip, colds and chills, you know, are apt to be mighty hard on the kidneys. And if the overtaxed kidneys fail to properly filter the blood, impurities accumulate and throw the whole system out of tune. Then may follow daily backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying kidney irregularities.

In such conditions a good stimulant diuretic should help the kidneys flush the poisons out of your system. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Are recommended by folks you know. Ask your neighbor!

Here is Norwich Proof:

LOUIS OUELLET, Prop. Shop Repair Shop, 145 W. Main St., says: "My back and kidneys bothered me and I had to quit work for a day or so at a time. When I bent over I could hardly straighten again and one morning while moving a machine a sharp pain took me in my kidneys and I felt as though I had been jabbed. I used Doan's Pills and they rid me of the troubles."

EAGLES WORK LARGE CLASS IN INITIATION

A large class was initiated Sunday afternoon by Norwich Aerie, No. 367, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at a special meeting with Worthy President Timothy Fields presiding.

Brief remarks were made by the following past worthy presidents, W. R. Hustedt, who is also state treasurer, Victor Payment, M. Keough and E. J. Mullins.

After the meeting a fine entertainment was presented by Billy Barker & Co., from Boston, who won favorable comment from the local members.

WILL BUILD ADDITION TO FRANKLIN TOWN HALL

At a special town meeting in Franklin Monday afternoon, which had an attendance that filled the town hall a lively discussion was held upon the proposition to make an addition to the town hall but the meeting eventually voted in favor of making an addition and of leaving the matter in the hands of the selectmen, as to the amount to be expended and plan to be followed.

E. W. Clark was elected moderator and Benjamin P. Davis was clerk. There are some in the town who want the addition by making the building a two-story structure and others want to lengthen it. It was understood that those having plans should present them to the selectmen who will make choice of what plan to be followed.

Because the town hall is in need of repairs anyway, it has been thought that this is a good time to make such changes in the building as will enlarge and improve it.

Originals of Names Old

Glasgow, the second city of the British empire today, obtained its name from two Celtic words, "glas," meaning green, and "ghu," meaning dear—dear green place. "Dublin" came from "dubb," meaning black, and "linn" meaning pool. Rutland is a corruption of Redlands.

NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL TO HEAR PLAN FOR NEW PUBLIC JITNEY LINE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 3—The city council held a short meeting this evening at which steps were taken to secure the laying of sewers in Colman street to West Pleasant street, connecting up the Lincoln avenue sewer and that at West Pleasant street, a sewer on Norwood avenue from Brixs street to Gedard street, Goddard to Vauxhall to Morgan street and Morgan street to Waldo street.

The city manager reported on the complaint as to the condition of Maple avenue and the statement was made that the highway will be gone over, the ruts filled and the drains be taken care of. A hearing will be held at the municipal building March 16th relative to the establishment of a public jitney service between Groton, Noank, Mystic and Stonington. A license was granted for a tank wagon, and the New London Hebrew society was given permission to have a concert at Bulkeley auditorium Sunday next. Edward Connell petitioned for the privilege of erecting a small sign at the corner of Green and Golden street, which request was referred to the city manager with power.

Mrs. Josephine Fowler Chester, 76, widow of Oscar L. Chester, formerly of Noank, died Sunday at the residence of her son, Charles T. Chester on Starr street. Besides her son, Mrs. Chester is survived by a sister, Mrs. Annie Smith and two grandsons, Frank and Gerald Chester, all of New London. Mrs. Chester resided in Noank all her life until about five years ago when she moved to the residence of her son in this city.

Master Edward Gaynon of Ocean avenue; Mrs. Eleanor Tefft, and infant daughter, Oakdale; Arthur Keaton, Ocean avenue; Evis Lopes, United State Coast Guard cutter Redwing; Mrs. Mabel Weir, Mystic; Dennis McEwen, Washington street; Lee Wholley, of the United States Coast Guard destroyer, Jouett; Mrs. George Bruce and infant son, Groton; Mrs. Elizabeth Bailey, Division street; Mrs. Joseph Harrington, Perry Street; John E. Woodin, Ashaway, R. I., and Mrs. William Zucanis, Lynn, Mass., and Ermor Thomasson, Willetta avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

George W. Bisson, representative from New London in the general assembly, is to go on the office of State Treasurer Rogers as a clerk when the session of the assembly concludes. Mr. Bisson is serving his first term in any legislative body. He is an acquaintance of the state treasurer and for that reason the treasurer realizes the sort of man he is selecting. The position will undoubtedly mean the removal of Mr. Bisson to Hartford to reside.

The next big musical attraction in town will be Geraldine Farrar, who comes here at a date toward the middle of the month.

Thomas Brennan, a husky youth with an opinion that he could take care of himself in a fistic encounter, was in the police court this morning for an assault upon William Brown of 27 Thames street, a young man one of the bright and aggressive sort. Brown had two discolored eyes and the upper part of the nose was also black and blue from blows received at the hands of Brennan. Brown was direct in accusing Brennan, but he did not have supporting testimony to corroborate what he said. Brennan denied that he made the attack and accused Brown of having been the aggressor. Brennan also called Patrick Francis Folwey to verify what he said, the latter confirming the part of Brennan's story that Brown showed a disposition to mix things up with Brennan. The story was that Brennan was at the Y. M. C. A. rooms where he met Brown, the latter "eyeing" him wherever he went. Brennan, when he went outside, declared he met Brown and queried him as to why he looked at him as he did. Brown was said by Brennan to have insisted that he had a right to looked at him and asked Brennan what he proposed to do about it. This led to words, Brown taking off his coat and hat and throwing them under an automobile that was near. Brennan admitted that he punched Brown twice in the face and stopped any further desire that Brown had to continue the battle. Brown did not rebut that sort of testimony and the court decided that on the testimony there was not cause to convict Brennan. After the court adjourned a disinterested man, well along in years, appeared and declared that the assault by Brennan was without provocation and was most brutal. But that testimony was late and could not be taken as verifying the claim of Brown. The officers who made the arrest were not in court, and they did not see the assault if they had been and could not have given testimony.

Robert Odgers, employed up to now at a coal yard, was found helplessly drunk on North Bank street Sunday afternoon—wet inside and out—and was locked up. This morning he pleaded guilty as alleged, and was sent to jail for thirty days. His record for intoxication was very much against him for he has been arrested a score of times for that offense. Odgers had $3 due him for his work the past week.

Michael Graff was taken from a Providence train last night when it reached New London for riding without a ticket. Officer Montgomery of the railroad police made the arrest. Graff is a foreigner and said he got on the train without money and with no destination in view. He said he had been in this country about twelve years and was a laborer at any employment he could find. The court was lenient with him and gave him a chance to get out of town, of which he availed himself.

Following the discovery of two burglaries at residences Saturday night when it was revealed that the homes of Horace Dart, 27 Warren street and H. W. Clark, 960 Bank street, had been entered, the police this morning were confronted with two other breaks and as many more attempts at burglary.

About 1.30 o'clock this morning Andrew Washington, colored, reported to the police that his home had been entered and that $11 and a check had been stolen. Washington stated that the theft was committed during his absence from home, from 10 o'clock last night until 1.30 this morning. Investigation revealed that the thief gained entrance to the house by means of a duplicate key and that the crook was familiar, with the place of keeping of the money and check.

It came out this forenoon that the Nicholson confectionery store, 321 Bank street, had been entered and that the plunder obtained consisted of $3, which was taken from a cash register and about 400 Wrigley coupons. Entrance to the place was gained by the crooks removing a light of glass from a rear window, through which they passed, in entering and leaving the store.

The attempted breaks occurred at the grocery store of Antone Joseph, 10 Ashcraft road and at the College pharmacy, Williams street. At both places the crooks removed the wooden stocks from the windows, but did not gain entrance, apparently being scared away.

During the day Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, who were assigned to the task of running down the crooks, accomplished just what was expected, the apprehending of several youths, whose ages range from 10 to 15, charged with the commission of some of the thefts. Not only have two of the youths admitted the attempted burglary of the College pharmacy and the entrance to the Nicholson store, but they admitted several breaks that have previously been reported. The boys, it is believed by the police, have been guilty of a majority of store breaks in New London for several months and as a result of the admissions of the youths they will be presented in the juvenile court during the present week.

Late this afternoon, two of the gang under arrest made an open confession of attempting to burglarize the College pharmacy, to having robbed the store at 147 North Bank street, Alling Rubber company, State street; Lyceum theatre box office; Peerless Bowling alleys, Golden street and J. Solomon's store, Main street, besides stealing a watch from the store of the C. M. Williams company and gasoline from the Mohegan Wrecking company, Franklin street and attempting to burglarize the store of the Aben Hardware company, Bank street. The two youths are being held in bail of $50 each for hearing.

Charles H. Baldwin, who has been confined to his home, 579 Bank street, a week by illness was able to resume business today.

An effort is being made by Andrew J. Collins and Almarin T. Male, board of registrars, to obtain an increase in salary. The board members now receive an annual compensation of $250 and the amount of salary that is sought is $500. The request for the salary increase has been made to City Manager William A. Holt, who, it is understood, is not in favor of the increase. The members of the board contend that they are entitled to the amount of salary increase sought, claiming that other city employes have received one and two increases in wages the past two years and that the duties of the board have doubled, because of the making of woman voters.

Patrolman Howard Sloan, who was injured near Marlboro on the Hartford turnpike Saturday afternoon, as was his father, Harry B. Sloan, Union St., when the automobile belonging to the latter and driven by Patrolman Sloan, was wrecked, is more seriously injured than was at first believed. The officer received such severe lacerations about the face that ten stitches were required to close the wounds. It will be several weeks before the officer will be able to perform patrol duty again.

A dog was struck and maimed by an automobile owned and operated by Thomas F. Dorsey Jr., this noon, on Franklin street, near Hempstead. So badly was the dog injured that Patrolman Braxton Hill was dispatched to shoot the animal and put an end to its suffering.

Captain Joseph Williams, master of the British rum supply schooner Pesaquid, seized off Block Island on Saturday, with his crew of eight men was presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich, this afternoon, at the customs house here. Captain Williams was held for trial in bonds of $1500, charged with violation of the navigation laws, but the crew was released. The schooner and her cargo of 3500 cases of Scotch and rye whiskey is moored at the United States coast guard pier, under guard. Captain Williams declared that he was well beyond the 12-mile limit when a strong wind and heavy sea set in, on Wednesday, and that in spite of his efforts the schooner dragged her anchors and did not come to a stop until the boat was within a mile and a half south of Block Island at which point he was seized by the crew of the Coast Guard patrol boat, 236.

Miss Tessie Hendel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Hendel, of Broad street, has returned to her home, concluding a three weeks' visit with relatives in Lakewood, N. J., and New York.

Miss Elizabeth A. Meyers, 17, the daughter of the late George L. and Mary Cleary Meyers, died last night at the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael A. Cleary, 49 Montauk avenue, after a lingering illness with lung trouble. Miss Meyers was a student at Williams Memorial Institute until her health declined, many months ago.

The Ford sedan, owned by Albert E. Moore, 207 Main street, which was stolen from its place of parking on Bank street last night, was found, as was expected, early this morning, when Patrolman Edward Riordan discovered the car abandoned on Bank street, near Howard. It is believed that the machine was taken by friends of Moore and after using it for a ride into the country, they returned with the car, parking it a short distance from where it was taken.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan discovered a live wire in a tree on Williams street, near the corner of Main street tonight. The office of the Connecticut Power company was communicated with and a repair gang quickly removed the source of danger.

Mrs. Eliza Burrows, who has been under treatment at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital some time, recently displayed symptoms of insanity and this afternoon she was committed to the Norwich State hospital, being accompanied to the institution by Captain Charles A. Pinney and Policewoman Jane Cassidy.

John Sideritz, 288 Ocean avenue, complained to the police late this afternoon that while his automobile was parked on Masonic street earlier in the day, a robe was stolen from the car.

Six coast guardsmen in a motor craft had an unpleasant experience Monday afternoon which might have ended seriously had not other craft been handy for a rescue. They were taking the Nancy II down the Thames river on an engine test when fire broke out. Chemicals were used but without effect on the flames and the men took the sharpie which was being towed astern. A lifeboat was sent out by the destroyer Cassin and picked up the men while the coast patrol C. G. 234 took the Nancy II out into the sound to be sunk.

The men were Ensign J. H. Bird, in command; Ensign Lanphere, Seaman Herman Becker, Chief Machinist Mate Cress, Machinist Mate Chaney and Water Tender Kelly.

BRIDEGROOM, TO GET LEGACY, HAS A HURRY-UP MARRIAGE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 2.—It became known this afternoon that Franklin A. Haynes, 24, who claims New London as his residence, but of whom little is known by New Londoners, took unto himself a bride in order to obtain an alleged inheritance of $7000 and a large acreage of land in the west. Haynes declared that in order to obtain the money and the land, it was compulsory by a provision of the will that Haynes must marry on or before Feb. 25th. His bride is Miss Mildred Wright, Starr street, 27, and they were married Feb. 21.

Haynes appeared at a state street restaurant about two weeks ago and claimed to the employes there that he must obtain a wife prior to Feb. 25, or else he would lose the money and property. He did not know where he was to obtain a mate, so an employe of the restaurant started to act as matchmaker and proved most efficient; for Haynes, who claimed to be a chef was introduced to Miss Wright and the courtship of the couple was begun, with the marriage taking place a day or two after they were introduced.

He was graduated from Harvard university in 1884 and later became assistant superintendent of the Boston and Albany railroad, stationed at Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Bliss married Miss Isadora Leech, of Erie, Pa., and they had three children, Mrs. Malcolm Thomas, of St. Louis, Mrs. Amory Carhart, of New York and Addison Leech Bliss, who was killed while serving in the ambulance corps in France.

An English churchman recently promised to give his week's winnings on horse racing to the church's lighting fund, but announced later that he could not carry out his plan because he had lost on every race.

Are Not for the Wicked

They are the same beams that shine and enlighten which are apt to scorch, too; and it is impossible for a man engaged in any wicked way, to have a clear understanding of it, and a quiet mind in it altogether.—South.

Makes for Disappointment

If we hope for things of which we have not thoroughly considered the value, our disappointment will be greater than our pleasure in the fruition of them.

Method Unchanged

Ancient Egyptian noblemen speared fish in much the same manner as do Americans today. The spear handle was tied to the wrist and the weapon was thrown at the fish.

10-Day Tube FREE

Mother! Be sure you get Pepsodent for your child's teeth

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from tooth troubles in later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as modern science's latest attainment in tooth care.

* * *

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign — an invitation for tooth troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it. Ordinary dentifrices don't fight it successfully. Harsh, gritty substances are injurious to enamel.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old type methods failed to combat it. Men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, then gently removes it. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today. Mail the coupon.

MARKET WAS BUOYANT.

New York, March 2—Stock prices bounded upward to record high levels today in what was widely described as a celebration of the forthcoming change in national administration. Buying orders were widely distributed by professional traders and pools with the result that many issues were carried up one to seven points. Trading was in larger volume, the day's sales running close to 1,700,000 shares.

Buoyancy of several high priced rails was a notable feature. Atchison broke through the previous record of 135 3-8 established in 1909 and recorded a new peak at 127 7-8. Atlantic Coast Line soared over seven points to 163 1-2, the highest price since before the 1907 panic, while Louisville and Nashville showed an extrem e gain of six points at 117 1-4, the maximum figure since the declaration of the stock dividend of 62 1-2 per cent. in 1923. Frisco common moved up more than two points to a record high at 73 1-4.

Heavy accumulation of the oil shares was based on expectations of an early increase in Mid-Continent crude prices and merger reports. The Pan-American issues were the outstanding features, each climbing about 3 points to their highest prices in over a year. Revival of activity in the motor group resulted in the establishment of new highs by Maxwell Motors B., Jordan, Hudson and Gardner.

Some sensational gains were recorded by high priced specialties, United States Cast Iron Pipe, American Can, General Electric and Texas Gulf Sulphur selling four to eight points above Saturday's final quotations, and closing near the top. Among the low priced issues considerable mystery developed in the sensational seven point advance in Ludlum Steel, which company is noted chiefly for its stainless steel process.

Strength of the equipment shares reflected the recent increase in railroad orders, American Locomotive standing out with an extreme gain of over four points at 141, a new peak. Baldwin touched 144 and then eased to 142 7-8, up 1 7-8 on the day. One of the interesting features in connection with the recent strength of the chain store and merchandising issues is the fact that the average yield of the 4 per cent or about 1 per cent below the yield of the average industrial bond, probably due to the prospect of constantly increasing equities.

West Penn Power broke nearly nine points to 105 in the late trading and then rallied about 3 points. Further weakness also developed in the Commercial Solvents issues, which closed about 3 points lower.

Call money was steady at 4 1-2 per cent. Time money rates held firm, but a slight stiffening was noted in prime commercial paper rates which were quoted at 3 3-4 to 4 per cent instead of on a flat 3 3-4 per cent basis.

A sharp break of over six points in French francs which carried them below 5.06 cents to a new low record for the year, was the feature of the reactionary foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled about a half cent lower around $4.76. Dutch guilders broke 3 points to 39.90 cents and losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded by most of the other European currencies.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 2.—Vigorous rallies in convertible liens, which were influenced by the buoyancy of the stock market, featured today's bond trading. The market generally displayed a steady tone, although some of the early strength was lost on a late wave of profit taking which gave closing prices at irregular appearance.

A spectacular advance of more than 8 points in Standard Gas convertible 6 1-2s eclipsed a rise in the stock and carried these bonds above 123 to a new high record. Other convertible issues which broke into new high ground included Pan-American 6s, which kept pace with a 3 point rise in the company's shares. Trading in the oil liens was stimulated by merger reports and prospective crude oil price advances.

Despite the revival of interest in railroad stocks, price movements of rail bonds lacked uniformity. Gains of a point or so by Colorado and Southern 4s, Florida, Western and Northern 7s and New York Central 6s were counteracted by the heaviness of Baltimore and Ohio 4 1-2s, Seaboard 6s and St. Paul 4s of 1925, the latter at one time dipping 2 1-2 points.

Considerable interest was shown in investment circles in the treasury's plans for new government financing. In the absence of any definite announcement, bankers were inclined to believe that the March 15 operation would take the form of a short term issue of between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 2.—Pronounced strength was shown by practically all groups of stocks in today's curb market. The oils regained the leadership of the advance on reports of an impending increase in crude prices, South Penna. jumping five points to 185 and net gains of 1 to 2 points being recorded by Continental, Gulf, Magnolia, Mountain Producers, Ohio, Penn-Mex Fuel, Salt Creek Producers and Standard Oil of Indiana. Revival of activity in Woodley followed the announcement that the stock had been listed in the Boston stock exchange.

Further accumulation took place in the so-called electrical refrigeration stocks, Kelvinator opening 1 3-4 higher at 31, vadancing to a record top at 31 1-2 and then easing to 30 1-8 for a net gain of 7-8 on the day. Car Lighting and Power touched another new top at 4 1-4. Reo Motors responded to the declaration of a stock dividend by jumping nearly 4 points to 23 and then slipping back to 21 1-4 at the close. The Radio issues, which have been heavy for the last few weeks, displayed an improved tone.

Public Utilities were in better demand. Net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points being recorded by American Power and Light, Commonwealth and Middle West Utilities.

MONEY.

New York, March 2.—Call money firm; high 4 1-2; low 4 1-2; ruling rate 4 1-2; closing bid 4 1-2; offered at 4 3-4; last loan 4 1-2; call loans against acceptances 3 1-2; time loans firm; mixed collateral, 60-90 days 3 3-4@4; 4-6 months 4@4 1-4; prime commercial paper 3 3-4@4.

COTTON.

New York March 2.—Cotton spot steady; middling 26.05.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 2.—Wheat prices underwent a sharp break today after the May delivery had reached as high as $2.02 a bushel, the first time pirces have touched $2.00 or above since the recent tumble to 177 1-2. Today's decline was associated with dearth of new export business and with the fact that a decrease of the United States visible supply total proved to be less than had been looked for. Wheat closed nervous at 3 1-4c net lower to 1-8c gain, May 1.96 5-8 to 1.97 and July 1.70 1-4 to 1.70 1-4@3-8. Corn finished at 3-8c to 7-8c off, oats 1 1-8c to 1 3-8c down and provisions showing 10 to 50c advance.

Big profit-taking sales accelerated the break in wheat values, but only after the arket had given an impressive display of strength due largely to unofficial estimates that domestic farm stocks of wheat, 112,000,000 bushels, are the smallest in 20 years, with one exception. Other unofficial figures indicated only 52,000,000 bushels of wheat for export for this country and for carry over at the end of the next four months after allowing for domestic milling and seed requirements.

July delivery of wheat established a new high price record for the season and went to smaller discount under May.

It was also apparent that general speculative interest in the July delivery was steadily growing larger. On the other hand, the relative weakness of May at the last today was accentuated by evidence that foreign markets were hesitating to follow advances in the face of heavy world shipments and a material increase of the amount of wheat afloat.

Corn advanced to within 1-4c of the highest price July delivery has reached this season, helped by unofficial estimates that farm stocks of corn are the smallest on record, barring two exceptions. Shipping demand, however, was light and profit-taking sales were heavy. Oats prices lagged owing to big stocks on hand.

Higher quotations on hogs strengthened the provision market.

METAL MARKET.

New York, March 2.—Copper easing. Electrolytic, spot and nearby 14 1-2@14 5-8; futures 14 5-8 bid. Tin weak, spot and nearby 54.62; futures 54.87. Iron steady. No. 1, Northern 26.50@26.00; No. 2, Northern, 25.50@24.00; No. 2, Southern, 21.50@22.00. Zinc easy, East St. Louis spot and futures 7.25@7.27. Lead steady, spot 9.00@9.25. Antimony, spot 13.28.

LEEDS COIT RECEIVES NORWICH TOURIST VISITORS

Word has been received in this city from Leeds W. Coit, formerly of Norwich, now secretary and treasurer of the Business Man's Insurance company of Greensboro, N. C., telling of a recent visit of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gallup and daughter, Miss Susie Gallup, at his home last week. They were motoring through South Carolina and stopped to visit with Mr. Coit and his brother, Ralph Coit, leaving Greensboro on February 26th for Miami, Fla.

Mr. Coit also voices his appreciation at receiving from The Bulletin company, the series of historical calendars, 1900 to 1925 inclusive, which he feels is a most interesting collection.

BODY IS IDENTIFIED AS TORRINGTON MAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Colchester, March 3—The body of the man found Sunday floating in Babcock's pond near this village was identified today as that of Joseph Juif of Red Mountain avenue, Torrington. His widow and two sons came here today, made the identification and arranged to have the body taken to Torrington for burial.

Juif had been missing from home since Thanksgiving morning. He had formerly lived in Colchester.

The Cloud Digger Scores Again

In the semi-annual Cloud Digger prediction printed in The Bulletin last spring and fall, he used these words: "the earthquake conditions will continue for many months. The earth must demand pay for its contents, coal, oil and gas, that have been and are continually being taken out, by man; the only difference being that the disturbance to follow this fall (1924) will be on the Atlantic coast instead of the Pacific. All the eastern part of this hemisphere will feel the earthquakes at different times."

GARDNER LAKE COTTAGE LOOTER CAUGHT; GOES HOME FOR FOOD

After a three days' search of the vicinity of Gardner Lake for the thief, who has perpetrated robberies at 25 cottages surrounding the lake recently, John Jacobick, 33, Bozrah, believed to be insane, was apprehended late Monday afternoon when Jacobick, apparently suffering from hunger, went to his home. Hardly had Jacobick reached the house than the place was surrounded by state police officers from Groton barracks and Jacobick taken into custody. He was taken to the police station at New London and locked up and will be given a hearing probably this (Tuesday) afternoon or night.

The capture of Jacobick was made by Sergeant Clifford Gorgas, Officers Bernard Kenerson, Fred Caron and Henry Albright. Jacobick made no resistance although he was carrying a loaded .38 revolver.

Recently it became known that the cottages at the lake had been looted, but from the nature of the work of the vandal it was apparent that the thief was not pilfering for gain, for valuable articles were left unmolested, while other articles often of a trivial nature were taken, this fact revealing that the culprit was apparently not of sound mentality. Following the finding of a considerable quantity of the loot taken from the cottages, stored in a cottage of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., the state police, who were investigating the break became suspicious that Jacobick, at one time under treatment at the State Hospital for the Insane at Preston was guilty of the breaks. Saturday afternoon it was decided to apprehend Jacobick, but the man sought was not at his home. Going to the shore of the lake the officers finally espied Jacobick in the woodland, but he refused to give himself up when commanded to do so, but instead fired a shot at the officers. The shot missed its mark and Jacobick disappeared in the woods. A continued search for Jacobick was continued throughout Sunday and Monday, but not even the downpour and terrific gale of Sunday night caused Jacobick to come from his place of hiding. After a long vigil today and about dusk, Jacobick was observed in the distance heading for his home. He had been there but a few minutes when the officers surrounded the house and his capture followed.

Twice during the hunt of the past three days, the hunted man has been near the point of capture. Saturday afternoon when County Detective William Lewis, State Policeman Caron and A. Chester Brown were searching for him together they surprised him lying down in a shed. They were within a few feet of him as he plunged into the bushes and disappeared from view.

C. V. Pendleton, who was armed with a revolver also got close to the fugitive at another time but did not shoot for fear of wounding him dangerously, and the man headed for the woods, running like a deer, and got away.

It is understood Jacobick claims that there was another man with him in the looting and he has promised to show the state police where he can be found.

After he was in the custody of the officers, he told State Policeman Caron that he could easily have shot the officer from a place where he was hiding in the bushes as the officer passed by not three feet away.

INAUGRAL CEREMONY IS TO BE SIMPLE FUNCTION

By the Direction of President Coolidge the Customary Glittering Pageant Will be Dispensed With Today—After Delivering His Inaugural Address and Reviewing the Parade, President Coolidge Will go Back to His Deck—With a Small Inauguration Crowd, the National Capital Shows Few Signs of the Impending Event.

Washington, March 3—(By the Associated Press) — President Coolidge will renew his covenant of service tomorrow in an inaugural ceremony reflecting at once the simple ideals and the sober might of a great republic.

By his own direction, there will be no extravagance of rejoicing and no glittering pageant to honor him. But when he pledges his faith as chief executive for another four years, he will have about him many quiet manifestations of the dignity and solemnity of the task that lies before him.

Shortly after noon, in the presence of several thousands of his fellow citizens, he will take the oath of office at the east entrance to the capitol on the table from which he was instructed at his grandmother's knee, will declare his convictions in a brief inaugural address, and then will review an inaugural parade shorn of its trimmings to a square with his policy of frugality. After that, he will go back to his desk and to work.

Meanwhile, another man of simple tastes, Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois, will have been inducted into office by the same overwhelming mandate of the people which returned Calvin Coolidge to the White House, and for the first time in nineteen months, the country will have a vice-president. His inauguration will precede that of the president, and will be conducted with quiet ceremony in the senate chamber.

One of the smallest inauguration crowds in a generation has come to Washington for tomorrow's ceremonies and except for the unwonted bustle about the house and senate chambers in preparation for the ending of the session, today saw few signs of the impending event in the capital.

Only here and there have reviewing stands been erected along Pennsylvania avenue, and the elaborate court of honor usually reared about the White House for past inaugurations has been omitted this year entirely. Instead, a small stand has been erected here for the president, and another to accommodate some 4,000 spectators. On the capitol plaza, facing a spot where the president will take the oath of office, there is a stand to seat 12,000 more, but most of the residents of the residents of Washington and those who have come from other cities will have to find standing room on the sidewalks and parkways to see the passing of the inaugural show.

Altogether, perhaps less than 10,000 persons will be in the parade when it flashes its pilgrimage along the historic pathway from the capitol past the White House, but they will include the ranking officials of states of the union in New England, the south, and the west, who have come to Washington to attest once more the united purpose of the nation, and fighting men of the army, navy and marines assembled for a profound demonstration of the nation's faith in its institutions and respect for the chief.

There will be another feature of the ceremonies which will evidence American progress. For the first time the voice of the president when he intones the words of the constitutional oath and delivers the inaugural address will be carried out by radio to millions of people far distant corners of the country. The stands on the capitol plaza, with which a nation-wide radio will be connected has been covered over, and officials said tonight that the broadcasting program could not be interrupted by mischievous weather.

Indications tonight, however, pointed to conclusion of the ceremonies before the arrival of an afternoon rainstorm forecast by the weather bureau. The government forecasters have predicted that overcast skies and rising temperatures would succeed tomorrow morning's bright sunlight and sharp air of today, putting no barrier in the way of the outdoor exercises until late afternoon.

However heavily the last-minute preparations for the inauguration may have rested on the shoulders of others, President Coolidge appeared to look forward to tomorrow as if it were almost any other day in the 15 months since he took up the duties of the presidency.

Except for a few interruptions he worked steadily in his office from early morning until late afternoon. He had the regular Tuesday meeting of his cabinet, the regular Tuesday conference with the newspaper correspondents, and the regular afternoon walk.

By previous appointment he went to the Mall to present prize to the winner of a marathon race, and received a number of the visiting state dignitaries. Late in the day he greeted his father, who had come from Vermont for the ceremony and tonight he attempted in to witness a part of a theatrical performance given under local auspices.

An hour during the morning, however, was set aside by the president to talk with General Dawes, who also made a round of other calls on old friends at the executive end of Pennsylvania avenue. But the general gave a wide berth to the senate, where he is to preside after tomorrow, and there he met a couple of senators in the White House waiting room, who scattered them on the staid atmosphere of things senatorial and of the job he is about to tackle.

In a cloud of smoke which swirled up from his famous undersling pipe, from a volcano, the vice president later withstood a moving picture barrage while he kept up a good natured running fire of his own about the inconveniences of notoriety. The case was a brand new edition of the celebrated model he always smokes, and still later he produced it after supper in the midst of the dining room of the New Willard hotel and had a delightful smoke, while head waiters and assistant managers were looking on in helpless astonishment.

During the day both the president and General Dawes received calls of respect from several of the state executives who had come to Washington to take their places in tomorrow's inaugural parade. Nearly all of them had reached the capital tonight.

In all cases, respects, the inaugural program tomorrow will follow the customs of prevous years.

The ceremonies at the capitol over Mr. Coolidge will return to the White House for a buffet luncheon before taking his place in the reviewing stand facing Lafayette park. The official party will pass along Pennsylvania avenue somewhat in advance of the head of the parade, which will halt when it reaches the White House grounds until Mr. Coolidge has dismissed his luncheon guests and signified that he is ready for the marchers to proceed.

Special courtesies will be shown during the ceremonies to a group of relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, who are guests at the White House, but Mrs. Coolidge alone of the household will accompany the president during his ride down Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol and back to the executive mansion. The others will go to the capitol by a separate route, but will be met by members of the inaugural committee and escorted to reserved places for the exercises in the senate chamber and later on the capitol plaza.

MESSAGE FROM GERMANY TO PRESIDENT COOLIDGE.

Berlin, March 3—Dr. Hans Luther, acting president of the German republic, today sent the following despatch to President Coolidge at Washington:
"Mr. President: In the name of the government of the Reich and of the German people, I beg leave to extend sincerest congratulations on the occasion of your inauguration and to add my best wishes for the welfare of the American people."

COOLIDGE FROM VERMONT FARM TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, March 3 (By the A. P.)—Despite his desire for simplicity, President Coolidge will take the oath of office tomorrow in surroundings that contrast strikingly with the lamplighted Vermont farmhouse where he took the nation's helm in the early morning hours of Aug. 3, 1923.

All of the solemn dignity which the American citizen demands shall accompany the installation of a chief executive will attend tomorrow's ceremony, and the climax, when the black robed chief justice of the United States, in impressive fashion, will swear the president to uphold the Constitution, will be far removed from the tragic midnight atmosphere of the Plymouth inauguration nearly two years ago.

To look upon this scene John Coolidge, father of the president, came to Washington. Although the ceremonies will be much more restrained and simple than in some former years, they will be filled with pomp and splendor in comparison with the night when the duty fell to Colonel Coolidge of swearing in his own son as chief executive of the nation.

On that occasion, acting in his capacity as village notary public of Plymouth, John Coolidge called his son Calvin into the small farm room, where an oil lamp was flickering, stood across a table and pledged him to fidelity to his country and its institutions.

"I do solemnly swear," Calvin Coolidge said then, "that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

Then, on his own initiative, he added:

"So help me God."

The same oath will be administered tomorrow in the presence of cheering crowds, but it will be no more binding or effective than the simpler one made necessary by the turn of the fates.

Banker Parker Ends Life With Ice Pick

Yale Graduate Committed Suicide at the University Club in New York.

New York, March 3—Morris K. Parker, a vice-president of the Equitable Trust company and a Yale graduate, committed suicide today at the University club in Fifth avenue. He stabbed himself through the heart with an ice pick, police reports said. His home was at 156 East Seventy-ninth street. He was 43 years old. Parker graduated from Yale with the class of 1904.

Parker has been associated with the Equitable Trust company, and he returned only a week ago from a two months tour of Europe on business of that organization. He was a member of several of the most prominent clubs of this city.

Parker left two notes, one of them to Robert C. Adams, an associate in the Equitable Trust. The contents of neither of them was made known. The banker was said to have registered at the club yesterday and to have retired at 3 o'clock this morning. He was a son of the late Willard Parker, founder of the Willard Parker Memorial hospital and was socially prominent.

It was learned that the banker had been reported as missing to the police by members of his family when Parker failed to report at his office after leaving home with the announcement that he was going to the bank, where he was head of the bond division. The next heard of him by the family was the report by the club attendant of the banker's death.

Arthur W. Loasby, president of the Equitable Trust company, issued a statement saying there was nothing in Mr. Parker's relation with the bank to justify his act, which he attributed to ill health.

Mrs. Parker, who was Charlotte Thompson of Michigan, was reported under the care of a physician as a result of the tragedy. Other members of the family said they could ascribe no reason for the banker's suicide. Declaring that his family life was a happy one and that he had no financial troubles. Besides his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Alice, 10, who is at school in Camden, N. J.

ACTION ON MILITARY CONTROL IN GERMANY

Paris, March 3.—(By The A. P.)—The ambassadors' council today, after hearing briefly outlined the allied war committee's summary of the report of the military control mission to Germany, requested Marshal Foch and his colleagues to make suggestions as to how, in their judgment, the Germans may be forced to comply with the disarmament clauses of the Treaty of Versailles.

The promptness with which the ambassadors arrived at this part of the conclusion from the military experts' report has confirmed the impression in diplomatic circles that the control mission has furnished evedence on which the allies are bound to act energetically.

It was said today in diplomatic circles that France and Great Britain were in full accord as to the importance of the military control mission's revelations and as to the necessity of vigorous action. The only difference between the French and British viewpoints now is that the former wants to link up the whole question of security in France and Belgium with the issue of whether and when the Cologne Zone should be evacuated, while the latter hold that the evacuation should depend only on the compliance of Germany with the treaty details as brought out by the report.

PROTEST FROM THE NEW YORK COTTON EXCHANGE

New York, March 3.—The New York cotton exchange, through its president, Edward E. Bartlett, Jr., today sent telegrams urging senators from New York to oppose the demand of Senator Smith of South Carolina, in congress, that the department of agriculture immediately begin reclassification of raw cotton stocks in New York warehouses.

Heads of the department at Washington admitted that there had been anonymous complaints that some of the cotton in New York warehouses was below standard. If charges were made concerning specific bales, it was said, the department would attempt to reclassify them.

"We call your attention to the fact that this (reclassification) matter lies within the jurisdiction of the department of agriculture, which is undoubtedly competent to handle the matter without the grave disturbance which would probably be produced if undertaken as suggestive by Senator Smith," said the cotton exchange chief's telegram to Senators Copeland and Wadsworth.

"We earnestly beg that you will oppose the passage of any such resolution."

REGULARITIES IN NATIONAL DISABLED SOLDIERS' HOME.

Washington, March 3—The special committee which investigated the national disabled soldiers' league reported to the house today it was of the opinion that part of the funds raised by the organization had been diverted to improper uses and personal gain.

It was recommended that the department of justice be asked to present facts developed by the investigation to a federal grand jury.

"The committee agrees," the report said, "that the league has not kept faith with the public in fulfilling the statements which it made in circulating its appeals for funds."

The report said that uncontradicted testimony before the committee was to the effect that the proportion of cash contributed in the various pencil campaigns of the organization ranged from twenty five to thirty per cent of the full amount received, but the bank deposits of the league disclosed less than ten per cent. cash deposited.

"The committee is of the opinion," the report continued, "that the small amount of cash represented as received from these campaigns would indicate that either the officers or the employes of the league misappropriated apart of these funds and failed to account for them."

So far as the committee could learn, the report said, "the entire management and control of the league is in the hands of Commander John J. Jolan;; the treasurer, James F. McCann, and the adjutant, Kenneth D. Murpry.

"The committee was unable to ascertain," the report continued "the bona fide membership of the organization and it is questionable whether there re any members except the three above named officials, and a small coterie depending upon them.

Evidence was produced indicating, with the possible exception of a post in Birmingham, Ala., that there are no active posts in existence.

"The report said it had never proved to the satisfaction of the committee," that the national adjutant, Kenneth D. Murphy was in the "armed forces of the United States during any war."

"Mr. James F. McCann, the treasurer," it added, "failed to appear before the committee in spite of repeated assurances by the attorney for the league, Mr. Siegal, that he would do so. His personal bank account shows numerous deposits and in January, 1923, the deposit exceeded a thousand dollars.

"Evidence given before the committee was to the effect that every so called national convention held by the league since its inception has been marked by disorders and unpaid bills."

SENATE KILLS $150,000,000 FOR FEDERAL BUILDINGS

Upper House of Congress Declines to Accept Action of the House in Attaching Rider to the Second Deficiency Bill—Measure Was Returned to Conference With Instructions to All Managers to Insist Against the Inclusion of the Rider—Sixty-Eighth Congress Will Expire at Noon Today With One of the Tamest Windups in Recent History.

Washington, March 3.—The sixty-eighth congress, which came in two years ago like a roaring wind, is passing out with one of the tamest windups in recent history.

Neither house was in session tonight—something almost unheard of on the eve of adjournment sine die—and except for final action on the second deficiency bill, there is little for either to do in the two hours they will be in session before the inauguration proceedings get underway at noon, tomorrow.

While the house faced the end today with an utter lack of fluster, there was much confusion and acrimonous debate in the senate chamber and the day's session closed at 6.45 p. m., after a disagreement over an omnibus pension measure which blocked consideration of any other matters.

During the day all farm legislation went definitely into the discard to join the Underwood Muscle Shoals leasing bill, the McFadden branch banking bill, a score or more of railroad measures of various kinds and a great draft of miscellaneous proposals running from bridge bills to a $150,000,000 public buildings measure.

There was an eleventh hour effort in the senate to put through a farm bill—the modified McNary-Haugen export corporation proposal—but after four hours of debate which furnished amusing and dramatic incidents for the crowds in galleries and on the floor, the senate rejected the measure, 69 to 17.

The house by an overwhelming vote attached the public buildings bill as a rider to the deficiency measure, only to be forced later to cast it aside when the senate sent the appropriation bill back to conference with instructions to its managers to insist against the inclusion of the rider.

Before the house took the next to the last step on the deficiency bill, it was announced that the senate would recede tomorrow at its session beginning at 10 a. m. from its original rider proposing an appropriation of $8,000,000 for public buildings heretofore authorized in 40 states. Such action would make the measure ready for the president's signature when he goes to the capitol before noon to sign last minute enactments of the congress.

Before recessing at 7.15 o'clock this evening until 10 a. m., tomorrow, the house approved, 201 to 28, a resolution expressing "an earnest desire" that the United States adhere to the world court protocol. Senate action on this was unnecessary and could not have been obtained in any event as that body has refused even to consider the world court question.

Other actions by the two houses included the passage by the senate with amendments of a naval omnibus bill and of the approval of both bodies of a veteran's bureau liberalizing bill in such restricted form as to apply more severe penalty provisions of existing laws. The house accepted the senate amendments with a protest.

With the house simply jockeying along at the close of the day waiting for bills to be engrossed for signature, the closing hours were devoted to speechmaking.

The Philippine and the Porto Rican questions came in for discussion by the delegates from those territories and at the finish Representative Longworth, of Ohio, the republican leader, obtained permission to extend in the record some remarks summing up the work of this congress.

SENATE REJECTED GRAIN EXPORT CORPORATION BILL.

Washington, March 3.—The modified McNary-Haugen bill to create a grain export corporation was rejected today by the senate.

By a vote of 69 to 17 the bill was turndd down as an amendment to the naval omnibus bill offered by Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska.

The measure is the first major bill voted on by the senate at this session. It was not in line with the recommendations of President Coolidge's agricultural conference. A bill to carry out these recommendations, offered by Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas, and approved by the agricultural committee remains on the calendar with leaders holding out practically no hope for action.

Those who voted for the McNary-Haugen rider were:

Republicans — Brrokhart, Capper, Frazier, Gooding, Howell, Johnson, of California; Ladd, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Sterling and Willis. Total 12.

Democrats—Ashurst, Copeland and Wheeler. Total 3.

Farmer Labor—Shipstead and Johnson of Minnesota. Total 2.

Grand total 17.

FOUND LIQUOR ABOARD THE U. S. S. BEAUFORT.

Norfolk, Va., March 3—Naval authorities virtually concluded today the presentation of evidence before the board of inquiry investigating the seizure of liquor last week aboard the U. S. S. Beaufort after the vessel had docked from a cruise of the West Indies.

Commander W. S. Whitted, port director of the base, told of searching the naval vessel on instructions from Captain Wilbert Smith, Assistant Commandant, and of the finding of whiskey and rum in a trunk and in several boxes below the main deck in the general storeroom. At the foot of a ladder leading down to the storeroom several bottles of liquor were found secreted behind a box, he said.

The commander testified that of the trunk containing the liquor was a tag which was written, "General supply officer, U. S. S. Beaufort." The supply officer wished to remove the tag, said, but was forbidden by Captain Smith.

Inquiries at the hotel failed to disclose the nature of General Pershing's illness although it was stated that he was suffering from the effects of his long trip and that his physician had advised rest.

His indisposition was declared not to be serious and the belief was expressed that he would be about again shortly.

GEN. MITCHELL WILL NOT BE REAPPOINTED

Washington, March 3. — Brigadier General William Mitchell, about whom the air power controversy has revolved for some time, will not be continued as assistant chief of the army air service when his present appointment expires March 26.

It was learned authoritatively today that the next assistant army air chief will be selected from a brief list of names now before Secretary Weeks and that this list does not include Gen. Mitchell, who has been an ardent advocate of unification of the government air service despite administration opposition.

It was made known that the nomination for the place would be sent by President Coolidge to the special session of the senate, which is called for noon tomorrow, and that it would conform to any recommendation Secretary Weeks might make. Failure of General Mitchell to receive the appointment, which carries the rank of brigadier general, will return him automatically to the rank of colonel.

JAIL BREAKERS CAPTURED BY THE STATE POLICE

Torrington, March 3.—Three men who escaped from the Litchfield jail Saturday and who are alleged to have been the burglars who looted the West Goshen post office and general store Sunday night, were arrested last night by State Policeman Dominic Tremp at the Goshen summer home of Mrs. Mary Wadhams, mother of John M. Wadhams, chairman of the state board of finance. The three fugitives were barricated in a bedroom, hiding under a quilt on the bed, armed with two loaded shotguns, when the officer smashed through a window and "covered them" with his pistol. They surrendered without resistance. Much of the loot from the post office was found in the room. The three men are Alfred Beebe, aged 21, of Great Barrington, Mass.; Courtney T. Taylor, 19, of Providence, R. I.; and Thomas Bowes, 19, of Troy, N. Y. This was the second time that Beebe had escaped from jail within a month.

Overcoats which were headed for the moth ball bag early in the past month were reprieved with considerable alacrity as February was about to bid goodby, and have been in great demand the past few days. Those who were fired with the desire to locate a wise ground-hog and give it a handshake are now fired with the ambition to locate the little fellow and fog on sight.

The opinion now prevails that Willimantic, having practically pulled its right foot from the grave should take prompt action to lift the left foot from the banana peel. This spirit to a large extent is due to the efforts which have given the local hotel movement its great momentum. The idea of additional industries, parks, improved approaches and the like has inspired many remarks but it has been pointed out that remarks will not achieve accomplishments any more than they would secure and maintain a much needed paid secretary for the chamber of commerce.

Richmond insisted that he was not to blame, but under the circumstances agreed to make a settlement for all damages. The matter was reported to Capt. of Police Thomas F. Grady.

NEW HOTEL FUND $214,700 AS SHOWN BY TUESDAY'S TALLY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 3—Today (Wednesday) will be a free-for-all day for the local new hotel campaigners who were granted one more day, in addition to the seven past joyous ones to get out and bring in the late comers and swell the stock subscription total which reached the mark of $214,700 Tuesday noon. Tuesday's meeting was high-pitched, with the shirt-tail challenge between group managers Albert J. Piche and Raymond A. Parker as the feature event, As challenger, Manager Piche reported first. His group brought in $1,200. This was being applauded when Manager Parker answered with a total of $5,400 and then the assemblage broke into an uproar which lasted several minutes as the two managers took their stand on the platform. Manager Piche ceremoniously exposed his shirt tail to which had been attached a pretty pink rosette. With a pair of huge scissors Manager Parker did the shearing act, cutting dangerously near to the collar band with his inexperienced hand. In dramatic procession the Piche outfit then returned the goat to its favorite home on the Parker table. The flag remained on Roland B. Jordan's division tables. Salesmen whose names appear on the honor roll are: Frank N. Lincoln, Luke P. Allain, John P. Roy, Harry S. Gaucher, R. I. Longsley, H. J. Mason, L. H. Arnold, Walter Abbe, Harold C. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broad Theater

There is nothing in the world a horse fears as much as fire. Because of this fact, Margaret Livingston featured player of The Chorus Lady, now showing at Broad theatre, almost lost her life.

There is a sequence of scenes in the picture in which Miss Livingston as Pat O'Brien, saves Lady Belle, a valuable racehorse, from a burning stable. When Miss Livingston tried to lead it out of harm's way, the horse started fighting. The way behind was clear. The fire burned only between the horse and Miss Livingston and the camera. But fire leaves a horse trembling and glued to one spot, unless someone tries to lead it without blindfolding it. Then it fights. When Miss Livingston tried to lead it, the horse grew furious.

Alan Roscoe, who plays the role of the Irish sweetheart in this picture, saw what was happening. He grabbed a gunny sack nearby and rushed into the scene. As soon as the sack was thrown over the horse's head it quited down . . . and the charming star of The Chorus Lady was saved from what might have been a serious accident.

Bennie Leonard in Flying Fists, the Fox news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Strand Theater

Perhaps the theatergoers of Norwich don't recall the time when Pauline Frederick as a child used to go around Broadway, just above the City hall. This is however a fact and today she is one of the outstanding screen stars. At the Strand for the last times today Miss Frederick is co-starring in a picture which enables her to display her ability to a greater advantage than any previous effort. Let Not Man Put Asunder these two stars give a screen performance truly worth while and it might be well to mention that Let Not Man Put Asunder was among the ten best pictures of the year and for anyone who enjoys a much different picture this is sure to please. On the same program William Desmond in The Measure of a Man will also be given and the latter feature is chock full of thrills, the kind that has made Desmond one of the favorite of Western stars. For Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the added attraction at the above theater will be the well known Hoyt's musical comedy company of twenty funmakers who come to Norwich with new scenery, new music, and a brand of clean and wholesome humor which make up an entertainment for the entire family. Bobby Ferguson, and Billy Russel, are the principal funmakers, surrounded by a bevy of chorus girls good to look at and blessed with nimble feet who for ninety minutes offer a very fast musical melange. The feature picture offering in conjunction with the musical comedy, will be Hoot Gibson in his latest film sensation The Saddle Hawk and will be seen for the first time in the state at the Strand. Prices for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be, all seats for the matinee, 25 cents and in the evenings 40 cents for the orchestra and 25 cents for the balcony. The Strand management endorses this musical show as one of the best it has been the privilege of Norwich amusement lovers to see this season.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of living a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

It is better to be safe with one soap than worried with five

Trouble can't even begin if you do this

YOU naturally take pride in the fact that you do your own housework—and deservedly. But doesn't your pride suffer sometimes when you look at your hands and realize how they have been sacrificed?

Such sacrifice is needless. You can do your work just as efficiently, far more pleasantly, and still preserve the soft whiteness of your hands—and the colors and fabrics of your garments, too.

But you must start at the source of your difficulties—with the soap you use for your work. If you will change to Ivory at once, and use warm water instead of hot, your troubles will be at an end, and everything you wash will be safe.

Not "magic," but purity

There is no magic about this. The simple explanation lies in Ivory's purity and its remarkable sudsing ability in lukewarm water.

The elements found in the harsher soaps which injure skin and fabrics are not found in Ivory. Where common soaps rely largely upon these elements for their cleansing ability, Ivory relies upon its pure, rich suds.

You have probably used Ivory for your face; and, either in cake or flake form, for the cleansing and protection of your very most precious garments. Now we suggest your use of it for all your soap-and-water tasks—laundry and dish-washing in particular, as a preventive of "laundry and dishpan hands."

Don't be concerned about the small extra cost—that will be quickly made up in terms of greater comfort, longer life for your clothes, less expense for creams and lotions. Change to Ivory today, and you will quickly prove this for yourself.

IVORY FLAKES
for Shampooing

FOR a wonderful shampoo, nothing is finer than Ivory Flakes. Simply dissolve enough Flakes in the washbowl to make a rich lather. Dip the hair, rubbing the lather well into the scalp. This removes oil and dust thoroughly, without irritating the scalp, and then rinses out completely, leaving the scalp soothed and the hair light and fluffy.

FOUR FORMS OF IVORY SOAP

Bath IVORY — the medium-sized cake that floats in the bathtub

IVORY Flakes — tissue-thin flakes ready for instant rich suds

Laundry IVORY — the big cake for general household use

Guest IVORY — the dainty new cake of Ivory for face and hands—just fits the toilet soap holder. It costs 5 cents

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Three Lenten Concerts

To be an operatic veteran at the age when most opera singers are just beginning to make their reputation is the musical experience of Marie Tiffany of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who will be heard at the Palace theatre March 8th at 4 o'clock, in the first concert of a group of three Lenten concerts.

Nine years is not so long a time, but it is an era at an opera house. Stars have come and gone since Miss Tiffany first appeared before the Golden Horseshoe, conductors have made reputations and lost them, and new works have been performed with great eclat and passed into discard which greets most novelties. Miss Tiffany, however, has maintained her position as a splendid artist and every year adds to her popularity. She is the youngest "veteran" of the company. Miss Tiffany's program will be announced at a later date.

The second concert by Frank Sherrell, who is rapidly taking his place among the leading pianists of today will play a Liszt Concerto, orchestra accompaniment on the organ by Frederick Lester. Lionel Storr, bass-baritone, of New York, will also appear on this programme.

The third an added concert to this Lenten group, will be an organ recital, by a most distinguished concert organist, Dr. Erb, head of the department of music of Connecticut College Dr. Erb will be assisted by Mrs. Bursy, soprano.

This wonderful course makes a double appeal to Norwich music lovers that of excellent music, and a worthy cause, Connecticut College.

Tickets for the course $3.00; 50 cents extra for reserved seats; which will be on sale at the Palace theatre March 5, 6 and 7, after 9 a. m., at the theatre.

Broadway Theater

A philosopher once said: "Give me a place to stand upon, a fulcrum and a lever long enough and I can move the earth."

Evidently Resista who is billed at the Broadway theater this week as a special attraction has solved the philosopher's problem for with a minimum of force she is able to overcome an unreckoned amount of resistance. She is an attractive little lady resembling decidedly a doll and yet when she stands squarely on her dainty feet and sets her mind to will that she shall become heavy she becomes extremely heavy that even the strongest man cannot lift her. She simply says to herself that she shall remain on the floor and there she stays.

Some investigators of Resista have affirmed that the power that pulls Resista to the earth is electrical or magnetic but with every appliance known to science these investigators have sought for electrical and magnetic forces in vain. It has been claimed by some that the force is muscular and the feat performed by clever muscular manipulation. But even these men must admit that a person cannot exercise muscular force to keep his body from being lifted from the earth. Others argue that if muscular powers is used it would at once show on the scales, but to all appearance under the touch of Resista weight becomes annihilate and sixteen ounces cease to be one pound.

And this is only one of the extraordinary acts you'll see at the Broadway the last half of this week.

The picture is a Paramount photoplay The City That Never Sleeps and one we heartily recommend.

Palace Theatre

The vaudeville and picture bill at the Palace the first half of this week still pleases its audiences. It is a well proportioned bill and everyone should see it. Hoffman's Revue is one of the neatest dancing acts seen in Norwich for some time. Brooks and Kane the two shaiks do a very clever comedy act and Brooks playing of the banjo shows that he is no slouch at the instrument. Freeland Bros., are very daring in their perch equilibristic act Ray and Esther Valey are very pleasing with their singing and dancing Burns and Kane hold the audience every minute with their radio riot act.

With the picture the show is very entertaining all the way through. Tomorrow is an entirely new change of show with the feature picture.

James Kirkwood has the part of a banker who was willing to be killed in "Secrets of the Night," Universal-Jewel. The picture is the screen version of the famous Broadway stage success, "The Nightcap," by Max Marcin and Gray Bolton. Madge Bellamy is the other featured player in an all star cast of unusual magnitude, included in which are Zasu Pitts, Rosemary Theby and Otto Hoffman.

Strict College Rules

Amherst college as recently as 1825 had a very strict code which the student had to follow. It not only regulated the hours he must study, but likewise his visits to the taverns, shops and stores. He was not allowed to play cards, even for mere enjoyment.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

"What spring tonic are you giving your children?"

Mothers will hear something as to this at the Well Child conference to be held Friday afternoon of this week at the town hall building. In days of old, sulphur and molasses used to be the alleged cure-all given by watchful mothers to ailing children. Nowadays the careful mother takes her children each month to a Well Child conference. She watches their weight and their color; she keeps them well through the right kind of food, enough fresh air and plenty of sleep. These are necessary "spring tonics." The advice to mothers is give children plenty of them; do not dose them with medicines. Mothers will learn at the Well child conference at the town hall Friday afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock the kind of food a particular child needs. Hereafter Well Child conference are to be held in Danielson on the first Friday of each month, in the afternoon.

At Sterling, Francis Lee Chamberland, one year and four months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamberland is dead. The child was born in Sterling.

Willimantic's successful campaign for funds with which to erect a new hotel is being watched with interest in Danielson. There has been considerable talk here from time to time of Danielson's need of an uptodate hotel, a need that costs its many a transient stop-over and loss of a great deal of tourist trade during the several months of the year. Of these facts William S. Brown, owner of the Attawaugan hotel is well aware, but though he has given much study to the matter has not seen his way clear to venture into such an undertaking. It is not impossible, however, that Mr. Brown would be very much interested in such a well supported move for a new hotel as Willimantic is experiencing. Mr. Brown has demonstrated before that he has vision and the will to do things. He also happens to have an ideal location for the development of such a property as is herein discussed, but remains to be convinced that it would be a wise move on his part to venture into such a large undertaking as a lone investor.

Apparently the talked-of plan for a fast overland freight and express service between Providence and Hartford via Danielson and Willimantic is not developing very rapidly. The proposal for such a service is said to have had its origin in Providence, out of which city fast passenger bus lines radiate to various sections of New England, one of them through this town over the route mentioned. Danielson has been only mildly interested in the matter, probably because of the fact that it already enjoys the advantages of a motor freight service with Providence, to which city it also has a regular and dependable passenger bus service.

With the opening of the season further work will be done in grading the grounds fronting the School street school. This once grassy and attractive area has been under process of grading for several years, as material offered itself for disposal from various sources. Last fall considerable progress was made with the work as a large quantity of dirt became available. At present the section being graded is rough and unsightly, but it is hoped to make very much of an improvement here before another cold weather season arrives.

Numbers of motor car drivers who waited pending for operators' licenses on the first morning, March 1, are at driving out now because the licenses were not received, due to the delay in sending for them and the rush at the Hartford office is experiencing in getting scores of thousands of applications for them filed. It is possible that drivers are not so particular and going along on the chance not be caught driving with expired licenses.

At Hartford, on April 14, Miss Aura Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Rose of Goodyear, is to be admitted to the Sisterhood of St. Joseph. Miss Rose was a graduate of the class of 1924, Killingly High school.

Fenner Woodward in the town court. Without other action the case was again immediately adjourned to Friday of this week, when it is anticipated that Breault will be presented in the superior court. Breault, sought for months, was arrested at Warren, R. I., last month. He is charged with breaking and entering a store at Ballouville.

Don't forget to make your deposit in the savings department of the Windham County National Bank, Danielson, Conn., on or before March 5th, the usual monthly interest date.—adv.

Of interest to his many friends here is the fact that Charles Russell, whose home is in Danielson, will make an appearance at a Norwich theatre the latter part of this week, Mr. Russell has been on tour all winter.

When Quinebaug Pomona Grange members gathered in Odd Fellows' hall Saturday at 10.30, Louis S. Bastow of Highland Grange was in the chair in the absence of Frank K. Haines, who is absent in California. The reports of the Secretary treasurer and executive committee were read and approved. It is worthy of note that the treasurer, Vine R. Franklin has been in office thirty-seven years perhaps the longest term of any such official in the state. Entertaining brief addresses were made by assistant steward C. M. Adams of Groton and Helen B. Cook of Niantic and Rev. Chas. Downs after which adjournment was table for the appetizing dinner furnished in an adjoining room by Killingly Grange.

At 1.30 the afternoon session was open to the public and the following officers were installed: Louis S. Barstow, master; Albert E. Anthony, overseer; Mrs. Hannah W. Bates, lecturer; Mila A. PUTNAM

A cut of $90,000 in the grand list of the town of Putnam was the result of the work of the board of relief during the past month. This cut makes the net total of Putnam's taxable property $5,979,105.

Three mills and two business block owners were among those to appear before the board of relief, Joseph Plessis, F. W. Seward and F. H. Smith, and ask for reductions in the figure at which their property is assessed.

Duplications of lists by the assessors resulted in a reduction of $15,500 right off the reel.

The Nightingale-Morse Mills, Inc. filed a complaint that they were being assessed at too high a figure, and their assessment was reduced from $80,250 to $60,250. The Putnam Land and Mills company, holders of the former Manhasset property, were rated for $540,945 by the board of assessors. This figure was reduced $30,000 to $510,945 by the board of relief. The third manufacturing plant to get a reduction was the Putnam Manufacturing Co., whose list was cut $20,000 from $362,403 to $342,403.

Charles Seder and Stoumbells Brothers, both owners of down-town business blocks, asked for reductions and these were granted by the board to the extent of $5,000 each, making Mr. Seder's figures $37,520 and that of Stoumbells Brothers $30,000.

The total amount of the decreases was $94,270 but $4,260 of this was offset by additional levies placed by the board of relief. The board assessed the property of George A. Keach for $3,600, Jacob Rosenwald for $330 and Charles Miron for $330.

"Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has entirely relieved me of constipation," writes grateful father

The ravages of constipation can be promptly stopped. Here is signed evidence.

Mr. Hunt's case is typical of thousands of others who have found habit-forming pills and drugs of no avail in seeking permanent relief from constipation. Read this interesting letter:

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has entirely relieved me of constipation. Before I started using ALL BRAN I was a regular guy in taking pills—always getting something to bring relief. Now I never touch them. I fully recommend it to anyone to relieve constipation as you advertise on the package. My daughter also eats ALL BRAN and I can see her health improve.

(Signed) S. V. HUNT, Aurora, Ill.

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly—two tablespoonfuls daily, or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is a bulk food which sweeps the intestine clean, stimulates digestion and normal, healthy action.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, or try the recipes given on the package. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Served by leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

The opening gun in the advertising campaign to promote Westerly's summer resort industry is in the form of an attractive folder with pictures of Watch Hill, Pleasant View and Weekapaug, which is to be sent to Florida for distribution.

The outside of the folder shows a picture of the bathing beach at Watch Hill with the morning crowd and reads: "For your summer home come to Rhode Island's cool sea coast, Watch Hill, Weekapaug and Pleasant View, on the shore of old South county in the town of Westerly."

On the back of the folder is a little map and directions how to get to the Rhode Island shore by train or automobile, with pictures of the station and post office.

The middle of the folder is a page 17x4, showing large pictures and a number of small ones, including the lighthouse point, the bathing beach at Watch Hill and at Pleasant View, the chapel, the beach at Weekapaug, the Ocean House in addition to a general description of the attractiveness and conveniences of the Rhode Island and adjacent Connecticut shore. Names of the various hotels and the real estate agents who are handling cottages for rental and sites are touched up effectively in description and by pictures. There is an excellent view of Misquamicut Golf club.

The distribution of these folders is to be made through Westerly people at present in Florida and local real estate agents who are now in communication with prospects engaging cottages for the coming season.

Charles F. Hammond, secretary of the committee in charge of promoting the summer resort interests has been in communication with a number of Westerly people spending the winter in Florida, who have agreed to personally distribute a number of these folders. Among these are William Segar and F. C. Buffum, both at Fountain Inn, Eustis.

F. S. Opie writes: "Send me a hundred of your folders. Will place them where they will do the most good. No doubt I could, in the next four weeks, place 500 in the proper hands, but do not believe in throwing them away as many such circulars are."

Miss Elsie Parsons, reporter of the Watch Hill paper, will distribute copies of the folder at Palm Beach, where she has charge of publicity.

Byron E. Wilcox of Westerly, son of W. A. Wilcox, has offered to distribute literature for Westerly at Birmingham and other points in the south which he visits.

Plans are being made for a newspaper and magazine advertising campaign.

The first regular session of Westerly Chamber of Commerce was held on Monday evening in the council chambers of Westerly town hall with 18 members present when President Lewis Stanton called the meeting to order and Secretary Edwin D. Hawke read the minutes of previous meeting, including that of an executive committee on February 4 at the Memorial and Public library. At that time the matter of merging the Rhode Island hore Development company with the Westerly Chamber of Commerce was taken up. Everett Whipple of the Westerly chamber and Daniel Larkin of the Development company were named a committee to prepare a resolution which they reported at a meeting held February 10. Following is the resolution: "That the following named be appointed a committee to carry out a five year advertising programme for the purpose of creating a wider knowledge of, and greater interest in, the shore resorts and shore development in the town of Westerly and other towns of Washington county, Rhode Island and New London county, Conn." The resolution was adopted and the committee approved by the Westerly chamber. At a meeting of the Rhode Island Shore Development company, to be held soon, it is thought that their 25 members will take favorable action and adopt this resolution before dissolving their organization and will hereafter function as a committee of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce.

Emanuel Mandel, manager of the Pasnik company and Anthony Morrone of Canal street were voted into membership of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce. For yearly dues $5 per annum was the change voted in the by-laws as well as a raise from $3 to $5 for aninitiation fee.

A communication received from a sub-committee on Kingston fair, seeking the sentiment as to whether the yearly fair for educational, recreational and social purposes was desired to be continued. The Westerly chamber voted that it be reinstituted and in the discussion which followed the impression was gained that a return to popular prices was the most desirable.

The Rhode Island Society of New York sent a communication to the Westerly chamber requesting the names of elegible members, those born in Rhode Island or having lived in Rhode Island for three years and now residents of New York city. A letter from the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce criticising the New England postal service was voted laid on the table.

WHITE

When you open a can of Snowdrift you see why Snowdrift was named Snowdrift. Its whiteness does not make Snowdrift pure, but its purity is one reason why Snowdrift is so white.

Snowdrift is made of oil as good as fine salad oil—refined by the Wesson Oil people to a degree of purity and goodness that we do not believe is attained by any other fat.

When this pure, clear oil is hardened and whipped—somewhat as you beat the white of an egg—it makes Snowdrift a creamy, fluffy white fat.

Inhale the Vapors

For Catarrh and Colds

To relieve catarrh or check a head cold, melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. Also put a little in each nostril and snuff well back up the head.

Another way is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that rise. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the spent Vicks and add fresh.

Millions of mothers find Vicks the ideal remedy for croup and children's colds because it not only brings quick relief but avoids dosing delicate little stomachs with so much medicine.

Connecticut College

Between 8.30 and 9.30 p. m. on Monday evening, not a sophomore was to be seen about the grounds of Connecticut College. No stealthy ones peered from doorways or dormitory windows, for that was one of the rules of mascot hunt—and the sophomores played the game fairly! If one of them had "peeked," however, she might have seen among the crowd of juniors who rushed forth to conceal boxes as dupes for the sophomores to lead the sophomores from the real track, four girls quietly creep from the warm dormitory into the cold night air. If she had looked closer, she might have noticed, too, that two of the four seemed to be scouting, while the other two carried under their arms, concealed as much as possible, the huge yellow box that contained the true substitute for the mascot, the real one being too precious to be hidden. And if the cover of the box were transparent, that sophomore would have seen the substitute for the huge head of the bronze lion, in the form of a knocker for the entrance to the door of the Colonial House, the new dormitory, being carried to its hiding place. But no sophomore saw all this, and it remained for the class of 27 to search long and hard for the lion of 26.

The hunt for the mascot was officially opened at a banquet held on Monday evening in Thames Hall at which the sophomore and junior classes were present, as were also the officers of the freshman and senior classes, the juniors' invited guests. The hall was attractively trimmed in red and white, the class colors of 26. Red candles softly glowed at the various tables, aiding with the lovely red and white carnations on the tables in imparting a more festive note to the meal. The sophomores were the first to be seated, and when all their class was assembled, the juniors marched joyously in, singing their class song as they took their places. It was then that Theodosia Hewlett, president of the junior class, formally presented the sophomore president, Sarah Carslake, with a map of the campus as an aid to the younger class in their search.

At 9.30, after a whistle was blown to permit the sophomores to begin their hunt, eager girls were seen searching diligently about the campus. The 14 squads which had been appointed by their president rushed to their respective searching places, where already the junior girls were on picket duty. At 10, since all girls had to be in their dormitories, both classes turned in for the night. However, at 6 a. m., Tuesday morning, each squad was again in its appointed territory.

All day Tuesday the search went on and at about 3.30 whistles were blown all over campus, the signal for the juniors that their hiding place had been discovered and that the sophomores were now in possession of their mascot. An uproar ensued; juniors and sophomores flocking from everywhere at once, crowding over to the field in back of the new dormitory where the true yellow box had been hidden among the building rocks in the field. There upon a stone which covered the hiding place, sat a sophomore. A few minutes before while on guard duty two of the class of '27 by systematic search had discovered the treasure. The juniors, however, had immediately swarmed to the spot, so that hiding it again was at the present moment impossible. However, one hour from the time that the mascot is taken from its hiding place it must be again concealed. Therefore no attempt was made to touch the mascot until the sophomores had formulated some plan for its hiding.

Crowds continued to gather, the Juniors all standing ready for any attempt on the part of the Sophomores to unearth the treasure, and try to hide it from the eyes of its rightful owners. However, the Sophomores were too clever to make any such attempt in broad daylight and were waiting for the mantle of evening to aid them in their task.

At six p. m. both classes were excused from half-eaten meals to rush forth. The hunt ended at seven-thirty for the night, and if the booty were not hidden by then, it must remain in its discovered hiding place until morning when whoever got there after 8 a. m. was privileged to claim it. The Juniors must recover it before Thursday evening at six o'clock or admit their defeat to the class of twenty-seven.

So the hunt still goes on, with the added incentive to the Sophomores of having found the mascot which the Juniors are trying their best to recover.

WEST SIDE COMMUNITY IS ASKING MORE POLICE PROTECTION

Twenty-seven new members were voted into membership at the monthly business meeting of the West End Community association, Tuesday evening at the Elizabeth street school house, bringing the present membership up to 184. With a large attendance the meeting was called to order about 7.30 o'clock by President Paul A. Brown and opened with the singing of two verses of America. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Secretary Frank L. Royce and were accepted as read.

President Brown then called for the report of the board of control which was given by John D. McWilliams. Mr. McWilliams reported that the association has been incorporated and that the incorporation papers have been recorded. Mr. McWilliams said that the board had since the last meeting received and passed on a total of 27 applications for membership, which if accepted by the meeting would bring the present total membership up to 184. A motion was then made that the 27 applications be favorably voted upon in a body and the motion prevailed.

President Brown said that the membership report was very commendable and shows a good healthy growth of the association. However, he said, it ought to have been 150 new names. The president urged the members to go out and spread the good word to their neighbors and secure their membership applications. We are trying to instill into the people of the West Side, true democracy, he said.

The welfare committee reported that it had been active during the past month and Mr. Latimer, reporting for the nuisance committee, gave a report of progress.

As the chairman of the sidewalks committee, C. E. Carpenter was absent, the report for that committee was given by President Brown. He said the committee has met and have definite plans mapped out for better sidewalks in the community. He said the committee has received a letter from C. E. Chandler of Chandler & Palmer, which tells of several ways in which the sidewalks can be improved or new sidewalks secured. The letter was read by Secretary Royce at the suggestion of President Brown. The committee's report was one of progress, the committee feeling that its plans can be successfully carried out.

There was some discussion on the project of the new fire station which the association hopes to secure for the West Side to replace the present station on West Main street which has outlived its usefulness and is badly in need of repairs. As a result of the association's activities a petition for a new fire station on the West Side was received at the March meeting of the court of common council Monday evening and was favorably acted upon at that time.

The recreation committee, of which A. G. Lillibridge is the chairman, reported progress on the plans to have a recreation or athletic field with a baseball diamond, etc., on the West Side for the benefit of the young people of the community. The committee has several sites in view for the new field which it is felt is a real necessity.

The recent acts of a criminal nature which have stirred up the residents of the West Side came in for some discussion and the matter of more police protection was also discussed. As a result a committee comprising Charles Parsons, chairman, Mrs. Fred Souberin and Henry G. Aurelio, was appointed to confer with the police commissioners for the purpose of seeing what can be done to put an end to such acts. The committee will also confer with the state police in regard to the matter. To express the sentiment of the association the following resolution was adopted:

"In consideration of the recent happenings of a criminal nature in the West side community, the prevention of a repetition of which should be insured and every effort put forth to secure the detection and punishment of the guilty party or parties;

Therefore, be it resolved by the West Side Community association, that we petition the board of police commissioners for increased police protection and also the superintendent of the state police for their aid in detecting and bringing the guilty party to justice.

As a result of a discussion of street lights on the West Side the meeting voted to appoint a committee to make a street light survey and also to offer suggestions as to where additional street lights are most needed.

In order to raise money for the recreation or athletic field fund it was decided to hold a card party at the school house and Mrs. Frank L. Royce was made chairman of a committee to take this matter in hand.

The Fort Shantok bill now in the legislature was taken up for discussion and a resolution was adopted urging the representatives and senators from this section to support the passage of the bill.

John G. Stanton, principal of the Elizabeth street school, spoke briefly, congratulating the association on the splendid work it is doing. He spoke of the various accomplishments of the association.

It was announced that the children of the Elizabeth street school have plans for the holding of an operetta at the school for the purpose of raising money to be used for the purchase of new song books.

President Brown introduced Fred Oat of the Maplewood Nurseries, a member of the association, who gave a very interesting and timely talk on How, When and Where to Plant Trees and Shrubs. Mr. Oat described the various methods of planting young trees, shrubs and plants to the best advantage. He said young trees can be planted either in the spring, summer or fall. Mr. Oat told of various trees and shrubs that should be planted in shady spots, others in sunny spots and still others where there is some shade and some sun.

Methods of sheltering trees and shrubs from the cold weather were also touched upon by Mr. Oat. He said that most people have a mistaken idea that they cover trees and shrubs for the purpose of preventing them from freezing. The real purpose in covering them up is, should they freeze, to keep them frozen until they gradually thaw out. The process of freezing and thawing is what does the damage. A tree planting campaign for the West Side community was suggested and it is planned to start it this spring. An open discussion on beautifying premises with trees, shrubs and flowers followed Mr. Oat's talk during which it was brought out that every yard should be well planted.

A feature of the evening was a delightful programme of vocal solos given by Mrs. Olive A. Potter and Roderick F. Sullivan who were accompanied on the piano by Fred C. Geer.

TO ERECT NEW BUILDING FOR SHELTERING ARMS

The building committee of the United Workers, of which Wallace S. Allis is chairman, was authorized at a meeting of the executive committee Tuesday morning to proceed to have a new building for the Sheltering Arms erected, which will be in a different location from the building now in use at Norwich Town and which it is hoped will accommodate 30, which is double the number of the family at the Sheltering Arms now. Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard, president of the United workers, presided at the executive meeting.

The new Sheltering Arms building to be erected will be on the Rockwell lot at the head of McKinley avenue, adjoining the roque grounds. The general plan is to place the building on the lot near the corner of McKinley avenue and the Rockwell street extension. It will probably be three stories high, of brick, fire proof, and of an attractive exterior design that will make it an ornament to the neighborhood.

Besides Mr. Allis, the members of the building committee include Mrs. G. W. Carroll, Mrs. Charles H. Preston, Mrs. F. W. Cary, Miss Adelaide L. Butts, Miss Mary H. Paddock, who will proceed now to have plans drawn and take into consideration the various details concerning the construction of the new building. The United workers own a large plot of land at this point, including the roque grounds besides, what will be used for the new building and its surroundings.

COUPLE GOES TO JAIL TO AWAIT HIGH COURT

Bertram W. Govaze, 21, of Hartford, and Mrs. Pearl Flynn, 22, of New Britain, who were arrested where they occupied a room together in a Franklin street rooming house about three o'clock Tuesday morning were bound over to the May term of the criminal superior court on the charge of immorality after they had been given a hearing in chambers before Judge A. F. Libby Tuesday morning. Neither could give bail of $2,000 and both went to jail. The man pleaded guilty but the woman not guilty to the charge made against them.

The arrest of the couple was a follow-up on the part of County Detective William Lewis in the work that he began in raiding the disreputable house on Wauwecus hill a week ago Saturday night. With Sergeant Matthew Delaney he arrested the couple at the Franklin street place. It is claimed that Govane is the man who was instrumental in bringing women from out of town to the Wauwecus hill place for immoral purposes.

FOR FAILURE TO SEND CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

A special session of the North Stonington court was held Tuesday noon with Justice Ledyard S. Anthony on the bench, Joseph Cuhrynski of North Stonington being brought up on a charge of neglect to send his children, Pauline, 11, and Stephen, 13, to the Hewitt school. The complaint was made by A. W. Buchanan, state truant officer, who testified against the accused, as did Clark Coen, teacher of the school, and Dr. Thurman Maine. The defendant entered a plea of not guilty to the charge but the court thought otherwise and fined him $50 and costs, suspending judgment indefinitely provided the children are sent to school regularly in the future.

SENATE PASSES SUBSTITUTE BILL FOR G. & E. DEPT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 3—Nothing of Norwich importance was considered by the assembly today except the passage by the senate of a substitute for senate bill 42, introduced by Senator Robbins. The bill as first introduced provided that the gas and electrical commissioners might at their discretion set aside 4 per cent. of their net profits to be paid to the city for general use. This bill was amended so that the bill as passed provides a follows:

"The board of gas and electrical commissioners of the city of Norwich may annually, at its discretion, in the month of May, from the net profits of the gas and electrical department of said city for the preceding year ended December thirty-first, designate for the use of the city a sum of money in cash not to exceed fifty per centum of said net profits as reported for the preceding year to the public utilities commission, and such sum, after such designation, may be appropriated by the court of common council of the city for the payment of the general expenses of said city other than the expenses fo its gas and electrical department."

House bill 121 was amended so that the tax will be due and payable on December 15 in towns of less than 10,000 instead of 15,000 as the original bill provided.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) if the house has not completed its business at 12 o'clock, it will recess in order that the members may listen in and hear President Coolidge deliver his inaugural address, a loud speaking set will be installed. It is expected that the senate will also recess that they may attend in the house at that time.

H. B. 79 introduced by Judge Post of Bristol, an act regulating marriage licenses and marriages, drew a large number of welfare workers before the judiciary committee today. The passage of the bill was urged by Judge Peck and by Representative Lavery of Fairfield. No one appeared in opposition. More than fifty stood up at the request of Chairman Cronin, thereby giving their approval to the bill.

DENTISTS HEAR ADDRESS BY NEW HAVEN EXPERT

With an attendance of twenty-five, the New London county dental association held a dinner at 6.30 at the Wauregan hotel Tuesday evening followed by a brief business meeting and an address by Dr. George C. Fahy of New Haven, a famous exodontist, who spoke upon The Impacted Third Molar, which is the wisdom tooth, the members listened with great interest to Dr. Fahy's expert talk of the subject which was followed by an interesting informal discussion.

Dr. Fahy was introduced by Dr. E. P. Fitch of New London, president of the association, of which Dr. Alfred Richards of this city is vice president and Dr. W. J. Murray of New London secretary.

It was decided to invite the physician of the county to the April meeting which will be held in New London on April 7th.

Rainfall Nearly an Inch.

The Sunday rainfall measured .85 of an inch, according to the record taken at the water department office. This will help to add something to the supply in the reservoirs.

GAVE INTERESTING TALK ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Members of the Primary council met at the Broadway grammar school, Tuesday evening, enjoying a supper, which was served at 5.45 o'clock, Miss Augusta Shereshevsky in charge. The business session was in charge of Miss Jennie Congdon and considerable routine business was transacted.

The feature of the programme was a talk by Miss Mary Callahan, teacher at Broad street school, who gave a most interesting account of her trip to Europe last summer. Miss Callahan mentioned many incidents of the trip across the Atlantic Ocean and told of her arrival in England, especially mentioning the beautiful sunset at 10.30 o'clock at night. There was no medical inspection, she said, and a start was immediately made for Paris the route being through Normandy, where the party noticed that the land was practically tilled in its entirety, farms being well kept and having a prosperous appearance.

Arriving at Paris, Miss Callahan and party visited several of the sidewalk cafes and enjoyed a performance at the Opera Comique, where Miss Loretta Higgins of Norwich at one time sang leading roles. Miss Callahan stated that the department stores of Paris could not compare with those of America, none of them being over four stories in height. Very few well dressed people were seen on the streets of Paris. The party also visited many of the smaller shops which were found most interesting and pretty. Seats were obtained for Grand Opera at the price of $2.20. The party also visited the Church de Madeleine, a most fashionable church, but it was noticed that a great many beggars waited outside the church.

Leaving Paris, Miss Callahan next went to Marsailles and she described the harbor as beautiful. Here the stores were better than those of Paris and the people were better dressed. Going on to Nice the party stopped at a hotel similar to the Griswold at Eastern Point. Prices were high there but not as high as in some hotels where $100 a day is charged. The white soil in this resign blinded the eyes and made it necessary to wear glasses. Beautiful mansions owned by people who gamble at Monte Carlo were seen, these people being forced to live at Nice and other points outside of Monte Carlo because of the law which prohibits a native from entering the gambling halls.

The party went on to Italy and visited Genoa where they saw the old palaces which are kept in their original state by law. Many of the houses are plastered and large pictures set into the walls. A curious treat was the visit to the cemetery where people are buried for one year, then the body dug up and cast into a large pit. People with money keep their dead in this cemetery longer than a year by paying the price.

A visit was also made to Pisa, the party passing through 72 tunnels on this trip. Pisa, Miss Callahan described, as an old city that has not kept up with modern times. Naples was then visited and this city seemed the most prosperous of all. Another interesting visit was that to the Isle of Capri where the party saw the Tarentella danced.

The party then visited Rome and St. Peter's Cathedral, the largest cathedral in the world. An audience was also had with the Pope and several of the 11,000 rooms of the Vatican were visited. The visit to the catacombs Miss Calahan described as a spooky one.

Florence was a most beautiful city, clean and prosperous and having many wonderful art shops. Hotels were good in Florence and the party enjoyed their first and only taste of American pie on their trip abroad, bringing back memories of the good old U. S. A. Prices were high, in fact, higher than the prices in America fo rthe same articles.

Passing on to Switzerland the travelers found themselves compelled to produce their passports five times in less than thirty minutes. The railroad service was excellent and the scenery wonderful, many exquisite waterfalls being along the railroad line. Here the party was able to enjoy the sensation of walking in the hot sun on one side of the street and crossing to the other side, pass into temperatures that were freezing. While at Lucerne Miss Callahan met the Kronigs of Norwich and enjoyed a fine visit.

The trip through Germany brought many surprises. In Weisbaden people seemed to have plenty of money and there was apparently no suffering. The people were friendly to the American party. The trip along the Rhine was a beautiful one but it was noticeable that the Germans were eating often and eating too much. The trip through the war lands gave the party bpportunity to see the work of reclamation and observe how this territory had been built up since the war.

Miss Callahan stated that in her opinion Brussels was better than Paris and she enjoyed her visits in that city. Leaving Holland the party went to England once again and stopped in London, where prices were the best that had been struck on the entire trip.

Service and sanitary conditions were excellent on the trip, showing the great improvement made along these lines in the past ten years. Every hotel, Miss Callahan said, was furnished with twin beds and linen sheets provided, except in England.

The trip back across the big pond was pictured and Miss Callahan told of the feeling of getting back home when the Statue of Liberty was first viewed as the steamship entered the New York harbor. The trip was most interesting and worth while but the return home and friends was welcomed.

GAMBLING AND LIQUOR CASES DRAW FINES

Presented in the city court Tuesday morning on a charge of keeping a gambling house on an upper floor of the Stead building on Main street, Charles Connell was fined and paid $25 and costs, and given a jail sentence of 30 days, suspended for one year. Connell pleaded guilty to the charge. The eight men arrested with Connell and charged with being frequentors of the place were fined $10 and costs, each paying the sum of $12.15.

Andrew Rizzi alias Andrea Smith, of 137 Thames St., pleaded guilty to violation of the liquor law by actual sale. He was fined $200 and costs and given 10 days in jail. He paid his fine which totaled $218.16 and went to jail for the ten day period.

MADE 116 ARRESTS IN MONTH OF FEBRUARY

There were 116 arrests made by the Norwich police in February, with intoxication, traffic law violations and breach of the peace as the leading causes.

The following were the causes of arrest during the month:

Breach of peace 20; Intoxication 39; Motor vehicle law violations 33; Liquor law violation 10; Non-payment of personal tax 7; Non-support 4; Frequenting house of ill-fame 3; Keeping house of ill-fame 2; Resisting officer, trespass, harboring female for immoral purpose and gain, begging, 1 each.

STOLEN PROPERTY NOW AT POLICE BARRACKS

A quantity of stolen property that was taken from cottages at Gardner Lake by John Jacobick and was recovered by the state police in places where Jacobick had left it has been assembled at the state police barracks at Groton to await identification by the owners.

Cottagers at the lake are loud in their praise of the work of the state police in running down the demented man who was entering cottage after cottage, taking whatever pleased his fancy, carrying it off and leaving it in some other place that he might visit. In one instance of this kind, a pair of field glasses that was taken from one cottage was found hidden in a bed in another cottage some distance away. When Jacobick was caught at his home Monday he had in his pocket a hunting license that had come from a cottage across the lake from his father's farm.

The persistent work of the state police in the pursuit of the man is warmly commended by the cottage owners and in this respect no officer is said to be deserving of more praise than State Policeman Fred Caron who was early and late on the search for the looter, covering many miles along the shores of the lake and in the neighborhood wherever there was a chance of finding the man.

WINTER'S RETURN CUTS STORRS EGG PRODUCTION

Winter weather returned to Storrs during the seventeenth week of the laying contest. Howling winds and close to zero temperatures made the hens sit up and take notice as they had just accustomed themselves to spring like conditions that had obtained during the greater part of February. The net result of this sudden shift was a loss of 215 eggs as compared with the previous week's production, although the hens laid relatively 174 eggs more than for the corresponding week a year ago. The total number of eggs laid was 4265 or a yield of nearly forty-four per cent. For the second successive week the 200 Barred Rocks as a class have led all other varieties for high average egg production. White Wyandottes and Leghorns just about tied in the first week of the contest, then the Leghorns outlaid for three weeks. The Wyandottes as a class led all the others for the next eleven weeks and now the Barred Rocks are shelling out more eggs than any other variety in the contest.

Deer Brook Poultry Farm's pen of Reds from Short Falls, N. H., was the best performing pen in the seventeenth week with a score of 49 eggs.

Two pens of the same breed entered by E. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass., and Fred H. Sampson of Springfield, Mass., tied with Barred Rocks owned by R. W. Davis & Sons of Rockland, Me., with a record of 46 eggs for each pen. Barred Rocks owned by E. C. Foreman of Lansing, Mich., and White Leghorns owned by Meadowedge Farm at Sterling Junction, Mass., tied for third place with 45 eggs each. Keewaydin Farm's pen of Barred Rocks from Darien, Conn., H. P. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., and Robert B. Darkhurst's pen of Reds from Boxford, Mass., all tied for fourth place with 44 eggs each. In addition to the splendid performance of the Barred Rocks mentioned above it may be also said that the several pens of this variety are having an interesting race among themselves. The total scores of the three leading pens from November first to date are only four eggs apart. The best pen in the group at this writing comes from Michigan, the second best from Connecticut, and the third from Oregon.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

SCHAEFER BEATS HOPPE AND TAKES BILLIARD TITLE FOR SECOND TIME

Chicago, March 3—(By the A. P.)—Young Jake Schaefer, son of the veteran wizard of the cue of the same name, for the second time wrested the 18.2 balkline billiard world's championship crown from Willie Hoppe and had held it for 17 years except for a few months, when he beat the retiring champion, 400 to 137 in eight innings, in the closing match of the eleventh international 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament here tonight. Schaefer ran out with 296.

In the final match tonight in which Schaefer hoped to acquire the title, both Schaefer and Hoppe played very poor billiards in the first few innings, this being accentuated by bad breaks of the balls. At the end of six innings Hoppe lead 153 to 55.

Schaefer's record showed five straight victories and no defeats. Hoppe lost the championship before he entered tonight's match, as he was eliminated yesterday when defeated by Edouard Horemans, the Belgian, who ended in second place today by defeating Erich Hagenlacher, the German champion, 400 to 254 in eight innings.

A few minutes after the match ended Hoppe was found wandering dissolutely about the deserted hall.

"Schaefer beat me and I deserved it," was his comment. "I had plenty of chances to win if I had only been stroke."

To the winner goes $3,000 in cash and the diamond medal emblematic of the championship. To Horemans runner of second place goes $1,400, to Hagenlacher, third $1,000; to Hoppe fourth and to Welker Cochran sixth place, goes $250.

TWO YOUNG NEW LONDON THIEVES ARE COMMITTED TO CHESHIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 3—New London today got rid of a couple of young burglars who have made things miserable for merchants and others. They are Leo De Moch and Joe Segnon, each nearly 17. They have been the leaders of a gang that has been busy in all sections of the city, with stores as the places they picked for robbery. De-Moch is believed to have been the brains of the gang, though he is smaller than Segnon and a little younger. These thieves stole for a desire to get money to spend, rather than to profit financially to large extent. They took great risks, too, for at one place it is known that the proprietor of a business place was in the store, armed, when the boys appeared at the rear and tried windows and doors. The boys were on the list of Probation Officer Mansfield as they were concerned in offenses during three years past. That was the clue upon which Police Sergeant Smith and John J. Cavanaugh began work. These officers got the boys for questioning, and obtained from them admissions which built with details and circumstances of the manner in which the robberies were carried on and the plunder obtained. The stories were checked up and found to be true. The boys were presented in the police court today and were sent to the Cheshire reformatory. The boys have worked sometimes but they have been idle much more than employed. They were observed by police officers on the street late at night, but that proved nothing for they did their thieving in the early evening or on Sundays or holidays. So bold were they that they visited some of the places looted a second time. Their plan was to cut the putty from window glass or to pry open the sash. At no time were their cash stealings more than a few dollars. This money they spent in wasteful ways and without particular benefit to themselves.

For some time the officials of the Cheriselli Silk Company, Union and Church streets, have been missing small quantities of crepe de chine from their plant and today their suspicions pointed to John Balady, 27 North Bank street, as the chief. Complaint was made to the police and Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh visited the mill shortly before it closed down at 5 o'clock and interrogated Balady, who denied all knowledge of the disappearance of the silk. However, before the officers concluded their questioning of Belady finally made admissions which led the officers to believe that he was guilty. Accompanying Balady to his home, a search of his apartment revealed silk goods of the highest grade of output of the mill and of the estimated value of $200 together with a quantity of bobbins with silk on them. The officers placed Balady under arrest and took possession of the stolen goods. This evening officials of the silk company identified the crepe de chine also some of the bobbins of silk as the property of the company. An official of the Edward Bloom Silk company, where Balady had previously been employed also identified some of the bobbins of silk as their property. Balady furnished in A. J. New London, March 3. — Thomas Daugherty, a cement worker, 195 Main street, will be a cripple for life, if, indeed, he does not die, for tonight at Lawrence hospital he is suffering from a fractured spine and several fractured ribs as a result of falling through an opening in the Klinck building, Bank street, last night. At the institution tonight it was stated that Daugherty's heart action was strong, but that his condition was regarded as critical because of the injury to his spine.

Daugherty, with other workmen, was working last night in laying cement in forms that became the foundation of the structure in course of erection. After the major portion of the night's work had been performed Daugherty in moving about the first floor stepped through an opening and fell 15 feet into the cellar. In landing he struck on his back. He was picked up by fellow workmen, who realized that Daugherty was seriously injured and had him removed to the hospital, where an examination of his injuries did not reveal the fractured spine until this forenoon.

MANY HOUSEKEEPERS TOO ILL TO WORK

How Many Are Finding Relief from Weakness and Pain. Mrs. Brandenburg a Notable Case

MRS. EMIL O. BRA[illegible]
661 37TH STREET, MILWAUKEE, Wisconsin

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"I was in a badly run-down condition and I would get weak spells and terrible headaches. I felt so badly last year that I could not do my housecleaning. The minute I would lift or stoop it seemed as if I was going to fall to pieces. I told a neighbor how I felt and she said that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was surely the right thing for me. I took four bottles then and in the fall of the year I took three. I had been treated by a doctor, but he gave me an iron tonic and that did not help me. It seemed that the tonic did not have in it what the Vegetable Compound did. That gave me the strength and ambition I needed and I have gained in weight. This year before I started to clean house I got four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and am taking it right along. I tell all my friends about it and how much good it does me. They can notice it because I have gained in weight. I weigh 118 now and do all my work myself again." —Mrs. EMIL O. BRANDENBURG, 661 37th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Earl's Recovery

Horace, Nebraska.—"I had terrible pains and backache, so bad that I could hardly move, and I would have to lie down at times. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I was so sick that I thought I would try it. My husband knew it was good as he knew a woman it had helped. It took all my pains away and I don't have any backache now. I do my own housework, take care of a few chickens and my garden, and have a little girl three years old to look out for. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends and I will answer all the questions I can, if any one writes to me." —Mrs. ADA EARL, Box 28, Horace, Nebraska.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS BULLISH.

New York, March 3—Vigorous bullish demonstrations continued in today's stock market, the general industrial average being elevated to another record high level. Net gains in many active issues ranged from 1 to 3 points with a few specialties scoring sensational advances of over 10 points. The heavy demand for stocks which resulted in total sales in excess of one and three quarters million shares was generally ascribed to the belief that President Coolidge's inaugural message tomorrow will outline policies which the financial community characterizes as "constructive."

One of the features of the session was another sensational advance in Ludlum teel which added 11 points to its 7 point gain of yesterday and touched a record top at $54 a share. The spirited demand for this issue is based on reports of important developments concerning patents of a monopolistic nature in connection with steel production. United States Cast Iron Pipe showed an extreme gain of 14 points by touching 244 3-4, closing just below the top. American Car and Foundry was up 12 points to 221.

Railroad shares failed to participate in the advance as extensively as the industrials because of the further liquidation of the St. Paul issues which were carried down a point to within a small fraction of the year's low. Atchison dropped nearly 2 points to 125 3-8 but net gains of a point or more were recorded by Rock Island common, "Katy" common, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Peoria and Eastern and a few others.

The so-called pivotal industrials showed mixed changes. United States Steel common touched 125 and slipped back to 124 1-3, up 5-8 on the day, and Baldwin closed at 141 3-4 for a net loss of 1 1-8 after selling 3 points above that figure.

American established a record top at 184 1-2 and then eased to 182 3-4, up 1 point on the day. Studebaker closed a point lower at 45.

Shares of oil companies operating on the Pacific coast were again in brisk demand. New peak prices since 1923, or longer were established by Pan-American A and B, California Petroleum common and preferred, Barnsdall A and General Petroleum, although some of the gains were cancelled or reduced in the late wave of profit taking.

Two score issues, nine of them rails, attained new peak prices for the year, the list includes American Locomotive, Dupont, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Savage Arms, Century Ribon, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, Tobacco Products and the A stock, United States Cigar Stores, Jordan Motors, Maxwell Motors B, and Goodrich Rubber common and preferred.

Call money held steady at 4 1-2 per cent, despite the fact that little money was sent here from the interior. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Further weakness in French francs, which carried them to another new record for the year below 5.05 cents, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.76. Most of the other European rates showed only nominal changes.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 3—Profit taking sales checked the upward rise of prices in today's curb market with the result that closing prices disclosed considerable irregularity. Oils displayed a firm undertone with buying influenced by rumrs of an impending increase in crude prices. Vacuum jumped nearly 3 points to 94 1-4 and Ohio Oil showed a net gain of 1 1-4 at 73 1-2.

Public Utilities with few exceptions, lost ground. American Gas and Electric moved up 1 3-8 to 73 1-2, but American Light and Traction, Commonwealth and Electric Bond and share dropped a point or so. Radios were mixed, a gain of 1 5-8 in Hazeltine being counteracted by losses of a point each in Charles Freshman and Thermiodyne.

Kelvinator, which attained a new peak at 31 1-2 on Monday after a spectacular advance from the subscription price of $16 a share, fell back to 28 1-2, off 1 5-8 on the day, on realizing. Car Lighting and Power, the other electrical refrigeration issue, held firm around its recent high level. Initial trading took place in the New Art Loom issues, the common ranging from 43 7-8 to 43 and the preferred 101 3-4 to 101 1-4. Chapin-Sacks touched a new top at 20 3-4.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 3—Heavy selling of the St. Paul 4 per cent. bonds maturing this year, based on speculative nervousness over the course to be adopted by the road in meeting its refunding problems, was an outstanding feature of today's bond market, which displayed a generally firm tone.

With selling pressure concentrated against this issue, the bonds were driven down 3 1-2 points below 65, within a point or so of the low record established last year. The company's other obligations also were sold freely, but offered better resistance. In the absence of any new developments, it was reported that today's decline, which accompanied weakness in the road's stocks, was in anticipation of an unfavorable report by engineers who have been studying the road's problems.

Contrasting price movements marked trading in other sections of the list. An early outburst of buying carried many of the active oil liens to new high records, but some of the gains were later cancelled or materially reduced on profit-taking. Strength of Sinclair Consolidated and Skelly Oil issues was well maintained but Pan-American sixes closed fractionally lower after achieving a new top price above 118.

High grade rail issues worked higher under the leadership of New York Central convertible sixes, which advanced 1 3-8 points, and some of the more speculative liens, including those of the "Katy" Wabash and Chicago and Alton Railroads, also were in demand. Other strong spots were the Wilson and company and Magma Copper obligations, which gained two or three points.

A rise in Great Consolidated Power Company of Japan bonds was linked with reports that bankers soon would float a new loan for this company, as well as for other Japanese public utilities.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 3—Increasing crop damage complaints from the west and southwest together with enlarged estimates of foreign import requirements led to a lively advance today in the wheat market here. Wheat closed firm, 2 1-4 to 2 3-4 c net higher, May 199 1-4 to 199 3-8 and July 173 5-8 to 174, with corn 1-2 to 1 c up, oats showing 5-8 to 7-8 c gain and provisions at a rise varying from two to thirty cents.

June delivery, representing the new 1925 domestic crop, displayed much more strength than May, which stands for wheat already available, excess of dry weather was the chief reason given for the unfavorable crop reports that were at hand telling of conditions in various parts of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

According to estimates by a recognized authority, world import seeds are 752,000,000 bushels, an amount 32,000,000 bushels more than the best previous figure obtainable. Fresh export business today from this country however, was of very small proportions, and this fact had much to do with unsettling the market and bringing about numerous reactions. Possibilities of good sized wheat shipments from Minneapolis to Chicago were also a disturbing factor here.

Corn and oats proved responsive to commission houses buying based on curtailed estimates of farm stocks of corn and on assertions that corn fed to hogs and cattle would afford good profit.

Provisions ascended with hogs and corn. Besides stocks of lard here failed to increase as much as had been looked for.

OLD MYSTIC

Funeral services for Miss Susan H. Babcock were held at her home Saturday afternoon the house being filled with relatives and friends. There were beautiful flowers, some coming from New Haven, Norwich and Westerly. Her Sunday school class and and Ladies' Aid society each sent a form. The D. A. R. sent a large spray of Easter lilies and Mystic Grange a beautiful wreath of roses and carnations.

The services were conducted by Rev. George P. Jones, acting pastor of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. J. M. Olmsted of Springfield, Mass., a former pastor and friend of the family who eulogized her long life of service to her church and the deeds of kindness done for the sick and suffering always freely given. She was at church Sunday, Feb. 15, teaching her class in Sunday school, a work she had been engaged in for forty-four years. She planned to go the next Sunday but was taken ill that day.

Mrs. Trevena and Mrs. Joseph Johnson of Mystic sang Abide With Me and Nearer My God to Thee. As the casket was borne from the house. Mystic Grange members standing in open ranks, each placed a spray on it. The bearers were Joseph D. Austin, Amos M. Gallup, Maurice B. Caswell, Frederick Wait, Frank E. Williams, Perry Eldredge. The burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, the committal service was led by Rev. J. M. Olmsted.

Mr. and Mrs. Adebert Carter of Wethersfield, Conn., attended the funeral of Miss Susan Babcock and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Perry Eldredge.

Rev. J. M. Olmsted of Springfield, Mass., a former pastor of the Baptist church here spent Friday and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Burdick.

The Plus Ultra Class, Rev. George P. Jones, teacher had its March meeting last night at the home fo Mr. and Mrs. Harold Williams.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning Rev. George Jones paid a splended tribute to the life of Miss Susan Babcock who had been a member so long and a faithful teacher to the last.

The members of Mystic Grange living here had their second meeting Monday night at Joseph Desley's. Reference was made to the death of the oldest member Miss Babcock, who had planned to be present the week before and was hoping to recover and attend this week.

The Ladies' Aid society is to meet with Mrs. Frank Wheeler Wednesday afternoon.

JUDGE BROWN DENIES MOTION TO ERASE

Defendant's motion to erase has been denied by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court in the suit of Bolderback & Langdon, Inc., of New London vs. E. E. Dickinson, et al, of Essex, which was heard last Friday in the superior court.

The defendants' motion to erase was based on the claim that the highest amount the plaintiff is entitled to recover is $464.46, and because it appears that the cause is one not within the jurisdiction of the superior court but is wholly within the exclusive jurisdiction of the court of common pleas.

The plaintiffs, who are architects, based their claims for damages for farming and drawing plans, and making estimates for an office building in Essex.

EAST LYME WILL BUY TWO VOTING MACHINES

The town of East Lyme voted to buy two voting machines and to erect a fire house for the Niantic fire department at the adjourned annual town meeting held in Comstock hall in Flanders Monday night. Nearly 300 attended the meeting and taxed the hall to capacity.

The matter of purchasing voting machines was the first one to come before the meeting and a vote showed that 203 voters were in favor of the purchase and 97 were against. The machines which were used at the state election in November and the special election of December, are to cost $945 each.

The meeting appropriated $10,000 for the erection of a fire house in Niantic and awarded the contract to Fred Rohemeiling of Niantic for $9,597 including the purchase of a lot from F. A. Beckwith for $700.

It was voted to publish the list of vital statistics, town officials, report of town clerk of business at each meeting and copy of the budget in the town's account in 1925.

The request of the road commission for an extra appropriation of $2,000 for the purchase of additional road oil was granted.

It was voted that in the future all meetings of the first voting district of the town, comprising the village of Flanders, will be held in Comstock hall instead of the basement of the Baptist church as has been the case for many years past.

CONGRESSMAN TILSON NATIVE OF TENNESSEE

Congressman John Q. Tilson of this state who has been elected republican floor leader of the house is a Connecticut man by adoption, having taken up his residence in New Haven when he began the practice of law after graduating at Yale.

He was born on a farm in Clearbranch, Tennessee, in 1866. This is a mountainous section and the Tilson home (built of logs, but not a typical log cabin) was a mile from the nearest neighbor and three miles from the nearest school.

While the family was poor, the big log house of Squire Tilson (the congressman's father) was nevertheless the biggest residence within many miles, and, there being no inns or taverns nearby, traveling preachers, candidates for public office, and others, often stopped there over night as his father's guests. The present congressman became imbued with a desire to educate himself from listening to the conversation of these guests, in which were included from time to time many of the most prominent men of the state in politics. At the age of twenty he persuaded his parents to allow him to strike out for himself to obtain an education, and he earned his own way through Carson & Newman college in Tennessee and later through Yale, which he attended six years, receiving the degrees of AB, LLB., and ML.

His first earned his way in New Haven by doing odd jobs and later obtained a position in the circulation department of a local newspaper, which he held through most of his college course.

After finishing at the Yale Law school he decided to practice law in New Haven instead of returning to his native state and continued in practice there with White & Daggett, later White, Daggett & Tilson, until elected congressman-at-large from Connecticut in 1908. His law practice was briefly interrupted during the Spanish war by service with the Sixth Tennessee Immunes. After the war he served nineteen years in the Connecticut National Guard, going through all the ranks from private to lieutenant-colonel, in which latter rank he commanded the Second Connecticut Infantry at the mobilization on the Mexican border, in 1916.

He has been a member of congress for fourteen years, continuously except between 1912 and 1914. His committee service has been on the military affairs committee of which he was a member until after the World war, and since then on the ways and means committee. He has been for several years chairman of the executive committee of the National Republican Congressional committee and last fall was eastern director of the speakers' bureau for the republican national committee. Before entering congress he served two terms in the Connecticut state legislature. In the last of which he was speaker of the house of representatives.

During his first eight years in congress his principal work was along lines of national defense, and while a member of the military affairs committee he devoted a considerable part of his attention to ordnance production problems. A related subject to which he gave much study was "standardization." Since becoming a member of the ways and means committee he has necessarily devoted most of his time to the tariff and taxes. He was a strong advocate of the tax reform plan of Secretary Mellon which was laid before congress a year ago.

He was candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator in Connecticut to succeed the late Frank B. Brandegee for the special election which was held last December but was unsuccessful.

WILLIMANTIC MAN WAS APPLICANT FOR POSITION

In the contest for the position of superintendent of schools in Waterbury in which Dr. Michael C. Donovan, principal of Crosby High school won out, Egbert A. Case of Willimantic was an applicant for the position.

CONTRALTO IS HEARD BY MUSIC ASSOCIATION.

Elva Boyden of Boston, contralto, appearing before the Norwich Music association for its March meeting, Monday evening in Slater hall annex, gave a programme that made a highly enjoyable evening for the good number present. Her voice had the real contralto quality, rich and mellow, and her artistic rendering of the well chosen numbers brought forth appreciative applause and calls for encores to which she responded by giving In a Tiny Garden (Wood) and Carry Me Back to O' [illegible]. The accompanist was [illegible] who ved on close sympathy with the singer.

The following was the programme:

BRINGS $10,000 SUIT FOR PECORA'S DEATH

Suit for $10,000 damages against Claude Z. Jette of Killingly has been brought in the superior court by Thomas E. Donohue of New London, administrator of the estate of Antono Pecora, on the ground that Jette was to blame for Pecora's death which followed an automobile accident on October 29, 1924.

Pecora was riding in an automobile which Jette was driving and it is alleged he was operating the car at a dangerous rate of speed so that he lost control and the car left the road at Stanton Hill on the road between Groton and Old Mystic, striking a tree, and causing Pecora to receive injuries from which he died, having suffered a fractured skull. The suit is returnable to the superior court in March.

Jette was a foreman in the employ of construction work on road building at Mystic.

Jette has already paid a fine of $500 and costs which was imposed upon him when he was presented in the criminal court on charges arising out of the accident.

ORGANIZING WORK AMONG CHRIST CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE

Greater development of the work among the young people of Christ church parish has been one of the first lines of work taken up by Rev C. Montgomery Budlong, the new rector. A St. Vincent's guild has been organized, composed of young men who will take part in the church services on Sundays. A junior church, which is the church school, has also been formed and its hour of service set for 9.15 to 9.45. The organization has its junior vestry, special music by its own orchestra and the girls' choir also participates in its services. After the services the members have their school classes, all this coming before the regular church service.

Work among the young people is a department in which he has been especially interested and has had much experience previously in New York and in Fall River and he is applying methods here which have proved their success in other fields.

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics

After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigadell: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. The sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teesdale, 3917 High St., Camden, N. J.

SEEKS INJUNCTION IN $2,500 DAMAGE SUIT

Seeking an injunction to keep Abraham and Saul Levine from continuing to allow roof water to discharge against his building, Jacob Bokoff of this city has brought suit against the Levines for $2,500 damages alleged to have been sustained already by the drainage water from the roof.

Bokoff owns and occupies a building as a garage at the corner of West Main and North Thames street, which adjoins a building owned by the Levines, from which it is claimed roof water has run onto and into the Bokoff building so that Bokoff suffered $500 damage to his stock and had to spend $200 in making repairs.

Is Your Home Ready —for the Important Hour?

Not alone in high financial and diplomatic circles does home entertaining play a vital part in a man's—a woman's—success.

Almost any prosperous business man will confess that his home has ranked second only to his office in the happy outcome of many an important deal.

Here, under the spell of refinement and ease, men relax and become more intimate, more responsive, more patient to listen, more open to conviction—in a word, more approachable.

When your husband telephones home that he is bringing an important client or business acquaintance to dinner, he is simply employing one of the oldest, wisest and most effective conventions of salesmanship.

And lucky is he whose home has been furnished with these important occasions in mind; who has no apologies to make—or think—when his guest is ushered in.

We talk much of successful husbands, but successful husbands are usually men with successful wives, and it is on these important occasions that a man realizes whether or not he is receiving thoughtful, artistic cooperation at home.

For there are few progressive men who will refuse to spend a reasonable amount of money for good furniture, Berkey & Gay Furniture, perhaps, if the suggestions is presented to them in the right light.

It is the transient, frivolous, expenditures that irritate the lords of creation.

They can be brought quickly to see that good furniture is an investment yielding high dividends for many years. That it means as much for the husband in business as the wife socially.

Such furniture as this can be purchased here, from among our selections of Berkey & Gay and other fine suites or occasional pieces.

INAUGURAL CUSTOMS WERE SHATTERED BY COOLIDGE AND DAWES

Induction of Calvin Coolidge to the Presidency of the United States Was Serenly Simple; an Orderly Process of Government—Inaugural Address Was a Restatement of His Policies of Governmental Frugality—Parade Was Shorn of the Familiar Trappings of Past Generations—General Dawes Aroused the Ire of the Senate by His Characteristic Brusqueness.

Washington, March 4—Calvin Coolidge calmly and quietly assumed the duties of the presidency today for four more years, and Charles G. Dawes swept into the vice presidency with a velocity that shattered many precedents.

In a brief inaugural ceremony, which never deviated from the decorous program laid down by him long in advance, Mr. Coolidge renewed his oath of office on his grandmother's bible and in a short inaugural address restated his policies of governmental frugality.

Vice President Dawes furnished a succession of surprises and thrills that aroused senatorial ire. First he read the riot act to the senate on the necessity of revising its rules to outlaw the one-man filibuster, then, instead of following in the new senators in fours, as the time-honored custom, he passed them brought up in a bunch to the desk. Then he cut short the ceremony of senators signing the book, and finally, without any senator having made a motion to that effect, he announced that the deliberate body would proceed to attend the inauguration of President Coolidge outside.

The senate and its distinguished guests, thereupon trooped out to a totally different scene on the east plaza where thousands already were waiting to see the induction into office of Coolidge where millions more all over the nation waited at tuned-in receivers to hear what he said. The unmeasured tones of his inaugural address were carried to the greatest audience ever addressed by any man.

And after his last words ending the inauguration millions must have heard the rolling of the bugles to mount the short inaugural parade wound up the day.

Back at the White House, under escort of a dashing cavalry troopers, the president and his guests took their places in a glass covered reviewing stand to see the passage of the score of governors who had places in the parade, the marching foot troops, sailors and marines, the rumbling columns of artillery, and a whole herd of squatty little tanks, which had grumbled and rumbled their way up Fifth avenue in a noisy thunder.

The service bands in their gay uniforms gave color to the procession as it marched with trumpets blaring for all the world like the commander-in-chief, the old familiar trappings of past inaugurations were almost all absent, and the whole parade had gone by in little more than an hour.

And despite this implicity of the ceremony, imposed by the wish of the president himself, Mr. Coolidge took office, this time in his own right by the overwhelming vote of his fellow countrymen, amid scenes strangely contrasting with those at the other inauguration nineteen months ago in his father's home in Vermont.

Then there was need for haste. A great tragedy had set its mark on the nation. A hurried simple reciting of the oath his father administered that night gave the country a new president almost before the word of the death of President Harding could be carried out throughout the land.

Today, that same man succeeded himself as president amid ceremonies of long custom had prescribed. It was a solemn, orderly process of government in the oath was administered by the chief justice of the United States, himself a former president. It was taken in the broad light of the sun on the wide plaza, where thousands might see.

And it was a calm, cool eyed man whose scarcely audible "I do" set the seal of the presidency upon his shoulders for four more years. In voice and manner he was serene and unhurried as he turned then to the quiet thong that waited to hear his deliberate, serious address to "my countrymen." As he spoke that salutation President Coolidge paused a long moment, looked out over the sea of faces upturned below him from the wide-reaching stands and the mass of humanity beyond that filled every nook and corner of the plaza to overflowing. Then his eyes dropped to the manuscript before him on the stand and he went on steadily, quietly to his solemn declaration that America cherishes no purpose "save to merit the favor of Almighty God."

The president spoke almost without gestures. Only twice was the quiet, unhurried cadence of his voice tinged with deeper feeling. The evidence was there as he drew his address to an end, in what was almost an invocation of divine aid in his task.

PHOTOS OF INAUGURATION TRANSMITTED OVER WIRES

New York, March 4.—Photographs of the inauguration, including a picture of President Coolidge taking the oath, transmitted over telephone wires of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, were received today in New York, Chicago and San Francisco in time for publication in late editions of the afternoon newspapers.

Each photograph was transmitted simultantously from Washington to the three cities, in about seven minutes. About an hour was consumed at Washington and another hour in New York for developing, printing and other processes. Telephone company officials emphasized that not effort was made to establish a speed record in transmitting and delivering the pictures.

Other pictures sent by wire showed a messenger carrying flowers for Mrs. Coolidge from California women; President and Mrs. Coolidge leaving the White House for the capitol; and the president delivering his inaugural speech.

HAD CHARITY BALL AS SUBSTITUTE FOR INAUGURAL

Washington, March 4—Although President Coolidge ruled against an inaugural ball, Washington society and the visiting dignitaries of the states found a substitute tonight in a charity ball at the Mayflower Hotel.

Vice president and Mrs. Dawes, cabinet officials, senators and representatives and ranking officers of the army and navy attended, along with most of the governors who had come to the capital for the inauguration ceremonies.

The personnel of the distinguished gathering was about the same that would attend an inaugural ball—with the president and his wife left out.

INAUGURAL SPECTATOR DIED OF HEART FAILURE

Washington, March 4—One inaugural spectator dropped dead from a heart attack and twelve others, eight of whom fainted, were given first aid and hospital treatment, according to a check-up by police tonight. The only visitor among those treated was J. J. Sullivan, 77, member of the Northampton, Mass., delegation, who fainted on a special train at Union station.

COMMUNISTS DOMINATING WELFARE WORKERS

Hartford, March 4—Miss Mary C. Welles, secretary of the Consumers' League of Connecticut, and Miss Marjorie Cheney, representative from Manchester, were cited as typical of the membership of certain "well-meaning, guileless welfare organizations," which are unwittingly permitting themselves to be used by communists who "seek to destroy the very foundation of constitutional government," in a fiery address made before the legislative committee on labor today by P. L. Gerety, of Shelton, representing the industrial association of the lower Naugatuck valley.

Mr. Gerety presented a dramatic spectacle at the end of a hearing, at which both of the women mentioned had preceded William Simons, avowed communist leader of New Haven, in advocacy of a bill prohibiting the employment of women in Connecticut manufacturing or mercantile establishments more than nine hours a day or forty eight hours a week. It was Simons' second appearance before the labor committee within a week and this time, as was the case last Thursday, he took occasion, in loud, menacing tones, to give warning of the day when communism would reign Connecticut and take control of industries.

Dawes Would Correct Procedure In Senate

In His Inaugural the Vice President Attacks Rule Permitting a One Man Filibuster.

Washington, March 4.—(By the A. P.)—Charles G. Dawes, assuming today the office of vice president of the United States, fractured so many senate precedents that he left that body gasping in astonishment.

His inaugural address turned out to be an attack on the senate rules permitting a one-man filibuster. On top of that Mr. Dawes brushed aside the old method of swearing in new senators in groups of fours; abruptly recessed the senate for the inauguration of President Coolidge on the capitol portico, and then left the body without a duly constituted presiding officer for the rest of the day to get itself adjourned until tomorrow as best it could.

The presidential inaugural ceremonies gave senators time to catch their breath. Then followed a fusillade of statements, most of them attacking, but many praising Mr. Dawes' stand on senate rules. Republican leaders generally were silent, but democratic leaders were vigorous in their characterizations of the new vice president's verbal broadside.

Those statements in general indicated that the occasion and positive manner of the delivery of the attack on the rules had drawn fire more than had the pronouncement that unless there is a change in the method of procedure the effectiveness, prestige and dignity of the senate must be lessened.

While he read from a prepared manuscript a speech which had been guarded with very unusual care so that no inkling of it might trickle out in advance, Mr. Dawes spoke with all the vigor with which he once lectured cabinet officers on the subject of economy when he was director of the budget. When he wanted to strike home an especial sentence he'd work of the rest of the procedure in the senate chamber, for the conclusion of which the inauguration of President Coolidge awaited. The new vice president directed the reading of the proclamation by the chief executive calling the senate into special session at noon and then began the administration of the oath to senators elected last November.

The first group of four, headed by Cole L. Blease, the once fiery governor of South Carolina, came up to take the oath and the congratulations of the vice president, and then another group of four, accompanied by their colleagues, were called to the dais.

As the clerk read the names to the third group, Mr. Dawes interrupted with a direction to "bring them all up," referring to twenty waiting senators whose names had not then been called.

Within a minute 48 senators, or half the membership, were standing in the well before the dais the newly elected snators being accompanid by their colleagues under the usual procedure. The oath was delivered to the senators collectively and then Sir. Dawes did some more speeding up.

Turning to his desk, he picked up the program of procedure and without waiting for a motion for a recess, announced:

"The sergeant-at-arms will carry out the order of the senate for the inauguration of the president of the United States on the east front of the capitol."

Then went down his gavel with a bang, and the large company in the chamber began moving out to the east plaza. Mr. Dawes quickly descended leaned across the desk toward the senators grouped in one part of the chamber and shook his fist or his forefinger at them.

Some senators sat through the address in silence, and with glum expressions, while some joined more or inaugural, members of the house grouped on the other side of the chamber, supplied. They applauded frequently and laughed heartily at the apparent discomfiture of the senators. Cabinet officers, too, joined in the laughter, but President Coolidge, who sat in front of the dais facing the congress, scarcely changed his expression.

After disposing of his twelve minutes' address, Mr. Dawes made quick to the well and held an informal reception with the senators newly sworn in, slapping some on the backs and shaking hands with others.

Immediately after the inauguration of President Coolidge, the senate resumed its session, but Mr. Dawes meanwhile had accompanied the presidential party to the White House to review the parade. Senator Watson of Indiana, took the chair and called the session to order.

After the time for meeting at noon each day had been fixed by resolution, there was a motion to adjourn, but Senator Reed, democratic, Missouri, called attention that the other session had ended so hurriedly that some of the senators taking the oath had not the opportunity to sign the roster—a part of the cercmony of induction into office.

With that ceremony concluded, the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

AUTHOR RADIOS "FACE ON THE BARROOM FLOOR"

New York, March 4—The history of the verses "The Face on the Barroom Floor" went out tonight over the radio from the lips of 85-year-old Hugh D'Arcy, their author.

Mr. D'Arcy consented to recite the widely-quoted story of the drunken artist and the villainous waiter who threw him out, only upon condition that he be permitted some explanations regarding the famous incident in "Joe's barroom."

"In the first place," Mr. D'Arcy told his radio audience, "there is no barroom in the title. I've been trying desperately to explain that ever since I wrote the poem, but the title is constantly distorted.

"And, I want to make it plain that I wrote it for use by neither the prohibitionists nor the drunkards who kept reciting it in saloons for free drinks. Both took advantage of me.

"It applies on all floors—not only in barrooms. The poor artist drank because he was broken-hearted. Joe Smith and the waiter didn't know that so they threw him out. The moral of the poem is that nobody would be thrown out for his misconduct if his fellows knew why he went wrong."

Funeral Procession Of President Ebert

Millions of Persons in the Streets of Berlin Watched the Cortege Move to Funeral Train.

Berlin, March 4—Sorrowing Germany turned its eyes toward Heidelberg when the funeral train bearing the body of the late president, Friedrich Ebert, left Berlin at 6.40 o'clock this evening. On the train also were members of the family, the German cabinet and representatives of all the various states making up the new republic.

The train should reach Heidelberg at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, and the burial will be in Berg cemetery two hours later. The funeral here was largely a national affair, but at Heidelberg the interment will be in charge of the officials of the city where Ebert was born, and the fire department and police department, many members of which are the sons of men who knew Ebert when he was a humble tailor's son will take part in the ceremonies.

Because of the French occupation, the escort will be small, rather than military, in the Bavarian city. The late president's grave will be on a hillside of the cemetery which commands a view down Neckar valley to the majestic Rhine.

It is estimated that a million persons in the Berlin streets today watched the funeral procession, but the crowds were orderly. At places the crush became so great that the cordons of police were broken through temporarily, but the police never lost permanent control, and aside from a few minor accidents there were no unpleasant incidents.

Political feeling was well curbed for the day. Even the communist made but little demonstration along the route, and the great line of labor and socialistic organizations which marched behind their banners and the procession which followed German labor's greatest leader were not molested by the extremists.

VALEDICTORY IN HOUSE BY SPEAKER GILLETT

Washington, March 4.—In a valedictory speech in the house today, Speaker Gillett, who later took the oath as senator from Massachusetts, declared he would rather be speaker of the house than hold any other position in the world.

Replying to addresses by Representative Longworth of Ohio, the republican leader, who will succeed to the speakership at the next session, Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, and Representatives Snell, of New York, and Tilson, of Connecticut, republicans, Mr. Gillett declared: "It was no ambition or initiative of my own," that led him to relinquish the post.

Declaring that oratory "is perhaps less fervant and effective," now than a generation ago, he expressed the opinion that the late Representative Burke Cockran, of New York, was one of the greatest orators he had known in his 32 years as a member of the house.

"Possibly the house is not as brilliant as it was 30 years ago, it is certainly not as dissipated. It does more work, in my opinion. The average ability, industry and serious devotion to duty is higher today, than when I came.

Defending congress against popular libes, he explained that it "is expected to put into concrete and definite form, by legislation, the hazy and contradictory ideals of the people, and as realization generally falls shore of expectation, so congressional action must always be disappointing."

A SHARP REACTION IN THE PRICES OF STOCKS

New York, March 4.—Publication of President Coolidge's inaugural message, which had been "discounted" by the recent advice in the stock market which carried the industrial and railroad averages to the highest levels in history, was followed late today by a sharp reaction in prices which carried scores of popular issues two to fourteen points below last night's closing levels.

The reaction which apparently was precipitated by speculators for the decline who threw thousands of shares into the market in the final hour of trading, was generally described in Wall street brokerage circles as the traditional "selling on the good news". It was based on the speculative theory that a technical setback was due after the recent prolonged advance in many issues. Commission house comment on the message was characterized as "constructive." While several matters of interest to the financial community were not touched upon by the chief executive, no adverse criticism was contained in the evening market letters of the leading houses.

"The United States produced 714,000,000 barrels in 1924, or 70.5 per cent. of the total world production," said the institute's announcement. "In 1923 the United States produced 732,407,000 barrels, or 71.9 per cent of the world production in that year. The United States production in 1924 decreased 18,407,000 barrels or 2.5 per cent.

"In 1924 the United States and Mexico combined produced 84.3 of the world production, and in 1923, 86.6 per cent."

SIXTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS DILATORY TO THE LAST

Expired With Less Than Half the Officially Approved Legislative Program Written Into Law—All Vital Supply Measures Were Enacted, But Several Bills of National Interest Were Blocked by Delaying Tactics—18,000 Legislature Proposals Had Been Placed Before the 68th Congress.

Washington, March 4.—The sixty-eighth congress expired today with less than half the officially approved legislative program written into law.

With the executive approval today, just within the legal deadline, of the legislative and deficiency appropriation bills, all the vital supply measures were successfully enacted, but there remained on the calendar several bills of national interest which had been given so-called "priority" by the administration leaders. A vote upon these had been blocked by a combination of delaying tactics on the part of opponents and lack of time for consideration.

No measure of general public importance which did get through the jam, however, failed of executive approval. It was declared at the White House tonight, though two or three bills were understood to have been left on President Coolidge's desk when he departed for his inauguration at the capitol. They were all said to be measures dealing with private claims, but whether they were given "pocket vetoes" or were signed before he left was not definitely known.

The Muscle Shoals leasing bill died in conference deapite the expression of hope at the White House that some legislative authority would be given for disposing of that problem.

Farm relief measures were left in various stages, the Capper-Haugen bill on the senate calendar, the McNary-Haugen farmers' export corporation bill in the senate agricultural committee files and several less widely discussed proposals in varying degrees of consideration.

Enactment of a public buildings program, approved by administration spokesmen to make up for the lack of construction during the last decade, failed when the house and senate came to a deadlock upon the matter of jurisdiction over approval of projects. Settlement of French spoliation claims also went over another year, after waiting more than a century, because vigorous opposition by several senators threatened to prevent more pressing legislation.

The McFadden bill to authorize national banks to maintain branches under certain conditions and otherwise to compete with state institutions on a more equal basis, had been put aside in the senate after three days' discussion, and remained truly as technically the "unfinished business" when the final gavel fell.

An omnibus pension bill, changing the basis of compensation for Civil war widows and a similar measure combining hundreds of individual proposals for pensions and increases of gratuity already authorized, also were left on the senate calendar.

Among the bills on the leaders' program which were approved were those increasing postal rate and salaries, providing for a system of "selected settlement," of government reclamation projects, liberalizing the issue of credit from farm loan and agricultural credit banks, and the naval omnibus measure containing many items of interest to that service.

The first senate bill of the congress was a pension measure, proposing an annuity to Mrs. Warren G. Harding; the last was similar in character, proposing a pension to a widow of a Spanish-American War veteran.

The final legislative suggestion in the senate was offered by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, and coincided in context with the speech made a few months later by Vice President Dawes. The New York senator by resolution, proposed to amend the senate rules so as to require three objections to prevent unanimous consent, instead of one as at present.

In the final drive of the last two days, the senate disposed of more than 150 bills which had already been given house approval. No less than 70 were laid before President Coolidge when, in accordance with custom, he stopped at the capital before the inauguration to attach his signature.

Nearly 18,000 legislative proposals were placed before the 68th congress in the course of its two sessions. Bills and resolutions introduced in the house totalled 13,000 and in the senate about 4,800.

Bills signed by the president today, according to a list prepared by White House clerks, include:

Amending patent and trade mark laws.

Disposing of certain Minnesota lands.

Providing funds for award of war labor board to Bethlehem Steel company employes.

Authorizing transfer by war department of certain motor vehicles to agriculture department.

For relief of New York shipbuilding corporations for losses due to changes in contract for battleship No 42.

Extending life of revolving fund for Crow Indians.

Making sundry aenmdments to veterans' compensation act.

Relief of disbursing agents, Alaska engineering commission.

SOCIETY "TRIANGLE" CASE IS INTERESTING LONDON

London, March 4—A dramatic society "triangle" case, in which Mrs. Dorothy Muriel Denniston is suing Lieutenant Colonel Ian Dennistoun, her divorced husband, for money she alleges she loaned him during their married life, and which is drawing throngs of fashionables to the law courts reached its climax this afternoon when the third party in the triangle, hitherto referred to as "General X" was divulged.

He was the late Sir John Stevens Cowans, a distinguished organizer who earned the application of "the greatest quartermaster general since Moses," having been responsible for feeding seven and a half million men during the world war.

In her testimony today Mrs. Dennistoun alleged that she sacrificed herself to Sir John for the sake of her former husband's career. Her suit is the 951 pounds alleged to have been paid by her for his tailor bills and club dues and certain sums paid to him in cash. She explained on the witness stand that she asked him for the money when she learned that he was to be married to Almina, Lady Carnarvon, then the widow of Lord Carnarvon of Tut-Ankh-Amen fame.

STATE STOCK TAX HARD ON INSURANCE COMPANIES

Hartford, March 4—The stock tax on insurance companies is so high and the situation has become so acute that it is driving insurance companies out of Connecticut, Edward M. Day, of Hartford told the legislative committee on finance today. He mentioned a list of companies organized by Hartford interests, which normally would have incorporated here but because of high taxes are doing business with a home office in other states.

In support of this he offered, among others, the names of the following companies which have organized elsewhere: National Franklin Insurance Company of New York; New York Underwriters; Hartford Live Stock; London and Lancashire Indemnity; The Safeguard; American Union; Fire Reassurance; Union Reserve; Lincoln Insurance.

WILLIMANTIC

At the Normal school assembly on Wednesday morning, Principal Shafer spoke briefly on the convention of superintendents of the National Education association which he attended last week in Cincinnati. He told of visiting different schools in the city, the pottery works, and the hospitality with which a crowd greater than all the people in the town of Windham, including Willimantic, was accorded in that city. Concerning Cincinnati further, he quoted Dr. McAndrews, principal of the schools in Chicago, as saying at a luncheon given by the Cincinnati Rotary club, "If heaven were full, I should say to St. Peter, 'Land me down in Cincinnati.'"

The last in the series of meetings of the Social Whist club was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moran, with eight tables playing. Prizes for highest scores were awarded Mrs. Henry Matthieu and Joseph Cyr, seconds to Mrs. Michael Conway and Arthur Bergeron, and third to Mrs. Arthur Bergeron and Jerry Bocash. The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Moran, Mrs. T. J. Connolly, Mrs. J. Bocash, Mrs. William Kilburn, Mrs. Joseph Cyr, Mrs. Iva LaVallee, Miss Pauline Costello and Miss Marion Barnard. Luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Alling and family spent Sunday in New London as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Alling.

As early as 7 o'clock Tuesday evening the crowd began to gather in the auditorium of the Windham High school to wait for Salvi. His is the last in the series of three concerts offered here this winter by the Community Entertainment association, and when the stage curtains were drawn a little before eight, the hall was filled to the door. As he appeared, the greatest harpist in the world was greeted with a burst of anticipatory hand-clapping. As the numbers followed in brilliant succession, the applause grew more enthusiastic, and the intensity that held the crowd during the music more and more marked. Mr. Salvi played: Fantasie in B flat, Alars; Rain in the Garden, Debussy-Salvi; Spanish Dance, Tedeschi: Bacarolle, from Tales of Hoffman; Nordische Ballade; Valse Brilliant, Salvi; Fantasie Impromptu, Chopin-Salvi; Italian Serenade, Salvi; Dance of the Sylphs, Posse; Humoresque, Dvorak-Salvi; The Music Box, Tedeschi; Tarantelle, Aptommas-Salvi. His encores were the Sextette from Lucia di Lammermoor, Amaryllis and Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms, played with variations. It has been said of Salvi that he is to the harp what Ysaye was to the organ and Paganini to the violin. His music speaks out with the simplicity and the wonder of real art, that "exalteth the simple." It is an experience to have heard his music, to have watched him play.

This is the fourth group of concerts given in the city since the organization of the Community Entertainment association, by George A. Shafer, principal of the normal school four years ago. The entertainment association was then represented by all the social organizations in town. It has now a membership of several hundred. The other two concerts given earlier in the year under their auspices were by Lambert Murphy and Sylvia Lent, and Paul Shirley's Boston Symphony Group. Besides Mr. Shafer, the officers include Mrs. Carl Alford, Robert O. Branch and Mrs. Archibald C. Turner.

Dr. W. H. Alexander of Cheshire, Conn., gave a very delightful talk at the meeting of the Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon on Browning and His Mission. The program was under the arrangement of Miss Harriet Gaspold, who was chairman for the afternoon. There was good attendance, and a most interesting afternoon was spent.

Thomas F. Lloyd, lately resigned from the Jordan-Buick company, after three years, is now with Leonard Bros. Inc.

The blind corner at the intersection of Windham and Valley streets, was the occasion of an accident, late on Tuesday afternoon when a new Studebaker touring car owned by Jackson and Bumner, came into collision with a Roe autotruck owned by Joseph Braun of Mansfield. The Studebaker was driven by Roger Lascos, to whom the car was being demonstrated by Stanley Sumner, who was with him. The car was coming down Windham street from the north and had reached the middle of Valley street when Braun's truck caught it at a point near the right rear door, which was smashed in, and the fender damaged. The lighter vehicle was shunted six or seven feet before the cars came to a stop. The police investigated, and both drivers claimed that they sounded warnings as they neared the corner, but neither heard the other. The high stone wall at the northwest corner prevented each from seeing the other. Braun claimed that he had the right of way, being on the right of the other car. His car was slightly damaged. He informed the police that he would settle for the damage, but Wednesday morning informed them by telephone that he had decided not to do so, as he had arrived at the conclusion that he was not to blame. Chief of Police McArthur notified Braun, Sumner and Lascos to appear in court and after a conference between Attorney William A. King and Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, it was agreed that the case resolved itself into a civil action and no action was taken by the court. It was stated that unless Braun makes a settlement satisfactory to the Jackson and Sumner firm, the latter will institute a civil action.

News has leaked out that sometime between Saturday night and the early hours of Monday the postoffice of Connecticut Agricultural College had been entered, the safe pried open and about twelve dollars with some stamps and government stamped stationery taken. The break was discovered by Earl C. Angell of Gurleyville, the clerk in charge, when he opened the office on Monday morning. He found the outer door closed but unlocked, the door of the safe wide open, and the money missing. He notified the college authorities and Postmaster Chaffee of Eagleville, as the postoffice at the college is a substation of the office there. Mr. Chaffee stated that federal authorities were coming to Storrs to make an investigation. It is generally believed that the robbery occurred while practically the entire student body and faculty were at the Armory at a basketball game.

Because of the rumor of scarlet fever cases in Willimantic, a special meeting of the town school committee was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Chairman William J. Sweeney. The situation was thoroughly discussed and a statement made by City Health Officer and Town School Physician Dr. W. E. P. Keating to the effect that there seems to him no necessity for closing either the kindergarten or the other rooms of the Natchaug school. All the cases to town have been investigated by Dr. Keating, and found to be of a mild type. Upon the recommendation of Dr. Keating and School Superintendent C. A. Case, it was decided by the committee to employ a graduate nurse to give a daily inspection of the children at the Natchaug School until all possibility of contagion is past. The services of Miss May Sweeney were secured by the committee and Miss Sweeney began her duties Wednesday morning. She is to make reports to Dr. Keating.

The death of Arthur Smith Barrett, 53, a native of this city, a railroad express manager for over thirty years, occurred Tuesday night at his home in Providence. Mr. Barrett was born in this city, December 25, 1872, the son of Smith and Emma Hills Barrett. He is survived by his wife Gertrude M. As it was nearing the bottom of Pomfret Hill, Tuesday morning, a Ford auto truck owned by Tait Bros. Ice Cream Company, loaded with soda water and driven by the Willimantic representative of the company, Frank Dulces, snapped its front axle, dropped off one front wheel, jammied into the side of the road and turned over. Duclos and Arthur Kampf, who was riding with him had a narrow escape from serious injury.

At the mid-day meeting and luncheon of the Willimantic Exchange club Wednesday, Dr. J. J. Nugent of New Haven spoke on the Medical Practice Act now before the state legislature. Dr. Nugent, who is a practicing chiropractor, spoke in defense of chiropracy and against the proposed measure, which he said would really create a board of laymen having no qualifications for the work to sit in final judgment no others having the care and oversight of the health of the state.

In connection with the study of child training in the advanced class in home economics at the high school, Wednesday afternoon, a party was given by the students to a group of eleven children, between two and six. The girls had planned a number of games, ball, bean-bag, paper dolls and making pictures with crayons, in which the children joyfully participated, after which they listened to stories read by Martha Clough. Then they were served cookies and ice cream, made for them by the class. Although the party was given for the class to put their training into practise, very little "management" was needed. Everybody behaved beautifully. "I wish one would cry" one of the class exclaimed disappointedly, "so we could see what to do about it." Arrangements for another children's party next week are being made by the teacher, Miss Helen Barker.

The amount represents 408 stockholders and exceeds by $50,000 the quota which the most optimistic leaders of the project had hoped for. IN MORE than a million homes every week women are now getting sweet, clean clothes with almost none of the usual heavy work of washing.

Whatever way you like to wash, this same amazing freedom from drudgery awaits you.

This new kind of soap, the perfect laundry soap, alone does most of the hard work of washday. You don't have to stand over the tubs and help it wash by rubbing and rubbing. It spreads its wonderful cleansing power through every drop of the wash water, loosening all the dirt so it floats out. Then your work is just rinsing the clothes.

Because it changes your hard work on washday into the lighter work of rinsing, the makers of Lux named this new soap RINSO. It is as wonderful for your weekly wash as Lux is for your silks and soft woolens.

USE Rinso the way you like best to wash—for soaking, for boiling; 21 leading makers of washing machines recommend Rinso for use in their machines. For the best results:

Dissolve Rinso first in boiling water to set all its good cleansing power free. Pour this rich solution into the wash water, let the clothes soak. Quickly, easily you rinse them out clean—ready for the line. How proud you are to have your neighbors see your snowy, sparkling wash. Get a big new package or the regular size from your grocer. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

"We got into an Argument about the Whys and Wherefores of Different Soaps"

"I LIVE in a three family house and one day when my wash was on the line at 9:30 and the other women in the house were still at their tubs, I asked one of them why she didn't use Rinso. I told her her hands wouldn't be so rough and red if she used Rinso.

"Well, the other woman joined us and we three housewives got into an argument. I suggested that we try an experiment right then and there.

"We took three tubs and put some very soiled clothes in each. I used Rinso in mine and the others used two different soaps. After letting the clothes in all three tubs soak for two hours we scrubbed them up and down, and gave them a good thorough rinsing. I was through in no time and won a box of candy and two dozen users of Rinso! My clothes were spotless, sweet-smelling and you couldn't say that of the others. (Our three homes are now united on Rinso as the best laundry soap for washday.)"

Mrs. A. S. B., East Longmeadow, Mass.

In addition to telling us how they use Rinso for washing clothes, thousands of women have written how wonderful it is for washing dishes, porcelain sinks and bath tubs and linoleums.

Rinso saves you — saves your clothes!

DIRECTIONS

Simply put Rinso into a tub-ful of hot or cold water to set free all its wonderful cleansing power. Rinso dissolves quickly, completely. Pour this rich, happy solution into your tub or machine until creamy lather rolls from up. Drop your wash in. Gently, softly—as your clothes soak—Rinso loosens all the dirt—the dirt you used to rub out by main force! Only a little light rubbing may be necessary on cuff edges and the like where the dirt gets ground in hard.

CHILDLESS HOMES

Read Mrs. Benedict's Letter Praising Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kewanee, Illinois.—"When I was married about a year and a half I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because of ill health. I did not have any children. I now have two healthy little girls and I am sure I would not have had them had it not been for your medicine. Last spring and summer I got all run-down, irregular, and I had awful headaches and my back and sides hurt me so that I could stay up only a short time. My limbs would get so tired and ache till I could cry. I started to take the Vegetable Compound again and used the Sanative Wash, and it was not long till I was relieved. Now I do all my own work and help others. I sure praise Lydia E Pinkham's medicine to any one I meet that is suffering from similar troubles. I think if mothers with girls would give it to them when they come to womanhood it would make them stronger. People who have known me all my life are astonished to see me now as I was always sickly when in my 'teens and until I started taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. MARY R. BENEDICT, 313 Paysen St., Kewanee, Ill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The voice of the president of the United States, making his inaugural address in Washington Wednesday, came through with marked clarity to hundreds who were listening in all through this territory. The great majority of this radio audience never have attended an inaugural; only a small percentage of them ever have been in the city of Washington. It is not surprising, then, that they were thrilled by the radioed descriptions of what was going on, by the music of the bands, the blare of trumpets heralding the president's appearance, the administration of the oath of office and by the splendid address of the chief executive. Probably no previous broadcast has given so much pleasure to so many people hereabouts. It was a splendid treat, again demonstrating how really remarkable the radio service is.

Joseph Simpson, who essayed to pass out of this life the past month by cutting his throat in his room in a boarding house on Water street, has been deported from Killingly, by direction of the selectmen. The action, taken under section No. 1620 of the general statutes of Connecticut, was to prevent his becoming a town charge. Simpson was taken to Providence, which he claims as his home city and legal place of residence, in charge of a constable, as is provided by law. Prior to his being deported he was, by direction of First Selectman John A. Gilbert, subjected to an examination to determine his physicial condition by Dr. George M. Burroughs, and found in suitable health to leave the town farm, where he was taken a few days after he made the attempt on his life. Simpson, though well enough to leave the farm for some time past, showed no inclination to be about and earning his living. The selectmen felt that Killingly was under no further obligation to provide a home for him, as he is a comparatively young man.

Simpson had been here only two or three days before he attempted to do away with himself. He had been long out of work. Though there may be no connection between the fact that he attempted to take his life the day after he obtained a job in a mill here and his becoming despondent that is an interesting circumstance of his history while in this town. Simpson has lived in Rhode Island for years. It is said that he served in the British army during the world war.

John A. Gilbert, Napoleon P. Gingras and Patrick Riley, selectmen of the town of Killingly, spent much of the time that they devoted to their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday to preparing the budget that will be presented to the financial meeting of the town—the adjourned annual town meeting—within a fortnight. The preparation of this budget entails much careful consideration and painstaking detail. In conjunction with the budget prepared on behalf of the town school committee the estimated expense of the town of Killingly for the fiscal year ending July 31 next is expected to be ready for presentation to the public during the coming week, well in advance of the time when the meeting to make the appropriations is to be held.

Of interest at this time is the fact that the selectmen have graciously agreed to increase the budget figure for the Memorial day appropriations, as the appropriation as approved for the past few years has been found to be inadequate to meet present day costs of the annual observance.

Luther Day, resident at Dayville, is to be called upon by the town to reimburse it to the amount of approximately $138, for sheep that a dog he owned is held to have participated in killing in a pasture near Dayville early in last fall. The sheep were the property of George A. Williams of Dayville. Mr. Day's dog was killed by a representative of the commissioner of domestic animals following the raid on the sheep and also another dog owned by another Dayville man. Mr. Day finds himself in the unfortunate position of being faced with the entire cost of the damage done, because the owner of the other dog, which also was shot, has neither property nor money to meet his portion of the obligation, which must, under any circumstances in this case, be paid in full.

Friday afternon, members of the Civic federation are to hold a meeting at the Health station in the town hall building.

Radio reception of the inaugural ceremonies at Washington Wednesday was arranged for the student body at Killingly High school. Earl Bassett of Broad street, a graduate of the school, installed a superior receiving set for the occasion.

The Chic Chic revue company closed a three days' engagement at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday after playing to good business. The show goes from Danielson to Rockville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Manzo, Dr. and Mrs. John Coffey and Robert and Elsie Coffee, all of Providence, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Greeley.

Advances of $300 each annually are coming to postal workers connected with the Danielson office, and many are the congratulations they have received this week on their deserved good fortune.

Michael Ratchford of Boston is here to attend the funeral of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Hardwick. Mr. Ratchford formerly was a resident, leaving here 25 years ago to make his home in Boston.

Henry C. Staples of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Wednesday.

William S. Brown, owner of the Attawaugan hotel, admitted Wednesday morning that he has plans for a modern, four-story brick hotel, to replace the Attawaugan, but does not see his way clear at his time to undertake such an expensive venture. Should he decide to build, and he has given the matter serious consideration for the past two or three years, the present hotel will be torn down.

Through sickness, Gurdon E. Withey has lost another promising fox dog. A few months ago Mr. Withey's best fox hound was killed by a train near the Franklin street crossing.

The usual early season complaints about people riding bicycles on sidewalks are coming in from pedestrians who have had escapes from being run down. Riding bicycles on the sidewalks of the borough is forbidden.

This week end Attorney Louis A. Woisard begins his tour of the villages of Killingly, being at a stated place at a stated time in each community, for the convenience of those who desire to pay personal taxes now due.

Harold B. Atwood is decidedly improved in health at his home on Broad street, a fact very pleasing to all his friends.

Wednesday evening there was a large congregation at the mid-week Lenten services at St. James' church.

Francis E. Storer, Jr., is quite ill at the home of his parents on North Main street.

Blasting that attracted attention in the borough during Wednesday was being done where rock has been struck by cellar excavators on Broad street, near the Lindner property.

Members of the Killingly Woman's club heard an interesting speaker in the person of Rev. Henry Hallum th[illegible] time this week that an address [illegible]day by Rev. Mr. Saunderson has been [illegible] afternoon. Incidentally, Wednesday was Saunderson, of Boston. Wednesday afternoon Monday evening are picked up by numbers of owners of receiving sets here.

All through the business section on Wednesday one might hear what was going on at Washington by listening to the broadcasts so generously distributed locally by dealers in radio apparatus.

Mrs. John Weaver and daughter, Miss Mary Weaver, and Miss Ellen Higgins were visitors in Norwich on Wednesday.

Well, if we cannot all be presidents we can gain many valuable returns by adopting some of the very fine suggestions that the president made in his inaugural address at Washington Wednesday. President Coolidge is very worthy of the best traditions of New England, still the best part of the United States all pretence to the contrary notwithstanding.

PUTNAM

The water department of the city is to have a new pump with a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons of water daily. The water commissioners appeared before the city council at the regular meeting Tuesday evening. G. Allen Hawkins, chairman of the board, told the council that it is an imperative need.

The present equipment of the Putnam water system consists of a water power pump of 1,350,000 gallons daily, and an electric driven one of 1,337,000 gallons. The first named was installed years ago and is of little use, its chief value is as a reserve in case of accident to the other. The new apparatus is of centrifugal type and is electrically driven. The cost would exceed $8,500 and the water department has the money available for its purchase.

The stand pipe on Oak Hill holds 340,000 gallons of water, only about one-quarter of the daily consumption of the city which is 942,000 gallons. Mr. Hawkins said that the present electric pump had never given any trouble since its installation but that in case of accident or fire at the station house it might prove disastrous not to have an auxiliary pump of a more dependable type than the old water-driven one. The council passed a resolution authorizing the purchase. The other members of the board of commissioners are Herbert J. Smith and Alexander Gilman.

No one appeared to protest against the proposed layout of new city streets as presented at the meeting of the council in February, of which due publication has been made. City Engineer George W. Perry exhibited a map, drawn on a large scale showing the location of the propos[illegible] new streets and the property that would or might be affected. In answer to members of the council it was brought out that there could be little if any damage to adjoining property owners by reason of the acceptance of the streets.

A letter was read from Mrs. Annie Johnson of Maple street asking when sewer connections were to be made to her house. She said that action had been promised some time ago.

A request was read for two additional lights on Powhattan street and was referred to the light committee of which Warren S. Ames is chairman. Mr. Ames said that he was not yet ready to report on the new lights asked for on Providence street, and he was given more time.

Captain of Police Jarvis made the following raport for February: Number of arrests 24, of which 19 were for violation of the liquor laws, 1 for violation of motor laws, dog law 1, larceny 3; 9 were sent to jail, 7 paid fines, and 8 were out on bond. Fines and costs paid into the city court during the month amounted to $1,623.16; 45 persons were given lodgings at the city prison.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Edna Maresi Mann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Mann to Joseph Arthur Michel of New York city. Miss Mann is a graduate of Putnam High school and is prominent socially. Mr. Michel is connected with the Imperial Thread Co., of New York. The announcement was made at a party at Miss Mann's home on Grove street Monday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. John Moss, Mrs. Arthur Keith, Mrs. Francis Metcalf, Mrs. Albert Owler, Mrs. Arthur S. Macdonald, Mrs. Howard Shireffs, Mrs. Nelson D. Lown, Mrs. Carlton Blossom and Miss Ruth Morrison.

At Woodstock Monday, Feb. 23, Miss Caroline Andrews became the bride of Evan Ericson, Rev. Davis P. Hatch performing the ceremony. They will live in the house in East Woodstock recently vacated by the bride's parents who have moved to North Windham. It was the intention of the newlyweds to keep the marriage secret for a time but the news of it became public Wednesday.

Three itinerant weavers who make periodical visits to Putnam were presented in city court Wednesday before Deputy Judge Archie Macdonald. They were sent to Brooklyn jail for thirty days and the additional time it will take to work out the costs. Presumably, in order to make sure that he would be arrested, one of the trio, after taking more than his share of alcohol splits "parked" himself in the hallway of the home of Officer Durand, of the local police force.

Putnam High School orchestra is to have two new instruments, a bass viol and a 'cello. A good friend of the school has offered to donate a bass viol, which will be available at an early date. The fund for the purchase has been added to from time to time, until now there is enough money for the purchase of the 'cello. Inquiries are being made as to price and it is probable that an order will soon be placed. A call has been sent out for students who would be willing to take lessons at their own expense on the saxaphone, drums, 'cello, and bass viol and of course play in the oschestra.

At present there are at least four contests for prizes being conducted to which the student body of the high school is eligible, or which it has been specially invited to enter. It is expected that a large number will enter each of these contests. Besides having a chance of winning a prize each contestant will study some interesting subject and learn worthwhile thing.

In the gymnasium of the high school every Wednesday noon those who desire have an opportunity to dance. Music is piano and drums.

HIGH SCHOOL TO CLOSE AS PRECAUTIONARY MOVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, March 4—Putnam High school is to be closed for the remainder of the week as a precautionary measure to prevent any spread of scarlet fever. At a special meeting of the school committee tonight Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, Dr. George T. LaMarche, school physician, and Peter Gardner, health officer, recommended closing in order that the building may be thoroughly cleaned and aired. Four or five of the students have had the fever in a mild form which impelled the school officials to take this prompt action.

Three requirements the Six Bakers had

"In three ways it must be perfect" the six bakers agreed about their ideal loaf.

"It must be richer than any bread has been. For that we will use the same fine ingredients the best housewives choose.

"It must never vary. Housewives must be able to count on it every day. We will meet regularly to test our loaves and our baking and make sure our standard is kept.

"Finally the housewife must receive it fresh. Every day we will bake and deliver to the grocer. Fresh, firm, delicious loaves, so rich they will stay fresh even for days."

THAT is how the Six Bakers created White Rose—and why 300,000 of the finest housewives in the country select it daily. Order White Rose from your grocer today.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. H. T. Jeffers, Misses Gladys and Marian Jeffers, Mrs. Grace Webster and Augustus Greenwood were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gilbert, when their son Tyler came home to supper Tuesday evening. As it was his birthday the next day, he was expected to be real surprised. The party brought a most delicious supper of escalloped oysters, escalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, pickled beets, pickles, celery, rolls, sake, ice cream and coffee. A birthday cake on which were 23 candles was the centerpiece. Place cards were the result of a brainstorm which had afflicted F. H. Gilbert's mind. All the decorations were in green, and the green bon bon favors contained most becoming caps, especially the one worn by Mr. Cheney, for it gave him the ghastly hue which applied to his place card. Whist was played; Mrs. Cheney receiving a coffee and tea container for first lady's prize and Mrs. Webster a mirror as consolation award. Otto Gilbert took the men's first prize, a tube of toothpaste, and Mr. Cheney was consoled with a package of lollypops. Fancy confectionery was served during the game. Radio music and piano and violin duets by Mr. Gilbert and Mrs. Davis added to the pleasure of the evening. Mr. Gilbert received a sweater from the entire party, besides other valuable gifts. The great fun came after midnight when the young man had really reached his birthday. That is, the guests had the fun of utilizing most of the butter in the house in the traditional way.

A local man who keeps the record of the flight of time, notes that regardless of the March winds, one spring harbinger is infallible. Seven weeks from Sunday the New Haven railroad will advance its train schedule and daylight saving time will become effective again, with its attendant mixup, when one goes to visit his friends in the localities that don't set their timepieces ahead an hour.

Prentice W. Chase, editor of the Acco Smile, published monthly for the operatives of the Ashland Cotton company, by the Ashland club, has the following interesting note in reference to his local bowling team:

Never in the history of the Ashland club has a bowling league been so well balanced. So closely are the teams matched that the weekly games bring about an entirely new standing and it is not unusual to find headliners of one week in the cellar the next, or vice versa.

At this writing which takes in the games up to and including those of February 11th, we find Doc Gingras and his cohorts in a tie for first place with Red Harris and his maple smashers. Doc entrely reversed the order of things last week when he took five of six games from Capt. Chase's team, which was leading the league at the time. This unexpected spurt put Chase's gang in a tie for the basement honors. An idea of the closeness of some of the league games may be gathered from the scores of the above mentioned double-header; although losing five of the six games played, Capt. Chase's team was but 54 pins shy on the total pinfall for the evening.

The individual averages have jumped up some since the last report in these columns. Harris, as was expected, has found himself and now has a comfortable lead with an average of 110.6. Lefave has also come right along and is now hitting the timber at 106. Doc Gingras thought he had a couple of the individual prizes cinched when he hit a single of 137 and a three string of 381 a few weeks ago, but Joe Gilbert put a damper on Doc's enthusiasm when he tied both these marks.

Captain Chase and his gang still hold the high team single with 543, but Nap Liberte gave his subjects a shot in the arm one evening recently and added five pins to the high team total which the former held, the new mark being 1488.

The league has four more weeks to run and there are no postponed games on the list.

REQUISITION PAPERS FOR FOR SCULPTOR BORGLUM

Atlanta, Ga., March 4—Governor Walker late today issued requisition papers on Governor McLean of North Carolina for the return to Georgia of Gutzn Borglum, to answer indictments charging milicious mischief and larceny. THE COOLIDGE INAUGURAL.

Simplicity prevailed during the inaugural ceremonies at Washington. That made it entirely in keeping with the Coolidge view concerning such an event. There was eliminated much of the fuss, pomp and demonstration that has marked the occasion in many instances when predecessors were inducted into office. Inasmuch as these things do not jibe with the Coolidge idea they were not attempted. There was manifest, however, due regard for the necessary, the common sense requirements in keeping with the manner in which the president has called for the same in the conduct of the affairs of the nation.

Even as was the inauguration a typical Coolidge affair, so was the address which he made. He wasted no time getting down to the essentials. He made his points, and telling ones, without resorting to elaborate oratorical effort and he sent home with proper emphasis the excellent suggestions he had to make. He outlined with care the duty of the chief executive and the government as he saw it, and interpreted with care the responsibility that had been placed upon him by the people as chief executive. His purposes were set forth with admirable clearness and the impression they made must have been excellent.

Confidence in the outlook for the term was unwavering and when he set forth his determination to insist upon greater economy in government and to work for a reduction in taxation he voiced the sentiment of the great bulk of the people. He was justified in reaching the conclusion that "economy in public expenditure with reduction and reform of taxation" were endorsed by the last election, and well does he say that "That verdict stands. We shall do well to heed it."

His views in regard to foreign affairs were equally as sensible. He continues to favor the world court, the policy of participating in world conferences in accord with recently established practice and he urged no weakening of our effort in behalf of armament limitations.

Under the policies outlined by the president this country cannot fail to appreciate the fact that it has a sane navigator at the helm of the ship of state, that he is ready and willing to strive for the necessary things even though he may be entirely conscious of the task ahead. He advocates no impossibilities. He urges plain common sense and the application of sound businesslike methods. It indicates a delightful conception of the duty involved in the presidency and the disposition to achieve even though achievement is not to be found by following the easiest path. There is a leadership manifest that is gratifying and impressive. The country needs it, and it is to be hoped that there will be such cooperation in the legislative halls in the future as to give it the right kind of support and encouragement.

President Coolidge was brief in his address. Its length is such as to warrant the hope that all will take the opportunity to read and digest it. It is straightforward, sane and satisfying and serves to increase the conviction, if such be necessary, that no mistake was made in the choice of the nation's leader for the next four years.

BROOKHART AND IOWA.

The bringing to an end of the 68th congress has not meant the quieting down of the opposition that is felt toward Senator Brookhart of Iowa, or the ending of the efforts to have him ousted from the office to which he was elected by an exceedingly narrow margin last fall.

In his own state the republican organization, which made him politically, has repudiated him and before congress adjourned there was filed in the senate a notice by the Iowa state committee of republicans that his election will be contested. That this should be a bit displeasing to Senator Brookhart is by no means surprising, but when he makes an announcement to the effect that he will carry the matter to the people of Iowa, that is just what it can be suspected they are desirous of.

Brookhart was nominated as a republican. When it got to the time that it would be impossible to eliminate him as the party nominee he threw his support to LaFollette and denounced the republican candidates and platform. He became a turncoat and yet sought election on the republican ticket. The fight then centered on the election of his democratic opponent and thousands of republicans either voted for a democratic senator or did not vote at all. Statewide efforts were made to instruct the voters on the splitting of the republican ticket so that Brookhart's opponent would get republican votes. To illustrate how the marking of a ballot for cutting should be done a finger pointing to the names on the ballot was printed with the newspaper facsimiles of the split ballot. Because many not only actually split their ballot as instructed but also placed an index finger on their ballot similar to the copy they had seen many were excluded as marked ballots. Brookhart squeezed through by a very narrow margin after it was believed he had been defeated.

In a state which is accustomed to give a republican candidate a rousing majority this displayed the feeling of the people. If Brookhart carries out his plan of going into every county of the state to explain himself he is likely to encounter first hand some of this resentment which was manifested at the polls and perhaps some of the sentiment that has since developed over the fact that so many ballots were thrown out. It is an excellent thing for Brookhart to find out just what they think of him at home.

GERMANY'S ELECTION.

When an extension of four years was given to the presidency of Friedrick Ebert in Germany back in 1921 the conditions were not considered ripe for a presidential election. Conditions have changed somewhat in the meantime, but death has now made it necessary to face that which was postponed. The German republic is without a president at the present time and the date for an election has been set for April 29.

It is going to be a new experience for Germany. It hasn't been customary to elect presidents over there and the result of balloting next month will be watched with keen interest not only throughout Germany and its neighboring countries but throughout the world. The republic is a big experiment. It has been able to withstand the attacks of the nationalists, the monarchists, thus far, but an interesting demonstration is coming as to what it will do under existing conditions.

It can be expected that there will be a raft of candidates, holding all kinds of views and representing all shades of opinions. Whether Germany can be brought to recognize its own welfare to the extent of concentrating its support upon a safe and sound successor to the late President Ebert is the question. The necessity for such is indicated by the fact that the winning candidate must get a majority of the votes. Plurality doesn't count. Much therefore depends upon the strength of the respective candidates and the possibility of several parties endorsing the same candidate.

What the prospects are otherwise is indicated by the fact that in elections for the reichstag no party gets a majority. How parties get together on this matter will thus determine whether the coming election is going to be a success or whether it will have to be followed by another because of the absence of a majority.

THE LABOR BOARD DECISION.

For a long time there has been a national railway labor board, a board which was created with the expectation that it would put an end to strikes on railroads by having the disputes considered on their merits and adjustments made in accordance with the facts. There have since been instances when the authority of the board to act in certain instances was questioned, when it was pointed out that it was dependent upon public sentiment to accomplish enforcement and when determined efforts have been made to bring about the elimination of the board through legislation.

In the meantime there has found its way to the supreme court, a case in which the Pennsylvania railroad has insisted that the board could not enforce its rulings, that it was not obliged under the law to enter into negotiations with the union of the railroadmen even though the board undertook to insist upon it and that it could refuse to treat with any but its own men, an organization among which it had encouraged.

The supreme court has deliberated upon this particular case and it has sustained lower court decisions which upheld the railroad's contention. This settles the matter. The law as it was established has been interpreted by the highest court in the land, and its application in that respect will no longer be the subject of contention.

Whether this will mean that new efforts will be made to change the law or whether it will result in increased pressure being brought to bear against the labor board, the existence of which many have sought to end, are some of the things which the future must reveal.

HIS USELESS PROTEST

"Our front yard is a disgrace," began the neat housewife. "And the less said about the back yard the better only I'd like to call your attention to the fact that every other man in the neighborhood has cleaned up his premises but you, Artemus! There are sixty bushels of leaves lying around waiting for your tender touch and all the dead stalks in the garden to lay low! When are you going to attend to this?"

"I hate nature," responded the hectored husband, adjusting himself in a more permanent position in his easy chair. 'Something always has to be done to it! And yet it persists in looking as though it had just happened—born with a permanent wave and everything! Why, the darned thing can't do anything without having its hand held and being cheered on its way!

"I can remember when I was one of the hare-brained enthusiasts chortling around the country over the vistas of flaming fall maples and the ruddy oaks, shrieking what a gorgeous day it was and look at that heavenly view—but since I have acquired this yard the only emotion I get when gazing on the painted leaves is a dull, heavy sensation at the pit of my stomach.

"My nose does not sniff and twitch like a terrier's when I whiff the keen autumn air and I do not feel like a primitive Indian ready to race miles over the plain and hill! I know what that keen fall air does to the trees and grapevines and bushes sprinkled over my premises, so it is with dark foreboding taste these mornings that I step outside.

"It puts me off my drive every time I remember the sad, wistful faces I left behind me at home, pressed against the window pane looking at the swirl of leaves and rubbish in the yard. And each night as I approach the family dinner table I am buoyed up by the innocent hope of finding that little James has got busy and raked up part of the yard as a surprise for papa, but every identical time my faith in fairies is blasted. I am beginning to be seriously alarmed about James.

"If nature only would let up between whiles it wouldn't be so bad, but just when you think it's all done and are dusting off your hands she calls for help in some new direction. I thought last spring when I got through brushing and combing and manicuring the yard and feeding the garden and restraining the exuberant hedges that I had done all that was required of me, but in six minutes I had to give her a haircut, a large drink every night from the hose and talcum powder to discourage insects.

"When inventors are so smart about radios and planes and bombs it's beyond me why some of them don't concoct a method of slaying the whole crop of slugs, borers, aphids and their cousins with one blast of chemical about June 1 and let us rest in peace and put up our spraying machines for the rest of the summer. Each creature has its use, they say, but I'll present a plush-lined water pitcher engraved with initials to the man who will designate what help a potato bug is to humanity!

"And you always are wanting to move established things like the peony row or the 500 tulip bulbs and most anything else that has long delicate roots extending clear down to the seat of war in China! Say, you know perfectly well that leaf mold is the best soil there is, so why not just let the leaves lie as they are and so make an inexpensive fertilizer for the grass next spring—"

"Don't forget and rake over that new seed bed and remember not to burn the leaves too close to the garage," said the neat housewife just as though nothing had been said, "Here's the new rake!"

"Oh, well," sighed the hectored husband, heaving himself out of his chair quite sulkily.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The "Henry Ford of England" is what they call W. R. Morris, who today is Britain's great automobile manufacturer. It is said that you can't make bricks without straw, but Mr. Morris may be said to have made an enormous fortune out of nothing. He had, however, priceless assets in grit and determination which, when he was seventeen, he put into the making of bicycles, and, later, motor cars. When still in his teens he opened a little shop in Oxford and built "pish-bikes," which he sold to his acquaintances. The first year he was able to dispose of fifty of his machines. After several years of hard work and self-denial he had saved $10,000 from his earnings. With this comparatively small capital he started making automobiles and he was successful from the first. The yearly business of his company now amounts to $50,000,000, and his firm produces four times as many cars as any other British company.

Abbey Bashfully Kept to His Room.

Intensely shy, Edwin A. Abbey did not feel at ease even among relatives with whom he was boarding, and he spent most of his evenings alone in his modest little room.

During all his youth he had enjoyed his books and his art. In his home in Philadelphia he began to draw pictures at two. His parents desired that he should be a minister, but, as he said in later years, he was "a disappointment as a schoolboy."

After attending a classical school while the demands of the Civil War made abstinence the rule at home, he obtained a position at 16 with an engraving firm to learn drawing on wood for illustrating, at the same time attending night classes at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts. Small for his age and near-sighted, he kept much to himself.

At 18 he entered the art department of Harper & Brothers, publishers, New York, at $15 a week. He boarded with relatives and in his room at night read and painted in water colors by candle light, and at times worked until almost dawn.

At the end of three years his salary was $25 a week, but he quit when his request for another increase was refused. With a partner he opened a studio as free lance artist. Orders were few and his savings began to disappear, but he continued to send money home and had to paint himself. His picture "The Stage Office", displayed at National Academy of Design was sold for $300, and was called the success of the year.

Commissioned by Harpers to go to England at 26 to make illustrations for Robert Herrick's poems, he ambitiously overworked and was ill for nearly a year. His work on Herrick's poems and on Shakespeare's plays won him fame. His first painting in oil, "A May Day Morning," was accepted by the Royal Academy.

At 38 he married an American girl, and although he spent the greater part of his time in England he remained an American citizen. He worked for 11 years on the series of paintings, "The Quest of the Holy Grail" for the Boston Public library, was commissioned by Edward VII to paint his coronation, and became one of America's foremost figure painters.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

MODERN NIGHTS OF BAGDAD

Out of Bagdad, a thousand years ago, came the Thousand and One Nights.

Out of Bagdad, via the American Consulate, comes a report based on observations of Sir Arnold Wilson along the Oman and Persian gulfs. These, says a bulletin from the National Geographic society, show that amid the dawn of oil concessions the color is still there!

"The very names have the tinkle of temple bells—Oman and Bahrein, Maskat, Bandar and Bushire—and the places bear out the exotic promise," says the bulletin.

"Maskat, half way up the Oman coast, is one of the most picturesque harbors in all the world. The town lies crammed into a narrow valley at the foot of volcanic crags. The harbor is a lake of deep blue, the houses stand on the very verge of the water, and ruined Portuguese forts crown the heights that command it on either side. A gap in the rocks renders life insupportable during the appalling heat of the summer months, when the sun's rays, reflected from glowing rocks, scorch like an oven.

"And if you pick up an Arab travel writer's account of this heat you read:

"'The heat was so intense that it burned the marrow in the bones; the sword in its scabbard melted like wax, and the gems which adorned the handles of the dagger were reduced to coal. In the plains the chase became a matter of perfect ease, for the desert was filled with roasted gazelles.'

"And if one asks an explanation of a natural phenomenon he realises that the imagination which conceived Ali Baba still lives in stories such as this:

"'Solomon was once in the Persian Gulf in a rowing-boat; he dabbled his hand in the water, as landsmen will, and dropped his signet ring. A porpoise was at hand.

"'Porpoise, find my ring,' said Solomon.

"'On my head, on my eyes,' said the porpoise, and commenced to dive.

After a time he came to the surface. "Solomon," he said, 'I can't find it."

"'Look again,' said Solomon.

The porpoise dived afresh, and again reported failure.

"'Look again,' said Solomon.

Again the porpoise came into the surface.

"'Solomon,' he said, "it is no good, I can't find it." Solomon was wroth. "'Go on looking till you find it," he said, and now, whenever a porpoise sees a boat, he approaches it, diving incessantly because he thinks Solomon may be on board. When there is no boat in sight he does not look for the ring, because he is lazy, like a human being.'

"Nature adds bizarre touches of her own. The Persian gulf is famous for displays of phosphorencence by night. The writer tells of a night when all round his vessel the sea glowed with pale blue light; the ripples thrown out on either side became diverging streams of lambent flame; the crest of every wave glowed as though the sea was afire; around the bows porpoises played in ghostly brilliance; the wake shown with a light that made the moon seem pale.

"Bushire is a port—a port where a large ship may have to anchor six miles off shore unless the tides enable it to ride to the inner anchorage, three miles nearer. The city is virtually an island, separated from the mainland by nine miles of mud flats, often impassable even by mules. In the inner harbor, riding at anchor, is the Persepolis, an ancient German cruiser, the sole representative of the Persian navy. It is for sale.

"Near Bandar Abbas is Ormus, once the Bombay of South Persia, today almost deserted. It has no fresh water save what the fruitful clouds weep over her, in sorrow at her desolation, late so populous' but it gives the traveler pause for memory of its high adventures. The British and the Portuguese fought there for mastery of the Eastern Seas; there the discoverer of Baffin's Bay met death.

"'Master Baffin went in shore with his geometrical instruments, for the taking of the height and distance of the castle wall, for the better leveling of his Peace to make his shot; but as he was about the same, he received a small shot from the castle into his belly, wherewith he gave three leaps, by report, and died immediately.'

"1925 commerce statistics will inform you further that Ormuz trades in red oxide and rock salt for local use.

"Interest in the Arabian side of the Persian gulf centers about Bahrein, the island of pearls, where the rich Arab merchants have electric lights and fans and automobiles. Then there is the Pirate coast, described as a desolate, wind-swept shore and a tangle of narrow creeks and shallow lagoons. Here live many retired pirates who have turned their attention to the pearl industry.

"Even oil, on the Persian etso "Even oil, in the Persian gulf, is not without its romance, when a trade observer quotes Keats:

'And divine liquids come with odorous ooze
Through the cold serpent-pipe refreshfully.'"

Stories That Recall Others

A Hint to the Inspector.

It is always the way that when an inspection of weights and measures is going on there's a number to watch. This was at a gasoline pump. A farmer watched for a while and then called the inspector to one side. He questioned him about his duties, ascertained that he was a bona fide inspector, found out all the details of his work and then said:

"You have authority to prosecute any one dealing out 'shorts?'"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, there is a certain bootlegger here in town that I know is selling short half pints!"

His Wife's a Great Help

"My wife's a great help to me," remarked the cross word puzzle fan, as he sharpened two extra pencils.

"How's that?" inquired his friend.

"Last night I asked her to give me a nine letter word meaning a rough draft and what do you think she suggested?"

"I'll bite," said the friend. "What did she suggest?"

"Hurricane."

ADVOCATE STATE PURCHASE OF EGG-BEARING LOBSTERS

Purchase by the state at prevailing market prices of all egg-bearing lobsters caught by fishermen was urged before the legislative fish and game committee Tuesday afternoon by Representatives Warren B. Burrows and Louis H. Allyn of Groton and Representative James Floyd of Waterford. They appeared in the interests of fishermen from this section and advocated passage of the senate bill 265, introduced by Senator Frederick Beckwith of East Lyme, which calls for the appropriation of $25,000 for that purpose. Senator Beckwith was also on hand and advocated adoption of the measure.

A big delegation of fishermen from New London county journeyed to the capitol including a bus load of 35 from Groton, East Lyme, Waterford and other neighboring towns. Several bills of vital interest to the fishermen came up for discussion at the hearing, which was held in room 66 in the capitol building with Representative Wheeler of Stratford, house chairman of the committee, presiding.

Representatives Burrows, Allyn and Floyd opposed house bill 795, providing for a closed season for lobsters during the winter months, on the ground that it would drive numerous fishermen out of business. Arguments were advanced showing that few egg-bearing lobsters are taken during that period and that the continued open season would have little effect from the standpoint of conservation.

Opposition was likewise voiced aainst house bill 796, which would change the present measurement rule to the so-called eye-socket measuring system and actually prevent taking of any lobsters not over 10 inches in length. The present rule makes nine-inch lobsters the minimum size. Representative Burrows argued forcefully on the subject, declaring that it would only result in developing a crop of "bootlegging" fishermen who would be dealing in shorts.

Plunger and Mrs. Plunger Understand

Blest be he with heart so great
He'll labor for another's sake.
—Plunger the Osprey.

From a distance Plunger and Mrs. Plunger had watched what Farmer Brown's boy and Farmer Brown had been doing. As soon as the latter had disappeared in the house Plunger and Mrs. Plunger began circling high in the air above the queer looking thing that had been set up close to the fallen tree where their nest had been. Plunger was excited.

"Look, my dear!" he cried to Mrs.

"Well, my dear, what do you think of it?" cried he Plunger. "Just look at that! That thing has been put up especially for us. You remember that when we were on our way up from the south we saw several of these with nests of other Ospreys."

Mrs. Plunger said nothing. She circled lower and lower. Finally she alighted on the cart wheel on the top of the tall pole. She looked it all over with the greatest interest. She tested it to see if it was solid. It was. She knew that there was no danger that it would break. That cart wheel made a splendid platform on which to build a nest. It was better than the tree that had blown down. Plunger flew down and perched beside her.

"Well, my dear, what do you think of it?" he asked.

Happiness sparkled in the eyes of Mrs. Plunger. "I think," said she, we are going to build a new home right here. I think this was put up especially for us."

"I know it was," declared Plunger. "Farmer Brown's boy knew just what we needed, and he put up this thing just for us. It is useless for anybody else. We'll have a better home here than ever. When shall we begin work on it?"

"The first thing to-morrow morning?" replied Mrs. Plunger. "It is too late now, for already the Black Shadows have begun to creep out from the Purple Hills. But to-morrow morning we'll start in as soon as it is light. Now aren't you glad I didn't agree to go over near the Big River to build our new home?"

"Yes," replied Plunger meekly. "Somehow you always do know what is best."

Meanwhile from a respectful distance Blacky Crow and Sammy Jay had watched Plunger and Mrs. Plunger. "They seem to like that thing," remarked Sammy Jay.

Blacky nodded, "So I see," he replied. "I am beginning to have an idea of what Farmer Brown's boy put that up for. Wait until tomorrow," he continued. "Unless I am greatly mistaken, that is going to be a very busy place to-morrow. I don't think we are going to lose the Plungers as neighbors just because the tree with their nest blew down."

"Meaning what?" asked Sammy.

"As I said before, wait and see," replied Blacky.

MYSTERIOUS STABBING IN A SHAW ST. MARKET

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 4.—Joseph Carolla, 36, of 29 Shaw street, is a patient tonight at Lawrence hospital, suffering from a knife wound in the left shoulder inflicted in a fight which started in the market of Joseph Pezzolla, 21 Shaw street, and which terminated when Carolla received the knife wound, outside the store. Pezzolla, who resides at 71 Woodbridge street, and Joseph Spadero, of 31 Shaw street, are being held by the police as assailant and accomplice. According to Carolla, he went to the new street market about 9.30 o'clock and hardly had he entered the place when he was attacked by Spadero, without cause. Spadero fought Carolla to the street, where the latter alleges Pezzolla attacked him with a knife, sinking the weapon deep in the left shoulder. The police found Carolla in a weakened condition outside Pezzolla's store when they responded to the call. Spadero, who was in front of the store was taken into custody following the assault and when Carolla had informed the police as to what had occurred, Pezzolla was arrested two hours afterwards, following the police making a search of the Italian district in the vicinity of where the assault took place. At Lawrence hospital where Carolla is under treatment, it was stated that while the wound is a serious one, the extent of its seriousness will not be decided for a day or two, but his condition is considered settled. What caused the row, resulting in the assault, no one that was a witness to the attack could explain.

JURY BRINGS IN VERDICT AFTER MORE THEN THREE HOURS DELIBERATION

A verdict of $1,000 damages and costs was returned in favor of Frank D. Crooker of Page street extension by the jury in the superior court at New London, Wednesday afternoon, after it had been out three hours, after Judge Allyn L. Brown had delivered his charge to them. Crooker sued the Eastern Connecticut Power company for $7,500 damages because of an automobile accident about noon on Sept. 3 last when a truck of the power company struck Crooker's touring car at the junction of North Main street and Central avenue. The touring car was turned over in the crash, Crooker sustained a cracked shoulder blade and the machine was pretty much demolished.

Trial of the suit was begun last week before Judge Brown and a jury. Wednesday morning attorney C. Hadlai Hull made his final argument for the plaintiff after which Judge Brown gave his charge and sent the twelve men to the jury room. This was at 11.45. At 2.45 the jury brought in the verdict which was accepted by the court.

SAFENOVITZ IS WINNER IN BOYS' PRIZE SPEAKING

Slater hall was filled to capacity on Wednesday evening when the Newton Perkins prize speaking contest was held. There were eight speakers contesting for the prize and at the close of the programs the judges, Attorney Arthur M. Brown, Philip A. Johnson and John J. O'Rourke, met and decided on the winner of the contest. The prize was awarded to Samuel Safenovitz '25, whose selection was The Death Penalty, by Victor Hugo. Honorable mention was awarded to Harold David Disco '26, whose speech was The Lady Who Threw Her Slipper, R. Phillips.

In selecting the prize winners the judges devoted much consideration to the manner in which the speakers handled themselves, making it difficult to make a selection. In speaking of the contest, the judges mentioned that the enunciation and ability to commit to memory had proved exceptionally good among all contestants for the prize. The speeches were all delivered with force which added greatly to their effectiveness. In criticism the judges pointed out that all contestants were short on gestures, which is always an aid in public speaking.

As in past years Principal Henry A. Tirrell was in charge of the program, introducing the speakers as they appeared in the contest. Previous to the speaking of the evening the Academy orchestra, under the able leadership of Director Frederic H. Cranston, rendered a most pleasing group of selections, winning for themselves well merited applause. The programme follows:

Flag Day. Schramm
Venetian Love Dance. Rich
Spanish Dance No. 1 Moszkowski
Valse Pathetique. Lake

The speaking contestants and their selections were as follows:

Americanism and The Foreign-born. Woodrow Wilson
Raymond Joseph Woods '26.
Long Bow Against Camera. Gorton Carruth

The Lady Who Threw Her Slipper. R. Phillips
Harold David Disco '26.
The Last Lesson. Alphonse Daudet

The Last Race. Ernest Harold Boyens
Charles Edward Sargent '26.
The Death Penalty. Victor Hugo
Samuel Safenovitz '25.
Hannibal on the Alps. Swan

Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY ON LIFE OF JESUS

"The Young Manhood of Jesus:" was the topic of the Bible study at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. The scriptures used were Mark 6:1-6 and Luke 4:16-19. There was a good attendance and a very helpful and interesting discussion resulted.

Among other points the following were developed in the discussion: Jesus was brought up in the small town of Nazareth, and in all probability it was better than a large city; opinion differed as to what was best, today the town or city, both have their advantages. Joseph, Jesus reputed father, was probably a quiet modest man and very devout; he doubtless died while Jesus was yet young and Jesus being the eldest son took the lead in support of the family. The fact that he was a carpenter brought him closer to humanity than if he had been a rich man, though many rich men are very close to those who are not rich. Jesus, was humanly speaking, largely a "self-made man" though no one has ever been completely self-made; a good education is desirable, though not a few college men fail of success, and many who never attended college have been successful. Jesus greatly valued the synagogue, the church is doubtless of greater value to a community than a factory or a bank, though each has its place. Jesus found as many or more suggestions of religious truth outside the bible as in it, though he was a profound student of the old testament. The reason that the sinless life of Jesus had so little influence on his neighbors was that they were more or less jealous of him and Jesus realized that every man's ability is recognized far more away from than at home. The reason, or one of the reasons that Jesus teachings are valued so highly is that he lived them, that is he practiced what he preached, and this sort of thing is greatly needed in our day. The program of Jesus as told in Luke 4:18 should be our program so far as it is humanely possible.

STREET DEPARTMENT TRUCK WENT OVER BANK

Unable to Locate Automobile Owner.

Pursuant to the request of the New London police to investigate into the activities of automobile registered 3320, which was alleged to have sideswiped the car of William Weinberg of Montauk avenue, New London, on Tuesday night, the Norwich police phoned back to New London that they knew nothing of a Mrs. Minnie Evelyn Taylor, under whose name the car was said to be registered and that such a person could not be located in Norwich or Norwich Town. No. 2, Norwich, which was on the Salem turnpike.

Mr. Weinberg told the New London police that he did not get the number of the car that hit his machine, but someone told him it was 3320.

The helmet is one of the new and natty hat shapes which figured in the display at the openings Wednesday.

Toques, medium and large hats are leaders also. In fact, Fashion this spring offers a wide range of shapes and materials, so that all shoppers may be satisfied.

The favorite colors seem essentially springlike—bright, new tints in wood browns, topaz, terrapin, honey, grayish tans, rosewood, reseda green, tortoise-shell, beige—they are charming. Much attention was paid the new Madonna blue, which is a soft blue bordering on lavender.

The saucy topknot of flowers or ribbon distinguishes some of the newest models.

SEIZED LIQUORS MAKE PROBLEM IN STORAGE

Treasury officials at Washington have called attention to the problem of storing confiscated liquors, stating that it warrants being placed next in importance to enforcement of the dry law itself. Especially is there congestion in Pennsylvania and New York states.

In Connecticut the situation is, on the other hand, not critical or warranting the construction or leasing of more warehouses, according to state and federal authorities. The state police when they make a liquor haul secure an order as soon as possible for its destruction. Samples for evidence are kept at the several barracks where special safes or rooms are provided for such purpose. The bulk of the seised liquor is usually stored at the spot where it is captured or very near there and placed under guard until the order for destroying it is received. On January 24, 1926, the state police made a capture of liquor valued at $250,000 in Danbury. With the exception of some for evidence, it was stored in Danbury under guard, and on February 3 it was all destroyed by the police. The state police have no place to store seised liquor, but the need for a warehouse or further storage facilities does not exist. So long as an order for destruction of the captured intoxicants can be secured within a short time, which has been the usual procedure in Connecticut where state authorities have made the seizures, it is less expensive to store the haul on the spot rather than transport it about the state. When liquor is seized in trucks or automobiles it must necessarily be moved some distance to a suitable storage place. The automobiles are returned to the owners.

In the cases where federal agents make the seizures, the liquor is taken to the government warehouse in New Haven where it is stored until decisions can be made in the federal courts. When the decision of the court has been received the liquor is destroyed. The one government warehouse in the state is large enough to meet present day demands. Occasionally federal agents bring the smaller quantities of liquor to the federal headquarters here.

Liquor seized while being brought into the state from the Sound by way of the several harbors along the Connecticut coast, is usually placed under the charge of Customs Officer Harvey Bissell in Bridgeport, who likewise looks after its destruction when the cases have been heard in the federal courts. Some of the liquor seized along the coast is captured by state police, who usually, where the boat is captured, turn the case over to Mr. Bissell, or otherwise follow the course of procedure of taking the cases before local courts. The state police in the last seven weeks have seized liquors valued at well over $310,000. Federal agents have also made large hauls.

In the cases where local authorities of various cities or towns make the capture, the liquor is held at the police stations to be disposed of by local officers.

ANAEMIA

A remarkable discovery has enabled thousands of worn-out, tired, nervous, anaemic people to increase their strength and energy, often in two weeks' time, and to quickly change their leaden pallor and listless look to the pink skin, rosy lips and sparkling eyes of glowing health. Formerly they were given the old-fashioned tinctures and pills made from mineral iron, which many doctors now say are scarcely assimilated at all, and so give little benefit. But since the discovery of a new combination of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which, being like the organic iron in our own blood, is promptly taken up by the blood, thousands have found that they can banish every trace of tiredness and dizziness, those peculiar pains and that nervousness incident to old age, in a few short weeks. Furthermore, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. It quickly helps build up rich, red blood that carries new strength, vitality and youth to your whole body.

No matter how weak and ill you feel, or how many other medicines you have tried in vain, make this convincing test: Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks, and if you do not notice a wonderful improvement in strength and energy and look years younger, the druggist will promptly refund your money. Nuxated Iron is sold under this absolute guarantee by all good druggists.

BROADWAY ATHLETES PROVE THERE SUPERIORITY OVER OTHER SCHOOLS

Excitement ran high in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium yesterday afternoon when the Broadway, Greeneville and Elizabeth Street grammar schools met to decide the season's athletic supremacy and which resulted in Principal Clapp's Broadway lads capturing the Clegg trophy, followed by Greeneville and Elizabeth Street schools.

In spite of the keen competition that continued until the close of the meet it seemed to be Broadway's day, for they succeeded in copping the first event and continued to place first in nearly all the events that followed.

A capacity crowd of rooters turned out to cheer their teams to victory, and they fairly raised the roof of the big gym as they tried to rouse their favorites to greater efforts.

Obstacle race: Broadway, first, Elizabeth Street, second; Greeneville, last.

Potato race: First heats won by R. Wilson, Merle Redhead, Greeneville; Sadinski, H. Wisgraver, Elizabeth Street; Lynch, Demosthenes Angelopolis, Broadway.

Potato race finals: Stencewicz, Broadway; Redhead, Greeneville; Angelopolis, Broadway.

M. C. A. physical department.

FORMER GIANT CAPTAIN DIES AT AUGUSTA

Augusta, Ga., March 4.—John M. Ward, one time captain of the New York Giants, died at a hospital here this afternoon at 4.45 o'clock. He celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday yesterday. The veteran ball player was spending the winter season in Augusta.

Death resulted from an attack of pneumonia, which he contracted while on a hunting trip early last week.

Mr. Ward had been a winter visitor to Augusta for a number of years. He was an ardent lover of golf, and after giving up baseball devoted considerable time to the game. He was at one time one of the leading amateur golfers of the United States.

WARD WAS ONE OF THE GREATEST OF INFIELDERS

New York, March 4.—John Montgomery Ward, who died in a hospital in Augusta, Ga., today, was one of the great infielders of the old New York Giants, and was playing short field and second base as captain of the world champion teams in 1888 and 1889, when Jim Mutrie was manager.

His infield partners in those years included Roger Connor, Daniel Richardson and Arthur W. Whitney. The pitchers included Henry (Hank) O'Day, now one of the National league's best known umpires, and Tim Keefe. Jim O'Rourke played in the outfield.

In 1888 Ward led the Giants to a world victory over St. Louis in six out of ten games and the next year conquered Brooklyn in six out of nine.

After leaving baseball Ward practiced law in New York and in later years was among the leading amateur golfers of the metropolitan district as a member of the Fox Hills club.

In 1880 Ward was a pitcher and won a no-hit game for Providence against Buffalo in the National league.

NURMI LOWERS ANOTHER RUNNING INDOOR RECORD

New York, March 4.—Paavo Nurmi ran to a world record for 1 1-8 miles in four minutes 56 4-5 seconds at the 106th Infantry games in Brooklyn tonight.

The former record, 4 minutes 58 seconds, was made by Nurmi at the Brooklyn College competition, January 24. In his race tonight he defeated Willie Goodwin of the New York A. C., by a third of a lap. Andy Straw of New York was half a lap behind and Ilmar Prim of the Finnish-American A. C. was distanced.

The flying Finn failed to lower his figures for 2,000 yards, running six seconds slower than he did at Buffalo on Feb. 12. Nurmi left for Canada immediately after the race.

Willie Plant, American champion walker, who has conquered the Olympic champion, Ugo Frigerio of Italy, on three occasions, fell victim to a heavy handicap and finished second to Charles Eschenback of the Pastime A. C. in the 1 1-3-mile walk. Eschenback, allowed 35 seconds, finished in 10.11, a step ahead of Plant.

Willie Ritola of the Finnish-American A. C., raced away from his field at 2 1-2 miles, finishing in 11 minutes, 45 seconds, only a second behind his record. He covered two miles in 9.39, defeating his clubmate, Ilmar Prim, and Joe Costello of the Millrose A. A.

Carl Christierson, Newark A. C. hurdler, tasted defeat in an 80-yard event, Herb Meyers and Tom Farrell of his own club leading him to the tape.

BULKELEY-ACADEMY BASEBALL GAME AT NEW LONDON, APR. 25

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 4.—The complete home schedule for the Bulkeley baseball team for the season of 1925 was announced Tuesday. Ten games appear on the card with the majority of the teams to be opposed being the best high school nines in the state. The schedule has been divided into two sections for annpuncement, the in-town arrangement and the out-of-town arrangement of games for the coming season. The out of town scdedule is far from completed as yet, and only the home schedule was given out for publication.

Of the home schedule, seven new teams appear on it. Relations with Naugatuck high and New Britain high have been strained to the point where they will not be included in the schedules of any sport activity at Bulkeley. Torrington high which was decisively defeated last year, were not so keen to come to New London to play this year. They would not include Bulkeley on their home schedule, so the natural alternative was to drop this team from the schedule. It is noticeable that only Norwich Free Academy appears on the home schedule, and this team will be the sole representative from the eastern section of the state this year. Although Windham will be included in the out of town arrangement.

The home schedule for 1925 season follows:

Saturday, April 18—Morris High of New York.

Saturday, April 25—Norwich Free Academy.

Wednesday, April 29—Washington high of Meriden.

Tuesday, May 5—Hartford Public High school.

Saturday, May 9—New Haven Commercial High school.

Friday, May 15—New Haven Hillhouse High school.

Wednesday, May 20—Collegiate Preparatory school of New Haven.

Saturday, May 23—Bridgeport High school.

Saturday, Memorial Day, May 30—Crosby High of Waterbury at the Submarine Base.

Wednesday, June 10—Wilby High school of Waterbury.

All games will be played at Morgan park with the exception of one game and that with Crosby high will be played at the Submarine base.

WANTS DUNDEE PLACED IN LIGHTWEIGHT TOURNEY

Baltimore, Md., March 4.—Alleging that the decision of the referee and judges declaring Charlie O'Conell, of Cleveland, winner over Joe Dundee of Baltimore, at the lightweight championship elimination tournament in New York last week was unfair, the Maryland boxing commission has requested the New York State Athletic commission to declare the bout "no contest" and to reinstate Dundee in the tournament.

Says—Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

Joint-Ease they call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, penetrating prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Always remember, when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.

Eddie Kane, manager of Tommy Gibbons, who also guides the ring destinies of Mandell, notified the commission today that Mandell would accept the nomination and compete in the tournament.

Mandell, who recently scored a point verdict over Sid Terris, crack Brooklyn lightweight, is regarded as the leading lightweight in the quest of Leonard's crown and the commission particularly desired his name to be included among those competing for the title.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Manager Bill Killefer of the Chicago Cubs, has gone to the Catalina Islands to arrange for the spring training operations of his team. The players are due to start West February 26.

Los Angeles has obtained H. A. Sanders, who pitched for Mexia in the East Texas League last year, and C. W. Johnson, a semi-pro twirler from Denver, according to announcement from Oscar Reichow.

Owner W. C. Smith of the Indianapolis club of the American Association, is in Plant City, Fla., to get everything in shape for the training of the Hoosiers who will work out there for the second spring in a row.

Little Rock of the Southern League has purchased Pitcher George L. (Lefty) Winn, and Outfielder Elmer (Ty) Lober, both from the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Winn formerly pitched for Nashville and New Orleans in the Southern Association.

Salisbury's berth in the Piedmont League apparently is now assured. A lease has been signed for a plot of ground between Salisbury and Spencer and the American Legion's grand stand and fence will be moved there, thus insuring the club of a place to play its games.

The Cleveland Indians do not propose to let First Baseman Frank Brower go to the Cincinnati Reds. A few weeks ago Cincinnati claimed Brower via the waiver route, and it was expected he would put up a strong fight for the position of first baseman on the Red team.

Frank (Ping) Bodie has filed suit for divorce against his wife, Anna Bodie, whom he married in 1908. Ping alleges that his wife helped spoil his baseball career by maligning his character. Bodie was with the White Sox several years ago and played with Vernon and Omaha in the order of the towns named.

The mid-winter league which is playing a schedule of games in San Francisco and neighborhood is having a lot of trouble with the weather. It is the rainy season there and there seems to be some question about the league being able to go through with its full schedule.

John Levi, known as the "charging Buffalo" of the Haskell Indians' football team, has signed a contract for a tryout with the New York Yankees. He is a full-blooded Arapahoe Indian. He's an outfielder, bats and throws right-handed; is fast and can hit all kinds of pitching. It is said that he is of the Bob Muesel type, a sharp line drive hitter. "Charging Buffalo" was to have gone with the Yankees last year but he preferred to try for a place in the American Olympic team. He sprained his ankle before the Kansas relays and was not in condition for the rest of the year. He finished his school career last fall and now is ready to make his bid for fame as a ball player.

At a conference between Manager Jack Hendricks and President August Herrmann of the Cincinnati Reds, it was agreed to call off negotiations for the purchase of Outfielder Walter Christensen of St. Paul. St. Paul is said to have wanted $35,000 for the player and then along came Bob Connery with his money.

Johny Roser, one of the leading hitters of the Eastern league has been sold to Baltimore of the International League by Worcester. The deal, it is claimed, involved only cash. Roser hit .330 in 1924 and was a slugger of the first water. His 38 home runs just topped the mark set by Lou Gehrig, the young first baseman who goes back to the Yankees.

Baseball is being received with enthusiasm on the West coast of Mexico and bids fair to be the most popular sport in the country, according to Pete Arzate and Cowboy Ruiz, battery mates on a baseball team that is now making its headquarters in Masatlan Sinaloa. The players said a stadium with a capacity of 3,000 recently was completed in Masatlan and that tickets to games are sold before the day of play.

The memorial to Frank Chance, late manager of the Chicago White Sox, to be erected in the Cubs' park, will be a tablet, President Veeck of the Cubs announced, after completing his examination of designs submitted. The memorial to Chance, who gained baseball fame as the Peerless leader during the years he managed the Cubs, will be a tribute from the management of the Cubs. It will be similar to the memorial in the Cincinnati park in honor of Frank Bancroft, who served as secretary to the Reds for years.

Appraiser of O'Neil Estate

Michael F. Loughman, attached to the state tax commission in New York, has been appointed appraiser of the New York estate left by the late James O'Neil, Jr., son of the noted actor, the late James O'Neil of New London.

Eugene Gladstone O'Neil of Ridgefield, Conn., author and playwright, succeeds to the estate of his brother who died without a will.

RICKARD TAKES LEASE ON YANKEE STADIUM FOR OPEN AIR BOXING

New York, March 4.—(By The A. P.)—Tex Rickard concluded negotiations today for a one year lease of the Yankee Stadium for boxing purposes and disclosed details of a fistic programme for the 1925 outdoor season that promises to boom the sport to proportions it has not enjoyed since 1923.

The promoter, who closed the deal for the Stadium with Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, has matched Jack Delaney and Paul Berlanbach, slugging light heavyweight rivals, for a return match at the Stadium May 22. Delaney knocked out Berlenbach a year ago.

Harry Wills and Tom Gibbons, the leading heavyweight challengers, probably will be the principals in the second show at the ball park, staged under Rickard's direction for the benefit of the milk fund on July 22 to 24. This bout has been in process of negotiation for some time, to establish an outstanding challenger for Jack Dempsey, and its ultimate fate depends upon the action of the state athletic commission on title challengers which both Wills and Gibbons have filed.

Champions in most divisions are being sought by Rickard for important title bouts. Cannonball Martin, bantam-weight titleholder, has agreed to defend his crown outdoors, providing he retains it in his match March 20 at Madison Square Garden with Phil Rosenberg. Rickard desires to match Martin with the winner of the bout between Harold Smith of Chicago and Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., who clash in a semi-final to the Rosenberg Martin go. Martin also has in prospect a battle at the Stadium with Pancho Villa, Filipino holder of the world's flyweight title.

Mickey Walker, welterweight king also is ready to defend his title under Rickard's auspices. If the present ban placed on him by the New York Athletic commission is lifted.

Boyle's Thirty Acres, Rickard's Jersey City arena, will see little important activity as a result of the promoter's plan to concentrate his activity at the Stadium, where he believes decision bouts offer a more attractive, popular inducement than no-decision laws affecting bouts in New Jersey.

COOLIDGE INAUGURAL ADDRESS GIVES VIEWS ON DOMESTIC AND INT'L PROBLEMS

Washington, March 4.—The text of the inaugural address by Calvin Coolidge as president of the United States follows:

My Countrymen:

No one can contemplate current conditions without finding much that is satisfying and still more that is encouraging. Our own country is leading the world in the general readjustment to the results of the great conflict. Many of its burdens will bear heavily upon us for years and the secondary and indirect effects we must expect to experience for some time. But we are beginning to comprehend more definitely what course should be pursued, what remedies ought to be applied, what actions should be taken for our deliverance, and are clearly manifesting a determined will faithfully and conscientously to adopt these methods of relief. Already we have sufficiently rearranged our domestic affairs so that confidence has returned, business has revived, and we appear to be entering an era of prosperity which is gradually reaching to every part of the nation. Realizing that we can not live unto ourselves alone, we have contributed of our resources and our counsel to the relief of the suffering and the settlement of the disputes among the European nations. Because of what America is and what America has done, a firmer courage, a higher hope, inspires the heart of all humanity.

Results Not Accomplished by Chance

These results have not occurred by mere chance. They have been secured by a constant and enlightened effort marked by many sacrifices and extending over many generations. We can not continue these brilliant successes in the future, unless we continue to learn from the past. It is necessary to keep the former experiences of our country both at home and abroad continually before us, if we are to have any science of government. If we wish to erect new structures, we must have a definite knowledge of the old foundations. We must realize that human nature is one of the most constant thing in the universe and that the essentials of human relationship do not change. We must frequently take our bearings by these fixed stars of our political firmament if we expect to hold a true course. If we examine carefully what we have done, we can determine more accurately what we can do.

We stand at the opening of the one hundred and fiftieth year since our national consciousness first asserted itself by unmistakable action with an array of force. The old sentiment of detached and dependent colonies disappeared in the new sentiment of a united and independent nation. Men began to discard the narrow confines of a local charter for the broader opportunities of a national constitution. Under the eternal urge of freedom we became an independent nation. A little less than 50 years later that freedom and independence were reasserted in the face of all the world, and guarded, supported, and secured by the Monroe doctrine. The narrow fringe of states along the Atlantic seaboard advanced its frontiers across the hills and plains of an intervening continent until it passed down the golden slope to the Pacific. We made freedom a birthright. We extended our domain over distant islands in order to safeguard our own interests and accepted the consequent obligation to bestow justice and liberty upon less favored peoples. In the defense of our own ideals and in the general cause of liberty we entered the Great war. When victory had been fully secured, we withdrew to our own shores unrecompensed save in the consciousness of duty done.

Must Remain Distinctively American.

Throughout all these experiences we have enlarged our freedom, we have strengthened our independence. We have been, and propose to be, more and more American. We believe that we can best serve our own country and most successfully discharge our obligations to humanity by continuing to be openly and candidly, intensely and scrupulously, American. If we have any heritage, it has been that. If we have any destiny, we have found it in that direction.

But if we wish to continue to be distinctively American, we must continue to make that term comprehensive enough to embrace the legitimate desires of a civilized and enlightened people determined in all their relations to pursue a conscientious and religious life. We can not permit ourselves to be narrowed and dwarfed by slogans and phrases. It is not the adjective, but the substantive, which is of real importance. It is not the name of the action, but the result of the action, which is the chief concern. It will be well not to be too much disturbed by the thought of either isolation or entanglement of pacifists and militarists. The physical configuration of the earth has separated us from all of the old world, but the common brotherhood of man, the highest law of all our being, has united us by inseparable bonds with all humanity. Our country represents nothing but peaceful intentions toward all the earth, but it ought not to fail to maintain such a military force as comports with the dignity and security of a great people. It ought to be balanced force, intensely modern, capable of defense by sea and land, beneath the surface and in the air. But it should be so conducted that all the world may see in it not a menace, but an instrument of security and peace.

The nation believes thoroughly in an honorable peace under which the rights of its citizens are to be everywhere protected. It has never found that the necessary enjoyment of such a peace could be maintained only by a great and threatening array of arms. In common with other nations, it is now more determined than ever to promote peace through friendliness and good will, through mutual understandings and mutual forbearance. We have never practiced the policy of competitive armaments. We have recently committed ourselves by covenants with the other great nations to a limitation of our sea power. As one result of this, our navy ranks larger, in comparison, than it ever did before. Removing the burden of expense and jealously which must always accrue from a keen rivalry, is one of the most effective methods of diminishing that unreasonable hysteria and misunderstanding which are the most potent means of fomenting war. This policy represents a new departure in the world. It is a thought, an ideal, which has led to an entirely new line of action. It will not be easy to maintain. Some never moved from their old position, some are constantly slipping back to the old ways of thought, and the old action of seizing a musket and relying on force. America has taken the lead in this new direction, and that lead America must continue to hold. If we expect others to rely on our fairness and justice we must show that we rely on their fairness and justice.

International Relations.

If we are to judge by past experience, there is much to be hoped for in international relations from frequent conferences and consultations. We have before us the beneficial results of the Washington conference and the various consultations recently held upon European affairs, some of which we were active participants. Even the failures can not but be accounted useful and an immeasurable advance over threatened or actual warfare. I am strong in favor of a continuation of this policy, whenever conditions are such that there is even a promise that practical and favorable results might be secured.

In conformity with the principle that a display of reason rather than a threat of force should be the determining factor in the intercourse among the nations, we have long advocated the peaceful settlement of disputes by methods of arbitration and have negotiated many treaties to secure that result. The same considerations should lead to our adherence to the permanent court of international justice. Where great principles are involved, where great movements are under way which promise much for the welfare of humanity by reason of the very fact that many other nations have given such movements their actual support, we ought not to withhold our own sanction because of any small and inessential difference, but only upon the ground of the most important and compelling fundamental reasons. We can not barter away our independence or our sovereignty, and no subterfuges, to argue away the undoubted duty of this country by reason of the might of its numbers, the power of its resources, and its position of leadership in the world, actively and comprehensively to signify its approval and to bear its full share of the responsibility of a candid and disinterested attempt at the establishment of a tribunal for the administration of even-handed justice between nation and nation. The weight of our enormous influence must be cast upon the side of a reign not of force but of law and trial, not by battle but by reason.

We have never any wish to interfere in the political conditions of any other countries. Especially are we determined not to become implicated in the political controversies of the old world. With a great deal of hesitation, we have responded to appeals for help to maintain order, protect life and property, and establish responsible government in some of the small countries of the Western hemisphere. Our private citizens have advanced large sums of money to assist in the necessary financing and relief of the old world. We have not failed, nor shall we fail to respond, whenever necessary to mitigate human suffering and assist in the rehabilitation of distressed nations. These, too, are requirements which must be met by reason of our vast powers and the place we hold in the world.

Formula for Permanent Peace.

Some of the best thought of mankind has long been seeking for a formula for permanent peace. Undoubtedly the clarification of the principles of international law would be helpful, and the efforts of scholars to prepare such a work for adoption by various nations should have our sympathy and support. Much may be hoped for from the earnest studies of those who advocate the outlawing of aggressive war. But all these plans and preparations, these treaties and covenants, will not of themselves be adequate. One of the greatest dangers to peace lies in the economic pressure to which people find themselves subjected. One of the most practical things to be done in the world is to seek arrangements under which such pressure may be removed, so that opportunity may be renewed and hope may be revived. There must be some assurance that effort and endeavor will be followed by success and prosperity. In the making and financing of such adjustments there is not only an opportunity, but a real duty, for America, to respond with her counsel and her resources. Conditions must be provided under which people can make a living and work out of their difficulties. But there is another element, more important than all, without which there can not be the slightest hope of a permanent peace. That element lies in the heart of humanity. Unless the desire for peace be cherished there, unless this fundamental and only natural source of brotherly love be cultivated to its highest degree, all artificial efforts will be in vain. Peace will come when there is realization that only under a reign of law, based on righteousness and supported by the religious conviction of the brotherhood of man, can there be any hope of a complete and satisfying life. Parchment will fail, the sword will fail, it is only the spiritual nature of man that can be triumphant.

It seems altogether probable that we can contribute most to these important objects by maintaining our position of political detachment and independence. We are not identified with any old world interests. This position should be made more and more clear in our relations with all foreign countries. We are at peace with all of them. Our program is never to oppress, but always to assist. But while we do justice to others, we must require that justice be done to us. With us a treaty of peace means peace, and a treaty of amity means amity. We have made great contributions to the settlement of contentious differences in both Europe and Asia. But there is a very definite point beyond which we can not go. We can only help those who help themselves. Mindful of these limitations, the one great duty that stands out requires us to use our enormous powers to trim the balance of the world.

No Salvation in Bigoted Partisanship.

While we can look with a great deal of pleasure upon what we have done abroad, we must remember that our continued success in that direction depends upon what we do at home. Since its very outset, it has been found necessary to conduct our government by means of political parties. That system would not have survived from generation to generation if it had not been fundamentally sound and provided the best instrumentalities for the most complete expression of the popular will. It is not necessary to claim that it has always worked perfectly. It is enough to know that nothing better has been devised. No one would deny that there should be full and free expression and an opportunity for independence of action within the party. There is no salvation in a narrow and bigoted partisanship. But if there is to be responsible party government, the party label must be something more than a mere device for securing office. Unless those who are elected under the same party designation are willing to assume sufficient responsibility and exhibit sufficient loyalty and coherence, so that they can cooperate with each other in the support of the broad general principles of the party platform, the election is merely a mockery, no decision is made at the polls, and there is no representation of the popular will. Common honesty and good faith with the people who support a party at the polls require that party, when it enters office, to assume the control of that portion of the government to which it has been elected. Any other course is bad faith and a violation of the party pledges.

When the country has bestowed its confidence upon a party by making it a majority in the congress, it has a right to expect such unity of action as will make the party majority an effective instrument of government. This administration has come into power with a very clear and definite mandate from the people. The expression of the popular will in favor of maintaining our constitutional guarantees was overwhelming and decisive. There was a manifestation of such faith in the integrity of the courts that we can consider that issue rejected for some time to come. Likewise, the policy of public ownership of railroads and certain electric utilities met with unmistakable defeat. The people declared that they wanted their rights to have not a political but a judicial determination, and their independence and freedom continued and supported by having the ownership and control of their property, not in the government, but in their own hands. As they always do when they have a fair chance, the people demonstrated that they are sound and are determined to have a sound government.

Expenditure and Taxation.

When we turn from what was rejected to inquire what was accepted, the policy that stands out with the greatest clearness is that of economy in public expenditure with reduction and reform of taxation. The principle involved in this effort is that of conservation. The resources of this country are almost beyond computation. No mind can comprehend them. But the cost of our combined governments is likewise almost beyond definition. Not only those who are now making their tax returns, but those who meet the enhanced cost of existence in their monthly bills, know by hard experience what this great burden is and what it does. No matter what others may want, these people want a drastic economy. They are opposed to waste. They know that extravagance lengthens the hours and diminishes the rewards of their labor. I favor the policy of economy, not because I wish to save money, but because I wish to save people. The men and women of this country who toil are the ones who bear the cost of the government. Every dollar that we carelessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meager. Every dollar that we prudently save means that their life will be so much the more abundant. Economy is idealism in its most practical form.

If extravagance were not reflected in taxation, and through taxation both directly and indirectly injuriously affecting the people, it would not be of so much consequence. The wisest and soundest method of solving our tax problem is through economy. Fortunately, of all the great nations this country is best in a position to adopt that simple remedy. We do not any longer need war-time revenues. The collection of any taxes which are not absolutely required, which do not beyond reasonable doubt contribute to the public welfare, is only a species of legalized larceny. Under this republic the rewards of industry belong to those who earn them. The only constitutional tax is the tax which ministers to public necessity. The property of the country belongs to the people of the country. Their title is absolute. They do not support any privileged class; they do not need to maintain great military forces; they ought not to be burdened with a great array of public employees. They are not required to make any contribution to government expenditures except that which they voluntarily assess upon themselves through the action of their own representatives. Whenever taxes become burdensome a remedy can be applied by the people; but if they do not act for themselves, no one can be very successful in acting for them.

Further Tax Reduction.

The time is arriving when we can have further tax reduction, when, unless we wish to hamper the people in their right to earn a living, we must have tax reform. The method of raising revenue ought not to impede the transaction of business; it ought to encourage it. I am opposed to extremely high rates, because they produce little or no revenue, because they are bad for the country, and, finally, because they are wrong. We can not finance the country, we can not improve social conditions, through any system of injustice, even if we attempt to inflict it upon the rich. Those who suffer the most harm will be the poor. This country believes in prosperity. It is absurd to suppose that it is envious of those who are already prosperous. The wise and correct course to follow in taxation and all other economic legislation is not to destroy those who have already secured success but to create conditions under which every one will have a better chance to be successful. The verdict of the country has been given on this question. That verdict stands. We shall do well to heed it.

Moral Issues Involved.

These questions involve moral issues. We need not concern ourselves much about the rights of property if we will faithfully observe the rights of persons. Under our institutions their rights are supreme. It is not property but the right to hold property, both great and small, which our Constitution guarantees. All owners of property are charged with a service. These rights and duties have been revealed, through the conscience of society, to have a divine sanction. The very stability of our society rests upon production and conservation. For individuals or for governments to waste and squander their resources is to deny these rights and disregard these obligations. The result of economic dissipation to a nation is always moral decay.

These policies of better international understandings, greater economy, and lower taxes have contributed largely to peaceful and prosperous industrial relations. Under the helpful influences of restrictive immigration and a protective tariff, employment is plentiful, the rate of pay is high, and wage earners are in a state of contentment seldom before seen. Our transportation systems have been gradually recovering and have been able to meet all the requirements of the service. Agriculture has been very slow in reviving, but the price of cereals at last indicates that the day of its deliverance is at hand.

We are not without our problems, but our most important problem is not to secure new advantages but to maintain those which we already possess. Our system of government made up of three separate and independent departments, our divided sovereignty composed of nation and state, the matchless wisdom that is enshrined in our Constitution, all these need constant effort and tireless vigilance for their protection and support.

Obedience to Laws Essential.

In a republic the first rule for the guidance of the citizen is obedience to law. Under a despotism the law may be imposed upon the subject. He has no voice in its making, no influence in its administration, it does not represent him. Under a free government the citizen makes his own laws, chooses his own administrators, which do represent him. Those who want their rights respected under the Constitution and the law ought to set the example themselves of observing the Constitution and the law. While there may be those of high intelligence who violate it at times, the barbarian and the defective always violate it. Those who disregard the rules of society are not exhibiting a superior intelligence, are not promoting freedom and independence, are not following the path of civilization, but are displaying the traits of ignorance, of servitude, of savagery, and treading the way that leads back to the jungle.

The essence of a republic is representative government. Our congress represents the people and the states. In all legislative affairs it is the natural collaborator with the president. In spite of all the criticism which often falls to its lot, I do not hesitate to say that there is no more independent and effective legislative body in the world. It is, and should be, jealous of its prerogative. I welcome its cooperation, and expect to share with it not only the responsibility, but the credit, for our common effort to secure beneficial legislation.

These are some of the principles which America represents. We have not by any means put them fully into practice, but we have strongly signified our belief in them. The encouraging feature of our country is not that it has reached its destination, but that it has overwhelmingly expressed its determination to proceed in the right direction. It is true that we could, with profit, be less sectional and more national in our thought. It would be well if we could replace much that is only a false and ignorant prejudice with a true and enlightened pride of race. But the last election showed that appeals to class and nationality had little effect. We were all found loyal to a common citizenship. The fundamental precept of liberty is toleration. We can not permit any inquisition either within or without the law or apply any religious test to the holding of office. The mind of America must be forever free.

Faith, Hope and Courage.

It is in such contemplations, my fellow countrymen, which are not exhaustive but only representative, that I find ample warrant for satisfaction and encouragement. We should not let the much that is to do obscure the much which has been done. The past and present show faith and hope and courage fully justified. Here stands our country, an example of tranquility at home, a patron of tranquility abroad. Here stands its government, aware of its might but obedient to its conscience. Here it will continue to stand, seeking peace and prosperity, solicitous for the welfare of the wage earner, promoting enterprise, developing waterways and natural resources, attentive to the intuitive counsel of womanhood, encouraging education, desiring the advancement of religion, supporting the cause of justice and honor among the nations. America seeks no earthly empire built on blood and force. No ambition, no temptation, lures her to thought of foreign dominions. The legions which she sends forth are armed, not with the sword, but with the cross. The higher state to which she seeks the allegiance of all mankind is not of human, but of divine origin. She cherishes no purpose save to merit the favor of Almighty God.

LEGISLATURE SUSPENDS BUSINERS TO "LISTEN IN" ON INAUGURAL ADDRESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 4.—Many strange scenes have been witnessed in the legislature halls of Connecticut beginning with extinguishing of the lights in Colonial days and the removal of the charter and the dark day when the speaker of the house refused to suspend business. But the intense interest that was manifested in the house today, when the voice of President Coolidge floated out on the air, penetrating to every corner of the room, exceeded them all. The house had adjourned at 11.57 and soon after the members of the senate had entered and been given seats. Five loud speakers had been installed between the pillars on the gallery front and synchronized perfectly. A seven-tube Super-Heterodyne set with an inside aerial had been installed in a front seat in the gallery and was operated by a member of the capitol electrical staff. Many of the members of the assembly had never "listened in" before and to them it was a wonderful experience. Standing room in the chamber was at a premium, most of the department heads and clerks crowding in to listen to one of the greatest wonders of science. Announcements and music began at 12, noon. At 1.01 the oath of office as administered by Chief Justice Taft was distinctly heard.

Representative Wheeler of Stratford arose in his seat this morning and made reference to the inauguration ceremonies at Washington today, saying that he disliked very much to be a dispenser of gloom, but he had been informed by what he considered reliable authority that four months from today, every spindle in the mills would stop, the doors of all factories would be closed and business would be dead. Representative Bell of Salisbury asked Mr. Wheeler to show why such a calamity should fall upon the nation.

Mr. Wheeler gravely replied that four months from today would be the 4th of July.

The poor acoustics of the house chamber were never better illustrated than today. The voice of the president, as it were, bounded from one side of the chamber to the other and at times was almost unintelligible. It can not be said that the broadcasting was an unqualified success.

SENATE.

The senate was called to order by Senator Pierson of Cromwell. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis, of the house. Immediately after prayer Senator Pierson vacated the chair and it was taken by Senator Wolcott, of Norfolk, who presided at the day's session. In explanation of the delay in reaching the senate chamber, Senator Walcott remarked that he regretted the delay in the train on the New Haven railroad.

The committee on roads, bridges and rivers reported unfavorably on the bill requiring pedestrians to walk upon the sidewalk or path adjoining the highway. The bill was rejected.

The bill relating to the planting of trees on the trunk line highways was unfavorably reported by the committee on roads, bridges and rivers and rejected by the senate.

Calendar.

Passed—Increasing the compensation of members of the board of pardons to $25 for each session of the board and the salary of the clerk from $250 to $500; that the board of pardons shall hold sessions at Hartford or Wethersfield on the first Monday of May and of November in each year, and making it compulsory for th eboard to appoint a clerk; requiring the state treasurer to confer with the board of finance and the bank commissioner in the investment of state funds; authorizing the city of New Britain to issue sewer and subway bonds to the amount of $400,000.

The committee on banks reported unfavorably on the bill relating to nonpayment of check through error, on the bill concerning encumbrances on real estate in Connecticut and certain counties in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New York, and on the bill concerning the forwarding of check direct to payer. The reports were accepted and the bills rejected.

A favorable report was received from the committee on banks on the bill which provides that where a check payable on demand is presented for payment more than one year from the date the bank may, unless expressly instructed by the drawer or maker to pay the same, refuse payment thereof and no liability shall thereby be incurred to the drawer or maker for dishonoring the instrument by nonpayment. Calendar.

On the motion of Senator Cronin the senate passed a verbal amendment reported by the committee on engrossed bills to the bill, previously passed, amending the charter of the Manchester Water company and transmitted the bill as amended to the house.

At 12.15 the senate adjourned.

HOUSE.

The house was called to order at 1.30 by Speaker Darbie and Chaplain Lewis petitioned that "wisdom and grace might be given to him who on this day will be installed as the head of this great nation."

Ponemah Bill Passed.

On a favorable report from the committee on claims and under suspension of the rule, H. B. 174, directing the comptroller to repay to the Ponemah Mills Co., $1,500—the same having been paid after a reduction of capital stock.

Unfavorable report was made by the roads, bridges and rivers committee on H. B. 314, that provided for the inclusion in the trunk line system, the highway leading from Old Mystic to the Rhode Island state line, also providing for inclusion of the old Providence-New London turnpike in trunk line system.

All bills unfavorably reported and rejected in the senate yesterday was concurred in by the house.

H. B. 420 that provided that all highways used by United postal officials, should be taken care of by the highway commissioner at the expense of the town was rejected.

The calendar was not reached, action on the same being deferred until Thursday.

At 11.57 the house adjourned till Thursday at 11.30.

DATE IS SET FOR HEARING ON MANSFIELD ROAD BILL

(Special to the Bulletin)

Hartford, March 4—House Bill No. 486, introduced by Representative Lincoln of Ashford and endorsed by Representative Buck, is set for hearing before the joint committee on roads, bridges and rivers, in Room No. 65, Fourth floor, East Side, State Capitol, Hartford.

This bill calls for a special appropriation to complete the three and one-third miles interval of state aid highway from the corner near Mansfield Exchange Store, formerly Oden's store, in Mansfield Center, to a point near Atwoodville, there to join the state-aid road already constructed from Atwoodville through Warrenville to Westford.

This hearing is sure to call forth a large attendance and it is important that all interested shall be on hand.

MYSTIC

The Union Baptist church had planned for some time to change the interior of the church and plans were drawn some months ago but owing to the state road not being completed until cold weather the church took no action until last Monday night, when a meeting was called for that purpose. The plans were sent to contractors for estimates and these ranged from $26,000 to $35,000 not including, a new heating system and lighting. The board of trustees, Deacons E. F. Wilcox, L. P. Allyn, M. M. Miner and brothers Dr. J. K. Bucklyn, G. S. Richmond, Harold Thorp and Elinor Hall had approved the work being done. At the meeting it was voted to proceed with the plans and the trustees and five sisters, Mrs. Julia B. Coats the clerk, Miss Harriet Fish, Mrs. C. H. Wolfe, Mrs. John W. Phillips and Mrs. Frank W. Batty are to secure pledges for $20,000 before the contract is let. The alterations are numerous that call for so much outlay. The organ will be taken from the gallery and the gallery removed and class rooms provided for the Sunday school.

The blasting of the ledge in front for the state road injured the walls so that they will be torn off and new one put in their place. When the improvements are completed it is expected the church will be up to date and very convenient.

The community house will observe its fourth anniversary Friday March 6, afternoon and evening. The juniors will boserve the anniversary in the afternoon and in the evening the seniors act as hostesses.

POETRY

The Book of the World

Of this fair volume which we World do name,
If we the sheets and leaves could turn with care
Of him who it corrects, and did it frame,
We clear might read the art and wisdom rare:
Find out his power which wildest powers doth tame,
His providence extending everywhere,
His justice which proud rebels doth not spare,
In every page, no, period of the same.
But silly we, like foolish children, rest
Well pleased with colored vellum, leaves of gold,
Fair dangling ribbons, leaving what is best,
On the great Writer's sense ne'er taking hold;
Or, if by chance we stay our minds on aught,
It is some picture on the margin
—William Drummond.

The Shabby Old Lady at the Shop Window

With a face full of wrinkles
Before the shop window
Where laces and jewels
And all was gay,
Of what was she musing
In her garments shabby
Who once was a beauty,
The old men say?

Viewing a splendor
That once had adorned her
Pined she mutely
For her long vanished May;
Tristfully thinking
How all earth's beauty,
Of flesh, as of flowers
Grows withered and gray!

Anon her sad wrinkles
Her loving eyes lighted
And I saw that my guessing
Had all gone astray;
The window's fairness
She wished for another—
'Tis beauty that fitteth,
And love abides for aye.

BLOOM SILK MILL, NEW LONDON, LOSES $4,000 BY EMPLOYES' THEFTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 4—According to the Edward Bloom silk mill in this city that establishment has suffered from thieves to the extent of $3,000 to $4,000 of late. The plunder represents cuts of silk thread taken from the mill by parties who had access to it and who used the thread in their daily work. One employe of the Bloom mill was arrested and in the police court today was charged with the theft of the silk. He is John Balady and has been a weaver in the mill during five or six months. Balady, did not attempt to defend himself in testimony against the charge, but he was represented by counsel and a demurrer was entered. This was overruled, Balady was found guilty and was fined $50. He was also sentenced to stay in jail thirty days, but execution of the jail sentence was suspended, as it was represented that Balady had several children dependent upon him for support.

The suspicions of the mill management that Balady was stealing led to a watch being kept and the conviction that the suspicions were well founded. Police Sergeant Smith was called to the mill yesterday afternoon late and Balady was intercepted as he was about to leave the premises. He was accused of having the silk in his pockets, was taken into the mill office and there was told to empty his pockets and when he did so it turned that he had 24 cuts of the missing silk. At the police station he denied that he had any more of the silk, but an examination of his home disclosed that he had a quantity of silk in the oven of a stove and this was confiscated by the police. The attorney for Balady set up as a defense that Balady realized that the silk was not of a quality that it should be and that for this reason he declined to weave it into cloth. This claim was refuted by the the state's attorney and it was declared that Balady made no such claim until today. Had testimony been taken, the police say that Balady would have been tied to a post, so to speak and the evidence of his dishonesty would have been disclosed in a glaring light.

The management of the mill declared that a gang of thieves in the mills of the country are stealing the silk they are supposed to make up into cloth and that they take it to Paterson or other places where there is a demand for the silk and sell it to fences that receive the silk at a price below what the mills can buy for. Thus the silk is turned back to the owners and is paid for a second time. The Bloom people claim that the thieves are getting rich at their dishonest work. The capture of Balady is said to have been brought about by a system of checking up the silk used. A given number of cuts are apportioned to making of a stated number of yards of cloth. When the cloth is not produced and the cuts of silk have disappeared it is apparent that the silk has been stolen. It is believed that the experience of the Bloom people will put a stop to the thieving at that mill. The authorities are endeavoring to ascertain where the silk was disposed of but whether they will be successful in this is doubtful, for the thieves will not admit that the silk is sold.

A cut of silk is about 60 yards.

John and Henry McDermott, claiming to be letter carriers from the New York post office, were arrested by Railroad Officer Caleb Green when the New York train arrived here about 2.30 this morning. They were charged by Conductor Henry Smith with evading the payment of fare. They admitted that they did not pay, but set up the defense that they had bought tickets at New York to convey them to New Haven. When the train reached that city they were not aroused from sleep and were brought on here. Conductor Smith denied the truth of this statement and said the trainman who went through the train at New Haven represented to him that the men were awake at that city. The testimony of Smith was uncorroborated so the court gave the McDermotts the benefit of the doubt and suspended judgment.

Andrew Gin'y paid $14 for a drunk he started yesterday. John McMahon, a gardener, was raising something beside flowers and vegetables yesterday for he advanced the price of booze by paying $10 for a half pint. Bailey's wife and Mrs. Joseph Chapman of Howard street, left for Providence yesterday forenoon, intending to remain there throughout the week. Bailey was employed to take care of the furnace that supplied heat for the three apartments and when other tenants failed to receive heat today, together with the fact that an electric light had been observed burning during the day by neighbors and the failure to hear Bailey about the house tonight, the same light still burning, occupants of the house notified Mrs. Annabel Douglass, 69 Jay street, owner of the house. Occupants of the house also peered beneath a door and saw what they believed to be Bailey lying on the floor of the kitchen. Forcing an entrance they found Bailey dead, clad only in his underclothing.

Broadway Theater

Imagine a dainty vision ofpetite feminity endowed with mysterious powers enabling her to apparently change her weight at will overcome the laws of nature and set at naught the strongest attempt to lift her. A little lady weighing a little over 100 pounds who when she permits you to raise her from the floor seems as light as a feather but when she "puts on the pressure" resists the most powerful effort to even raise her heels from the floor.

The most amazing part about the young lady is that she does not understand thoroughly just how she resists the terrific lifting capacity of the strongest men. She has demonstrated her performance before scientists and professors on numerous occasions, and none have come forward with a definite explanation of her phenomenal power. Science holds that the body is heavier when relaxed. She however, makes it rigid. Prof. Dingle, a professor of physical culture at Harvard, says that he is of the opinion that she has a faculty for compressing air in the lower portion of her lungs and so contracting the vertebrae as to compress an enormous quantity of air. This is one opinion.

Prof. Schwartz of Yale says that it is simply the power of will and physical resistance. However, the question is an open one and doubtless causes as many conjectures and solutions as the most baffling enigma in the scientific calendar. Anyone is invited on the stage to attempt to lift this lady.

The second extraordinary act on the Keith vaudeville bill on the program at the Broadway theater the last half of this week is Earl Pearson, Cleo Newport and Carl Pearson in Russian Vaudeville's best comedy novelty jazz are presented in the above act.

Talaak and Dean in Calling is a comedy act with songs and dance that you are going to like.

Harry Bigelow and Larry Lee in Sings as you like 'em is another act that is sure to stop the show in their fun songs.

Mae Miller and company in a musical comedy is the fifth stellar act to be found on this great program.

Leave it to Cruze to get every last particle of drama out of a story.

The latest by the man who made The Covered Wagon is The City That Never Sleeps, opening at the Broadway theater today. Ricardo Cortez, Louise Dresser, Kathlyn Williams and Virginia Lee Corbin, the one time "baby star," are featured in the cast.

The story, adapted from Leroy Scott's Mother O'Day, is a heart-appealing tale of mother-love and the "big city," New York, of course.

What a story it is—and there's real acting here!

Breed Theater

The Chorus Lady, the screen version of James Forbes' great play of the same name, closes its run at the Breed theater tonight.

Alan Roscoe and Lillian Elliot, two members of the original cast, are seen in the roles they played on the stage. The splendid cast also includes Virginia Lee Corbin, Philo McCullough, Lloyd Ingraham, Eve Southern and Mervyn Leroy.

Ralph Ince directed and Bradley King made the screen adaption.

Mr. Zero On The Job Again

Y., a mere handful of people were listening to the rector, when in walked Mr. Zero, with about 250 tramps behind him, and presto, the church was full. They were all well behaved, and after the sermon, Ledoux, long known for his friendliness towards derelicts, asked permission to have the lot sleep overnight in the church. The rector agreed. Ledoux has long been known for the theatrical touches he puts to his stunts, in trying to get food and lodging for the hungry and homeless men on the streets. He has been very active the last few years in Washington, Boston and New York.

Lenten Concert Course.

The Lenten concert course to be held at the Palace theatre at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoons, March 8, 15 and 22, for the benefit of Connecticut college calls to the attention of the community the far reaching influences of this part of the state. Since the college first opened its doors it has maintained a high standard of efficiency. Although there have been but six graduating classes, Connecticut college is in the approved list of the association of American colleges and universities. This is the highest distinction accorded to American colleges and is shared by relatively few of them.

From the graduates of this young college, the Norwich Free Academy has called seven young women to serve on its staff. They are Miss Rosa Wilcox, Miss Clementine L. Jordan, Miss Mary Coughlin, Miss Gertrude Avery (now teaching in Ahmednager, India), Miss Helen Avery, Miss Dorothy Wulf, and Miss Dorothy Gregson, now Mrs. Lorimer Slocum). Miss Agnes Leahy since her graduation has been retained at the college as secretary of the Personnel Bureau, and is now at Columbia university taking a special course in Physiology and kindred subjects as applied to vocational work.

Miss Esther Allen is on the board of directors of the School of Occupations in Brookline, Boston. Dr. Henry Pollock, formerly of Norwich, is on this board and very much interested in this new field. Miss Allen is located at Fall River.

Miss Helen Poole is in charge of Arts and Crafts at Elmhurst school, Indiana.

Miss Abby Gallup is on the staff of the Egyptian Department of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Miss Loretta Higgins, who is now continuing her study in music in New York at present is connected with the New York Times.

Miss Ruth Avery is stationed at the Massachusetts Hospital school, Canton, Mass.

Miss Jean Butzler is with the State Child Welfare Department, headquarters in Hartford.

The college has furnished teachers to many high schools, among them Miss Marion Rogers, now Mrs. R. F. Nelson at Stonington High. Miss Irene Whaley, Old Saybrook High; Miss Catherine Dodd, Plainfield High; Miss Helen Dodd, Stonington High; Miss Helen Higgins, now Mrs. Geo. A. Bowman, North Stonington High.

A large number of young women have taken special courses at the college. Among them Miss Marion Shea, Miss Georgette Corneau, Miss Louise Ernst, Miss Mary Higgins, Miss Gertrude Brand, Mrs. Catherine Desmond, Miss Gladys Beebe. This partial list with a large number of young women now on the roll of the college gives an idea of what Connecticut college has meant to Norwich.

Many Norwich women have enjoyed the weekly convocations, the college lecture course, when distinguished editors, poets, musicians, scientists, social workers, in fact every field of progressive endeavor are heard from its platform.

Strand Theater

Florenz Ziegfeld Follies of course the attraction of all musical shows have the reputation of glorifying the American girl and that is what has made the Follies one of the show places of New York. Hoyt's new, musical revue the added attraction at the Strand today, Friday and Saturday might will be termed the minature Follies because of its beauty chorus of twelve girls selected not only for their looks but their ability to sing and dance. The fact cannot be denied that the attraction of all musical shows are the girls—and the comedians as a rule are just on the stage while the chorus are making their changes. Of course a successful musical comedy company must have good principal comedians, a prima donna who can sing, also a soubrette with a pleasing personality and lively feet and this season Hoyt's Revue have, a ninety minute musical offering better than all previous seasons. New music, new scenery, as well as costumes and eight principals headed by Bobby Ferguson Billy Russell, two comedians with a brand of rapid fire clean humor, the kind that goes to make this company a favorite among theatergoers. In addition to the musical comedy review, Strand patrons will have the first opportunity in the state to see Hoot Gibson in his latest picture of six reels The Saddle Hawk. This picture was intended for release April 1st but the special management prevailed upon the distributors of the picture to pre-release it to Norwich. Hoot Gibson needs no introduction to film fans as this clever western star has long ago won his spurs in the art of thrilling episodes on the ground and on the back of a fast riding horse. In the Saddle Hawk, Gibson is seen roaming the range in search of a wild mare. See him in a cat fight. You will see him rope the wild horse and ride her to an exciting victory for honor, love, and home. In the Saddle Hawk you will see him in a score of unparalleled thrills unlike you have ever seen on the silver sheet. The above program will be one of the best seen in Norwich this season and as the rule of the Strand is a popular price policy for this attraction all seats at the matinee will be twenty-five cents and for the evening performances orchestra forty cents, balcony thirty cents. Saturday a continuous performance will be given from two until ten thirty.

Chicago, Ill., March 1, 1925—Secretary Samuel R. Henry, of the National Association of Retail Druggists, has announced the fourth annual "preparedness" sales festival known as "First Aid Week." It will be held March 16-21. The idea was dedicated to the druggists of America by Sterling Products, Inc., and the slogan for the week is "Fill That Medicine Chest Now." The executive committee of the N. A. R. D. which has made "First Aid Week" a business once-a-year fixture, has discovered that druggists who have co-operated in their displays and used newspaper advertising urging householders to be prepared to meet accident or sudden illness, enjoyed largely increased business.

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES.

New York, March 4—Stock prices broke sharply today under an avalanche of selling orders which were thrown into the market in the last hour of trading. Many active shares dropped two to ten points below that previous high levels, the suddenness of the reaction resulting in the touching off of a large volume of non-stop orders.

The bulk of the selling, which originated largely with professional traders, followed the publication of President Coolidge's message and was based on the speculative belief that the "good news" was out and the market was due for a technical reaction. Several large commission houses are reported to have sent out "flashes" in the late afternoon recommending the sale of practically all stocks "at the market." This caused general uneasiness on the part of small traders who had accumulated large "paper profits" in the decent advance.

A tendency to take profits was noted throughout the session, but offerings were well absorbed until the middle of the afternoon. Operators on the long side, taking advantage of the lower loan rates, made several attempts to rally the general list and succeed in elevating more than a score of issues to their highest price in a year or more. These included American Car and Foundry, "Katy" common, North American, Independent Oil and Gas California Petroleum, Lackawa Steel and Hudson Motors.

The biggest break took place in United States Cast Iron Pipe, which closed 14 points lower at 230. Savage Arms broke from 108 to 99 and closed at 100, off 3 3-8 on the day. American Can fell from 183 3-4 to 177 3-4 and closed at 178, off 4 3-4.

Net declines of 3 to 8 points also took place in Baldwin, Du Pont, Lu'um Steel ,Miami Copper, Texas Gulf Sulphur, American Express, Associated Dry Goods, Pullman and Sears-Roebuck. American Locomotive, which is expected to go to an 8% dividend basis tomorrow established a new high record at 144, broke to 139 1-2 and rallied to 141 1-2 where it was unchanged on the day. Independent strength also was shown by Baltimore & Ohio, Goodrich Rubber, Remington Typewriter, Garnet Leather, Federal Light and Traction, Goodyear Tire preferred, Martin-Parry, Utah securities and Wilson company preferred, all of which closed at net gains of 1 to 2 points.

Commission houses connecit on President Coolidge's message generally was characterized as " constructive." Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, described it as "able plain comprehensive, specific and convincing." Trade news also was constructive in character. It included the publishing of statistics showing that freight was still moving in unprecedent volume and reports that steel orders in February were in excess of shipments.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent, eased to 4 and thence to 3 1-2, where it closed. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged although the offerings were not large.

Foreign exchanges displayed an improved tone. Demand Sterling ruled about half a cent higher around $4.76 1-2 and French francs rallied about 5 points to 5.09 1-4 cents on the absence of offerings. Other European rates showed nominal gains. Japanese yen crossed 40 cents to a new high on the movement.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 4—Stock prices turned reactionary in today's curb market in sympathy with the late decline on the "big board." South Pennsylvania Oil broke 7 points and Vacuum, Ohio, Penn-Mex Fuel and Cities Service common one to 2 1-4, but the others were well suported and net recessions were held to fractions.

Public Utilities were again in supply. Commonwealth Power fell back 3 1-2 points to 110 and losses of 1 to 2 points were recovered by American Power and Light, Electric Bond and share and Middlewest Utilities.

A break of over 3 points in Charles Freshman, part of which was later recovered, featured the radio group. Liberty held firm around 3 1-2 but most of the others showed fractional recessions. Further profit taking in Kelvinator carried that stock down to 26, or 5 1-2 points below its recent high.

Bond trading was on a smaller scale. Standard Gas and Electric 6 1-3 of 1924 closing a point lower at 120 after fluctuating between 119 1-2 and 122.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 4—Bond prices drifted irregularly lower in today's fitful trading. Alternate rallies and declines marked dealings in the speculative issues, which followed closely the uneven trend of stocks and finally yielded on a late wave of profit taking.

Buying support for the St. Paul fours of 1925 was forthcoming following the publication of rumors that Henry Ford might aid the road in refunding its maturing bond issue. These liens recovered a point, but bearishly inclined traders found the road's crew convertible 4 1-2s vulnerable to attack and succeeded in depressing them almost 2 points.

Price movements of other railroad obligations were conflicting. Gains of a point or so by Burlington General 4s, Canadian Northern 6 1-2s and Louisville and Nashville fours contrasted with the heaviness of New York Central sixes, Kansas City southern 5s, Kansas City Terminal 4s and Chicago and Alton 3 1-2s.

A feeble rally by the oil company issues failed to hold and closing prices in this group generally were lower. Skelly 6 1-2 declined 1 5-8 and Pan-American dixes about a point. Standard Gas 6 1-2 fell back 2 3-4.

New financing included a $7,000,000 issue of Montreal Tramways company five per cent. Thirty year bonds offered at 88 and a $6,825,000 issue of City of Chicago 4 to 19 year four per cent., bonds, offered at prices ranging from 99 1-2 to 100. Unconfirmed reports were heard that Finland might seek a loan of about $10,000 000 here this spring to replace a short term credit.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 4—In a sudden whirl of selling, the wheat market today suffered an extreme fall of 7 7-8c a bushel. An unlooked for setback in quotations at Liverpool together with a Britsher trade estimate that consumers' requirements in the United States would show enormous falling off during the next four months, had much to do with the breakdown of values here. Wheat prices closed heavy at 2 1-2c to 7 3-8c net decline, May 1.92 to 1.92 1-4 and July 1.33 to 1.32 to 1.68 3 -4, with corn 3 7-8 to 4 1-2c off, oats showing 5-8c to 1 1-4c loss and provisions varying from 7c drop to a gain of 2c.

From the outset wheat had an unmistakable downward bent, but it was only in the last hour that the market flattened out in good earnest. The unexpected action of Liverpool quotations gave traders here a sharp holt to start with and the effect had been emphasized by reports that India was offering new crop wheat at far below prices from other export countries. Then came news that a leading British authority had estimated United States requirements for domestic consumers during March, April, May and June would be 133,000 bushels as against 170,000 bushels for the same months of 1924.

It was at this point that pressure to sell began to exceed ordinary limits. The fact soon became evident that new buying was altogether insufficient to withstand the burden. Standing orders to stop losses at various levels were quickly dislodged in great numbers, and this circumstance gave added speed to the descend until May delivery reached as low as 1.91 1-2 Then rallies ensued, but the finish was within 1-2c of the day's bottom figures.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. In the corn especially, recent buyers flocked to the selling side. Corn offerings to arrive were larger and low grades sold at the widest discount yet.

Provisions reacted with grain, despite higher hog values.

WINDHAM

The earthquake Saturday night was distinctly noticed by residents in the north end of the town but those in the center of the town knew nothing of it until Sunday morning, except those who got the news by radio.

It began to rain about noon Sunday as people were going home from church and by night had developed into the worst wind and rain storm in many years lasting until about 8:30. The electric power went out of commission about 3:30 and the town was in darkness until Monday morning.

The C. E. meeting was omitted Sunday evening because of the storm.

Charles Larrabee who recently underwent an operation in Hartford hospital is doing as well as can be expected.

During the height of the storm Sunday a section of a large pine tree just east of St. Paul's church split and fell crashing through the roof, knocking off a large section of the cornice and otherwise damaging the building. An air chamber between the roof and the ceiling prevented injury to the interior of the church.

The new jitney line between Willimantic and Lebanon is appreciated and the time schedule with one exception is good. If the car now leaving Willimantic at 6, could start at 5, it would be more convenient for the majority of the public.

Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Guild are entertaining Mrs. Corbin of Norwich.

Services were resumed in the Congregational church auditorium Sunday after having been held in the chapel for several weeks.

The committee which is to serve the Men's supper next week met at the parsonage Monday evening.

Fathers' night is to be observed by the Parent-Teachers Association, Friday evening. A program of folk dances, plays, etc., will be given by the children.

LISBON

Rev. W. J. Reynolds preached Sunday from the text, Fight the good fight of faith. The theme was The Irrepressible Conflict. The solo, Just As I Am, by Ashford, was sung by Walter A. Hyde. The communion service was observed at the close of morning worship.

The mild days last week, plowing in the field was begun on the farms of R. R. Barber and Duncan McKay. They reported no frost down to a foot below the surface but deeper than that the earth was frozen in places.

Myer Greenstein has been ill with tonsilitis.

Miss Elizabeth Rosebrooks attended a teachers' meeting in Canterbury Friday and spent the week-end with relatives in Willimantic.

The unusual, irregular rumble that was heard by people in this town on Saturday night was explained the next morning when news of the earthquake shocks was spread.

Mrs. Dora Johnson and Miss Hazel Johnson of Jewett City, Mrs. Flora Noyes and William Noyes, of Norwich, were visitors at Charles Johnson's, Sunday.

BRANDEGEE'S SALARY IS TO GO TO RELATIVES.

A year's salary to the surviving relatives of the late Senator Brandegee of Connecticut has been voted by the senate.

The salary, $7,500 will be divided among four "next of kin and sole surviving heirs-at-law" of the late senator. This is a customary procedure, the sum usually going to the widow. But Senator Brandegee was not married and so the money will be divided among the four discovered relatives.

The beneficiaries are Edward D. Brandegee, Martina E. Brandegee, Clarence B. Wood and John Brandegee Wood.

The senate adopted the proposition as an amendment to the second deficiency bill, it being late in the session and hazardous to try to get any separate bill through.

STOECKEL WILL CHANGE PROPOSED LIABILITY BILL

A substitute bill for the one seeking to establish compulsory liability insurance for all automobile registrants will be presented to the state legislature this week. Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles announced this plan in his talk Tuesday to the Bridgeport chamber of commerce in the Stratfield hotel. The new bill will modify the present proposal to the extent of narrowing compulsory responsibility to the registrants who have become involved in any of the great number of driving offenses. Reckless driving while intoxicated, evasion of responsibility, the causing of personal injury or property damage were some of the offenses mentioned by the commissioner which ac-bill, would necessitate the showing of ording to the terms of the substitute financial responsibility.

Mr. Stoeckel said:

"There is not in the legislature today any compulsory insurance bill that stands a chance of passing, for the reason that the bills make a superhuman administrative proposition. We now have 225,000 registrants in Connecticut and count on a 25 per cent. increase each year so that we would be required under the bill to arrange the qualification of 250,000 if the bill became a law before next year. This would impose great delay and confusion. Again it would cost so much more money to accomplish that I doubt if any bill which would be passed could have been directed against all kinds of it.

"The insurance bills we have had, been directed against all kinds of drivers, good bad and indifferent," said the speaker. "It is my notion that we ought not to interfere with the good men.

Stoeckel then spoke of the bill he has proposed suggesting the placing of pleasure cars on a flat rate basis, supplanting the present cubic inch displacement basis. "It requires a mathematician to figure out the cubic inch basis rates," he declared, describing mistakes which are often made in figuring. The flat rate basis which would supplant all this will be a simplified arrangement.

BEIT BROS. TRUCK IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 4—Shortly before two o'clock this afternoon, Chief James Larkin and members of the South Windham Fire Department made their first run of the year. At a place about a quarter of a mile south of the village on the Norwich state highway, a Reo truck owned by Beit Brothers market of Norwich was afire and the wind carried the sparks into the dead grass along the side of the road so the flames spread with incredible rapidity. The fire was finally extinguished but the auto truck and contents were destroyed.

PRESENT THEIR CLAIMS FOR ROAD IMPROVEMENTS AND WIDER BRIDGES

Hearings on highways in Voluntown, North Stonington, Mansfield and Willington and on the widening of bridges in Windham and New London counties were taken up before the legislative committee on highways and bridges Wednesday afternoon at the state house, Hartford. The hearings which were held in room 65 were started at 1.30 o'clock. Representatives from the Eastern Connecticut Civic association, the Norwich Lions club and Norwich Council, United Commercial Travelers, were present to urge favorable reports on the various bills mentioned. The local delegation included Herbert R. Branche, chairman of the legislative committee of the Eastern Connecticut Civic association; John J. O'Rourke, secretary of the Eastern Connecticut Civic association; Hermon J. Gibbs, representing the Eastern Connecticut Civic association; Charles W. Pearson, secretary of the United Commercial Travelers and also representing the Eastern Connecticut Civic association W. W. Bromley of Jewett City, representing the Eastern Connecticut Civic association and the United Commercial Travelers was also present. The full membership of the highways, bridges and rivers committee and State Highway Commissioner MacDonald heard the advocates of these highway improvements present their reasons for wanting them made.

The first matter taken up was the bill for the Stonington-Voluntown highway link. The representative from Stonington felt that it might be advisable for Stonington and Voluntown to attempt to build that road by state aid rather than by having it placed in the list of state trunk highways.

State Highway Commissioner MacDonald felt that this might be a means of expediting the construction of the highway. The same opinion prevailed regarding the Mansfield highway.

The matter of widening the highway bridges of eastern Connecticut comprised the major portion of the discussion at the hearing. The narrow bridge at Central Village was brought up for considerable discussion. The opinion was expressed that this particular bridge should be improved first. The discussion was quite long and very interesting. It was brought out that inasmuch as there is an estimated increase of double the number of automobiles that will be on the road within the next five years that something should be done. It was brought out in the hearing that it may be possible to eliminate the bridge entirely. State Highway Commissioner MacDonald said it might be possible to divert the highway running through that section so as to eliminate the bad railroad crossings by underpass.

The bridges over the Yantic river north of Norwich and other bridges in eastern Connecticut that need attention came in for their share of notice at the hearing.

It is understood that State Highway Commissioner MacDonald has his programme laid out for the next ten years and that it will be hardly possible to make any additions to it at present. However, with the rapidly increasing number of machines each year it was felt that something out of the ordinary should be attempted by the highways, bridges and rivers committee as soon as possible.

After the hearing the local delegation called on Public Utilities Commissioner E. C. Elwell and E. Irving Rudd, chief engineer of the public utilities commission, for the purpose of discussing with them the dangerous railroad crossings at Plainfield and Sterling. Details of the two crossings were gone over and the local men were shown photographs, etc., regarding the crossings. As a result of the conference Commissioner Elwell promised a thorough investigation of the matter and promised that steps will be taken to improve conditions at the crossings as soon as possible.

The local delegation visited State Treasurer Ernest E. Rogers at his office and were warmly received by Mr. Rogers whose home is in New London.

THREE ESCAPE INJURY IN AUTOMOBILE WRECK

Three men escaped with minor injuries Tuesday when a new Hudson coach upset on the New London-Hartford turnpike in Colchester, a mile south of Westchester, while bound for Hartford.

The car, according to the men, encountered a strip of ice as it was passing the home of Louis Benson, causing the machine to turn turtle twice and hurling the occupants out. The car was a complete wreck when it came to grief and the men were somewhat bruised although not seriously hurt.

They hired Benson to drive them to their homes in Hartford and Wednesday morning the machine was towed into Marvin's garage. The names of the men could not be ascertained.

The proprietor of the garage which took charge of the machine said that there was no registration plate on the car. Possibly one reason for the removal of the number plates on the car was the alleged fact reported in this city by witnesses that a jug of what looked like hooch rolled out of the car in the wreck.

According to this report of the accident, the sedan was turning out to pass another car and ran off the cement into soft ground which caused it to turn over several times.

MUST NAME ANOTHER REFEREE ON CASE

The recent death of Judge Gardiner Greene, who had been sitting as state referee in conducting hearings in the suit of Eliza Blankenfeld vs. Julius Charmatz, will necessitate the appointment of another state referee before whom the hearings will have to be begun again. Several days had been spent by Judge Greene in hearing the evidence and he was busy with it the day before he died but he had not finished the hearings.

The situation has been further complicated for the court because it has been impossible to find the files in the case since Judge Greene's death. They were in his possession during the hearings but so far search among his effects has failed to disclose what he did with them.

The suit involves money which Mrs. Blankenfeld, widow of Egon Blankenfeld, claims was advanced to Charmats when Mr. Blankenfeld was acting as manager of the Anna farm in Ledyard for Charmats.

POST OFFICE TWENTY YEARS IN THE PRESENT BUILDING

Twenty years ago Wednesday the post office building on Main street was first occupied by the government post office service. Since that time the force employed at the office has been considerably increased and the amount of business handled by the office has assumed much larger proportions. The day brought back memories to employes now in the office who aided in moving the government business into the new building. When the building was built there was considerable room for growth but at the present time every available space is being used in the transaction of the daily business.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY WHIST WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The regular monthly meeting of Mercier Assembly, No. 13, C. L. of C., was held in their rooms Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, presiding. A large number was in attendance. Business of a routine nature was discussed. Miss Nonie Nagle, chairman of the Washington whist and dance committee, reported the affair a great success. It was voted that the next meeting be held in Steiner hall on March 31, at which time initiatory exercises will be held. It will also be a social meeting.

Developing Chelsea Court.

The former Lanman property owned by Henry H. Vignot, a section that is now to be called Chelsea Court, has been changed over into residential property and one lot has been purchased by Arthur M. Thompson, who is to build a new home there.

Mr. Vignot plans to erect three houses on Chelsea Court and Mr. Thompson is looking after the architectural work. Otto F. Ernst of Geduidig's is in charge of the landscape work. The new site is one of the finest in Norwich, overlooking Chelsea Parade, from which it derives its name of Chelsea Court.

BIG INTEREST SHOWN IN MARRIAGE LICENSE BILL

By far the largest gathering at any hearing in the legislature Tuesday turned out to support the proposed law governing marriages within the state of Connecticut and some real enthusiasm in favor of the measure was exhibited by its various proponents.

Led by Judge Peck, representative from Bristol, and former member of the Yale Law school faculty, a big gathering of social workers representatives of social welfare agencies and others thronged the senate chamber to register approval of the bill.

Representative "Al" Lavery of Fairfield, district governor of the 30th Rotary district, appeared before the committee in behalf of welfare and civic organizations backing the bill and advocated its passage. Fully half of those who managed to get into the room stood up in support of the bill.

The bill was draughted by Judge Peck in conjunction with Professor E. M. Morgan of the Yale Law school and makes the following principal changes in the present law:

It requires a five day notice of an application for a marriage license in all cases and regardless of whether one or both of the parties reside outside of the town where the application is made.

It makes it necessary for both the prospective bride and groom personally to appear and that each shall swear to the facts required in the license application. It is not necessary, under the terms of the bride for both parties to appear when the application is made, but at any time before the marriage.

The bill also provides that anyone including the registrar of the license, may file an objection to the marriage but it provides that whoever so objects must allege "the existence of some legal impediment to said intended marriage."

Judge Peck explained the bill saying that it represented the best thought of many who had sought to remedy the constantly increasing problem of divorce and unsuccessful marriage.

"It should be clearly understood at the outset," said Judge Peck, "that the legislature of the state of Connecticut or of any other state, cannot pass a kind, or thoughtful husbands or wives kind, or thoughtful or virtuous. But it can pass laws that will favor the kinds of marriages that are likely to be successful and discourage those not so likely to be successful."

He said the law today contained nothing to prevent the immediate marriage of any fellow and girl who may meet and have a feeling toward each other which they for the moment think is love."

He pointed out that there is no judicial tribunal where the facts alleged in a marriage license can be reviewed if held to be in doubt by anyone. His bill provides that such objections shall result in a hearing before a probate court.

JACOBICK SHOWS WHERE HE HID HIS LOOT.

About $40 worth of loot taken from Gardner Lake cottages by John Jacobick demented Bozrah resident, accused of 28 breaks in that section during the past month was recovered Tuesday afternoon when the man led a detachment of officers to a place in the woods near Gardner lake where he had secreted it.

The recommitment of the man to the Norwich state hospital for the insane was delayed because of his story that more loot, yet unfound, had been hidden in the forest. Jacobick is still held at the Groton barracks in hope that when his mind clears he will be able to direct officers to places where more of the stolen property is stored.

The police are handicapped because of the absence of the cottagers who would be able to determine the exact amount lost. The original find of the state police was about $400 worth of stuff, which it was then supposed was all the missing property.

It was voted by the auxiliary to send the handsome quilt made during the past year, to the Comfort House in Hartford, where officials there will give it to some needy person.

A social time followed, during which Mrs. Raymond V. Congdon, Miss Annie Carpenter and Mrs. Dean, served sandwiches cake and coffee. The auxiliary will hold its next meeting at the parish house.

LOBSTER FISHERMEN ARE DISTURBED OVER BILL

The lobster fishermen from Stonington to the Connecticut river and further west are much exercised over possible legislation which they feel may work much harm to their industry. One thing most feared is that the legal length of lobsters will be extended from four and one-eighth inches to four and one-half inches on the carapace.

The fishermen say that such extension would place in the illegal class more than 50 per cent. of the catch which is now within the law. Boats lumber, twine, rope and other equipment are several times more expensive than they were years ago. The same rule holds with labor. As a consequence lobster fishermen say they find it difficult to make both ends meet.

NEWINGTON HOME WORK DESCRIBED TO ROTARIANS

What is being done for crippled children at the Newington Home was interesting told by Miss Constance Leigh, superintendent of the home, to the members of the Norwich Rotary club at the noon day meeting on Wednesday. Miss Leigh said that the treatment at the home was not for physical ailments but that the children were made to view life in a new light which had its psychological effect on physical culture.

At the Newington Home at the present time there are 158 youngsters, ranging from the age of 2 to 20 years, the majority being between 4 and 16. They come from all parts of the state all suffering from some form of malformation. There are classes into which they are divided; first, those suffering from tuberculosis of the bones; second, those who have been made cripples through infantile paralysis and those who suffer from bowlegs and other deformities. A large per cent of the first class have had their affliction brought on by some spinal disorder. On the average the time taken to effect a cure is about five years, some cases taking less and others more, depending of course wholly on the severity of the case. The treatment of the spinal cases consists of strapping the children to frames where they sleep, eat and study on their backs until such time as they have gained strength enough to do away with the supports.

The paralysis group is entirely different. The little patients all seem more or less downcast and embittered toward life when they come to the institution, because of their condition which their young minds consider hopeless. Through competent teaching they are shown that their outlook is not so dark and they are taught to do things for themselves like ordinary children. They become brighter and soon take a new interest in life and so respond more readily to treatment for their bodily ailments. They even look forward to operations that will help them for they realize that no one is crippled who can be useful to the world.

The third group are called casuals and by corrective treatment they become normal children able to enjoy the fullness of life. The children at the home have entertainments, have an orchestra and a choir. Miss Leigh said that she hoped that some day the children would be permitted to give a concert in Norwich. In the course of her talk the speaker spoke very highly of Dr. Paul Swett of Hartford who has done a remarkable work among the children at the home.

At the business session Dr. Hugh B. Campbell presided and L. M. Young was the song leader. One of the entertainment features of the luncheon meeting was the delightful recitation "Casting Bread Upon the Waters," given by E. A. Harrisin an impassioned manner.

The speaker on Current Topics was Judge Nelson J. Ayling who spoke of the death of President Ebert, saying that it was the good sound common sense of Herr Ebert that had guided Germany through the unsettled years following the World war and had at last established this once great nation on a firm basis. He also spoke of the failure of the opium conference and the payment of foreign debts to the United States.

Lewis M. Carpenter and Arthur M. Brown gave a very comprehensive and encouraging report of the hearing before the U. S. army board at Washington recently relative to the improvement of the Thames river channel.

Several announcements relatives to the spring conference at Pittsfield were made by Chairman Alfred G. Lillibridge, chairman of the "On to Pittsfield" committee. Secretary Weymouth also made several announcements relative to the club policy.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

ORGANIZE TO DEVELOP SAYBROOK FORT PARK

The first annual meeting of the trustees of Saybrook Fort park for the purpose of organization was held this week in the rooms of the Connecticut Historical society. Saybrook park was perpetually deeded to a group of 18 trustees by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co. The tract comprises about 17½ acres and is along the Connecticut river at Old Saybrook.

Fourteen of the 18 trustees were present in person or by proxy. By-laws were drawn up and adopted. Morgan B. Brainard, president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., was elected chairman of the board of trustees; William B. Goodwin of Hartford, was elected secretary of the board, and Miss Mabel C. Holman of Old Saybrook, was elected treasurer.

The meeting voted to enlist the cooperation of the Colonial Dames of Connecticut in further preservation of land and historic points of interest. The Colonial Dames have already erected a granite shaft commemorating the fort site. This monument is located in the southwest corner of the 17-acre tract. It is planned to mark the outline of the two old forts, one of which was built in 1635 and the other in 1648.

The tract will be laid out as a park with provisions for a public bathing beach if the condition of the water in the channel of the Connecticut river warrants it. The land is open to the public at all times and they may use it for picnics and recreation purposes if they so desire.

Just what buildings will be erected on the land has not as yet been decided but it is hoped that some adequate housing facilities can be provided for the relics and the historical mementos connected with the two forts and with the town of Old Saybrook. There is a considerable amount of definite planning that has been postponed until the meeting that will be held next summer when all the residents of the park section can be present. Most of them occupy their houses only during the summer months and so many decisions will await the next meeting.

WORLD COURT QUESTION BROUGHT BEFORE SENATE

A Move to Force Consideration Has Been Taken by Both Republicans and Democrats—Senator Swanson Reintroduced His Resolution For Adherence With Reservations—Senator Pepper Might Press His Measure Proposing the Establishment of a World Court Totally Separate From the League of Nations—Senators Have Concluded Not to "Tame" Vice President Dawes.

Washington, March 5—A move to force consideration of the world court question at the present special session of the senate was launched today by leading republicans and democrats.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee, re-introduced his resolution for adherence with reservations and at a later executive session Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, also a member of that committee re-offered a proposal embodying the resolution approved by Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

Administration leaders had not included consideration of this issue in the legislative program they had mapped out for the special session, but Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, said that, if the members there desired it would take up the two proposals.

Senator Pepper, republican, Pennsylvania, said he would not determine definitely after consultation with leaders whether he would press his resolution proposing the establishment of a world court totally separate from the League of Nations.

SENATORS CONCLUDE NOT TO "TAME" DAWES

Washington, March 5.—Angered at what they say Vice President Dawes cut short off its time-honored customs, the senate set out today to teach its presiding officer a lesson in senatorial dignity.

There were whispered stories of plans for "taming his mow" and clipping his wings before he goes home.

But a recess during which some senators cooled off and a spirit of commonsense got in its work on both sides of the chamber, resulted in what was covertly advertised as to be a sound spanking being reduced to a slap on the wrist.

Whether the day's proceedings ended the business or only promised more to come was not made apparent.

It developed that the senate was not so offended because the new vice president in his inaugural address pounded his fist on the table, shook his finger and shouted when he declared for changing the rules to outlaw the one-man filibuster. The feeling of dignity was particularly outraged, first, because the vice president had interrupted the ceremony of new senators signing the roster in the presence of their colleagues, and, second, because he had not returned to the senate chamber to preside after the inauguration of President Coolidge outside.

The second cause for complaint was speedily removed when Senator Hale of Maine, one of the members of the inaugural committee, took it all on himself and explained that he had previously told the vice president it was not necessary for him to return.

The bruise from the first blow was assuaged by the unanimous adoption of a resolution providing that for this time only it should be considered that the purposes of the permanent rule that the new senators signed the roster in the fashion the senate has prescribed, although they did not do so.

Mr. Dawes suggested to the senate that the ceremony be performed over again in the regular way, but Senator Curtis, the republican leader, replied that the adoption of the resolution, proposed by Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, would save time, and it went through that way.

The troubled waters having been much calmed by that time, Senator Reed did not press his threat to force the reading of the journal of the inauguration day proceedings and thus impress that the official record had been made to show what was supposed to have occurred rather than what really did take place.

What had threatened to be a spectacle with most of the 96 senators greeting a new presiding officer came to a peaceful end with a brief executive session and adjournment for the day.

Just before the senate quit, however, Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, reintroduced his resolution for amendment of the senate rules and it was referred to the rules committee. Mr. Dawes declined to make any comment about it, but it became known that he was pleased that a democratic senator had followed up his declaration for a change by making a proposal to provide one.

When the senator assembled there was a brand of electricity sparking around the chamber which hadn't been seen there since the war days. Galleries were packed, privileged insiders crowded in on the floor and every senator in town was at his desk.

The filled chamber waited as the senate clock arrived at noon, and not unless them did Vice President Dawes appear in the chamber. Attired in a new brown double-breasted business suit, he stepped quickly through the door and up on the presiding officer's dais gave the desk a short smart rap with the gavel, and without saying a word stepped back, in favor of the senate chaplain who delivered a brief prayer. More eyes were on the vice president than were reverently cast down. The vice president, looking quite unruffled and unconcerned, although he knew what was in the air, gave his attention to the prayer.

Then he called the senate to business with another short, smart rap as the firecrackers began to snap.

WARREN AGAIN NOMINATED BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Washington, March 5—President Coolidge today again asked senate confirmation on the nomination of Charles Warren, of Michigan, to be attorney-general so as to round out the cabinet with which he begins his new administration.

This nomination, together with that of Harry S. New of Indiana, to succeed himself as postmaster general, was submitted as the first communication from the chief executive to the new senate.

Mr. New's nomination was confirmed immediately, but that of Mr. Warren was referred to the judiciary committee, which had ordered a favorable report at the last session on which the senate failed to take action.

Before these nominations were sent to the senate, two new cabinet officers recently confirmed, took the oath of office—Frank B. Kellogg as secretary of state, succeeding Charles E. Hughes and William M. Jardine, as secretary of agriculture, succeeding Howard M. Gore, who became governor of West Virginia, yesterday.

Because the law required that the postmaster general be appointed for a specific term, Mr. Coolidge renominated him, but he took the position with respect to other cabinet officers heretofore qualified that their renomination was unnecessary. A similar position was taken by President Wilson when he began his second term.

Mr. Coolidge did not return to the senate the nomination of Thomas F. Woodlock of New York, to be a member of the interstate commission, because of the pronounced opposition in the senate for confirmation, it is understood that the executive is considering the selection of some one else for the place.

SENATE REPUBLICANS TO REORGANIZE TODAY

Washington, March 5—Reorganization of the senate, with disposition of the question of the removal of the republican insurgents from their present committee ranks, is planned for tomorrow by administration leaders.

The republicans in conference today selected their slate of officers and decided to meet again tomorrow to pass upon the report of the committee on committees in which will be embodied the recommendation that Senators La Follette, of Wisconsin; Ladd and Frazier of North Dakota and Brookhart, of Iowa, be treated in assignments to the standing committees as though they had been elected on a ticket other than the republican.

Democrats of the senate have been called in conference tomorrow for the purpose of selecting their nominees for president pro tempore and the other senate offices, re-electing senator Robinson of Arkansas, and their floor leader, and the other officers of the party organization.

Democrat leaders have made it plain that they do not propose to place any obstacle in the way of the organization of the senate by the majority but the LaFollette supporters have intimated that they will fight the program of the majority with reference to their committee assignments.

While the senate republicans were perfecting their re-organization, the house republican committee on committees decided not to recommend the reappointment of representative Frear of Wisconsin, a LaFollette follower, to the powerful ways and means committee. The committee plans to take similar action with reference to others of the LaFollette group.

OFFICIALS TO WITNESS AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEMONSTRATION

Washington, March 5—Secretary Weeks and a party of senators, representatives and army and navy officers left tonight for Fortress Monroe, Va., to witness an anti-aircraft demonstration tomorrow, arranged as a sequel to the controversy which developed during the recent house aircraft investigation.

The tests are intended to demonstrate the effectiveness of anti-aircraft weapons which some witnesses told the house aircraft committee was ignored by world war aviators. They will be conducted by daylight and with searchlights at night against airplane-towed targets by a battery of four 3-inch guns having a vertical effective fire range of 24,000 feet, with a firing rate of 12 to 20 shots a minute, and by regular service 30-calibre machine guns and the special 50-calibre anti-aircraft machine guns.

WOMAN SURPRISED AFTER "ENOCH ARDEN" DIVORCE

New York, March 5—Mrs. Evelyn N. Parker, who yesterday obtained an "Enoch Arden" divorce from Dr. Herschel C. Parker as a result of the latter's disappearance five years ago, was astonished this afternoon when she was apprised that her husband had been found in Portland, Ore., where he says he has been doing research work.

"I presumed that he was dead after I did not hear from him in five years," she said, "I advertised for six weeks but there was no answer. But it can not make any difference now since everything is settled."

Mrs. Parker is the daughter of Charles Francis Naegle, a portrait painter, and has supported her children by working as a commercial artist.

FORMER KAISER IGNORED THE DEATH OF EBERT

Berlin, March 5—"Why didn't William II offer condolences?" asks the Neue Berliner Zeitung, which claims that a number of newspapers in other countries were surprised that the former kaiser had taken no notice of Germany's mourning for the late president Ebert. The Zeitung quotes the Prague Tageblatt as follows:

"One would think that Emperor William would today somehow feel himself still connected with the fate of the German people and would join in the mourning when that nation is overtaken by a loss for which Frenchmen and Englishmen expressed their sympathy. The governments of Paris and London have condoled, but the German Doorn remains silent".

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Clemenceau Failed to Attend

Paris, March 5—M. Clemenceau, active as ever and still anti-clerical, today failed to attend the religious wedding of Mlle. Edmee Mordacq, daughter of General Mordacq, and Andre Raiga, Clemenceau's great nephew.

Marquis Curzon Collapsed

London, March 5—Marquis Curzon, lord president of the council and leader of the house of lords, collapsed while dressing for a public dinner tonight at which he was to have spoken. Physicians found his condition not serious. They insisted, however, that he should keep to his bed, cancelling all immediate engagements.

Austin Chamberlain Mistaken?

Paris, March 5—(By the A. P.)—Austin Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, was mistaken in saying in the house of commons yesterday that the French relations commission of the French senate was framing a bill for ratification of the Root resolution regarding the use of submarines in warfare, it was said in the senate this afternoon.

WALTER EARL BENNETT SENTENCED TO PRISON

Bridgeport, March 5—Walter Earl Bennett, 30 years old, of Hartford, a former employe in the office of the state comptroller was sentenced to from three to four years in state's prison by Judge Christopher L. Avery in criminal superior court this afternoon.

He was found guilty of misappropriating funds belonging to the estates of incompetent soldiers over whom he had been appointed conservator by Judge Paul Miller of the Bridgeport district probate court.

Bennett spent the money unaccounted for, his counsel, Attorney Franklin Coeller of New Haven, stated, to satisfy his unhappy craving for liquor. He entered a written plea of nolo contendre, in which he said in effect that he desired not to contest the state's claims of embezzlement and appealed for the clemency of the court.

Two counts were alleged against Bennett, sentence being passed on the first and judgment suspended on the second. On the first count, he was charged with embezzling $7,054.56 from the estate of Nikanov Schwetz, an incurably insane soldier, and no the second, the sum of $1,535, from the estate of Joseph G. Brusenak, who has been restored to his capacity.

Friends and members of a fraternal organization of which Bennett is a member, have come to his financial assistance, and Attorney Coeller said that complete restitution will be made of the funds taken from Brunsenak's estate and that partial, if no tentire, restitution will be made in Schwetz's case.

HONOR FOR AMERICAN PILGRIMS IN ROME

Rome, March 5.—(By the A. P.)—An unprecedented honor was paid today to the American Pilgrims, headed by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, when Cardinal Merry Del Val, archpriest of the Vatical Basilica, delivered an address to them in St. Peter's after having celebrated mass and given them communion.

Cardinal O'Connell, accompanied by Monsignor Splaine and Monsignor Haberlin of the archdioces of Boston, attended the service. The address of Cardinal Merry Del Val was in English. Cardinal O'Connell replied thanking the Italian cardinal for the honor conferred upon the communicants of his archdiocese and said that personally he never would be able to repay his debt of gratitude.

After the ceremony in St. Peter's, Cardinal O'Connell, with Monsignor Splaine and Haberlin, at noon paid a visit to Pope Pius. The cardinal expressed to his holiness his great pleasure and that of the American pilgrims for the function in St. Peters, which he said was imposing and edifying.

Pope Pius greeted Cardinal O'Connell with marked signs of special affection. He said he was glad his American children, whom he was desirous of seeing next Monday in person, were so favorably impressed by their first ceremony of the jubilee year in Rome.

REBUKE FOR LONG RANGE WEATHER FORECASTERS

Washington, March 5.—The weather bureau issued a statement today designed to show the inaccuracies of certain individual "long range" forecasters who, in some agricultural journals last summer, predicted a long hard winter, with severe cold waves for the country.

"Contrary to the forecasts," the statement said, "the winter began late and ended early. Snowfall for the country and the winter as a whole was below normal, except from the upper Ohio valley to New England, where the fall was slightly greater than normal.

"The grand upset of the forecast came, however, in February, for which weekly cold waves were predicted. As a matter of fact, not a single widespread cold wave occurred during February, and there was a remarkable small number of purely local cold waves. As a result of the mild temperature during the month, fruit buds in southern states advanced prematurely and some early varieties of fruit began to bloom as far north as South Carolina and to swell in the interior portions of the country."

ASKS FURTHER REPORT ON LIEUT. F. E. KENNEDY

Washington, March 5—After an examination of the medical report on which Lieutenant Frank E. Kennedy was placed in the state hospital for the insane at Napa, California, Secretary Wilbur has asked the medical authorities at Mare Island navy yard for a further report on the officer's mental condition which may result in his being restored to duty and immediately granted leave to restore his health.

Habeas corpus proceedings to obtain Lieutenant Kennedy's release from the asylum, instituted by his wife in the state courts of California, ended in a decision that the court had no jurisdiction.

The medical report in Kennedy's case, Secretary Wilbur said, showed that he was suffering from hysteria and nervous disorders that made him uncontrollable by the authorities at the Mare Island hospital. He was sent to the state insane asylum for that reason.

Strike Is Impending at Willimantic Mill

Approximately 2,500 American Thread Co. Employes Have Concluded Not to Report For Work Monday

(Special to the Bulletin)

Willimantic, March 5—It is stated on reliable authority that as a result of a strike vote taken late Thursday afternoon at a meeting of the United Textile Workers of America approximately 2500 operators of the local plant of the American Thread company will not report for work next Monday morning.

The strike vote marks the closing chapter of an agitation started early in January when a ten per cent. wage cut was announced. Several meetings of the union have been held since that time in which distavor of the cut was expressed.

Two committee conferences held with local agent, Don H. Curtis, and a talk between the head officials in New York City and District President McMahon of the union failed to secure a restoration of the cut.

In charge of Thursday meeting were Miss Mary Kelleher, an organizer, and Miss Amy Hooker, local president of the textile workers.

The employes still continue operation until closing time Saturday in order to avoid a waste of several thousand dollars of material on hand in the dyeing department.

The percentage of strike advocates in the departments of the plant is such that the mills will be crippled to a point which partically assures a general suspension of all operations.

HEARING ON 48 HOUR WEEK BILL FOR WOMEN AND MINORS

Hartford, March 5.—Labor matters in committee stage before the general assembly reached their most important exposition this afternoon when the committee on labor heard the bill which proposes a 48-hour week for women and minors in industry, a bill which, offered in behalf of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, had behind it many of the social workers and welfare organizations of the state as well as the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

The hearing was in the house chamber and was well attended. The proponents of the measure had their first opportunity to be heard and in an hour's time fore than a score of women and men made their plea. The bill applies only to women and minors in factories and does not relate to mercantile establishments. Most of the remarks for the bill were concisely given, and the women who represented various organizations had their arguments prepared so that each required little time to cover the ground and there was little if over-lapping of statements or statistics. Many of the textile unions sent representatives to declare themelves for the bill, and eastern Connecticut mill towns, in which the textile industry of the state is mostly located, sent many young men and women to speak for sister workers.

The opposition to the bill was led by Ralph O. Wells, of Hartford, for the Manufacturers' association, and he with others argued against the bill.

FRENCH DIPLOMATS SURVEY THE SECURITY QUESTION

Paris, March 5—(By the Associated Press)—Premier Herriot spent a busy day with foreign office officials and members of the French delegation to the League of Nations preparing for what everyone epects will be decisive negotiations on the security question. The premier went over the whole matter with M. Laroche, political director of the foreign office, and discussed with M. Briand and Paul Boncour the possibility of modifying the Geneva protocol so that the entire problem could be handed over to the league.

Whether the league's security plan can be changed so as to satisfy the British objections will probably be one of the features of M. Herriot's talk with Austin Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, Saturday. This, it is expected, will naturally bring to the fore the question of Germany's admission to the league.

It was said this afternoon by a person close to the premier, that, in a four-cornered pact between Germany and the allies, all would depend upon how far Great Britain would go in order to give France the tranquility she demands as a condition for the evacuation of the Cologne zone.

Freight is badly congested and the passenger service has only been continued under great difficulties and numerous delays. The railway administration issued an order demanding the immediate return of the strikers on pain of permanent dismissal.

BRITAIN AWAITS SOME PACT OF SECURITY FROM FRANCE

France Opposes the View of England That Germany Should be a Party to the Pact—Austin Chamberlain, British Secretary For Foreign Affairs is Endeavoring to Sound Out the French Views—German Proposals Had Reached the British Secretary a Few Weeks Ago in a Secret Manner, But He Declined to Reserve Them.

London, March 5.—(By The A. P.)—The speech of Austin Chamberlain, the secretary for foreign affairs, in debate in the house of commons today, did little to light up the obscurity surrounding the efforts to obtain some pact of security from France, to replace the proposed pact between the United States, Great Britain and France, which failed to be put into effect.

The difficulty in this matter arises from the opposing British and French views. England considers that Germany should be a party to the pact; France opposes German participation. The position is furthermore complicated by the fact that a minority of the British cabinet is said to support the French views.

Mr. Chamberlain was careful today to explain that he was not going to propose any definite plan to M. Herriot, the French premier, but only sound out French views and gather information.

H. A. L. Risher, who opened the debate for the liberals, had demanded the publication of the inter-allied control commission's case against Germany and had expressed the strongest opposition to a defensive pact with France and Belgium alone, which, he declared, would divide Europe into two armed camps and lead to a repetition of Armageddon. He also had outlined the published versions of the German security proposals, including the right to refer disputed questions concerning Germany's eastern frontier, and similar problems to the League of Nations for arbitration.

Mr. Chamberlain expressed some doubt as to whether it would be advisable to publish the control commission's report. The most important point in his speech, however, was his cordial reception of the German proposals, which, he said, "might be the starting point for real recovery of European situation."

"The common enemy in Europe today," added the secretary, "is the sense of insecurity which reigns everywhere."

Mr. Chamberlain then explained that the German proposals had first reached him a few weeks back in a most confidential and secret manner.

"I declined to receive them," he went on, "under the implied pledge that I was not to discuss them with our allies."

At this point, David Kirkwood Scotch labor member, caused a stormy interruption and temporary suspension of the proceedings. It is very unusual in the British parliament to invoke the ire of the speaker, but Mr. Kirkwood's interruptions were persistent and he was suspended by a vote of the house.

Ramsay MacDonald, the labor leader and all the members of his party quit the house as a protest against the treatment of Mr. Kirkwood after a lively altercation between the former labor premier and the speaker regarding the exact rules governing the suspension of a member.

The house, resuming its business as a committee of supply, Mr. Chamberlain continued his speech.

In conclusion the foreign secretary strongly emphasized that Great Britain's close proximity to the European continent made it impossible that she should turn a deaf ear to any European appeal for help or exercise a short-sighted and selfish policy of isolation.

The general debate continued in the absence of the labor leaders, whose parliamentary executive in the meantime held a meeting elsewhere and resolved unanimously that, while any persistent obstruction of business was to be strongly deprecated, there was no justification whatever for the "preemptory and arbitrary action" of the chairman in naming Mr. Kirkwood, whose slight interruptions, in the view of the laborites, were by no means provocative.

The executive also determined to demand a day for the discussion of a vote of censure upon James F. Hope, the deputy speaker, who acted as speaker today, on the ground that his action was unwarranted. Mr. MacDonald will move the vote tomorrow.

Mr. Kirkwood's suspension endures for the remainder of the session unless he apologizes, which it is declared he will not. It is believed, however, that the house may rescind the vote of suspension.

DRIVE BY RUSSIA FOR RECOGNITION BY THE U. S.

Washington, March 5—Further indications of a renewed drive by Russia for recognition by the United States developed today in the making public by the Russian information bureau, within a few hours after Secretary Hughes had left the office of secretary of state, of a statement of economic conditions in Russia which said there had been an extensive economic recuperation in 1924.

The survey gave figures on production, trade, and fiscal matetrs which would show that Russia is no longer a commercial vacuum, an argument which has been advanced by some as making futile any recognition even of a trade nature.

While there have been reiterated assertions in highest administration quarters recently that the policy of the United States toward Russia remained unchanged, with indications that hte non-recognition policy of Secretary Hughes would be maintained, it is regarded by some as possible that the question may develop during the present special session of the senate, where Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee, has long held a view different from that of Mr. Hughes on the problem.

The statement of the Russian information bureau declared that "the soviet republic enjoyed a banner year in 1924 and made great progress toward equalling pre-war productivity."

SCULPTOR BORGLUM TO APPEAR AT WRIT HEARING

New York, March 5—Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, left New York this afternoon for Greensboro, N. C., to appear at a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus recently issued in connection with the malicious mischief charge preferred against him following the destruction of the stone mountain memorial models.

Mr. Borglum, returning to the city this morning from Cleveland, said that if the memorial association "of its own volition will stop all this silly stuff of trying to indict me from breaking an egg, there will be no difficulty in holding a conference with a dozen big southern men, including representatives from Atlanta in carrying out the project as planned."

"Otherwise", he added, "they are putting me in a position where I must deal with them through the courts, thus closing all possible diplomatic relations. There are no obstacles whatsoever involving the making of perfect models for the memorial as planned that could not be agreed upon by such a group of men meeting with me."

"The controversy never would have arisen," he continued, "had the financial committee itself not shifted the responsibility of raising funds upon my shoulders and so kept me constantly seeking contributions for the work.

"I have been laboring for eight years under the unfair air almost impossible position of financing and creating public interest in my own project, a tremendous undertaking which hequired my entire time as an artist."

The sculptor said he planned to stop in Washington and Raleigh on his way to Greensboro.

DUTCH LIQUOR SCHOONER WAS ORDERED FORFEITED

New York, March 5—The Dutch schooner Zeehond and a $200,000 cargo of wines, seized 15 miles off-shore in 1923, wasordered forfeited today under an unprecedented ruling by Federal Judge Garvin of Brooklyn, authorizing the government to confiscate vessels landing or proposing to land liquor in the United States from any point on the high seas.

Judge Garvin held that the venture of the Zeehond constituted attempted fraud, as described in section 593 of the tariff act of 1922.

This section says that if any person enters or attempts to enter merchandise into the country by means of false invoice, declaration or paper of any kind, or by means of any fraudulent practice, such merchandise shall be subject to forfeiture.

The Zeehond decision is considered by federal authorities to be unique and far-reaching in that it upholds, for the first time, the government's claim to the right to capture and confiscate alien rum-smugglers outside the 12-mile as well as outside the 3-mile limit.

RADIO, JAZZ AND POOR LIQUOR CAUSING INSANITY

New York, March 5—An increase in insanity is the result of the radio, jazz, and poor liquor, Dr. Isham Harris, superintendent of the Brooklyn State hospital for the insane, said at a luncheon of the Lions' Club today. Radios have been eliminated from hospitals for the insane, he said, because they have an irritating effect on mental cases.

Dr. Harris said prohibition caused insane commitments in Brooklyn to increase since 1922 from less than 3 to more than 5 per cent. Dancing and flapper affairs, he said, tend to create an abnormal mentality in a boy or a girl.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours 9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

Electors of the town of Coventry are to hold a special town meeting on Saturday afternoon at North Coventry. Taxpayers from North and South Coventry have expressed a great deal of interest in several of the propositions to be taken up at the meeting. The principal business will be to vote on the matter of replacing the old wooden bridge over the Willimantic river between the town of Mansfield and Coventry, at Jones' Crossing, near Merrow, with one of iron with a span of 67 feet. The new bridge would cost about $4,500. The span would be the connecting link between the towns of Coventry and Mansfield and in view of that fact, the latter town will be asked to pay half of the cost. Another vote will be taken on a petition to shorten the voting time at town, state and national elections of from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m., to 6 a. m. to 4 p. m. The extra two hours in the afternoon is considered superfluous as the voting lists are comparatively small and there are two voting districts in the town. The third matter will be to determine if the town will adopt a new town seal in commemoration of Nathan Hale, Coventry's Revolutionary hero. About a year ago Selectman Dr. W. L. Higgins designed a seal having a figure of Nathan Hale in bold relief, which is presented the town and it is expected that this seal will be adopted.

JEWETT CITY

A grand reorganization meeting of the Jewett City Chamber of Commerce was held at the Jewett City hotel on Wednesday evening. A fine roast beef supper added materially to the success of the objects contemplated by the meeting, from which the most favorable reports are received. Thirty-two representative citizens of the borough were present, harmony reigned, and the necessary interest and enthusiasm were evident.

Those present were a unit in believing that a public organization of this sort will become a permanent benefit to the town and borough. Not only will civic pride be engendered, but good fellowship and concerted action for what is best will be assured. The newly elected board of officers is: Benjamin Schlieffer, president; Wallace H. Payne, vice president; William M. McNicol, secretary; Edmond Jodoin, treasurer. Directors, Daniel F. Finn, James H. Shea, Arthur LeClaire, John W. Payne, Matthew J. Geary, Abraham Zegeer, James Doland.

A passer by on East Main street, during one of the recent high winds, saw a small boy on one of the adjacent house tops flying the first kite of the new spring time. Unlike the many scientifically constructed tailless kites that have been flown here in recent years, the boy's kite wore an enormous tail, which it could lift only in exceptionally strong drafts of air. The story was recalled by one of the observers of a kite which was being flown, close to 40 years ago, by two boys one evening, from the then vacant East Main street lots. This kite had a tail, and as the dusk deepened, the boys secured from an often visited attic, a paper Chinese lantern, that had survived the duties of some forgotten Independence day illumination.

The candle inside was lighted and the light paper lantern was attached to the tail of the kite. It flew the best ever, after the perilous ascent over the tree tops, and mounting to a great height it being almost motionless, resembling nothing more than a bright new star added to the firmament. That day a local doctor ((who by the way, is still on the job), had made a late call up in the Stone Hill district, returning after night fall. Next day he reported seeing a strange light in the sky, off over Ashland pond, which he declared resembled a meteor or a comet.

CLERK AT STORRS P. O. STATION ADMITS SAFE ROBBERY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, March 5.—Earl C. Angell, clerk in charge of the sub-station of the Eagleville post office in the administration building of Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, signed a written confession, about midnight Wednesday, in which he admitted that he had taken money from the safe of the station. The break was made saturday night while a basketball game was going on at the college. About $75 was also taken from the cash register of the college book store in an adjoining apartment to the sub-station. The robbery of money to the sum of $10.32 from the safe was reported by Angell after he showed up for duty Monday morning. Evidence gradually closed about Angell which led the officers to suspect the clerk of both breaks. Post Office Inspector Charles J. W. Mulvey of the Boston division challenged Angell with the statement that the combination to the safe was known only to himself (Angell) and Postmaster Chaffee of Eagleville. Angell hesitated a moment, then replied that he had taken the money which he said he needed for his wife and three children. He denied the theft of the money from the book store and for the present the evidence against him does not warrant his arrest on that count. He returned the $10.35 taken from the station safe.

Thursday morning Inspector Mulvey and Postmaster Walter R. King of the local post office presented Angell before United States Commissioner Frederick J. Corbett, of Hartford, for preliminary hearing, on a charge of embezzlement. It is understood that in order to avoid detection from finger prints Angell covered the dial with paper while opening the safe and then burned the paper. He did not molest about two hundred dollars worth of stamps and stamped government stationery stored in the safe. He was taken into custody Wednesday night by State Policemen Hardisty and Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks, who assisted Inspector Mulvey in conducting the investigation. The recent thefts from the administration building recall the fact that there have been mysterious happenings at the building for some time past. Some time ago a fire broke out in the college book store and the cause of this has never been determined.

Van Ess Laboratories, Inc. Oakland, California, 11/15/2

Dear Sirs:

July (1923), within three weeks, I lost ALL of my hair. It just dropped out. As I am a pharmacist and a drug store owner, I tried everything that I had for sale and that doctors knew of but—in November I was still naked on top—and only twenty-three years old! At last I tried Van Ess. Two bottles—a little white fuzz.

Then—in January my wife left me for a 5 months' tour. When she returned in June I had seven inches of hair all over my head. I had used eight bottles. Van Ess daily, it's hair insurance.

Yours truthfully,

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lenten Concert Course.

Reserved seat tickets for the course of Lenten sacred concerts to be held at the Palace theatre, Sundays, March 8, 15, and 22, went on exchange Thursday morning. Judging from the advance sale these concerts have proven to be most popular.

The women in charge of the sale of tickets have had many and varied responses to their work in the advance sale of tickets. A music lover said, "Is Miss Tiffany really connected with the Metropolitan or is that just advertising."

Miss Tiffany is connected with the Metropolitan; as a proof, ask Charles Dyer and Henry LaFontaine and you will learn that only last week while in New York city they attended the Metropolitan and heard Miss Tiffany in 'Carmen.' Another said, "Two dollars for three concerts; why, I paid $2.50 just to hear Miss Tiffany sing in a concert." And others said: "I'd give $2 just to hear Frank Farrell alone."

Miss Tiffany's manager wrote: "You are very fortunate to have a man whom Miss Tiffany will accept as an accompanist. She will take $100 off her contract price for not having to bring her accompanist with her."

Mr. Frederick W. Lester will accompany Miss Tiffany.

Another asked, "Is that Storr who sang at the Tarrytown church, where Mrs. Finlay Shephard, nee Helen Gould, attended and is especially interested in its music?"

Yes, Lionel Storr, bass-baritone, is the man, and has a marvelous voice. He will sing at the Farrell-Lester concert. New Londoners know Mr. Erb, and are especially interested in his concert on March 22d. This concert is an added one to the two at first announced, and all for the original price of $2.00 for the course. This is Mrs. Burgy's first appearance on the public concert stage of Norwich, though she was soprano of the Philadelphia Grand Opera company.

The committee solicits patronage. In exchange they give you concerts second to none ever appearing in Norwich. Tickets on exchange at the Palace theatre, Norwich. Mail orders will receive immediate attention. Course of three concerts, $2.00—reserved seats 50 cents extra. Single concert $1.50 reserved.

The more room a man has in his house the more he lives outdoors.

Here's the Latest—Cod Liver Oil In Tasteless Tablets

Greatest Flesh Builder For Skinny, Weak, Run-Down People—Full of Vitamines.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Value Plus! Any amount of money invested in the Broadway theater entertainments will bring you twice the value in returns. The B. F. Keith program of vaudeville and the Paramount picture at this popular playhouse the last half of this week easily bears out this fact.

Mac Miller and Co. in Melodious Vibrations have glasses filled with melodious cheer. It filled number one spot to perfection.

Bigelow and Lee are merry makers. Their fuss is song, story and with a piano call their little offering Songs As You Like 'em. Their encore is as good as the first part.

Earl Pearson, Cleo Newport and Carl Pearson in Rythm. If there ever was a treat in trios this is the one. The work is very fast, whether it is song, dance or comedy and judging from the returns they receive this act is going to be the talk of the town.

Telsak and Dean in Calling. Mirth and melody is what they aim at and never fail to please.

Coming to Norwich after four year's triumphant tour of the world, Original Resista the little lady who changes her weight at will offered a scientific and humorous exhibition of mystic forces.

A wholesome story of tremendous heart appeal, a cast of popular players, direction that leaves nothing to be desired, swift action, mystery, lavish settings and fascinating New York as a background—you'll find them in Paramount's, The City That Never Sleeps, which opened last night at the Broadway theater.

Breed Theater

Tom Mix in the role of a society dandy is something unusual to say, nothing of remarkable. Yet, there he is as big as life, evening dress clothes and all in "You Tony, the William Fox star's latest release, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and Saturday.

Oh, You Tony, is the story of a western rancher who is sent to Washington by his community to lobby for a bill that will prove a benefit to their lands. He gets into society in the capital and is made the dupe of a group of swindlers intent upon gaining possession of his valuable ranch. They lend him money and then contrive to pauperize him so that he will have to sell the ranch to them. Tom is entered with Tony in the big $10,000 road race. The swindlers put every obstacle in his way but he wins the prize and—the sweetest girl in the world, played by beautiful Claire Adams.

Europe's premier stunt man, Luciano Albertini will also be seen in the opening chapter of The Iron Man. Lovers of thrills, and fast action will find their hearts content in this sensational chapter play.

The Pathe news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Strand Theater

Hoyt's New Musical Revue, which opened a three days engagement at the Strand, yesterday, as the added attraction in conjunction with the feature picture, Hoot Gibson in The Saddle Hawk, certainly lived up to all the advance stories. This miniature musical review is an attraction for the entire family. The music, scenery, and costumes are new and the large chorus of pretty girls do their stuff with a smile and give the impression that it is a pleasure for them to sing and dance. The Hoyt show which has played Norwich, other seasons evidently were not strangers to most of the well filled theater at yesterday's performances, when several of the principals made their first entrance they were well received and caused one to believe, judging from the reception they received that they were residents of this city.

Over twenty people compose the Hoyt show headed by popular Bobby Ferguson, the droll and funny comedian who has a manner all his own of keeping any audience in good humor. Other favorites are Billy Russell, Chick Peters, Fred Martell, Miss Debby Thornton, The Faye Sisters, Grace Williams, the two Smiths who appear in a most pleasing xylophone act, and other speciality people, as well as the show girl chorus made up of many pretty girls who sing and dance to perfection in each of the numbers. The entire entertainment is full of pep and action and more than a solid hour of well-timed entertainment was provided at both performances yesterday. The feature picture offering was the latest effort of that popular western screen star Hoot Gibson in The Saddle Hawk, a six reel picturization of the lawless west, filled with many thrilling and exacting moments. We have seen Gibson in all his other starring vehicles but have never seen him to better advantage than in The Saddle Hawk. There is no doubt that Hoot Gibson has a faculty of knowing how to thrill a theater audience, in the above you see him on the verge of death but he always comes up smiling. A two reel comedy and the Screen Review made up over two hours and a half of good clean amusement and from the standpoint of quality and quantity the Strand should house capacity audiences today and Saturday, when the same program will be repeated. For the benefit of out of town shoppers on Saturday a continuous performance from two until ten thirty will be given. The prices for the above attraction will be twenty five cents for the matinee and in the evenings thirty and forty cents.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Thursday morning at 7.30 the funeral of Mrs. Mary Hardwick was held from the undertaking rooms of Louis E. Kennedy on Furnace street, with services at St. James' church at 8 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Bernard Ratchford and Michael Ratchford, nephews of the deceased, William Quinn and Ernest Kennedy.

At Sterling, the funeral of Francis Lee Cumberland, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cumberland, was held from their home Wednesday morning, with services at St. Joseph's church in that place. Rev. J. E. McCarthy of All Hallows' church at Moosup was celebrant of the mass, attended by an unusually large funeral congregation. Burial was in All Hallows' cemetery near Moosup. The bearers were Chester Poleski, John Wallen, William Fox and Henry D'Chiney. There were beautiful floral pieces. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Plans for the proposed addition to the Killingly High school building have been submitted to the town school committee by an architect. It is not unlikely that the proposal for an addition to the school, as sponsored by the Alumni association thereof with the approval of many other citizens, will be formally presented to the town for consideration in the not distant future. A fund of several thousand dollars to be used in meeting the cost of construction has been raised by students of the school and by a committee from Alumni association. The proposed addition would include quarters for a domestic science department and a gymnasium and swimming pool as outstanding features. It is believed that the cost might be as much as $[illegible].

A considerable proportion of last year's crop of potatoes remains in the possession of growers in this territory. The potato crop was an abundant one and because of the low prices that have prevailed was not profitable only for the most fortunate of the farmers.

Further addition to the rapidly increasing reserve supply of water came in the northeast storm of Thursday afternoon and evening. The accumulation of water during the past six weeks was sufficient to put far in the recesses of memory the water famine that prevailed during the months of January and December, though full pond is not yet reported from various bodies of water hereabouts.

Saturday night, the Servics battery basketball team and the Manchester Elks team will meet here for the second visit within a month. The Manchester team was victorious by a scant margin in the last game at the armory. The teams are very evenly matched and should provide a great game.

Significant of the modern trend of travel is the fact that a theatrical company that had been playing here the first half of the week made use of motor bus, instead of a train, in getting to Rockville Thursday. Faster time and no change at junctions was given as reasons for going over the road.

Mrs. Bridget Carlen, 79, for many years a resident of Moosup, died at her home in that place Wednesday. Mrs. Carlen was a native of Ireland. She made her home with her daughter Mrs. Rose Carlen.

Because of the amount of excavation work that has been done on Broad street, for one purpose or another, during the past year, chiefly the digging up of the street for water pipe connections and for sewers, considerable caution will have to be given it this year to return it to its ordinarily good condition.

In the Bohemian club's pinochle tournament all the contestants but four were eliminated from the possibility of winning honors and plans are made for the final games and the determination of the order of winners.

L. Rivard was before the city court Thursday, charged with the theft of two automobile tires from the Monroe garage on School street. Two weeks ago he was arrested on complaint of a Worcester music dealer who charged that he had obtained two saxaphones from him on false pretenses. He pleaded guilty and the court, taking extenuating circumstances into consideration paroled him for six months, requiring hi into report to the probationary officer every week.

In The Bulletin despatches Thursday was one from Milford, Conn., saying Miss Sarah Curtis Hepburn of that town is celebrating her one hundredth birthday and that she is the oldest Real Daughter of the revolution.

To the people of Putnam and vicinity this carries no weight. Mrs. Sarah Bosworth Bradway of Eastford will be 107 years old her next birthday, and she is unquestionably the oldest real Daughter of the Revolution. For many years the members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam Chapter have made her natal day the occasion of a pilgrimage to her home and it was believed that everyone in this state and most of the other states knew of her and her great age.

Miss Hepburn compared to Mrs. Bradway is an infant.

The despatch from Milford read as follows:

Miss Sarah Curtis Hepburn, oldest person in Milford and probably the oldest real daughter of the American Revolution, is celebrating her one hundredth birthday anniversary today at the home of her nieces, Misses Sarah and Jennie O'Connor. In accordance with a custom of ten years past a birthday party is to be given in honor of Miss Hepburn. At a meeting of the woman's board of Day Kimball hospital, Wednesday afternoon, it was voted to appropriate $1,000 for interior painting of the corridors, wards and rooms of the hospital. There is very urgent need for this work. The regular funds of the hospital are impaired by the loss of the income of the $10,000 of stock in the First National Bank as well as meeting the assessment on the stock. Captain William Jarvis, of Putnam police force, has returned from taking Elmer Rhodes of this city from Willimantic back to the naval training station at Newport. Rhodes is only 18 and has been on a 25-day furlough, part of which he spent at his home here. Although technically a deserter it is probable that a more serious charge than A. W. O. L. will be placed against him. Captain Jarvis said that he was wearing his uniform which he would not have done if he had intended to desert. He is a son of Edgar Rhodes, a contractor of this city. When arrested he was in the company of Frederick Newell of Miami, Florida, who is also attached to the naval station.

TWO TROY BOOTLEGGERS BOUND OVER IN $1,500 BONDS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, March 5.—The road between Putnam and Providence has been a highway to disaster for rumrunners during the past three months. The latest ones to come to grief are Harry A. Fiske and Joseph H. O'Connell of Troy, N. Y. Their car, a Cadillac roadster, was stopped by State Officer Keith a short distance from this city Wednesday afternoon, just because it looked suspicious to him. After an examination he took into custody the young men, neither over 25, and confiscated the car and its contents. The latter consisted of 12 cases of what the label on the bottles said was Dewar Scotch, which is supposed to be pre-war Scotch.

The men are well dressed and very different from the usual type of bootleggers. Both are married and are evidently well connected. In city court Thursday afternoon they were charged with having liquor in their possession, and with illegal transportation. They pleaded not guilty and were bound over to superior court in the sum of $1,500. As there will be a session of this court here Friday they may be presented at that time.

BOY OF SEVENTEEN TURNS A TWO-DOLLAR BILL TO $20

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, March 5.—A youthful counterfeiter was taken into custody by the local police today in the person of Alfred St. Onge, a 17-year-old Putnam boy. According to the charge against him he had taken a two dollar bill and made it into a twenty, which, with the aid of a 12-year-old acquaintance he had tried to pass in a Providence street store. The younger boy, whose name is Durand, made a small purchase and tendered the doctored $20 bill in payment. The store was being looked after by the wife of the owner who was delivering groceries, and as she did not have enough money to make change she went to a nearby store to secure it. There the changed figures were noticed and the boy was questioned, which led to the arrest of St. Onge, who was waiting around the corner.

In court he denied that he had given the bill to the boy and the hearing was continued until March 14 to give the officers more time to inquire into the unusual transaction. The parents of St. Onge live here and are highly esteemed. The mutilation of the bill is very plain and St. Onge could not have hoped to escape detection. So far as the police have learned there was only the one bill and only one attempt to make use of it.

Croup Relieved Without Dosing

Too much dosing is harmful to a child's delicate stomach. Often it lays the foundation for ill health in later life.

The next time a child seems croupy in the evening apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the bedclothing loose about the neck so that the arising vapors may be freely inhaled. This usually prevents a night attack.

If croup comes on without warning an application of Vicks usually brings relief in 15 minutes.

Vicks can be applied freely and often, even on the youngest child with perfect safety.

THE DAWES SPEECH.

From the manner in which he addressed the new senate, it is quite evident that Vice President Dawes has been giving serious consideration to the performances of that body in the past and studying the effects of them upon the nation. He made up his mind that it was useless to wait for the things he complained of to crop out again. He considers the condition chronic through long established habit and he is perfectly aware of the fact that if any impression is going to be made upon it in the way of obtaining a change it is necessary to set the movement in motion at the start.

There was no beating about the bush. Vice President Dawes had something to say and he said it. He didn't spend his time in saying what others had done before through the use of different phrases. He didn't undertake to tell the senate what it doesn't know, but he did undertake to impress upon it the fact that the country was sick and tired of the performances of that august body when it comes to obstructing progress and handling legislation through the rules that give one man more power than is vested in the president.

Perhaps it didn't set well among the senators. Perhaps it wasn't what the senate was looking for, but there are good reasons for believing that there is widespread support throughout the country for what he did say and for the fact that he had the disposition and courage to place it squarely before that body.

No senate of recent years has received such a poor rating in the public mind as the one that has just gone out of existence. It furnished the text for the Dawes address. The severity of the vice president may have astonished the senators and it may have maddened some of them, but there was delivered food for thought even by the upper house of congress.

What will the reaction be? There are reasons to anticipate a different senate in the 69th congress from that of the 68th. Perhaps there will be no rapid revision of senate rules, but it will surprise if there is not seen, here and there, the effect of the Dawes diagnosis and prescription.

VALUE OF FINGER PRINTING.

Finger prints have been found of great value in detecting and identifying criminals. But that is not the only use to which they have been put for the purposes of identification. They are used in connection with bank affairs and particularly where people cannot write. Finger and foot prints are resorted to in hospitals to assure the identity of infants.

Had such a course been followed in the case of the three-year-old youngster found in Camden, N. J., last December, there would have been no ground for any but a legitimate claim being made for him. As it was there were two women who claimed him as their son and the case has proved so baffling to the court that the judge has refused to award the child to either of them but ordered him placed in charge of a society for the prevention of cruelty to children.

This is tragic if, in fact, either one of the women is his mother and can be relied upon to give him the right kind of a home. As it turns out he must look forward to an institutional bringing up instead of getting the benefits of home influences. That he will be as well cared for as others in the same predicament, given a home and care is to be expected but it is unfortunate that he cannot have a real home.

The impression to be gained from the judge's decision is that neither woman proved her claim, or came anywhere near it. Were it a fact that finger prints or foot prints had been taken at the birth of the youngster there would have been no difficulty in establishing the names of his parents. Records of that kind are infallible and nothing serves to establish their importance like that case of the youngster found in Camden.

Pictures are rated of great value in establishing identifications, but pictures may vary from time to time while the prints of fingers and feet do not.

TENEMENT HOUSE FIRES.

If any argument is needed for the establishment of the right kind of protection in tenement house districts where so many lives are at stake, it would seem to be available in the death toll that is exacted in those very localities, especially in the larger cities, where residents are being burned to death too frequently. New York had nearly a hundred such cases in the past year.

Old structures furnish a serious menace. They may have fire escapes, but the material is such and the construction is of the type that provides ready fuel for the flames and those who escape after a fire gets a good start are lucky.

It was inevitable that there should be introduced into the legislature of the Empire state bills that would call for changes to safeguard humanity against such conditions. One proposed measure calls for the construction of self closing doors at the top of cellar stairs and the building of stairways of fire proof material. With stairways furnishing a veritable chimney for the flames, there are numerous instances which show the need of providing staircases that will not burn, while the placing of fire-doors at the head of cellar stairs would serve to increase the protection.

The need for such safeguards are by no means new. To conform to the requirements would call for some expenditures, but the wisdom of converting a firetrap into a reasonably safe place of residence would justify what it cost. It is questioned whether such protection as would be afforded could be obtained in any way for such an outlay. Just as long as there are wooden tenement houses, where many lives are at stake and where many may contribute in one way and another to the kindling of a fire through carelessness, there can be none too much attention paid to the elimination of the real danger. New York may not act even now, but the death list would seem to be a sufficiently strong object lesson to get proper attention for the condition.

APPLES IN THE EAST.

In connection with the reports which were made at a Rhode Island agricultural conference, President R. B. Bowen of the state fruit growers' association, advocated the advertising of Rhode Island fruit, and the packing of a better product, if Rhode Island farmers were to compete successfully with the western apple grower.

Such a sentiment is one that has been frequently expressed in this part of the country. There is a demand for fruit that can be produced in Connecticut, Rhode Island or other New England states and yet those who want such fruit have their wants filled for the most part by western products. This was emphasized in the Rhode Island conference when reference was made to the shortage of high quality Rhode Island fruit on the market and the laying of stress on the fact that, in color, quality and flavor, Rhode Island apples are not surpassed anywhere in the country.

The apparent need is for the creation of sufficient interest to have the apple growers of this part of the country give as much attention to the supplying of a nearby market as those of the western states do to a distant market. Western apples are not bought in preference to eastern fruit, but because they are on the market, made attractive and encounter little or no competition.

There is a big opportunity for the awakening of the fruit growers, or those who might be fruit growers, in the east to their opportunities. The accomplishments of the western growers are such as to warn the easterner that his only trouble is that he has failed to keep up and permitted others to come in and take away his market and business. And if the westerner should be sounded we have no doubt that he would say that in getting the eastern trade he encountered very slight opposition.

THE WORLD COURT.

Of course no senate would ask the opinion of the house concerning such an international matter as adhering to the world court plan. No house would expect anything of the kind, but there is no harm for the lower branch of congress to give expression to its views if it is so inclined. That is apparently the position taken by the house of the congress that just ended its existence when it took the time to express his cordial approval of the world court and the plan by which it is proposed that this country shall join.

The present senate will have the chance to deal with this matter. It knows what the sentiment of the administration is on this point and it knows what two presidents have urged in regard to it. It knows how the country felt after it became known what the president's views was and it has now been informed what the sentiment of the last house was, reflecting as it unquestionably did the attitude of the various states. With 301 house members favorably inclined and but 28 opposed it is certain that the vote would not stand so one sided unless there was a popular demand for such action.

Because one senate has balked and dawdled doesn't necessarily indict its successor. Expressions of sentiment, such as that which came from the house, are important, and a senate that is sympathetic with the administration cannot fail to give weighty consideration thereto. Perhaps it doesn't require any such counsel, but it would be most unwise for it to entirely ignore it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It will not be possible to keep back the news from the training camps much longer.

It is necessary to look sharp to find any extended favorably notice for the congress which has just ended.

The spirit that accompanies a rush to Siberia depends much on whether a discovery of gold has been made.

The man on the corner says: From the treatment given "Safety first" it looks as if many persons couldn't read.

Perhaps the quickest way to get legislation concerning interstate bus lines is for the railroads to go into the business extensively.

There has been much said about what the president was going to do but when it comes time to act he invariably exercises his own judgment.

It is an interesting thing that the regulated railroads and trolley lines pay taxes to build highways on which bus lines can operate without restrictions.

Congress might get credit for preventing many bills from becoming laws were it not for the fact that it also blocked others which should have been adopted.

Motion picture producers have paid it is said; more than eleven million for stories in the past five years. And yet there's a raft of them floating around free for those willing to listen.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, March 5th—While it is unlikely that any sanguinary "conflict" will arise between Great Britain and the United States because of "serious differences" declared by Admiral Phelps to be "brewing with England over shipping policies," it is manifest that our carrying trade with respect to imports from and exports to foreign countries is slipping compared with what it was for the two or three years following the world war, and it has more than once been charged on the Floors of Congress that British shipping interests, by way of propaganda, if not by actual interferences with legislative processes, have sought to block measures having to do with the encouragement and perpetuation of the American merchant marine. Admiral Phelps' remarks to the Women's Conference on National Defense recently, while not in good taste, will serve to call attention to certain existing facts.

For example, in 1920 and 1921 American vessels were carrying between 40 and 43 per cent., by value, of our overseas commerce, while last year they carried but 35 per cent. In December of last year the share of our vessels in this carrying trade sank to 32 per cent., the lowest since the war returned our Flag to the seas. The prewar average was about 9 per cent.

Cargoes Carried—In the calendar year 1924 the value of the cargoes carried in our vessels was $2,544,000,000, while foreign vessels brought to and took away from our ports goods to the value of $4,611,000,000. British boats alone carried American imports and exports to the value of $2,438,000,000. The net tons of American vessels entering and clearing that year was less than 60,000,000, foreign tonnage totalling 77,000,000 and British tonnage of about 15,000,000. Of the American tonnage a considerable portion was engaged in the Mexican oil trade and not fairly to be reckoned with as a part of our overseas shipping transactions.

It has been estimated that the cost of ocean freighting, insurance and other charges averages between 8 and 10 per cent. of the value of goods considered as a whole. Accepting the estimate at the lower figure this would indicate that the transportation bill of foreign shipping interests against us last year was in the neighborhood of $370,000,000—quite a tidy sum to be subtracted from our favorable trade balance. And the foreigners, particularly the British, get the cream of the trade, while our vessels have to take an undue share of low earning commodities such as ores, etc. Shall we revert to our pre-war status.

Foreign trade factors, 1924—Our export trade was greater in 1924 than in any preceding year since 1920, according to the Department of Commerce analysis, and the value decline of 44 per cent., as compared with 1920, was largely, though not wholly attributable to the fall in prices. The value of imports in 1924, while somewhat less than the preceding year, had previously been exceeded only in 1919 and in 1920, in both of which years the larger figures were due to much higher prices. Exports in 1924 were 11% and imports 114 per cent. greater in value than the 1910-14 averages. While these increases over pre-war years have been in large part due to higher prices, there has been a definite growth in the physical volume of trade in both directions. The great expansion of our automobile and silk industries, and other industries hungering for raw materials from abroad, has increased our demand for many foreign products. Our higher standards of living and general prosperous conditions have given rise to greater demands for tropical foodstuffs and other semi-luxuries. Unfavorable conditions in many parts of the world have made the United States the market most worth the active competition of foreign sellers. On the other hand, the continued growth in our consuming population tends to require a greater share of our production of raw materials and foodstuffs for home use. On the average for 1910-14 the value of imports was equal to 79 per cent. of the value of exports, while for 1924 the corresponding ratio was 78.6 per cent.—a very slight change.

Washington's Bicentennial—It is not too soon to begin preparations for the commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Washington, and the president's appointment of a national commission for that purpose is heartily to be commended. Especially is this true if amid its other features the commemoration takes the supremely fitting form of a more general popular understanding of the principles of patriotism and statesmanship of which Washington was the exponent and a more general and effective resolution to maintain those principles in our own time. To cry "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," for the space of two hours was not more useless and vain than to raise monuments to Washington and make orations in his honor without standing for that for which he stood. If these seven years could be marked from nation wide study of the character, career and achievements of Washington, the bicentenary of his birth would not lack its best commemoration.

American Dyes—A few years ago it was the general—though not entirely well founded belief that we could not manufacture cloth dyes in this country comparable with those which Germany made out of raw materials secured from us. There were many opponents of the protective system who raged against all tariff protection of American dyes, because, they said, there was no use in our hoping ever to equal the German products, no matter how much protection was given to the attempt.

Now, however, it seems to be conceded that we are making as good dyes as any in the world, and it is announced that Russia, although most partial to Germany, prefers our dyes to the German goods, and insists that German merchants shall procure our American dyes to supply her demands. As "Sam" Patch once sapiently remarked, "Some things can be done, as well as some other things."

Armament Limitations—Our government may properly be sympathetic toward the desire of other great powers to have another conference on limitation of naval armaments, to deal, as it is intimated, with the question of limitation of vessels below battleship rank, to wit, cruisers, gunboats, destroyers, submarines, and perhaps air planes. In the former conference this country took the initiative, and it has most scrupulously and at great cost to itself, fulfilled the provisions of the resultant treaty; and it would be entirely logical for it to extend the same benign principles to the entire naval establishment. It would probably be found, however, that in an equalization of auxiliary naval forces, either other powers would have greatly to reduce their equipment while leaving ours untouched, or we should have to be authorized gratly to increase ours. Any arrangement which would condemn us to continuation of our present discreditable inferiority would be entirely unacceptable to the United States. This country is willing to keep its armaments within reasonable bounds, but it is not, will not be and should not be willing to be outranked in any essential respect by any other power in the world.

Crop and Prices—Last year's wheat crop throughout the world is reckoned as the fifth smallest in twenty-five years, and to have been nine per cent. below the average for that period. That should naturally mean for this year prices higher than the average, and probably will. Statistics show, however, that small crops are not always followed by high prices, nor large crops by low prices. It would doubtless be to the real advantage of both the producer and the consumer to have, if possible, the economics of agriculture and commerce so adjusted that the seasonal fluctuations in the yield of the wheat fields would not be greatly if at all reflected in the prices of bread. The law of supply and demand cannot, of course, be nullified; but in the matter in the staple food products of the people its hardships should be minimized.

NICE AND QUIET

"Excuse me if I seem to yawn," remarked Wilkinson as he pulled up a chair for the out-of-town customer, "but it was 3 o'clock before we got to sleep last night and I'm feeling a lack of rest."

"I didn't suppose you and Mrs. Wilkinson had grown so gay," laughed the out-of-town customer. "Was it a fiance, mah-jong or cross-word puzzles that kept you up? Or maybe you've turned into a radio fan and were trying for a distant station?"

"Nothing so fine," said Wilkinson. "The people who live in the apartment over us had sublet their place for a month and last night there was grand farewell pow-wowing as the new people's month was up. They danced and sang and shouted and shrieked with laughter until after half past 2, and their radio or phonograph or something equally fierce was going every minute of the time. My wife's sleeping this afternoon, but I didn't feel I could stay home, so I came on down. I'm mighty thankful we won't have another such night tonight."

"They just wanted to make you glad when they left, or to show you how wonderfully good they had been before when you didn't appreciate them," suggested the out-of-town customer. "It makes me think of my sister's experience in the flat they were in."

"Tell me about your sister's experience," said Wilkinson.

"My sister had lived in her apartment for eight years," said the out-of-town customer, "and she hated like sin to leave it, but she just couldn't stand the noise. When the new people moved in over her she thought they were going to be ideal neighbors, just a rather elderly couple and their two daughters who weren't any too young themselves, but she was soon undeceived."

"I know," laughed Wilkinson.

"My sister said it was so quiet there that she couldn't get to sleep for ever so long," continued the out-of-town customer. But after a while she became accustomed to it and loved it. Her husband said that he found it a bit lonesome, though the neighborhood is well built up, and that he was glad when he heard the people upstairs walking around. My sister and the young folks had gone to church so he was there alone, and he said he just sat there in the living room and contrasted the quietness of the people upstairs with the racket of the folks who used to live over them in the other place."

"There's a great difference in tenants," agreed Wilkinson. "I don't wonder he was glad to have nice quiet folks above him."

"Yes but when his wife came home he realized what it was," laughed the out-of-town customer. "And he ran upstairs two steps at a time to learn the worst. You see, he had lived so long in an apartment that he had forgotten he had moved to a house, so he didn't realize it was burglars he had heard tiptoeing around overhead!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Savings By Canterbury School Children.

Mr. Editor:—I would like to say a few words in regard to the interest shown by my pupils in the Chelsea school banking department. When the last statement was sent out by the bank, February 9, 1926, my pupils had only $26.43 deposited to their credit. Because one school in our town was ahead they did not feel quite satisfied, so they determined to bring our amount up. From February 9 until the present day my pupils have to their credit $56.85, a difference of over $30.42, in one month. I consider this very remarkable from the fact that most of the parents are of moderate circumstances and have to make every dollar count. Some of my people have earned money by trapping, others by doing work around home for which they received a few pennies. A great many contributers bring their money penny by penny, yet added together they soon count up. We have set our goal for $75, and I have no doubt but that we can go it. We are having a race between boys and girls to see which will win. A prize has been offered to the boy and girl contributing the most during the school year. At present Darwin Tracy, age 12 years and in the eighth grade, leads with $23.56 to his credit, and Priscilla Smith leads the girls. She is 12 years of age and in the eighth grade and has to her credit $2.55.

The pupils have shown a great deal of interest and we hope to lead our town this year.

Your truly,
BESSIE E. HOCK,
Teacher of Baldwin School,

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

When Lord Reading, the present Viceroy of India, retires this year, it is expected that the Earl of Lytton will be named to succeed him. Lord Lytton's appointment to this post would be of particular interest for several reasons. He has an hereditary connection with India, for he was born at Simla not long after his father, the first Earl of Lytton, had assumed office as viceroy. He has himself been Under-Secretary for India, and more recently governor of Bengal, an office in which he has added to his reputation. Lord Lytton, who is forty-eight, was at Eton when he succeeded to the peerage, and went to Trinity College, Cambridge. His first important public office was that of Civil Lord of the Admiralty, to which he was appointed in 1916. He published some years ago a biography, which was also a vindication of his grandfather, Bulwer Lytton, the celebrated novelist, poet, orator and statesman.

McHugh Had to Toil On and Be Patient

Left motherless and fatherless when a small boy, John McHugh had to make his own way without money, influence or a college education.

Born in Belleville, Ontario, Canada, he was reared by his grandmother in that little town. He liked to study and stood among the first in his classes, receiving a medal for general excellence of his work when he was graduated from high school.

Then he had to give up hopes of a university training, and at 16, started to work as clerk for the Grand Trunk railway, at $10 a month. He learned telegraphy, and when an operator quit, John filled his old and the new position, and was paid the two salaries—total $20 a month.

Next assistant train dispatcher, he relieved the head of the frieght department at a small station nearby. Soon afterward he was placed in charge of the freight business at Linsay, Ontario. Now 19, rounding out his first year of work and doing tasks usually assigned to men much older, he regarded his progress and prospects as very satisfactory, but he served in that position for eight years without hearing even a mention of promotion.

Having taken an interest in young-er men, he studied vacations, and determined to be a banker. Accepting a position as clerk in a chain of banks, he declined the railroad's proffer of a larger salary than his new berth offered in the First National Bank of Carroll, Iowa. He was moved from bank to bank in the chain for five years without hearing a word relative to real advancement.

After seven arduous years following the panic of 1893, he accepted a call to the office of cashier of the Iowa State National Bank of Sioux City at 35. Later he was made president and increased the bank's business tweptyfold, becoming a leading banker of the state.

Then came the call to New York and at 50 he was made vice president of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, one of the largest financial institutions in the country. Two years later he was elevated to the presidency, an office he still holds at 59. He is interested also in many other financial concerns.

Allen's Lung Healer The Children's Friend

Lynn Woman Would Not Be Without It In Her Home.

Hundreds upon hundreds of letters from enthusiastic Mothers have expressed eloquent words of praise for Allen's Lung Healer in breaking up obstinate, deep-seated coughs that had been distressing their children. Here is yet another.

"Allen's Lung Healer is a wonderful remedy. I cannot praise it too highly. It will do all you claim for it. I gave it to my two children last winter, one of them had pneumonia, the other one had a very bad cough. I heard of Allen's Lung Healer. Getting one bottle to try, I found it was something elegant. I would not be without it in my home in the winter for my children."

Stories That Recall Others

The Way to Come Back.

"Standing at the street corner the other day, I overheard a conversation between two small boys, aged about five, concerning which direction is uptown," said a well known resident. "One pointed south and the other pointed north. The one holding uptown to be in a southerly direction, turned around and while pointing northward, said, "Why, that's the way you come back."

Couldn't Get Ben Twice.

Ben is spending the winter in California and is finding many interesting things to write home to friends. The other day he met a friend from home, who asked him to take lunch with him.

"When he started to pay," writes Ben, "my friend felt in all his pockets and with a look of dismay said, 'Ben, I have lost my purse.'

"So I had to pay the bill. The man apparently embarrassed, said, Ben if you will go to my hotel, I'll order a taxi and repay you when we get there.

"But I was too wise for that. I declined, thinking I might have to pay the taxi bill also."

An observatory for avalanches, believed to be the first of its kind, has been erected in Tamischbachturm, in the province of Steiermark, Austria, by the state railway. Its object is both scientific and practical. It has been fitted with instruments for recording of exact dates, and it will also send out warnings to stations below when avalanches threaten. It is also planned to "set off" incipient avalanches and so prevent them from launching themselves later spontaneously and without warning.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Building of a New Home

The truth of this remember, neighbor;
To build a home is happy labor.
—Plunger the Osprey.

Farmer Brown's boy gets up very early. Living on a farm he has to. But early as it was when he first came out of the house, and the very first thing looked over to the cart wheel on the top of the pole he had put up the day before on the edge of the Green Forest, he saw that others had been up before him and already were at work. Mrs. Plunger the Osprey was just alighting on that cart wheel with a stick.

Farmer Brown's boy chuckled. "They knew what I put that thing up for," said he happily. "They have already begun to build on it." Just then he heard the shrill whisper of

"They knew what I put that thing up for," said he happily

Plunger and saw the latter also with a good sized stick. He joined Mrs. Plunger on the cart wheel platform at the top of the tall pole. He could hear them talking things over. Then they flew away. One went in one direction and the other in another direction. It wasn't long before Plunger was back with another stick. A few minutes later Mrs. Plunger appeared also with a stick.

"I wonder," thought Farmer Brown's boy, "why they don't use the material of that old nest, which fell with the tree when it blew down." But there was no one to answer that question for him. Had he carefully examined that old nest he might have guessed why Plunger and Mrs. Plunger preferred to hunt for new material. As a matter of fact, they had looked over that old nest and had decided that there was very little of it that would do. Many of the sticks in it had been there so long that they were decayed.

"This is to be a new home and everything about it shall be new," Mrs. Plunger had declared. And to this Plunger had agreed.

Mrs. Plunger took great pains in arranging those first sticks. She wedged some of them in between the spokes of that old wheel. She meant to have that new nest firm and secure. Plunger was content to simply bring the sticks and leave them for Mrs. Plunger to arrange.

How those two big Hawks did work. And how happy they were in their work. Forgotten now was the distress they had felt when they had returned and found their old nest gone. They took time enough to go fishing over in the Big River, for of course they had to eat. But every other minute of the day they worked. It was surprising how the pile of sticks grew.

It was just the same way the next day. Plunger, flying over Farmer Brown's cornfield, discovered some old cornstalks. "Just the thing!" exclaimed Plunger, and picking up one of them he carried it over to the new nest.

"Where did you get that, my dear?" Mrs. Plunger asked.

Plunger told her, and together they flew over to the cornfield for more. From along the edge of the Big River they brought rushes and water weeds that had been cast up on the shore and had dried. At last the nest was finished. Compared with the old nest it was small. That was because the old nest had been added to year after year. They would add to this nest next year and every year so long as they used it.

When the last bit of material had been placed to suit Mrs. Plunger she gave a sigh of pure happiness. "Now, my dear," said she, "we'll go fishing. We have a home once more. And until it is time for me to sit on the eggs we will have here soon we'll play a little."

And this is just what they did do.

In 1869 he returned to Connecticut and settled on his farm near West Mystic station. THE STORY OF SHANTOK SHOWN IN PAMPHLET

In the intgrests of the proposed state park at Fort Shantok, the historic fort of Uncas and the Mohegans, and "in the interests of eastern Connecticut" a booklet has been printed for distribution by the Chamber of Commerce of Norwich. The booklet which is captioned, The Story of Shantok, gives a historical sketch by Arthur L. Peale, one of the best informed men on Indian history in eastern Connecticut, as follows:

In southeastern Connecticut about three and one-half miles below the junction of the Yantic and Shetucket rivers, and on the west banks of the Thames in the present township limits of Montville was the site of Shantok, one of the principal forts of the Mohegans. Nearby was an unfailing spring and which is in existence at the present time. Shortly after the battle at the "Great Plains" in 1643, when the Mohegans defeated the Narragansetts, the last named tribe under Pessacus attacked Uncas at Shantok, and laid siege to his fort there.

In 1657 another attack was made on this fort by the Narragansetts and Niantics, assisted by the Pocomtocks and Norwootucks, two tribes from Massachusetts, but they were repulsed.

In 1659 the Tunxis, Pocomtocks and Narragansetts again attacked the Mohegans at this place, and during the same year the Narragansetts were defeated here by their adversaries the Mohegans. Roger Williams in one of his letters in 1660 writes as follows, in referring to one of the Indian battles at this fort: "The Monheggins would not sallie, and the Nanheggs would not spoil the corn for feare of offending the English."

During the Queen Anne, French and Indian and King Philip wars the Mohegans were the faithful allies of Connecticut colony, and at the close of these great struggles many widows and orphans were left of these brave warriors who lost their lives.

In the Revolutionary war 17 or 18 of this tribe were killed or died in the service of this country.

The Leffingwell Memorial.

In 1898 the Connecticut Society of Colonial Dames of America erected a cairn, a cone-shaped pile of stones, suggestion by its form an Indian wigwam, to mark the spot to which Lieut. Thomas Leffingwell brought supplies to the Mohegans when they were besieged at Fort Shantok. Since that time the memorial has been moved a few rods away to the "old burial ground" of the Mohegans.

Many tourists annually visit this place.

All the countries of Connecticut have state parks with the exception of New London county, a bill has been introduced in the present legislature by the representative from Montville for the establishment of a state park at Fort Shantok, and has the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce of Norwich, Eastern Connecticut Civic Association and other organizations.

"May we not have your support to preserve this place as a memorial park to the Mohegans who were always the friends of the colonists."

JOINT COMMITTEE TAKES STEPS TO HELP CITY'S PARKING PROBLEM

A conference on the Norwich traffic problem, particularly as applying to parking places, at which Mayor Milo R. Waters presided, was held Thursday evening in the mayor's office at the court house and was attended by the traffic committee of the common council, the chamber of commerce parking committee, and representatives of the Retail Merchants association.

The discussion centered particularly upon the parking space at the New Haven station which has recently been closed to public use by orders of the railroad officers. The matter was referred to a committee consisting of Mayor Waters, Corporation Counsel William H. Shields Jr., Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney and Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the chamber of commerce to take up the matter with the railroad officials to see if the railroad would not name a figure at which the city could lease the space and throw it open to free parking. When the railroad's order was issued closing this place against parking, Mayor Waters and Mr. O'Rourke conferred on the next day with Superintendent R. M. Smith of the railroad, from whom they learned that the road intended to administer the parking privilege itself, charging 25 cents per day, or 14 tickets for $3.30, but so far this has not been done.

Another proposition discussed was the possibility of establishing a public athletic field on Hollyhock island, around which a parking place could be arranged that would accommodate from 400 to 500 cars.

It was also suggested in the meeting that a campaign of education is needed in this city to cut down the number of business and professional men who habitually use the parking places and curb locations as garages where their cars are allowed to stand for hours at a time.

Mr. Anderson then presented the prize to Miss Kupky.

The commander's remarks brought the formal programme to a close and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing. D'Atri's Wauregan Hotel orchestra furnished the dance programme and also provided a splendid concert programme during the banquet hour.

ADVOCATES INCREASE IN FEES FOR CORONERS

Coroner Mix of New Haven appeared before the committee on the judiciary in the legislature Thursday afternoon to support a bill for increasing fees of coroners and medical examiners. He said that the law dated back to 1882 and that fees were too small. For landing a corpse found in the water the fee is $5, paid by the coroner. Coroners themselves receive $30 for each day necessarily employed and for each legal page of records and copies after inquest, eighty cents.

Dr. Scarborough of New Haven pointed out that a coroner's work and a coroner's autopsy took precedence over all other work. He told about heavy expenses, dangerous work and the necessity of exposure to all kinds of weather.

Dr. W. L. Higgins, representative from Coventry said that for thirty-three years he had been medical examiner. He could not hire an automobile to the place for the fees he received. About half the towns of Tolland county had no local resident for medical examiner.

PREACHES ON SIN AT UNITED LENTEN SERVICE

The problem of sin was the sermon theme selected by Rev. Walter E. Bentley, rector of St. Stephen's church, Port Washington, L. I., for the first of the united Lenten services, held at Christ Episcopal church, Thursday evening.

Sin is not a popular subject, said Rev. Mr. Bentley but the prophet had said that the wages of sin is death. There is a unity of the laws governing nature and religion and our historical church gives the picture of what is inside, the wonderful mother church has the truth.

Why do we enter into the darkness of Lent? Because the shadow of the cross filled the whole period. Sin causes the unrest in the world, causes all its heartaches, miseries and its wages are death. Paul used the slave and the soldier in his picturization of life to show that the slave had no life of its own and that people must escape the slavery of sin to become fighters for good. Sin is the cause of all troubles in life. Sin is rebellion against God. Through it we break away from our orbit of being and are cast down to destruction. It is religion that brings us back into our orbit and saves us from destruction.

Where was the origin of sin? God made us free and gave us all the privilege of choosing between good and evil. We are free men with the power of choice. A beautiful picture of this is given by the Hebrews in the story of the garden of Eden. This does not mean a real garden, but a garden of peace. Man was made innocent but not perfect because he had to keep the garden. He was born innocent that he might develop holiness. He was given self to find God. Innocence is therefore not holiness but holiness comes through proper care of life. The tree of knowledge was the good and evil in life. Man could not resist the temptation to eat of this fruit of knowledge and the poison was taken into the system thus corrupting the whole race. The church is the spiritual hospital where those who have fallen may be healed and started once again on the path that leads to holiness. Sin mars us all. When our forefathers partook of the fruit they knew they were naked. When the sense of innocence is lost, shame comes, unrest and fear follow and we try to hide. The feeling that follows the first sin is that which tells us that we have lost something. After this comes selfishness, lack of restraint, the looking upon religion with suspicion and the dropping to the state lower than the beast that is within us.

From this mockery results and the open life of sin is lived, profanity and adultery being the outcome of this life of mockery. Suffering comes because of the loss of sensitiveness and the soul is in darkness. Fourth and last is the life of pure deviltry, wicked living, the life of the mocker who tries to draw others into the life of shame and, finally, comes the unpardonable sin. That is why the wages of sin is death.

What is the effect of sin? Sin separates us from God, the church and our people. We may go to church, we may pray, this is only machinery of the kingdom. Religion is the consciousness of God's presence at all times, the binding power that binds us to Him. Sin separates us from our families, parts our brotherhood, is the cloud that hides the sunshine, that hides our Father's face. It causes the liar, the cheat and the drunkard to exist. Sin spoils. Look at the bleary faces of the drunkard, the face of the liar and cheat, afraid to look you in the eyes. We spoil our better selves by sinning. Instead of growing older and stronger in spiritual life, sin makes the animal life abound.

Every sin is crucifixion. Every time you sin you add a burden to that already carried by Christ, who died on the cross for your sins. Sin is a disease that kills the soul. It causes a life of usefulness and leads us to the question of why we are in this world. We are placed in this world that we may know Him forever and to help God make us free, giving us the right to choose for ourselves. Are we to forsake Him when He asks our help? Because of sin are we to be unable to answer His call for assistance? Sin takes away that power. During Lent it is wise to consider this underlying cause of all unhappiness.

Our hearts are like a door that can only be opened from within. God cannot enter our hearts unless we open them to Him. Every sin is not only against ourselves, our families and the state, but against God, and against God first. We should so live our lives that should temptation come we could say, "No, I cannot and will not sin within Thy sight."

AETNA TEAM LEADING IN EASTERN CONN. TWO-MAN BOWLING TOURNEY

The Aetna Bowling team (Fillmore [illegible]) took a firm hold of first [illegible] the Eastern Connecticut two-[illegible] league at the conclusion [illegible] first round of the first round [illegible] night at the Aetna alleys [illegible] actions of the leaders was the [illegible] rolling pair from Moosup, Char[illegible] McKenzie, who lost out by [illegible].

The low scores made by the Moosup [illegible] in this league due to the in[illegible] bowling of Chartier [illegible] he had but [illegible] spare through an inf[illegible]tion of the rules. Chartier wished to [illegible]ance the rules and roll his own sweet way but as "rules is rules" even the mighty man from Moosup had to bow before them. This matter of having to conform to the rules was the undoing of the bowlers from up the river. The rule which was under the fire of Mr. Chartier was the rule relating to "a foreign object on the alleys." Chartier broke the pins for a spare, pins 4 and 7 being up. On the second ball a pin from another alley dropped on Chartier's alley and his ball struck the pin diverting it so that he made the spare. Chartier immediately claimed the spare but the rules say different and that the ball is dead. After this Chartier lost all interest in the game and disgusted the spectators with his sore-headness and cry-baby act.

His partner McKenzie kept on trying but it is pretty hard for a man to bowl when his partner is laying down on him. McKenzie did not growl, but it would not be surprising if McKenzie sie sought another partner as he is a bowler who sticks to the rules and does very little crabing.

BULKELEY RELAY TEAM AT HARTFORD MEET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 5—Bulkeley's relay team of four members will go to Hartford on Saturday, March 14, to perform on the same bill with Paavo Nurmi who is to run in the Capitol City on that date. The local quartet of runners has not been picked as yet, but Coach Frank B. Hamlen will be busy all of next week in getting the team into condition for the meet.

It is expected that the Bulkeley runners will oppose all the high school runners in the state, for it is understood that every high school of importance has been invited to enter a relay team. Or it is possible that the Bulkeley quartet will oppose the Hartford High runners in a dual race.

Further announcements will be made shortly and it will be learned just what team or teams will oppose Bulkeley. All that's known at present is that Paavo Nurmi, the sensational Finnish runner is on the same card, and he will be a feature of a fine bill of runners.

CHAPMAN TECH HAS TOUGH FOOTBALL SLATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 5—Chapman Tech's grid slate for the season of 1925 has been announced by the officials of that institution. The complete schedule includes nine games, five of these being regularly scheduled games of the Eastern Connecticut league. Chapman Tech has the largest number of home games yet to be scheduled for this institution in football. This number is six and the only games Red and Black will play out of town is with teams in the Eastern Connecticut league, where a home and home rule prevails.

Windham High appears to be the only tough nut on the entire schedule, while the rest of the elevens which appear on the slate have been retained by the Tech management for games this year. The opening game of the season is slated for September 26, and will present a problem to the coaches at Tech to bring about an evenly balanced eleven. For Windham High will be opposed on that date.

Norwich Free Academy appears on the schedule at New London on Saturday, October 31, and the Red and Black eleven plays at Norwich on November 14 in the return game. The schedule will be terminated with Westerly High on November 20 and this will also be the final game of the league series.

Chapman Tech will lose very few men by graduation this year. The only players to be lost through this means are Captain Martin, center; Bernard Hewitt, tackle; Francis Courbois, quarterback, Paul Kannenberg captain-elect playing fullback last year, will lend the team for the 1925 season.

The schedule:

Saturday, September 26—Windham High school at New London.

Saturday, October 3, 1925—Plainfield High school at New London.

Saturday, October 10—Stonington High school at Stonington.*

Saturday, October 17—Killingly High school at New London.

Friday, October 23—Westerly High school at New London.

Saturday, October 31—Norwich Free Academy at New London.*

Friday, November 6—Stonington High school at New London.*

Saturday, November 14.—Norwich Free Academy at New London.*

Friday, November 20—Westerly High school at Westerly.*

*Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic Athletic Council League game.

BULKELEY LOSES TO DEEP RIVER QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Deep River, March 5—Bulkeley's string of consecutive victories was snapped at six by Deep River High here last evening in the second meeting of these teams this season. Bulkeley's winning streak started with Deep River and terminated with the same five. The final score was 31 to 21.

The game was roughly played, and the Orange and Black was forced to trail behind soon after the game got under way. The fast work of the Deep River forwards and guards was too much for the Bulkeley five to overcome. Huck Taylor was unnecessarily rough and his playing was not as good as usual after that period.

O'Brien led the home five in scoring, while Paris led Bulkeley with eight points.

Bulkeley played without the services of Capt. Graves.

Combat Train Wins.

The Combat Train indoor baseball team won an easy victory over the American Woolen team at the state armory Thursday evening by a score of 12 to 4. The Combatants will play Clabby's Colts next week.

TAFTVILLE AND PLAINFIELD CLASH TONIGHT IN SECOND TITLE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Plainfield, March 5.—The second game in the battle for the Eastern Connecticut basketball crown will be fought here Friday evening at the Community house when the local Army-Navy club clashes with the Taftville Army-Navy team. This is the second meeting of the teams in the quest for the title, Plainfield dropping the first game at Taftville by a small margin.

It is predicted here that the Taftville team is due for a big surprise. It is almost certain that if Manager Murphy brings the same five men that played against the home club on Tuesday, his team is due for a swamping, as the local club with an even break from the referee can play rings around the Taftville quintet.

With Lanky Norris at center, Normandin and Dessinger in the forward line and Benson and Provost at guard, the visitors will have all they can handle. The Taftville team will be up against a rejuvenated team when they take the floor on Friday. Manager Salisbury says that his team will win the title for Eastern Connecticut and cares little whether Manager Murphy of Taftville hires the best basketball players in the state or not.

This game is expected to be the bitterest game of the season and no little action is anticipated when the two teams take the floor. The betting favors the home club and the local backers are going the limit.

There will be a fast preliminary game which will also be very fast.

ATTRACTIVE BOXING BOUTS AT WESTERLY CLUB

At the Lorraine Community house in Pawcatuck Thursday evening a card of attractive boxing bouts were put on. The bouts drew about 1,000 persons and were very scrappy and entertaining. Among the guests at the ringside were Boxing Commissioners Tommy Donahue and Frankie Murphy. There was a technical knockout in the main bout between Jimmy Ross of Westerly and Manny Rose of Stonington when Rose's seconds tossed in the towel in the second round. Johnny Harvey of Westerly won over Smiley McCormick when the latter was disqualified by the referee. There were four other preliminary bouts that went the limit and were declared draws. A wrestling match was also on the programme and Stebenski won over Brennan in two falls.

COAST GUARD FIVE WINS CLOSE TILT WITH YALE JRS.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 5—Gaining an early advantage over their opponents, the undefeated Coast Guard Cadets added new laurels at the Y. M. C. A. by taking the Yale Junior Varsity into camp last evening by a 26 to 22 score. Replete with thrilling situations throughout, the superior all-round work of the Coast Guard five gained them the victory. Over 400 witnessed the game.

Coleman's work in shooting baskets from long distance has not been duplicated here this season, and in five attempts at baskets from past the center of the floor he sunk the ball through the hoop four times. He had an able running mate in Verrill who made three field goals. The Ell forwards were late in starting, and they failed to score a single field goal in the first half. A new pair of forwards seemed to benefit the visitors.

Linholm's work in the first half was good, but he was held scoreless in the second half. However he led both teams in the matter of scoring with 11 points, French had 10 points. In field baskets, the visiting collegians made one more than the winners, but the ability to cage them from the foul mark proved the down fall of the Yale five.

FIRPO DISPLEASED WITH BOXING GAME IN FRANCE

Paris, March 5—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine battler, came back to Paris today, somewhat stouter, but still hopeful. He was rather resentful of the more or less friendly bantering remarks to the effect that he "looked as big as a house." Ring experts asserted that the Argentine was forty pounds over-weight. He himself admitted ten pounds surplus avoirdupois.

Luis was somewhat pessimistic regarding the boxing sport in general. He said his exhibition bout with townsend at Monte Carlo drew an attendance of 398 by actual count, and then thirty per cent of these were complimentaries, or "elegant gate crashers."

"Maybe I'll go back to America," he soliloquised. "Its pretty hard to train in France."

KEARNS IS CONSIDERING MATCH WITH GIBBONS

Los Angeles, March 5.—Jack Kearns manager for Jack Dempsey, announced today that consideration was being given a proposal by A. E. Santweir, a Hollywood promoter, to stage a title match June 9 between the champion and Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, for a consideration of $500,000.

Santweir said he offered Kearns the sum for a ten round title match with Dempsey to be fought in a Hollywood arena, which he said he would construct, to seat 130,000 persons, with possible gate receipts of $1,300,000.

Hoxie came through today at the expense of Austin L. Sands of Newport, R. I., whom he defeated six and three. Hotchkiss disposed of B. P. Merriman, Waterbury, Conn., five and four; Randolph eliminated Donald G. Herring, Princeton, N. J., three and two, and Johnson defeated his brother, A. E. Johnson, also of Cleveland, three and one.

Chapman Tech vs Acmy Five

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 5—Chapman Tech will find its hands full on Friday evening, when the High school five attempts to tackle the fast Acmy five at the school auditorium. With the Chapman Tech five in a deep rut as the result of eight straight defeats, the Acmy five will give them something to think about at all times in their contest Friday. The Acmy five holds a decisive victory over the Sanitary Corps of Westerly, and other strong fives in the immediate vicinity. Holding the Submarine Base to a low score for three quarters the Acmy five was forced to submit to defeat in the last quarter. The Tech outfit will have to be in good condition to come up to standard of the Acmy five. The game will start at 8.

Rosenberg Beats Pincus.

New York, March 5.—Charley "Phil" Rosenberg of New York, who will meet the bantamweight champion, Eddie (Cannonball) Martin of Brooklyn, in the near future, tonight scored a technical knockout over Nat Pincus of Brooklyn in the eleventh round of a twelve-round match. Farmers Taught Dynamite Ditching By the State Agricultural College

DYNAMITE DIGS DITCH IN SPLIT SECOND.

DITCH BLASTED WITH DYNAMITE

20,000 lbs. of Dynamite Used In 6 Months To Show Economy

BY F. W. KNIPE,
Agricultural Engineer, Connecticut Agricultural College

A GREAT deal of interesting work in blasting ditches with dynamite has been done recently in the state of Connecticut under the auspices of the Connecticut Agricultural College. Demonstrations have been conducted on many farms, before hundreds of farmers, showing the economy and efficiency of the explosive in this class of work. During the past six months something like 20,000 pounds of dynamite have been used by the College above in blasting ditches in the state.

A recent interesting demonstration was held on the farm of the Rev. George B. Gilbert of Johnson's Lane, Middleton, where a ditch approximately 450 feet long was blasted by dynamite, before an audience of farmers and others who showed great interest in how the work was being done. Something like 225 pounds of sixty per cent straight dynamite was used in blasting this ditch.

First, holes were punched along the line where it was desired to blast the ditch, the holes being made with a crowbar to a depth of about 36 inches and about two feet apart. Two sticks of dynamite, or one pound, were placed in each of the holes. The ditch was shot in three sections, the cartridges being exploded by what is known as the propagation method, whereby the center cartridge is exploded and this in turn detonates all the rest.

The operation was successful, the ditch being nearly four feet deep, four feet wide on the bottom and from six to ten feet wide at the top. Four men worked on the job and the actual time consumed in working was about one and one-half hours, although the time spent on the ditch was more than that, due to frequent halts in the work while the methods were explained to spectators. The cost of the ditch was about fourteen cents per running foot.

Many farmers are now using dynamite in blasting ditches, the advantages being a saving in money and time and the fact that when a ditch is blasted the material is scattered around over the landscape and is not piled up alongside in spoil-banks to drain back into the ditch.

The Star-Nosed Mole

The most curiously formed of all the burrowing creatures is undoubtedly the radiated mole, or as it is more generally called, the star-nosed mole. As suggested by the popular name, the most extraordinary feature of this grotesque little burrower is the long, slender muzzle, at the end of which are found a number of fleshy points, radiating like the petals of a daisy. These peculiar points are a bright rose color and can be opened or closed at the will of the animal, in which movement they present a strange sight. The openings of the nostrils are in the center of the "daisy," and it is thought that the projections aid the mole in procuring its habitual worm and insect food. There are usually about 20 points formed around the nostrils.

As is common with every member of the family, the star-nosed mole has such small eyes that they are not readily seen unless especially searched for, and for many years the old naturalists believed them blind. However, by dropping one of them in a tub of water, it protrudes its eyes from the furry covering so as to escape to the nearest landing place. The muscular development of the forelimbs is remarkable for so small a creature, and, being employed chiefly for digging underground tunnels, these limbs are furnished with large paws having long, flattened nails.

The star-nosed mole's tail is quite long in proportion to its body, often reaching 2 1-2 inches, with a body length of only about 4 1-2 inches, and for that reason it is sometimes known as the long-tailed mole.

PRINCE GOES TO SEEK WELLS IN THE DESERT

Prince Kemmal-ed-din Hussein has left Egypt at the head of an expedition into the Libyan Desert with the object of discovering wells, which will render possible the opening of the desert to camel transport. The prince last year led an expedition northwest of Dakhla, where he discovered a cache left by the German explorer Rohlf, containing a tank and bottle inclosing a message. His present objective is Ocunat and Arkuna, recently discovered by the Egyptian explorer Hassanein Bey.

Dr. Ball, director of desert surveys, accompanies the expedition, which is equipped with wireless apparatus, cinematograph apparatus and eight Citroen caterpillar cars. The prince bears the whole cost of expedition.

MAJ. CHAS. P. WILLIAMS SELLS FINE STONINGTON ESTATE

Westerly, R. I., March 5—Major Charles P. Williams of Stonington owner of Stoneridge, one of the finest country estates on the southern New England coast, has sold this palatial residence and valuable stock farm to Frank N. Wilcox of Westerly

Major Williams has purchased a smaller villa at Newport, and plans to move next month. He and his family have been so prominently connected with the social, business and philanthropic interests of Stonington, Westerly and Watch Hill for the past 25 years that they will be greatly missed.

Mr. Wilcox, the new owner of Stoneridge, says that it was taken over purely as an investment and that already plans are being made for its resale or development.

While in New York last week, S. H. Davis, who is handling the property, got in touch with parties who are considering the purchase of the Williams estate as the nucleus for the development of a hotel and summer cottage colony. While in Providence this week he has interested a group of wealthy men who may secure the property for an exclusive country club and family hotel.

Stoneridge, from which Major Williams has looked out for many years on three states, five villages and nine lighthouses and lightships, is one of the show places of this shore resort section which the Westerly chamber of Commerce, through its Rhode Island and Connecticut shore development committee, is making a concerted effort to advertise. The estate comprises 115 acres ideally situated for either a cottage colony or a country club. The mansion and surrounding grounds, which are 150 feet above sea level, occupy 10 acres. About 36 acres are in meadow lands, including a drill ground of 12 acres adjoining the cove, and the balance of the estate consists of wood and pasture lands. The property has a magnificient tidewater frontage of 1500 feet.

The earthquake was felt in this vicinity quite forcibly Saturday evening.

Miss Grace D. Wheeler returned on Tuesday from a visit with friends in Providence.

Ralph Wheeler has returned, after a few weeks spent in the south.

The grange held its meeting in the church parlors Friday evening when a large class was initiated and the third and fourth degrees were conferred.

The fire on Thursday night which destroyed the barn of Fernando Wheeler was most disastrous and caused great excitement. It was seen for miles around, and the light from the burning hay and grass which ignited, together with the building, made a spectacular scene. Mr. Wheeler has lost two other barns by fire in the last eight years. All about here sympathize with them in the loss of their horses, oxen and automobiles which were destroyed at this time.

The four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Von Deck, Jr., of Farm Road, Manchester, choked to death after eating a chocolate almond.

POLITICS AND THE FARMER

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Talking about politics, as most people are, on and off, much of the time, just what do you understand by that word "politics?" Just what do you mean when you use it?

Here is Noah Webster's definition gobbled from his well-known dictionary:—

"Politics:—The science of government; that part of ethics which has to do with the regulation and government of a nation or state, the preservation of its safety, peace and prosperity; the defense of its rights against foreign control or conquest, the augmentation of its strength and resources, and the protection of its citizens in their rights, with the preservation and improvement of their morals." — Webster gives a second meaning, also, but the above is the primary definition of politics.

Now, when you say of some demagogic charlatan or some contemptible wire puller that he is "playing politics," do you mean that he is amusing himself with "that part of ethics" described above? When you say of another that he is "a smart politician," do you mean that he is an adept in any conceivable form of "ethics?"

As a matter of cold-blooded fact, when you say a man is "playing politics," don't you mean that he is resorting to every imaginable form of demagogy and cozenage, of fawning hypocrisy and sickish flattery, of blackmail and threats of covert insinuation and downright lying, to gain votes? When you call a man a "politician," don't you really mean it, not as a compliment, but as a term of opprobrium and contempt?

There are two sayings which you will hear on every mouth. "Politics makes strange bed-fellows" is one; "Anything is fair in politics or war" is the other.

Both of them are utter falsehoods, sired and bred by the father of lies, and circulated only by such moral morons as are unable to tell right from wrong with their eyes open.

"Politics" is a "part of ethics," and "ethics" is "the science of human duty." And duty is the "stern daughter of the voice of God," not the strident clamor of a fickle-minded mob which one day strews palms in the prophet's path and the next howls, "Crucify him! crucify him!"

At the same time if you, in the course of your conversations with your neighbors, should happen to use the word "politics" as meaning the ethics of government, and the word "politician" as meaning one specially gifted in the study and pursuit of such ethics, how many do you suppose would know what you were talking about? How many but would misunderstand you?

In truth, if you should take particular pains to explain and define the words and your proper use of them, don't you know that most of your hearers would sneer at you as a "highbrow," or set you down as an impractical fellow; and that awfully awful monster, "a mere theorist?"

"How come?" as Desperate Ambrose says in the comic strip. How does it happen that two good words, meaning two desirable and laudable things, have degenerated in popular usage so as to refer to things which are not laudable and persons who are far from desirable?

In a form of government like ours, where the popular voice is sovereign, the ultimate responsibility for all such debasements, whether of speech or of act, rests and must rest on the popular shoulders.

If the people as a whole or by a controlling majority look upon politics as a sober and honorable science devoted to finding ways and means for preserving national "safety, peace and prosperity," etc., then that is what politics will be.

If, on the other hand, they look upon it as an utterly unmoral and often actually immoral scramble of hogs for a feed-trough,—then that is what it will become.

If the people as a whole or by a controlling majority select as their political leaders men devoted unselfishly to the defense of the nation's rights, "the augmentation of its strength and resources," etc, then their leading politicians will be statesmen and patriots.

But if, on the other hand, they look upon a "politician" as merely a specially shrewd and unscrupulous manipulator of the mob-spirit, then the term is certain to become one of contempt, —as it deserves to.

President Roosevelt was credited by even his bitterest enemies—and a good many of us loved him "for the enemies he made,"—with being "some politician." They admitted that he could "give them cards and spades" at their own game and still beat them to a frazzle. Will you oblige me by reading,—I don't mean just skimming over,—this extract from one of his speeches?

"Men can never escape being governed. Either they must govern themselves or they must submit to being governed by others. If from lawlessness or recklessness, from folly or self-indulgence, they refuse to govern themselves, then most assuredly in the end they will have to be governed from the outside. They can prevent the need of government from without only by showing that they posser the power of government from within. A sovereign cannot make excuses for his failures; a sovereign must accept the responsibility for the exercise of the power that inheres in him; and when, as is true in our republic, the people are sovereign, then the people must show a sober understanding and a sane and steadfast purpose if they are to preserve that orderly liberty upon which as a foundation every republic must rest."

Have you read it? I don't mean as you read most newspaper stuff with a sort of hop-skip-and-jump touch on the high spots, but with care and thought for all its broad statements and tremendous implications? If not, please go back and read it over again. Read it till you have let it soak into your minds, like cleansing water into a dry sponge.

Isn't it true? Perhaps you aren't and never were "a Roosevelt man;" you may be a "Bryan man" or a "Debs man." Wouldn't you have admitted that it was all true if they had said it?

Why am I writing this sort of stuff to farmers? Well, for three wholly satisfactory reasons. Firstly, because I'm a farmer myself and know from association with and study of my fellow-farmers that they are, as a rule, deathly sick of "politics" as it is managed and of "politicians" as they have made themselves. Secondly, because any amendment in "politics" and any improvement in "politicians" must start somewhere out in the grass-roots. Any recrudescence of civic virtue in the big cities is about as hopeless as the production of wheat at the bottom of the Wall street canyon. Thirdly, because, whether justifiably or not I won't presume to say the demagogues and whippers-in of pseudo-politics seem to regard farmer as their special meat, their heaven appointed victims or easily managed catspaws.

I don't suppose there was ever a legislative body which was so devoid of statesmanship, so inefficient and so blatantly demagogic as the congress which passed into the waste-basket of oblivion this week Wednesday. There may have been a few real statesmen in it but they were in such a helpless minority to have been submerged from the very beginning. And here is the disgraceful fact which comes home to roost on our farmer shoulders:—the minority of the lunkheads and dumbheads and pettifoggers who controlled it came from districts in which, if the farmer vote does not absolutely control, it has, at least, a deciding influence.

There is hope expressed in some quarters that the next congress will be better. It certainly couldn't be any worse. But there is small hope for a permanent and effective improvement till the people who pick out and elect congressmen show more independence, more insight, and a dunned sight better taste than they do now.

Farmers, as a rule, have more time to think things out than men in other vocations. They are comparatively isolated and therefore less amenable to the mob spirit which is no more admirable today than it was when it jeered and hooted around Pilate's judgment-seat. They are less liable to be swayed by the prejudices or spites or ignorances of others. If they will only refuse to listen to their own, they will be apt to arrive at some sort of sense in their conclusions.

The system of boss-ridden caucuses and nominating conventions is, at present, in such complete control that it seems almost impregnable. Moreover, it is surrounded by such a gang of pap-seeking hangers-on and political bummers and professional mud-slingers as to make approach hazardous, at any rate to such as desire to keep their own hands and clothes clean.

But there was a Hercules, once, who cleaned out the Augean stables which, up to his time, neither gods nor men had dared tackle.

We need a whole army of such political sanitarians right now. The only place where there is any earthly hope of recruiting them is in the country and on the farms.

I am perfectly aware of the fact that I'm no "big noise." But such as my feeble treble is, I can pipe up with it to the extent of its carrying capacity.

So can you, esteemed reader, with your whistle or horn, which ever it may be.

The walls of high-towered Jericho once toppled before the tooting of a few ramshorns, you remember.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well known authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

You just KNOW they're well

You, too, can keep yourself and baby well and happy

You just know they're NOT well

There is no reason for you or your baby to look or feel this way

CONSTIPATION means MELANCHOLY and DISEASE

Melancholy for the Mother, disease for the Child! The responsibility of the mother does not end with properly clothing and feeding the baby. Her own health is directly reflected in the little one, and the poisons bottled up in her body by constipation transfer themselves to the innocent child and too often result in serious sickness. Mother's bowels should act at least twice a day, and baby's bowels more frequently. Physicians agree on this subject.

Dr Caldwell's

SYRUP PEPSIN

The Family Laxative

—relieves constipation. It is a pure, harmless, gentle combination of Egyptian senna, pepsin and aromatics in liquid form that opens up the bowels, and promotes and encourages Nature to perform her proper functions. No doctor could give you a better laxative than this one of Dr. Caldwell's which has been used for over 30 years.

As Pleasing, Easy and Effective For Mother As For Baby

It is mild and wholly free from opiates or narcotics. Because it is so pleasant to take, babies and children like it, and it should be in the medicine chest of every family for instant use. More than 20,000,000 bottles used annually prove its effectiveness.

If it should ever happen that you do not find Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin entirely satisfactory, your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

OPPORTUNITY

This I beheld, or dreamed it in a dream;
There spread a cloud of dust along a plain;
And underneath the cloud, or in it, raged
A furious battle, and men yelled, and swords
Shocked upon swords and shields. A prince's banner
Waved, then staggered backward, hemmed by foes.

A craven hung along the battle's edge
And thought, "Had I a sword of keener steel—
That blue blade that the king's son bears—but this Blunt thing!"—he snapt and flung it from his hand,
And lowering crept away and left the field.

Then came the king's son, wounded, sore bestead,
And weaponless, and saw the broken sword,
Hilt-buried in the dry and trodden sand,
And ran and snatched it, and with battle-shout
Lifted afresh he hewed his enemy down,
And saved a great cause that heroic day.

One of the latest curiosities to arrive at the London Zoological Gardens is a pair of fighting fish from Siam. Normally this fish is quite dull in color, but when another male of the species draws near its body suddenly glows with the most brilliant metallic colors mingled with scarlet, purple and gold. The two males fight desperately until one or the other gains the victory. The conqueror then parades up and down in all his gorgeous war panoply, which only gradually changes back to the original drab color. In Siam the breeding of fighting fish is an important industry, and large bets are made on the result of fights conducted under rules as stringent as those of cock fighting. It is not often that fish comes twice into the arena, because even if victorious he is usually so seriously damaged as to be unfit to fight again.

NORWICH GAS AND ELECTRIC BILLS SCHEDULED FOR HEARING ON MAR. 17TH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, March 5.—On Tuesday, March 17, the committee on incorporations will hold hearings on the several bills that concern the gas and electric interests in Norwich. A. E. [illegible] and others petition for a charter and for authority to acquire the gas and electric department from the city of Norwich.

The Norwich Gas and Electric company also petition for amendment to its charter. The Eastern Connecticut Power company also asks for an amendment to its charter. These two companies are asking for the same privileges as are asked for by the Norwich company. The Norwich Gas and Electric company is the original company that installed electric lighting in Norwich and is still in possession of the charter which was held at that time.

The committee on roads, rivers and bridges held a hearing today on H. B. [illegible] that provides that bus lines shall pay a proportionate cost of changing overhead and underpasses. Mr. Morehouse of New Haven appeared in the support of the bill. It was opposed by Patrick Healey, president of the Connecticut Motor Stage Association, Inc. He was opposed to the bill as they are now paying a gasoline tax "and they pay a lot," a special bus line tax as well as for road displacement. He would favor a tax on the gross income as is now paid by the railroad and trolley companies of the state. It was understood that companies, whose permit is only temporary and may be cancelled at short notice, should be obliged to pay for permanent improvements. At the close of the hearing the committee went into executive session.

Bills providing for a state bounty on foxes were strongly opposed by sportsmen from all parts of the state.

THE HOUSE

The house was called to order at 11.30 by Speaker Darbie and prayer was offered by Revi Arthur F. Lewis, house chaplain.

An unfavorable report on house bill No. 52 appropriating $500 as a supply appropriation for the secretary of the state's office was received from the committee on appropriations and the bill was rejected.

Other bills rejected were: House bill 516 requiring stop lights on trolley cars such as are now in use on automobiles.

House bill No. 660 providing for the elimination of grade crossings and house bill 911 having a similar purpose.

House bill 911 requiring trolley car motormen to have a license.

House bill No. 59 requiring the teaching of the constitution in schools. It was explained that this is already done in most schools.

House petition No. 11 providing for zoning in the town of Trumbull.

House bill No. 523 appropriating $5,000 to the poultry association to be formed by the Connecticut Poultrymen's association and the Poultry Breeders' society. The association will receive $4,500 under the present law.

The house voted to recommit house bill No. 195, which has been assailed by Representative Bell of Salisbury as giving too much power to the tax commissioner, to the committee on finance.

Representative Burke of Deep River presided while bills from the calendar were being considered during a portion of today's session.

House bill No. 280 increasing the salary of the officials of the town court of Southington was passed as were the following:

House bill No. 801 providing for the notification of the commissioner of fish and game before the water in streams, lakes and ponds is drawn off.

House bill No. 570, concerning applications for fish and game for propogation or other purposes.

House bill No. 744, concerning the use of seines in ponds and lakes.

House bill No. 829 appropriating $2,000 for the Connecticut Vegetable Growers' association and House bill No. 328 appropriating $1,500 for an exhibit at the National Vegetable Growers association meeting were both unfavorably reported and rejected.

The children delinquency bill was taken from the calendar and passed.

The several Norwich bills concerning territorial limits, gas and electric profits, vacancies in the offices of city tax collector, treasurer and clerk, concerning the voting in city elections, and the appointment of assessors came from the senate with favorable action by the body and were placed on the house calendar.

SENATE

The committee of cities and borough reported favorably on the substitute bill concerning the police benefit fund of the city of Danbury. Calendar.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on shell fisheries on the petition of David B. Decker and others, in opposition to the passage of an act authorizing the shell fisheries commission to lease certain shell fish grounds. The bill was rejected.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on railroads on the bill to prohibit the operation of one-man trolley cars. The bill was rejected.

The committee on banks reported favorably on a substitute bill relating to the liability of banks and trust companies on account of the payment of forged or raised checks. The bill relieves the bank of responsibility unless it is notified by the depositor within six months. Calendar.

An unfavorable report was received from the committee on shell fisheries concerning oyster shell heaps. The bill was rejected.

On the favorable report of the committee on the judiciary the governor's nomination of Alfred C. Baldwin of Derby and of Edward M. Yeomans of Andover to be judge of the superior court and of Thomas J. Molloy to be judge of the court of common pleas of Hartford county were confirmed, and the nominees appointed. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Molloy by an unanimous vote and Mr. Yeomans by a vote of 26 to 2. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Molloy received thirty votes each; the entire vote of all the senators who voted.

Resolutions were passed appointing John H. Fisk and John E. Foley judge and deputy judge of the city of Rockville.

The senate adjourned to Friday at 11 a.m.

TWO SPEAKERS FOR MEETING AT LION'S CLUB

Two speakers were heard at the weekly luncheon of the Lion's club at the Wauregan Hotel, under arrangements made by the entertainment committee, of which John T. Barry is chairman. Vice-President Louis J. Fontaine presided in the absence of president Edward Carpenter and Fred Watson was the song leader.

Lion Max Hanover was the speaker on current topics, interesting the members with his earnest remarks upon Preparedness versus Americanism He spoke in part as follows:

One of the greatest agitations actuating the American People today, is preparedness. The advocates of preparedness want the nation to appropriate vast sums of money for building airships, man of war, and increasing the army and navy personel.

These people are absolutely sincere in their interest for the protection of our country. They point out that our country has made tremendous industrial advances and developed its resources so that it became the greatest country in the world. Owing to this development, many of the European Nations became envious of our riches and our greatness and they are frantically preparing with an eye to the possibility of our interests coming to a conflict.

They also point to Japan, as a nation who is blustered up by false pride and who wants to interfere by dictating to us how to arrange our emigration laws. These same patriots argue that Japan swollen with importance over her great victory with Russia, is itching to make war against the United States especially with her dreadnaught superior aviation equipment, she labors under the allusion that she could defeat our country and dictate terms to us as she did to Russia. Of course no patriotic American would like to see such a state of affairs and every American citizen ought to wake up to the importance of national preparedness.

Opposed to these truly good Americans, we have a great movement of patriotic citizens interested in the protection of our country, but they look at it from another angle. They call this movement Americanization, and the basis of it is education. The contentions of these Americans are that we entered the great war without any mercenary object, without any object of self aggrandizement. We entered the war in order that democracy may prevail and it cost our country so many billions of dollars and we gave up the blood of our dearest sons for a great ideal. With this grand magnificence of character of our people, we electrified the world but at the same time we demonstrated to the world that our nation was the sleeping giant unaware of her greatness and strength. The quickness of our adjustments to the war conditions and the vastness of our undertakings has astonished the world. Had the war lasted about six months longer the new American made Army with its equipment hurriedly gathered up, would have whipped the German army from the face of Europe. Thank God that this did not happen, and this terrible loss was averted.

And it was not so much the size of the American army and its equipment that frightened Germany into capitulating, but its spirit of great heroism and valor. It was the unsurpassed courage and self-sacrifice of our American boys which amazed the German generals and made them feel that it was no use to stand up against such sublime patriotism. And it's this spirit to which many of our leading Americans are pointing to, as the greatest protection of our country, in short, the spirit of Americanism. Hence the great movement of Americanization in opposition to militarism.

Our late illustrious president, Woodrow Wilson, who probably will be numbered among the noblest of American patriots and statesmen, was greatly opposed to militarism. President Coolidge also is opposed to vast appropriations for military preparedness. These great men and many other Americans of note contend that every inhabitant of the United States must become familiar with our institutions, which have produced a citizenry, who have proven themselves the greatest and most magnanimous people since the beginning of history. A people that hold these institutions very dear to their hearts and mean to uphold them at any cost. With such a knowledge ingrafted in the souls of our citizens in case of need, when our country is in danger from an aggressive enemy, we will face him with the spirit and determination such as we have shown in the world war, and no nation or combination of nations will dare to oppose the United States, or try to impose its will upon us without committing suicide.

This great Americanization movement not only keeps before the eyes of our citizens the wonderful attributes of our nation but at the same time, it teaches all the nations of the world a lesson of fine ethics. Given the United States of America the richest and most powerful nation on earth, bent upon one object, peace and good will on earth, not trying to increase their army and navy, and aeroplane equipment, but a great nation, trusting that civilization has reached a stage when differences and disagreements among nations shall no longer be adjusted by the brutality and criminality of war, we are demonstrating to all other nations the most humane, the most sane and charitable stand taken by any people since creation. Can you realize what disarmament would mean to a world overwhelmed with such terrible burdens of taxations, under which the world is groaning today? Reduce the armaments of the nations and you will give the world a breathing spell to recover from the greatest calamity that ever befell mankind. I refer to the world war, which was the natural outcome of the great armaments in which European nations were competing before war. The result was suicide. Let us hope that such cataclysm will never again come over the world.

Community Work.

Paul A Brown, president of the West End Community Association was introduced and spoke in an interesting way of what is being done by this organization. In part he said:

It is a peculiar thing that few people grasp the meaning of real community work, and yet it is the most common sense, practical and easy to understand movement in the country. Churches and schools are engaged in community work but not the real community effort. He defined democracy as meaning making all people happy and contented. We die for democracy, but we do not live it. Community organization furnishes the method for democracy and the school house furnishes the place. Every community is the same whether poor or rich. Community spirit is a movement of the people, by the people and for the people.

Community or neighborhood organization is the only solution for the instilling of true democracy. In times of peace we need democracy even more than in times of war. Only by the mingling together in a common level can people come to know each other and agree upon a common purpose. This is not a Utopian theory or socialistic brotherhood of man. It does not mean that all men must surrender their place in business and society and come down to a lower level. It does mean that the banker, manufacturer, merchant housewife, mechanic and laborer should meet and mingle together to get acquainted in order to reach a better understanding and discuss the problems affecting them all. Mr. Brown related briefly some of the benefits and community work already accomplished by the West End Community Association which is principally for the betterment of the West End of Norwich. In their meetings they endeavor to interest all through entertainment which is educational and in closing Mr. Brown invited any or all to attend one of the enthusiastic meetings of this Community Association.

Both speakers were given a rising vote of thanks by the club and the gathering closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

TWO SOLDIERS, DRUG ADDICTS, HELD IN JAIL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 5—Joseph Lynch and Howard Maley, soldiers, stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, are prisoners at the county jail tonight because of having been adjudged drug addicts. They were in the police court this morning following their arrest late yesterday charged with intoxication, but when taken before court it was decided that the pair were drug fiends.

Maley and Lynch came to New London several days ago, and went to Fort Wright. There they used a drug believed to be vernol, and when the government transport which they boarded for New London arrived in port, the two soldiers were in a semi-dangerous state. Believing the men drunk the police were appealed to by the captain of the transport and the pair were held prisoners over night. This forenoon it was almost an impossibility to arouse Maley and Lynch so that they might be presented in court. Their condition was such that a continuance until tomorrow was ordered, that the case might be investigated.

During the day Sergeant Nelson Smith took a sample of a small quantity of pills found in Maley's grip, to a drug store and there it was determined that the pills were vernol, a drug obtainable without it being necessary to secure a prescription.

Lynch declared that he had but started to take the drug, having done so for the first time two months ago, while Maley admitted having been an addict for a long time. In Maley's grip was found a dope outfit, including a [illegible], or syringe, needle, spoon, etc.

An automobile owned and driven by Elmer J. Cross, a sailor, stationed at the submarine base, and a car owned and operated by William Henry Mahan of Ledyard street, were in collision Friday evening at the corner of Huntington streets. Joseph Pezzella, of 7 Woodbridge street proprietor of a store at 17 Shaw street who was taken into custody last night charged with assault with intent to kill Joseph Caroola, 21 Shaw street, was in the police court this morning, but the trial was continued until next Thursday. Pezella furnished a surety on his bond of $3,500 for his appearance at that time.

Joseph Spadera, 21 Woodbridge street, arrested on a charge of assault upon Corella furnished a bond of $250 for his trial which is scheduled also for next Thursday.

According to the information in the possession of the police Corella became involved in an argument over a card game with Pezzella, the two men becoming angered over a dispute as to what the stakes would be. Finally Corella is alleged to have left the place and going to his home, armed himself with a black-jack. When Corella returned and displayed the weapon, it is claimed Spadera seized Corella, fighting the latter until the street was reached and there, it is alleged, Pezzella, who had followed the fighters to the street, was dealt a blow with the black-jack. Pezzella then, according to the police, pulled a knife from his pocket and lunging at Corella cut the blade into Corella's chest, a few inches above the heart.

At Lawrence hospital, to which institution Corella was rushed, it was stated this afternoon that the wound was not a dangerous one and that in all probability Corella would be able to appear next Tuesday and relate his version of the assault in the police court.

John McMahon, gardener, has man-aged to save some money from his wages for work in this city. Now he seems to have started to get rid of his cash with a good prospect of being successful. He was in the police court yesterday for intoxication and there was fined so that he got rid of about $15. He returned to his work from the police station but discovered that his employer did not want to have a man in his employ who would get drunk. Then McMahon became drunk again. He didn't appear to be a fellow who was addicted to the consumption of liquor, so leniency was shown him and judgment was suspended that he might go back to Montville and apply his talents to building up, instead of tearing down.

Edward Goddard, a straggler reached town yesterday and made known to the shiftless and indolent of whom he made the acquaintance that he had a considerable sum of money on deposit in Lowell, Mass. How to get that money occupied the wits and the talents of the new acquaintances of Goddard. They immediately proceeded to devise ways and means and finally decided that they would telegraph for it. That had not been done when Goddard was arrested as a drunk. Today he made known the facts in the police court where he was fined $5, and Probation Officer Mansfield was delegated to see that his new-found friends did not get any of it.

MARKET CLOSED FIRM

New York, March 5.—Despite repeated attempts of bear traders to unsettle the general list, stock prices today made irregular recovery from recent low levels with more than a dozen issues attaining their highest prices in a year or more. Buying was influenced by the effective support provided by powerful financial interests at the opening, relatively low money rates, the unexpectedly generous dividend distribution by the directors of the American Locomotive company, reports of a decrease in crude oil production for the week ended February 28 and other constructive trade news.

American Car and Foundry was one of the outstanding features, soaring ten points to a record top at 220 despite President Wooden's reiteration that no increase in the dividend was contemplated as a result of the stockholders' approval today of a change in capitalization from 300,000 shares of $100 par value to 600,000 shares of no par value. This company, which owns a large block of American Locomotive stock, will benefit materially by the large cash distribution on the latter.

American Locomotive see-sawed within a range of four points during the day, establishing a record top at 144 1-4 for the present stock. It closed at 143 3-8 for a net gain of nearly two points. American Can fluctuated within a radius of 5 points, closing at 181 1-2, up 3 1-2 on the day.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots included American Safety Razor, Associated Dry Goods, Commercial Solvents B., Federal Light and Traction, General Electric, B. F. Goodrich, S. S. Kresge, Laclede Gas, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Maxwell Motors B., Remington Typewriter and United States Cast Iron Pipe, all of which closed from 3 to 6 points higher.

Some of the buying in United States Steel common, which closed fractionally higher at 123 1-2, was based on the speculative belief that stockholders of the corporation also will be rewarded with more liberal dividends later in the year. While many active shares such as Du Pont, Ludlum Steel, North American, Foundation company, Savage Arms and Sears-Roebuck recorded net gains of 2 points or more the advance was by no means uniform. Heaviness cropped out in American Express, Brunswick Balke Collender, Jordan Motors, Central Leather, Hudson Motors, United Cigar and Tidewater Oil, all of which closed from 1 to 2 1-2 points lower.

Persistent accumulation of Baltimore & Ohio, which showed an extreme gain of nearly three points at the record top of 83 3-8, apparently was based on expectations of higher dividends. Renewed activity and strength of the St. Paul issues, the preferred closing 2 3-8 points higher at 23 5-8, revived rumors that Henry Ford had interested himself in the property in order to save it from receivership. Buying of Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, which advanced 3 points to a record top at 148, was based on reports of its early acquisition by one of the large southern trunk lines. Delaware & Hudson continued to reflect the large increase in net earnings in January.

Call money was in greater supply, renewing at 3 3-4 and then easing to 3 1-2. The time money market was quiet with no change in rates. Commercial paper held steady between 3 3-4 and 4 1-4 per cent.

Demand sterling rallied 4 cent to $4.77 1-2 at the opening reflection of the raising of the Bank of England's rediscount rate from 4 to 5 per cent, but it cancelled part of its gain later on realizing. Other European rates showed nominal improvement. French francs held fairly steady just under 5.10 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 5.—Erratic fluctuations marked the course of bond trading today, with prices rallying at the close in sympathy with the rise in stocks. The recovery was irregular, however, and although an upward trend was in evidence in the final dealings, losses of a point or so were scattered throughout the list.

Trading was enlivened by the action of St. Paul fours of 1935, which continued to reflect marked uncertainty regarding the road's financial position. After opening above 66, the bonds sold as low as 64 1-2 and then followed a late spurt in the company's stocks, which accompanied a revival of reports that Henry Ford might extend financial aid to the road.

Price movements of other rail liens were conflicting. B. and O. convertible 4 1-2s were favorably influenced by the strength of the road's shares and New York Central Sixes and refunding 5s showed moderate improvement. Louisville and Nashville fours, Jersey Central 5s and the Seaboard issues lost ground.

Oil, copper and other industrial obligations failed to follow a definite trend. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Virginia-Carolina sevens, Standard Gas 6 1-2s, Wilson convertible sixes and Sinclair 7s, while corresponding losses were registered by Magma Copper 7s, Kelly-Springfield Tire eights and Cuba Cane Sugar eights.

Several public utility bond offerings were reported under negotiation, while an early offering would be made of about $8,000,000 American Power and Light 6s around 95 1-2.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 5.—Price movements in today's curb market lacked uniformity but, with the exception of the radio shares, the general tendency seemed to be upward. Chief interest in the industrial group centered in Goodyear Tire and Rubber which advanced 3 3-8 points to a new top at 35 1-2 in reflection of the marked improvement in the rubber industry, and Car Lighting and Power, which attained the highest price in several years following the announcement of the president that the company had closed a half million dollar order for 1,000 electrical refrigerators with the Consolidated Dairy Products corporation.

The oils moved within rather narrow and irregular limits but the undertone was firm in reflection of the reduction in the crude production and a few minor crude price advances.

Dubilier Radio broke over 5 points on heavy selling by professional traders, but rallied later on the reassuring statement of Vice President Howard that the radio business was satisfactory and that there had been a substantial increase in the volume of orders for railway signal condensers. Most of the other active radios showed moderate recessions on the day.

Public utilities were irregularly higher, National Power and Light standing out with a new gain of 3 points. Middle west utilities gained over a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 5.—Despite a great deal of nervous shifting, the wheat market today finally established something of a rise in values. The upward tendency was helped by export business said to aggregate 1,000,000 bushels and by increased complaint of dry weather in the west and southwest. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1-4c higher. May 132 1-4 to 132 3-8 and July 149 1-2 to 149 3-4, with corn varying from 1-4c decline to 3-4c gain, oats 1-4@3-8c to 5-8c up, and provisions showing 35 to 80 cents advance.

Although comparative steadiness of quotations today at Liverpool in the face of yesterday's big break in prices on this side of the Atlantic was somewhat reassuring, heavy selling here developed soon after the start, and forced the market downward to as low as 1:38 1-2, May delivery. No fresh depressing news, however, was current, and with indications becoming plain that export demand was better the market gradually worked to higher levels, notwithstanding frequent temporary setbacks.

Corn and oats were swayed largely by the action of wheat. Some of yesterday's leading sellers of corn became active today on the buying side of the market. Good grades of corn were in demand. Provisions ascended briskly following the rise of hog values.

SCARCITY REPORTED IN SILAGE CORN SEED

Reports received at Storrs from the producing centers where Connecticut usually gets its silage corn seed indicate that there is grave danger of loss from poor seed this year. Very little silage corn is matured for seed in this state.

Two of the popular varieties are West Branch Sweepstakes grown in Central Pennsylvania, and Leaming, grown in Ohio and Illinois. Slow growing seasons and early freezes last year in these sections are said to have resulted in much damage to the seed crop.

It is estimated that 10,000 bushels of silage corn seed are purchased each spring by Connecticut dairy farmers. The silage crop has an annual value in this state of about two and a half million dollars.

According to J. S. Owens, crops specialist for the Extension Service, there is some good seed available from Southeastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware. Where possible, however, it is advised that seed held over from last season be given preference. An effort is being made through county agents to locate reliable seed sources.

Many Connecticut farmers made a practice of germinating samples of seed corn before buying their seed supply. This can be done at home or samples can be sent to the experiment stations at New Haven and Storrs. Seed should germinate at least 90 per cent. So far as possible, growers should insist on varieties that are known to be adaptable to Connecticut.

TWO SUITS FOR $20,000 SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Two suits, each for damages of $10,000, brought against the Connecticut Co., and Robert J. Carey of New London and Elizabeth Rogers and Minnie Rogers of that city, have been settled out of court and withdrawn from the docket. Terms of the settlement in either suit were not made known.

The suits grew out of an accident at the corner of Tilley and Washington streets, New London, on January 2, 1922, when an automobile driven by Carey, and in which the two plaintiffs were passengers collided with a trolley car. The plaintiffs claimed that the accident was due to negligence on the part of the motorman of the trolley car, and on the part of Carey. They likewise claimed they were severely injured in the crash.

She Dreaded the Headache Which Came Daily

"I can't. I simply can't. If it never gets done, I can't darn socks with a headache like this."

There was the bitterness of defeat in Mrs. Bryce's tones. She dropped her mending back into the work-basket and lifted her hand to an aching, burning forehead.

It was beginning to look as if she never would catch up with the holey stockings, the buttonless shirts, and the torn little frocks. These headaches were becoming daily affairs—permanent nagging pains that frayed her temper and her nerves, made her irritable and jumpy.

Without knowing it, Mrs. Bryce was traveling the way of countless other men and women—suffering the nerve-racking ills of headaches, putting up with their steady undermining of health and disposition.

And why?

In seven out of ten headaches, the cause is eye strain. Some authorities say nine out of ten! Often, with vision apparently normal, eyes may still greatly need the help of lenses.

The remedy is clear; an eye examination and properly fitted glasses, if needed.

"Safety First" Suggestions FOR ENGAGEMENT OF

HOYT'S (NEW) REVUE

1—All the theatre attendants have been supplied with smelling salts, to use in reviving patrons who become hysterical from laughter. Hoyt's Revue is the kind that "knocks them in the aisle."

2—If you laugh your head off, we will call an ambulance and request the hospital to send the head surgeon (unless he is cutting-up in the operating room and can't come) and leave instructions when replacing the head, see that the face is turned to the front of the body—otherwise, a perfectly good honest person may go through life with a crooked look.

3—The theatre will be guarded against panics—we have one on the stage and one is enough. If you hear several loud reports—similar to the blow-out of a balloon tire—don't get excited. This simply means a stout lady has broken her corset strings laughing at Bobby Ferguson.

4—The Strand management will not be responsible for any one bitten by false teeth which are apt to pop out of their owner's mouth during one of the 155 hearty laughs. Should any fall to the floor unnoticed, same should be returned to the box office. Owners can have same by calling at the Strand anytime before ten-thirty P. M.—No questions asked.

5—For the benefit of those who have weak eyesight, the usher, upon request, will furnish glasses so you can get a look at the twelve California Peaches, commonly called chorus girls. You'll ask for them because these girls are easy to look at. The front row of the Strand has only 26 seats—these will be reserved for children over 80.

6—If you have a weak heart, don't wait for the feature picture because it's faster than streak lightning—A smashing, crashing, rough riding drama with speediest laugh producer on the screen.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Rheuma—The One Safe and Quick-Acting Remedy for Rheumatism—Money Back if it Fails

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and to be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be sceptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

Don't think because Rheuma is not expensive that it won't bring you back to health. There is no guess work about it. That's why Lee & Osgood Co., and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and blessed relief almost at once.

IT'S A GREAT SHOW!

STAY AWAY FROM THE PALACE

if you want to see cut priced Vaudeville—but if you want to see the best Vaudeville bill that has ever been put together on any stage at one time—if you want to see a picture that will make you grip the edge of your chair for an hour—if you want to see a show that would cost you at least three times as much anywhere else but Norwich, then

COME TO THE PALACE TODAY

Every single act on the bill could be featured on any bill. The whole entire show could be moved into the biggest house in the country and satisfy the most critical audience. That's the way you will feel about the show, too, when you see it and you will agree that it is worth while paying the price for good acts and getting at least a fair price in return from the public.

I CAN'T LET YOU IN THREE FOR A DIME

Or some other such ridiculous figure, but I can give you the best in Vaudeville because I'm right on the job every minute selecting it. I don't depend on somebody else's judgment. I don't cut corners when I go after a good act.

I PAY THE PRICE AND GET THE SHOWS

And the best proof of that is the show that's at the Palace Today, and you don't have to be an experienced theatre goer to be convinced. Just come and use your eyes and ears.

BUT HERE'S ONE TO THINK OVER FOR A FEW HOURS

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, next week, I'm going to attempt something that has never been heard of outside of the very biggest cities. I'm going to try and put on a show that no small town theatre manager has ever dared to try. The news will be out tonight. In the meanwhile, get ready to see the show today, and you'll get the surprise of your life. Remember, when I use to tell you to

FOR SALE

FOR SALE—What is more attractive to the young people today than a nice saddle horse? Boys under 12 cannot drive a car but never mind you can own and ride a fine saddle horse with but little expense and you have not got to get any number plates or buy any gas and stop at every auto station for repairs, and if you want one that will fill the bill, come to the Starlight farm. I also have a nice gentle pony with complete rig and it is a beauty; also a nice bay horse, a little shy at autos and a nice gentle mule; also a lady's outfit, horse, wagon and harness that can be had cheap in a good home, and a 1923 Ford passenger commercial car as good as new. Never has been abused. Do not miss seeing it. I also offer my home place for the first time for sale where I have lived for 40 years and worked hard for, with all new buildings, 2 1-2 story house complete with 150 ft. of 7 ft veranda, all double floors with hardwood finish, 13 rooms, one of the best cellars, equipped with steam heat, electric light, hot and cold water, a nice bar, 8 feet, basement, full size and a garage for 12 cars and shed 60x20, corn house, 2 hen houses, 2 sheep barns, all buildings built with first class material with slate roofs and copper outlets, which will last for several generations, and have 1100 apple trees, 36 kinds, and pears and peaches, plums, quinces, mulberries, walnuts, raspberries, black and red and black berries and plenty of wood and timber and never failing water which is of great value in a home. I have just put it in shape where I can live comfortable and have to sell under certain conditions, and if some good man with a little push wants a good home or one that he can turn enough from the farm in three or four years to pay for it, here is a chance you do not get every day. It is situated 1-2 mile from the state road and elevated 500 feet from the Norwich and Westerly state road and is one of the finest sights in Conn. for summer boarders and a good home for some good man that has a good wife. I have built a good many miles of stone wall which will stand for years without expense and if I can get one-half what it cost me today you can own my home on the lofty hill of Swan Town. My electric plant carries 200 lights with 60 candle power so you can work night and day if you wish to so do, also will sell all household goods and 100 barrels of pure cider vinegar and will give possession in 24 hours and you can own and enjoy what has taken me 40 years of hard labor to get. Now do not be like the man who went to buy a lock for his barn after his horse had been stolen. Address, Owner Lafayette F. Main, R. F. D. 1, Box 47, North Stonington, Conn. Telephone 82-2, Mystic Division. Telephone calls will be answered personally before 9 a. m. and after 9 p. m. mar6d.

LUMBER DEALERS OPPOSE MECHANICS LIEN CHARGE

Lumber dealers from all over the state oppose the proposed change of the mechanics lien law which would provide for pro-rating lien claims as advocated before the judiciary committee in the legislature Wednesday afternoon by Major John Buckley. The bill which precipitated the discussion would do away with the lumber dealers and other creditors would be compelled to take the same chances on payment. Richard Warren, manager of the Thames Lumber Co., of New London, represented all the New London lumber dealers at the hearing.

Senate Leader Cronin presided at the hearing at which a score of other bills were considered. The senate leader showed infinite patience in connection with the various bills, but was compelled to limit discussion on the mechanics lien matter after more than an hour had been allotted to that bill alone, and a score of others wanted to be heard again.

"If this bill is passed, I am going to quit the lumber business." M. J. Gibbud, of New Haven, told the committee, who, after telling how nice it was to see a landscape dotted with cottages, declared that he had a business and should be attending to it.

"You came voluntarily, didn't you?" asked Senate Chairman Cronin. Representative Bell of the committee at the conclusion of the hearing, asked Mr. Gibbud if he was really serious about quitting business.

Major Buckley declared that in a superior court trial, the present law had been interpreted by Judge Haines as permitting pro-rating of the claims of the various contractors, but said on an appeal to the supreme court, the highest tribunal had held that such claims must be determined by priority. He pointed out that in the case of the sub-contractors under a general contractor, pro-rating was the rule, under another statute, "The lumberman always gets his under the priority procedure." Major Buckley said "because the lumber is first on the ground."

Major Buckley, closing the argument in favor of the bill, said that he believed as a general rule claimants were pro-rating, but some times one found "an outfit demanding 18 pound of flesh."

GRANDDADDY WOODCHUCK KILLED IN HANOVER

What must have been the granddaddy woodchuck of the Hanover section has just been captured by Edgar Goyette of the Hanover road and his dog Clint. The dog tackled the chuck, which put up a fierce but brief battle until the sharp teeth of the dog ended its life.

The woodchuck was weighed by John Firth, tipping the scales at 14 pounds. It was estimated by hunters who saw the animal that it was probably about 10 years old.

The speculators who bull the market often have to bear the losses.

JUDGE BROWN DENIES MOTION TO SET ASIDE $4,000 ALIENATION VERDICT

Wilbur L. L. Spencer, the 70 year old Lebanon storekeeper against whom a jury in the superior court gave a verdict of $4,000 for alienation of the affections of Nellie, wife of Earle A. Crane of Lebanon, has been denied his motion to have the verdict set aside. Judge Allyn L. Brown, before whom the suit was tried, says in denying the motion to set aside the verdict that the amount is not excessive and he cannot well see how anything but a verdict for the plaintiff could well have been arrived at from the evidence.

Crane sued for $15,000 damages, alleging that during 1922, Spencer alienated the affections of Mrs. Crane while she was employed in Spencer's store as a clerk and in his home as housekeeper and nurse.

The following is the memorandum of decision by Judge Brown:

Upon the argument of this motion to set aside the plaintiff's verdict for $4,000 two principal claims were advanced. The first point urged by the defendant is that the verdict is excessive.

Under the court's instructions, the verdict evidently included both exemplary and compensatory damages. Inasmuch as the trial of this case actually consumed three full court days, after it had evidently been fully and carefully prepared, and engaged the skill of the plaintiff's two able counsel both of many years experience at the bar, "reasonable counsel fees," the basis of any award of exemplary damages, warranted the jury in including in the verdict, as presumably it did here, a substantial sum for this element of damages.

Upon the evidence the jury may well have found that this twenty-seven year old plaintiff was a somewhat unsophisticated, but truthful and industrious man, of good character but of a quiet and rather submissive disposition, that he and his wife who was a vigorous, active woman some two years his senior, lived happily though impecuniously together with mutual regard and esteem for each other until the defendant first became acquainted with them in June, 1923, that the defendant was a man of some property, between sixty-five and seventy years of age, living apart from his aged wife, of a dominating personality, of cunning mind, and of wide experience, that after coming to know the plaintiff and his wife he deliberately planned to win over to himself her affections and devotion to the exclusion of the plaintiff, that in pursuance of this scheme, he persuaded them to make their home with him and her to become his clerk and nurse as well, that he finally seduced her and notwithstanding the plaintiff's repeated protests persisted in continuing his adulterous relations with her, that finally in consequence the plaintiff urged his wife to go away with him to live elsewhere but that by reason of her affection so won over by the defendant, she refused to go, that the plaintiff thereupon did go away while his wife continued so to live on with the defendant as his clerk, housekeeper and nurse, to the time of the trial, that this the defendant alienated her affection for the plaintiff and killed it beyond a chance of resuscitation. Not only might the jury have found these facts but in my opinion any other conclusion would have been contrary to the weight of the evidence. For such loss of the plaintiff's wife's love and society, destruction of his home and happiness involving the commission of adultery with his wife and suffering to be endured in the anguish and distress of mind, all of which the jury may well have found to have been so caused by the defendant's acts, a precise measurement in damages cannot be prescribed. Clearly, however, the award of other than a substantial amount as compensatory damages therefore would have constituted a miscarriage of justice.

I am satisfied that the amount of the verdict rendered was not excessive, but was fair and reasonable under the law and upon the evidence.

The second point urged by the defendant is that the court erred in including in the charge instructions upon exemplary damages, first because the allegations of the complaint do not warrant any recovery upon this ground, and second because counsel for the plaintiff did not state their claim therefore in so many words until just prior to the court's charge.

While the complaint in this action which follows form No. 17 at page 332 of the practice book does not actually contain either the word "wantom" or "malicious," for torts of which nature exemplary damages may properly be assessed, the defendant's acts alleged in paragraph 3 of the complaint obviously and necessarily constitute either one or the other, if not both, wantom and malicious acts. And as I have already indicated the evidence that the defendant's acts were both wantom and malicious was abundant and satisfying as the jury apparently concluded.

Although for the plaintiff in argument had discussed the claimed malicious and wantom conduct of the defendant, they had not in so many words asserted a claim for punitive and exemplary damages as distinguished from compensatory damages. Accordingly at the close of the arguments the court inquired of counsel whether the plaintiff did claim punitive damages, and upon receiving a reply which disclosed that he did, included in the charge the instruction complained of. No evidence of what were reasonable counsel fees for the plaintiff exclusive of taxable costs was offered, and no obligation or claim was made by counsel for the defendant after the court's inquiry and the plaintiff's response thereto above recited. Under the circumstances I am of the opinion that it was the court's duty to incorporate in its charge instructions as to punitive damages and that the defendant was not prejudiced thereby.

The motion to set aside the verdict is denied.

SCOUT INVESTITURE AT PLAINFIELD COMMUNITY HOUSE

Scout Executive F. A. Benton, assisted by Assistant Scout Master Alfred Royle and fifteen scouts of Troop No. 1, Plainfield, invested twelve scouts of Troop No. 2, Plainfield Community troop, with the tenderfoot badge Thursday night in the Community house.

This troop has been reorganized after a lapse of over a year due to the scout master's removal from town. S. A. Coffey is the new scout master. He is ably assisted by Harry Linford, an old scout of the troop who had been in scouting in England for seventeen years. He gave an interesting account of Baden-Powells 26 scouts who carried messages and watched for the approach of the enemy in South Africa during the Boer war. He showed that they performed services for General Powell where men in his army were unable to get through the lines. Interesting accounts of the introduction of scouting to the United States from England followed by the scout executive and by the scoutmasters present. A movement is on foot to erect a monument to that unknown English scout who did his good turn by guiding Mr. Boyce through the devious streets of London and thereby bringing scouting into the lives of 700,000 boys in America.

CONNECTICUT GOVERNMENT COSTS $14.47 PER CAPITA

The department of commerce at Washington announces that the total payments for expenses, interest, and outlays for the state government of Connecticut for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923 amounted to $21,172,846, or $14.47 per capita. Of this total $16,984,499 represents the expenses of operating the general departments of the state government; $72,107, expenses of operating the public service enterprises; $656,865, interest on debt; and $3,459,375, outlays for permanent improvements, including those for public service enterprises. In 1922 the total payments for the state were $20,050,565, and in 1917, $10,711,548, a per capita of $13.97 and $8.21, respectively. The totals include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues.

Revenues.

The total revenue receipts of Connecticut for 1923 were $23,639,253, or $16.16 per capita. This was $5,925,782 more than the total payments of the year exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, and $2,466,407 more than the total payments including those for permanent improvements.

In Connecticut property and special taxes represented 30.0 per cent. of the total revenue for 1923, 41.8 per cent. for 1922, and 28.4 per cent. for 1917. The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 44.9 per cent. from 1917 to 1922, but there was a decrease of 1.9 per cent. from 1922 to 1923. The per capita property and special taxes were $4.85 in 1923, $6.35 in 1922, and $4.82 in 1917.

Earnings of general departments, or compensation for services rendered by state officials, represented 11.4 per cent. of the total revenue for 1923, 11.0 per cent. for 1922, and 6.2 per cent. for 1917.

Business and non-business licenses constituted 46.5 per cent. of the total revenue for 1923, 33.9 per cent. for 1922, and 49.8 per cent. for 1917. Receipts from business licenses consist chiefly of taxes exacted from insurance and other incorporated companies, and sales tax on gasoline while those from non-business licenses comprise taxes on motor vehicles and amounts paid for hunting and fishing privileges.

Indebtedness.

The net indebtedness (funded and floating debt less sinking fund assets) of Connecticut, for 1923, amounted to $5,095,658, or $3.48 per capita. The per capita net debt for 1922 was $4.21 and for 1917, $6.56.

Assessed Valuations and Tax Levies.

For 1923 the assessed valuation of property in Connecticut subject to ad valorem taxation was $2,018,536,714; the amount of taxes levied was $2,280,720; and the per capita levy, $1.52.

GARDNER LAKE BURGLAR NOW IN STATE HOSPITAL

John Jacobick of Bozrah, who admitted breaks in 26 cottages surrounding Gardner lake, has been taken to the Norwich state hospital, from which institution he was released two years ago as cured from his mental trouble. State police at the Groton barracks, who captured him at his home Tuesday afternoon, now believe they have recovered all the loot taken from the cottages. Owners of the Gardner, Corning, Donohue and Pendleton cottages at the lake have already visited the state and claimed the property which was stolen from their places.

Judgement is Entered

The clerk of the superior court has been notified by counsel for the defendant that no motion is to be made to set aside the verdict of $1,000 given in favor of Frank D. Crooker of this city in his suit against the Eastern Connecticut Power Company which was tried in the superior court in New London. Judgment as of March 4 has been entered by Clerk George E. Parsons.

NORWICH EXCEEDED QUOTA IN CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE

The final meeting of the Norwich committee which was in charge of the 17th annual Christmas seal sale was held in the parlor of the Wauregan House, with a very general attendance of the committee members.

Lucius Briggs, chairman, presided and before proceeding to make the final report of the activities of the committee, he expressed himself as very well pleased with the results of the campaign. The amount raised was $3,826.76, which was considerably in excess of the district quota, $3,000 being the sum allotted for Norwich. Chairman Briggs thanked the members of the general committee for their splendid cooperation in this humanitarian work and asked them to extend to the members of the various sub committees his appreciation of the enthusiastic support which they gave this movement, and which was instrumental in raising such a substantial amount for carrying on the programme of work of the tuberculosis commission. After hearing the final reports of the officers of the committee and of the chairman of the various sub committees, the committee was disbanded, having completed the work for which it was created.

The general committee for the 17th annual Christmas seal sale was as follows: Lucius Briggs, chairman; Harold P. Hull, treasurer; Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, secretary; Rev. A. H. Abbott, E. LaRue Bliven, Rev. J. W. Carlevale Mrs. J. J. Casey, Rev. Robert B. Day, Jeremiah A. Desmond Joseph A. Geoffre, Max Hanover, Philip A. Johnson, Rev. William A. Keefe, John M Lee, F. B. Ricketson Henry A. Tirrell, Mrs. Albert Van Wagenen, Charles F. Wells.

CONNECTICUT FIRST IN HOMES USING ELECTRICITY

Connecticut, second only to its neighbor Rhode Island, in smallness of territory, nevertheless has an average far above that of the rest of the United States and of the rest of New England in the percentage of homes which are supplied with electricity. Nearly three-quarters, 74 per cent to be exact, of all the homes, urban and rural, in Connecticut are electrified. The percentage of homes having electricity for the entire United States is less than 50 per cent and for the six New England states is 62.6 per cent.

Without Connecticut, the average for the rest of New England is 56.4 per cent. In other words, the Nutmeg state is responsible for giving the rest of the Yankee states their exceptionally high average. Massachusetts which has an estimated rural population of only 5.2 per cent and which has almost twice the population of Connecticut, is forced to run a poor second to its southern neighbor with a percentage of 63 in homes having electric service and this, despite the fact that Connecticut's rural population is estimated at 33 per cent of the whole. The comparison of the last figures indicates that Connecticut not only beats the rest of New England in its cities, but in rural electrification as well.

Connecticut also leads the rest of New England in the per capita rate of electric light customers, its ratio being one customer to every six people in the state. The following list shows the per capita rates and percentage of homes served for each New England state:

State.	Rate per Capita	Percentage Homes Served
Connecticut	6	74
Maine	6.6	62
New Hampshire	9.6	43
Vermont	6.7	61
Massachusetts	7	63
Rhode Island	8.4	53

Preached at Uncasville

St. John's church at Uncasville was filled Wednesday evening, at the Lenten devotions. The sermon was delivered by Rev. John J. Reilly, of Norwich. The services closed with benediction of the blessed sacrament, given by the pastor, Rev. James A. O'Meara.

It is evident from the apparel shown in local stores that greens called melon, almond and turf are in favor, as are berry, fuchsal and rose tones. Cedar, ibis, coral, shell, pansy, orchid and violet tones are also among the popular hues. Golden brown and ochre yellow are listed as well.

HAT SHAPES AND COLORS MAKE ONE LOOK YOUTHFUL

The aim of the millinery of the present season appears to be to make the wearer look youthful.

The majority of the colors are gay. In accord with Spring and the young year.

At the same time, the milliner who is schooled in her art is most careful to see to it that the hat is perfectly adapted to the features and general appearance of the buyer. From the workshops of the designers come warnings as to what is or is not style. Honey, orange, sand, yelowish or grayish tans—these are the hues for the very young. Fashion says to the chopper past middle age, when it comes to these trying tints—"Thou shalt not."

But there are shown so many charming models in more pronounced tints that no woman need despair of finding a hat not alone to her liking but to the improvement of her looks as well. Polo tan, henna, seaside green, midnight blue, all these are safe—and of course there is always the satisfactory black.

There are appealing designs in fresh fine straws, Bangkok, the smart Angora, taffeta—silk is very strong again—embroidery in soft shades, and the like.

The sports idea has lost none of its hold. One of the most striking designs, the name of which suggests its purpose, is the "Country Club." It's developed in sand taffeta, in tiny folds, and trimming reseda straw in arabesque effect, and having reseda facing.

Now is the time to select a hat sure to please, from the new stocks offered today by The Bulletin's advertisers.

LEIRICH WINS FIRST IN EAGLES PINOCHLE

The second evening's play in the eight-night tournament of the Eagles club members resulted in J. Leirich and E. P. Mullins being tied with a score of 7936 but Leirich won out on the cut. Third place and prize was taken by J. Yalen with a score of 6905.

This (Friday) evening the Eagles meet the Polishers in their tournament at the Eagles club.

It isn't necessary for an ex-soldier to be an artist to draw a pension.

HELP FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

It has often been said that only a woman can understand what nervous women endure. Most cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, mental depression, headaches, backache, fretting and worrying have their origin in some feminine ailment that will readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, which for over forty years has been restoring women of America to health and strength. Merit alone could have stood such a test.

REPUBLICANS IN SENATE WORK OUT REORGANIZATION

Had Support of Three Senators They Have Dismissed From Their Councils—Democrats Had Decided Not to Employ Obstructive Tactics—Senator Moses of New Hampshire Chosen President Pro Tempore—Assignments of Senators to Standing Committees Will be Made Today—Borah to Persist in Pressing His Resolution Urging Resignation of the Russian Soviet Government.

Washington, March 6—The republicans, commanding a working majority in the senate for the first time in six years, proceeded today to reorganize that body with precision and [illegible].

They were given the support of three of the four senators they have dismissed from their councils, and had no nominal opposition from the democrats, who, in a conference earlier in the day, decided against the employment of any obstructive tactics.

Although action on the assignments of senators to the standing committees went over until tomorrow, through an agreement between the republicans and democrats, senate approval was given to a resolution creating an extra place on each of eight committees so that a regular republican can be promoted to the places made vacant by the removal of the insurgents from their present committee rank.

Opposition to the enlargement of the committees was voiced by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and there is a prospect that the determination of the majority organization to remove Senators LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and Ladd, of North Dakota, from their committee chairmanships, and Senators Frazier, and Brookhart from their committee rank, will become the subject of some debate.

Administration leaders say, and those in opposition agree, that the program will go through, since the democrats have no desire that the question of committee chairmanships shall become the subject of separate votes in the senate as was done two years ago when a democrat, Smith of South Carolina, finally was made chairman of the powerful interstate commerce committee.

In reorganizing the senate, the republicans elected Senator Moses of New Hampshire, president pro tempore to succeed Senator Cummins of Iowa, who was not a candidate. George A. Sanderson was reelected secretary and David S. Barry, sergeant-at-arms.

When Senator Moses, name was proposed, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, moved to substitute the name of Senator Pittman of Nevada, but the motion was rejected 36 to 30, Senators Brookhart and Frazier and Ladd voting with the solid republican delegation. Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, the single farmer-labor senator, did not vote, and Senator LaFollette was absent.

With the organization of the senate completed, republican leaders will proceed with a program for the special session agreed upon today, which contemplates action first on the nomination of Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, to be attorney general, and then consideration of the Isle of Pines and Lansdale treaties.

After those two treaties have been disposed of, an effort may be made to reach an agreement with democratic leaders to take up the world court proposals unless there is a disposition is sufficiently well known to make such a formality unnecessary.

Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, said that if opportunity presented, he might press his resolution urging recognition of the Russian soviet government. Otherwise, he will carry the question to the country during the recess, he said, and bring it up at the next session.

Although President Coolidge, in his inaugural address, reiterated his stand in favor of adherence to the world court he does not intend to send a message on it to the special session of the senate, feeling that his position of senators to force an adjournment by breaking the quorum.

Because of the decision by the democrats at their conference before the opening of the session not to oppose republican plans for reorganization, there was in evidence none of the tenseness or expectancy that prevailed at the opening of the last congress, where the insurgents, with the aid of the democrats, were able to tie up organization for several weeks.

In opening the democrat conference, Senator Robinson told his colleagues in clashes the minority "should stand by and refrain from participation in clashes among the republicans concerning committee assignments.

Senator Robinson declared it was particularly desirable that questions of political importance be brought to the attention of the party conference, "before an effort is made to commit our party organization." If members of the conference fail to invite concert of action, he added, the result would be "misleading to the public and promotive of discord."

Harmony was declared by those participating to have been the watch word of the democrat conference. All present officers were re-elected—Senator Robinson as floor leader; Senator Walsh, of Montana, vice chairman; Senator Gerry, of Rhode Island, "Whip" and Senator King, Utah, secretary.

A steering committee was appointed to fill democrat vacancies on the standing committees of the senate and its report will be submitted at a conference called for tomorrow. At the same time senate republicans will meet to pass upon the reports of its insurgents from their former places of rank and the assignment of new senators.

Under the republican program, Senator Watson of Indiana, is to become chairman of the interstate commerce committee in place of Senator LaFollette, who would have succeeded to that office under the seniority rule had he not been read out of the party. Senator Stanfield, of Oregon, will replace Senator Ladd, as chairman of public lands committee, the famous teapot dome investigating body.

HEARING ON LICENSING OF REAL ESTATE BROKERS

Hartford, March 6—"The same old covid in a new sheepskin," was the way ex-Senator John N. Brooks of Torrington characterized the bill to have the state insurance commission license real estate brokers and salesmen, on which the judiciary committee of the legislature held a hearing this afternoon. Bills embodying the same principle have been before the same committee at two previous sessions, being defeated in the senate in 1921 and the bill being reported in 1923. Many of the same proponents and opponents of the bill appeared at the hearing today, with the addition of Major John Buckley, house chairman of the judiciary committee at the 1921 and 1923 sessions, who appeared today as counsel for those asking a favorable report on the bill.

Major Buckley said that the bill was introduced on the theory that a real estate agent had a position of special confidence, similar to that of an insurance agent. The bill was to raise the standards of the real estate business, in which colleges were now offering courses. George B. Chandler, representing the state chamber of commerce favored the bill and said that as compensation commissioner he had learned that there was no department of business in which poor people were preyed upon as in real estate.

George W. Finn, of Bridgeport attacked the bill as one which conferred special privileges typical of the Middle ages. He could see only two reasons for such a bill raising revenue or protecting the public. If the purpose was revenue raising, the license fee should at least be $50 instead of $10 and if to protect the public, those licensed should be bonded for at least $10,000. The bill, he claimed, would put salesmen in a cage of peonage.

"I don't see why you permit an attorney to sell real estate without a license if the bill is designated to protect the public," ex-Senator Brooks said in alluding to one provision of the bill. He declared that the "whole thing is wrong."

TWO MEN ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY IN ANSONIA

Ansonia, March 6—Two men were arrested near here this afternoon, charged with assault with intent to kill and highway robbery in connection with the attack on Morris Silverstein, a Main street merchant on the night of February 16. Silverstein was struck over the head with an iron pipe and his skull was fractured. He has been in Griffin hospital since then in a serious condition. His condition is such that physicians fear that an operation may prove fatal, but they reported that he shows a slight improvement.

The two suspects were arrested on a warrant issued by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Jacob Beilin. Wishing to continue their investigation, the names of the men were not given out by the police.

NEW SERUM DISCOVERED BY ARGENTINE DOCTORS

Paris, March 6—The discoveries of two Argentine doctors, Luis Lancelotti and Francisco Jaurogni, regarding a new serum which they claim has achieved notable results in the cure of syphilis, were today formally placed before a distinguished jury of French scientists and pronounced to be something new in the realm of medicine. The serum of the Argentine physicians is extracted from the South American llama.

The jury which today tested the Argentines' cure was composed of Doctors Roux, Calmette, Doleris, Martin, Levaditi and Ramond. JUDGE REBUKES COUNSEL IN STOKES PROSECUTION

Chicago, March 6—Less than two hours after it had begun its cross-examination of W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy New York apartment hotel owner on trial charged with conspiring to defame his wife in an effort to obtain a divorce the prosecution was warned this afternoon by Judge W. N. Gemmil that it probably had destroyed its case.

The court was so emphatic in his denunciation of the methods of Milton D. Smith, assistant state's attorney, that after warning the prosecutor that a court of review probably would throw out a conviction of Mr. Stokes, he added he was not certain but what the trend of the cross-examination trangressed so far that he himself would have to reverse a jury verdict against the aged millionaire.

The jurors heard Judge Gemmil reprimand the prosecutor, without producing the postal cards for the trial record, Mr. Smith in a roaring, angry voice demanded that Mr. Stokes give a "yes," or "no" answer as to whether he had sent missives to Mrs. Stokes, the Stokes' children, Muriel and Jimmy, and Mrs. Arthur Scott Miller, Mr. Stokes' mother, denouncing Mrs. Stokes for alleged association with negro men.

His face blazing with anger! and clinching the arms of the witness stand Mr. Stokes strained forward and hurried an equally wrathful "I never did," as Mr. Smith read each postal. Judge Gemmil stopped the reading, terming it "very improper."

A few minutes later Mr. Smith asked, "Didn't notorious women visit your apartment at the Ansonia hotel, and was not that why Mrs. Stokes left?"

Mr. Stokes angrily shouted: "no," although an objection by his attorney was sustained. Judge Gemmil's bombshell then exploded.

"If this line of questioning were to be continued, no matter what the verdict would be, I would have to set it aside," said the court.

"The reading of those postcards has destroyed this case already in my opinion. It was wrong in any court on earth. You could hang any man on evidence like that.

"I am not certain but what it already has reached a point that would make it necessary for me to set aside ten verdict."

COMMITTEE ENDORSES NOMINATION OF WARREN

Washington, March 6—Endorsed for a second time by the judiciary committee, the nomination of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, to be attorney general, will be called up tomorrow in the senate with every prospect that it will be confirmed after some debate.

The first move of opponents will be to force consideration in open executive sessions, but they were dubious tonight of success, the republicans in conference today having voted, 28 to 11, against such a departure from established senate rules. A two-thirds majority would be necessary to open the doors.

Called in special session, the judiciary committee today ordered a favorable report on the nomination, which was resubmitted to the senate yesterday by President Coolidge. Only one democrat, Overman, of North Carolina, was present and, as on the previous occasion, he voted for a favorable report.

This report was submitted to the senate later in executive session, and Chairman Cummins asked unanimous consent that the nomination be made the unfinished business of the senate and that it be held on the calendar without interruption until disposed of Senators Reed, democrat, Missouri; Walsh, democrat, Montana, and others opposing confirmation said they had no intention of unnecessarily delaying action, and as a result the request was withdrawn.

Until the senate acts, President Coolidge, it was stated today at the White House, will make no further appointments to fill vacancies in federal judgeships, as he desires to have the benefit of the recommendations of his attorney general before submitting such nominations to the senate.

VILLAGE OF 1,500 TO GIVE WAY TO OIL INDUSTRY

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 6—The town of Lavoye was literally wiped off the map of Wyoming today and its 1,500 residents deprived of their homes by a ruling of federal judge T. Blake Kennedy, who ordered that the entire village and its populace must be moved in order to make a clear path for a giant of industry—petroleum.

Public buildings, business houses—everything—must go, for Judge Kennedy decreed that the Ohio Oil company, which leased the land on which the town is located from the government for oil development is entitled to full possession within sixty days from today. On April 21, 1924, he held that the town had been established without legal basis, but did not provide for enforcement of a removal order.

Today's decision means that if any signs of the town is left in 60 days, those responsible will be subject to citation for contempt of court.

Lavoye is a modern incarnation of the typical boom mining town of the old west. It grew up between patches of alkali and sage brush almost over night forty miles north of Casper, when oil drilling in 1920 demanded hundreds of men in that vicinity. It still is the same bustling village, with three weekly newspapers, numerous picture theatres, automobile agencies and other institutions of work and play which fortune seekers demand.

Like the mushroom town that it is, its buildings are flimsy—hastily thrown together shacks for the most part—and can be easily demolished. It is expected that the business interests of the town will be transferred mostly to Salt Creek, a nearby oil town.

London, March 6—(By the A. P.)—The condition of Marquis Curzon of Kendleston, lord president of the council and leader of the house of lord who collapsed last night at Cambridge, was described by a bulletin issued at his London residence tonight as "not calling for alarm." Mayor Hylan Given A Rough Reception

Was Hooted in Upper House New York Municipal Assembly During Taxicab Hearing.

New York, March 6—Amid such booing and hissing of a mayor as seldom has been witnessed in New York's city hall, the upper house of the municipal assembly today transfered the supervision of taxicabs from the bureau of licenses to the police department.

Comptroller Charles L. Craig, opponent to the Mayor Hylan's policies, shook his fist at his chief and charged that the "Yellow Taxicab company is growing rich through police favoritism."

A representative of the Empire State Taxicab chamber of commerce shouted to the mayor: "I dare you to shut me up," and then declared the Yellow Taxicab company was being protected by police because of one of its directors was C. J. Sinnott, a relative of Mrs. Hylan.

There were such cheers that the mayor couldn't make himself heard. "Why don't you report your charges to the police commissioner?" he shouted, finally.

"What?—and get my skull cracked?" reported the taxi man. Comptroller Craig interrupted to say: "If this man wanted to make a complaint he would have found Commissioner Enright making speeches in Argentina. Everybody knows that in his recent tour of South America he went only to countries where wine flowed as freely as the tides."

When a vote on transferring cab supervision to the police department was taken, Comptroller Craig was the sole opponent on the measure.

DOUBT DEATH OF SWINDLER IN ILLINOIS PENITENTIARY

Chicago, March 6.—Rumors that Leo Koretz, swindler, who defrauded relatives and friends out of about $2,000,000, had not died in the state penitentiary on January 8, less than two months after he was sent to prison, were being investigated informally today.

The rumors were that Koretz escaped under the guise of death and that another body was buried in Waldheim cemetery. The rumors were said to have been strengthened by the fact that only a captain of the guard was present when the death was reported to have occurred and that the casket was not opened at the grave.

Public officials generally regarded the rumors as unfounded.

Joliet, Ill., March 6.—"The man who died January 8, was the one who gave his name as Leo Koretz, when he was received at the prison a month before his death," Dr. W. R. Fletcher, prison physician said today, in reply to rumors that Koretz had not died at the state prison.

Prison officials said then the rumor was "preposterous."

45 PERSONS HOMELESS AT BIDDEFORD, ME., FIRE

Biddeford, Me., March 6.—Forty-five persons were made homeless and a baby and several firemen were injured in a fire tonight which left only the walls of a three story wooden building standing and caused a loss of $70,000. With the ground floor a mass of flames, Fireman James Farley fought his way through smoke-filled halls and up and down burning stairways to rescue three months' old Laurette Roy, left alone in her crib on the top floor.

The fire was in a crowded tenement district. The flames originated in a garage on the ground floor and swept rapidly through the two upper floors which housed nine families. Occupants of the apartments were forced to flee for their lives.

Upon reaching the street, Farley pressed the child, unconscious into a by-stander's arms, and collapsed. Both will recover, doctors said, although they suffered burns in their descent through the fire. The mother had been unable to return for Laurette after saving another child.

MEDILL M'CORMICK LEAVES ENTIRE ESTATE TO WIFE

Chicago, March 6.—Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the late senator are made co-trustees of the $2,000,000 estate of Senator Medill McCormick, the will filed for probate here today disclosed. Mrs. McCormick was given the entire income from the estate for her lifetime, and made sole executrix.

The will gives Mrs. McCormick authority to dispose of the estate in her will, but unless she makes other disposition the senator's will provides that after her death, and after their son, now 7 years old, reaches the age of 36, the property is to be distributed equally among the three children—John Medill, Katharine 12, and Ruth Elizabeth, 4.

Vice President Dawes was named co-trustee because of his life friendship for Marcus A. Hanna, father of Mrs. McCormick, and for Mrs. McCormick.

A CEMENT LADEN BARGE SANK IN BRIDGEPORT HARBOR

Bridgeport, March 6.—Foundering on a jutting mud bank as she was entering Bridgeport harbor, the steam barge Marion has sunk with a cargo of 3,400 bags of cement consigned to a Bridgeport firm. Both boat and cargo are a total loss, the value of the barge being placed at $10,000.

The boat will be abandoned by her New York owners. The barge is not the first ship to founder on the point as a submarine and several small ships have come to grief there in the last three years. The point was left by the government dredging operations when a small harbor light was moved more inland several years ago.

APPREHENSION IN FRANCE ON SECURITY PACT PROBLEM

Premier Herriot is Confronting the Most Difficult Crisis of His Career—The Entire Nation is Anxiously Awaiting His Decision—Great Britain is Inclined to Advocate a Favorable Consideration of the German Plan For a Guarantee Pact.

Paris, March 6.—(By The A. P.)—Premier Herriot was regarded in political circles here tonight as confronting the most difficult crisis of his career as head of the government. He is facing the all-important question of a security pact and the entire nation is watching him closely to see what he will do with it.

Foreign Minister Skrzansky of Poland, in a long talk with the premier this afternoon, declared Poland would not consent to a revision of the treaty of Versailles. In addition, Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of Great Britain who arrived here this afternoon on his way to Geneva, and with whom M. Herriot is dining this evening at the British embassy, presents another problem. It is assumed, from his remarks in the house of commons that Mr. Chamberlain will advocate a favorable consideration of the German plan for a guarantee pact which will expressly exclude the latter's frontier with Poland from the society it is supposed to provide.

Mr. Chamberlain, in the opinion of the Paris press, is going to Geneva to give the finishing blow to the league protocol which was M. Herriot's greatest hope.

M. Skrzynsky is said to have added that the arbitration, such as Germany is declared to have in view, cannot be permitted to bring into question the points which were settled by treaty, that is, the status quo of Europe as based on the treaty of Versailles.

The issue is thus sharply defined between Germany and Great Britain on one hand and France and Belgium and their allies of Central Europe on the other. Mr. Skrzynsky is understood to have the backing of Foreign Minister Benes of Czechoslovakia.

Two possible ways out of the dilema are that Germany abandon her claim upon the Danzig corridor, which was put into the treaty of Versailles on the instance of the late President Wilson, or the reconstruction of the league's security protocol on a basis that Great Britain and her dominions will be able to accept. The second of these possibilities will be the subject of a talk between Mr. Chamberlain and M. Herriot tomorrow.

It is now considered in official circles that nothing tangible will result from tomorrow's conversations between the British foreign secretary and the French premier.

TO WAGE CAMPAIGN TO "DRY UP" NEW YORK

New York, March 6.—Emory R. Buckner, who assumed office as United States district attorney for the southern district of New York only five days ago, declared tonight that his action against 14 of the most exclusive supper clubs of the Great White Way constituted but the first step of a campaign which he will wage to "dry up" New York.

He announced plans for a three-fold attack against the strongholds of illicit liquor, each phase of which is based on his intention to substitute civil closing proceedings for the present "cumbersome, farcical and grotesque" system of punishment by the arrest and fine of the "small fry" who carry on the gigantic business of keeping certain parts of New York "wet."

First, Mr. Buckner said, he will seek to weld his own office, the federal prohibition enforcement bureau, and the police departments of New York and the other ten counties in his district into an effective anti-bootlegger weapon. He already has arranged a conference with the officials concerned, he said, to be held next week.

Next, he will prepare instructions for prohibition agents and policemen as to just what evidence they must obtain for the institution of padlock proceedings. The third part of his plan, he added will be the establishment next month of a "padlock court" for the hearing of these suits exclusively.

6,000 MINERS TO GO ON STRIKE AT CAPE BRETON

Halifax, N. S., March 6.—Preparations for the strike of 6,000 miners in the Cape Breton area, scheduled to be called late tonight proceeded peacefully tonight with no indications of disorder.

Premier Armstrong, at the close of the afternoon session of the legislative assembly, announced that there were no new developments and that he expected none tonight. The Cape Breton labor members left after the session or the scene of the expected strike. No additional police have been ordered and the provisional police force has been neither mobilized nor augmented.

Arrangements have been made by the municipality of Glace Bay to provide relief for th efamilies of the miners who were said, in a statement issued by the miners' union yesterday, to be destitute. The 6,000 men expected to quit work tonight, representing those who had been receiving part time work during the winter, will constitute only a part of the total number of men on strike as several thousand more have been idle throughout the winter.

The question of whether the constitution of the United Mine Workers of America permitted withdrawal of maintenance men was discussed in the assembly today. Forman Way, leader of the labor party, said that it had never been proved that there was a clause in the constitution prohibiting the withdrawal.

General Mitchell will revert to his own rank as colonel after that date.

TO PROBE BRONX WEDDING LICENSE ISSUING SYSTEM

New York, March 6—District Attorney McGeehan of the Bronx, who has ordered a grand jury investigation of this city's wedding license issuing system, declared today that one section of the statutes "practically sanctions trial marriage for minors."

He announced that State Senator Anton, sponsoring before the legislature a bill that would stipulate the lapse of a certain period between the issuance of a wedding license and the marriage ceremony, had consented to testify before the grand jury.

Besides legalizing trial marriage for minors, said Mr. McGeehan, the statutes permit city clerks to perform ceremonies for applicants so youthful that were a clergyman or magistrate to act in a like capacity he would be committing a misdemeanor.

"An investigation my aides have conducted into the regulations discloses conditions that will come as an astounding revelation to my attorneys as well as to laymen," said Mr. Geehan.

Section 7 of the domestic relations law fixes 18 years as the age of consent for males and females. It provides that a marriage of persons under that age may be annulled by the supreme court, even though parents of the minors consented to the marriage.

"As I interpret the statutes, a boy of 17 and a girl of 16 could get their parents' consent and marry, and in a year or so compel the supreme court to annul the marriage on the ground that the parties were under age.

"Thus trial marriage for minors would be practically sanctioned by the law, and a city clerk may with impunity marry a boy and girl whom he knows to be under age, whereas section 1450 of our penal law provides that a minister or magistrate who solemnizes a marriage between parties whom he knows to be under 18 years of age shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

L. OF N. VIEWS ON DOUBLE TAXATION AND TAX EVASION

Geneva, March 6 (By the A. P.)—The league of nations tonight made public a document for which all governments, including that of the United States, have been waiting with interest for months, in its report on the problem of double taxation and tax evasion, on which experts have been working for years.

Starting with the principle that double taxation should be avoided because it is unjust and destroys initiative, the experts reported in favor of a general rule that the personal income tax should be levied only by the country of domicile. They admit, however, certain exceptions, recommending conclusion of bi-lateral conventions when, for special reasons, a state other than a state of domicile finds necessity for imposing a general tax on income arising from immovable property and agricultural, industrial and commercial undertakings. The committee recommends that rules adopted for a general income tax should be applied to permanent taxes on the taxpayers' total wealth or capital and to death duties.

Lindsley Deming, caretaker of the cemetery reported the ston missing to the board of selectmen, Frank M. Whites James Lewis and Henry Eaton. The stone was placed on the Eaton grave about one year ago and it is understood that Mrs. Eva Fuller, of Norwich, formerly of Chaplin, paid the amount involved.

Albert Eaton was killed 24 years ago. He was twenty years of age and was employed in loading ties on a freight car at Clark's Corner. He was carrying a tie on his shoulder when he slipped and fell, Breaking his neck and dying instantly. Mrs. Fuller was Miss Eva Church before her marriage and a schoolmate of Albert Eaton. Judge Turano called the case of Santo Sposato, who in Feb. 14th was alleged to have had in his possession intoxicating liquors containing alcohol in excess of one-half of one per cent. A plea of not guilty was entered by Sposato and the case was set down for trial on March 13th. Bonds of $200 were required, with Edward Liotta as surety.

The case of Frank Campinelli, a charge of non-support for three minor children, was next called. Evidence showed that the defendant had agreed to pay $5 a week toward the support of his children and had only contributed $3 per week for the past three weeks. Evidence was given showing that he had a weekly galary of $27 or about $80 for the three weeks' period. The defendant in reply to why he felt unable to pay for their support said that his board bill was $14, amounting to $42, but he was unable to account for the expenditure of the balance. Judge Turano said that the case had been pending since January and that the defendant should get a lawyer, if he persisted in his present attitude, and be ready for trial next Friday.

John F. Davis vs. Louis LaFountaine was an alleged taking of personal property and the outgrowth of trover and conversion, in which the plaintiff waived the tort and came to trial. Attorney Roche for the plaintiff, in entering demurers said, that the defendant, Louis LaFountaine, had taken down a spile driver from land owned by Charles Champion and leased to George Saunders and in the original papers the plaintiff had been charged $50 for the removing of the timbers. Attorney Ralphbun argued for the plaintiff that the case was not properly brought. Judge Turano denied one of the demurrers and sustained the others. Following the pleading by the plaintiff assignment for trial next week was taken up.

Larkin, can now take advantage of their "eddy" and both parties spread their nets for the smelts, late Friday afternoon. Their hauls were small ones.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

TOO MANY FARMERS DETRIMENT TO NATION

Too many people on farms results in an excess of farm products sold at unremunerative prices, which in turn has a tendency to hold down the standard of living in the country and blight the lives of the growing boys and girls on the farms, declares Dr. H. C. Taylor, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States department of agriculture.

"When the movement from country to city goes on at a sufficiently rapid rate there will not be a surplus of farmers and, one year with another, farm prices will be adequate to maintain the desired standard of living on farms in rural communities.

"Unless farmers insist upon a satisfactory standard of living and withdraw from agriculture when they are not able to maintain this living standard, prices for farm products adequate to provide such a standard of living can not be hoped for.

"In 1820 approximately 5 per cent of those engaged in gainful occupations in the United States were in agriculture. The percentage engaged in agriculture in 1920 was 26. This movement of country to city went on gradually throughout one hundred years, but between 1910 and 1920 the movement was more rapid than in any period since 1870.

"The proportion of those gainfully occupied who are engaged in agriculture will doubtless be further reduced in the United States, but even when final perfection has been reached in the form of labor saving machinery there will continue to be a movement of population from country to city as long as the birth rate in the country is higher than in the cities.

"This movement, within proper limits, should be looked upon as desirable. Without the movement from country to city we would have entirely too many people engaged in agriculture and farm prices would be even lower than they are. Cities would be lacking labor and the disparity between the purchasing power of farm products and other products would be even worse than it has been in recent years.

"The danger in the movement is that the process will be selective, taking the best stock from the rural community and leaving the weaker elements of the population on the farms to the detriment not only of agriculture, but of the nation as a whole. The movement should operate in such a way as to leave in the country those elements of our rural population best suited to an efficient type of farming, a higher standard of living on the farm and in the rural community, and a standard of rural citizenship commensurate with the needs of our democracy."

SAYS FRUIT TREES WILL GROW ON AVERAGE FARM

Tree fruits such as peaches, cherries and apples, which are highly nutritious and which can conveniently be produced on the average farm, are too often neglected and suffer from lack of care, C. L. Burkholder, of the Purdue university agricultural extension department, said. The statement refers to the average farm having a small orchard used for home consumption.

Fruit trees must be sprayed regularly if best results are to be realized. Spray schedules for all types of fruit trees are available at the horticultural department of the Purdue university school of agriculture, along with meterial relative to the proper equipment and operation of a barrel sprayer.

Peaches are one of the most desirable of the tree fruits, although the unfortunate low winter temperatures of this part of the country make the crop a hazard.

The sour cherry is a very satisfactory fruit tree requiring a minimum of spraying.

A dozen apple trees will supply plenty of fruit for home use. It is important to make a selection of varieties which will supply fruit from early summer until early spring of the following year.

CARE OF POULTRY AS SPRING APPROACHES

Do not decrease the amount of grain fed poultry too rapidly, as spring approaches. Usually increased egg production will be accompanied by an increase in mash consumption—which will take care of the relative proportions of grain and mash consumed without any great decrease in the grain. Grain feeding should be held up until after lights are discontinued. Flocks that are receiving morning light or night light may be gradually cut off until the lights are entirely discontinued on April 1st, but not before. Flocks that are receiving the night lunch system of lighting must be handled differently. The lights may be turned off abruptly April 1st. A change in the sytem of grain feeding should be made at the same time. Give the regular 4 o'clock feeding at 3:30 or 4:00—then give the night-lunch feeding at 6:30 or as late as it can be fed and give the birds time to eat. In this way the total amount of grain fed is not decreased and there is usually no drop in production or evidence of spring moult. After two or three weeks of this system, the birds can be gradually worked back to a normal night feeding with slightly less grain.

Hatches reported to date are better than normal. It is hoped that this may continue, as there are nowhere nearly enough Connecticut chicks for Connecticut people.

Sour skim milk is probably the best single feed that we have for starting off young chicks. It should be used in connection with ordinary commercial chicks feeds and the home-mixed dry mash. Chick feed should be fed 5 times per day during the first week, with all the sour milk the chicks can consume. Dry mash should be kept before the chicks continually after the first week.

If a regular commercial buttermilk starting feed is used, in place of the chick feed during the first week, sour milk should not be fed, as the addition of sour milk to a buttermilk starting feed is apt to cause serious loses. Either system is satisfactory, but the two should not be confused.

It is advisable to use cod liver oil for all chicks hatch previous to April 1st, in order to prevent the possibility of leg weakness. One (1) pint of cod liver oil in each 100 pounds of mash will give satisfactory results. Usually it is advisable to mix the cod liver oil with a small amount of bran first, then add the bran to the mash mixture. Cod liver oil can be fed by mixing with scratch feed, but the mash mixture seems to be preferable. Only oil that has been tested for the vitamin content should be used. Tested oils are now carried by most feed dealers and poultry supply houses.

Be sure and give the early-hatch chicks all the direct sunshine possible. Cod Liver Oil—which is sometimes called "Bottled Sunshine"—is fed only to carry the chicks over the periods of stormy or cloudy weather when direct sunshine cannot be obtained.

DEVELOPMENTS IN HOME EGG LAYING CONTEST

The average production for the first three months of the Connecticut home egg-laying contest is 20.13 eggs per bird, from 599 farms, with a total of 166,127 birds. This is 3.13 eggs per bird better than standard production for these three months—which is 21 eggs per bird.

The commercial flocks are leading with an average of 24.56 eggs per bird. The farm flocks come second with 21.53 eggs per birds; while the backyard flocks are last with 19.11 eggs per bird.

The leading flocks in each classification, are exceedingly high and bid fair to make very creditable records for the year.

Many reports have been received to the effect that January production has been lower than during last year. Director Ellis has withheld his opinion until the figures from the home egg-laying contest could be summarized. These figures show an average production of exactly nine eggs—which is standard production. It is 18 of an egg less than last year and .33 of an egg less than the average for the past three years. This production was made under rather unfavorable conditions. With the favorable weather at present, and the high reports that are being received now, it is probable that the gain in February will more than make up for the loss in January.

Several complaints have been received to the effect that, with mounting feed prices, the profits were rapidly diminishing. A careful study of the situation is worthy of consideration. Using the Connecticut market reports for Connecticut new laid fancy eggs, from Hartford, New Haven, and Waterbury, from January 1st to Feb. 15th—the 1924 price is 53c per dozen, while the 1925 price is 67.1 cents per dozen, showing a gain of 9.1 cents. Using the Connecticut market bulletin feed quotations on the same markets for the same period, the average price of ready mixed grain and mash in 1924 is $2.88, while the average price of grain and mash in 1925 is $3.29—or an increase of 46 cents per 100 pounds. Based on the average feed consumption of 7 pounds per hen per month, and the average egg production of 1 dozen eggs per hen per month:—When feed increases 50 cents per 100 pounds, eggs must increase 3 1-2 cents per dozen in order to cover. It would look, therefore, as if 1925 conditions were decidedly favorable, with an increased egg price of 9.1 cents per dozen and increased feed costs of 46 cents per 100 pounds.

Perhaps the real key to the situation is average egg production. Flocks that are well above standard production are paying better than in 1924, while flocks that are way below standard production are a greater expense than during 1924.

BEE LOUSE NOT TO BE DISREGARDED

A new pest of bees, braula coeca nitzch, popularly called the bee-louse, has been found present in considerable numbers in Carroll county, Maryland, and in a few other places in the United States. It is undoubtedly imported from Europe with queen bees, and while it is not, so far, to be regarded as a serious menace, beekeepers will do well to take steps to eradicate it from their colonies when discovered.

Braula is not a true parasite, according to the bureau of entomology, but it is capable of weakening a bee colony by taking its foods and by tormenting the queen bee. It lives on the honey carried by the bees, not on their blood, as was at one time supposed. It is found singly on the workers, and in numbers on the Queen bee, but seldom on drones.

MADAGASCAR HAS PLENTY OF PETROLEUM

The world's latest possibility as a source of petroleum is Madagascar where geological experts have recently found promising indications. That this island, not so often heard of as Morocco or Algeria or Indo-China, deserves to be considered with them as an important French domain is indicated by a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Madagascar, lying in the Indian Ocean, is sufficiently far away from Europe and America to be dismissed as a somewhat sizable but 'isolated island,' says the bulletin. "But on the score of size it is a case of 'the tail wagging the dog.' This third largest of the world's islands (leaving polar land masses out of consideration) is larger than France by some 15,000 square miles.

"If, instead of being situated off the southeast coast of Africa, Madagascar lay off the southeast coast of the United States it would be easily understood why the island has been referred to as 'virtually a little continent.' If one end of the island lay in the Atlantic opposite the northern point of Florida, the other end would touch Nova Scotia, blocking practically the entire Atlantic coast of the United States. And if the outer side of the island touched Bermuda the land would extend westward more than half way to Cape Hatteras.

"This imaginary position in the Atlantic would not place madagascar in proper relation to the Equators. It is a tropical island. Replaced in a position in the North Atlantic truly comparable to its real position in the southern hemisphere, it would extend from the latitude of southern Florida across the West Indies and the Carribean sea to the northern coast of South America. Because Madagas-car is in the tropics its low coast lands are hot and material. The greater part of its area, however, is a plateau which rises several thousand feet above sea level and furnishes a temperate climate well suited to the needs of Europeans.

"The Malagasies, as the natives of Madagascar are called, are of mixed blood, and Africa has not contributed to the extent that might be inferred from the island's nearness to that continent. The dominant strain seems to have come from the east. Some members of the leading tribes of the central plateau might almost be mistaken for Malays. In other tribes there is a mixture of negro, Arab and even East Indian blood. Many of the Malagasies have reached a considerable degree of civilization largely due to external influences. First impulses were contributed at a very early date by Arabs; and ever since 1600, when the island was first sighted by Europeans, there have been contacts with Portuguese, Dutch, French and British. Of the three and a half million inhabitants of Madagascar, half a million are rated as Christians.

"Since the French declared a protectorate over Madagascar in 1896 and later made it a colony, they have built a railway from Tamatave, chief port, on the eastern coast, to Antananarivo, the capital, near the center of the island. More than 1500 miles of highways have been constructed. Huge areas of the islands are without roads however, and considerable regions are virtually unexplored. Many of the people of the back country are pagans and many primitive customs exist among them.

"Madagascar is surpassed by few lands as a cattle country. There are nearly eight million head of cattle, more than two for every human inhabitant. Thousands of wild cattle roam the plains and forests, and hunting them is the great Madagascan sport. The chief vegetable staple is rice.

"Production already exceeds consumption, and the island could become one of the great rice exporting regions of the world. But this is only a beginning. Almost every tropical product, elsewhere valuable, flourishes, together with many temperate zone products. There are rubber, coffee, tea, vanilla, cacao, sugar, silk worms, silk spiders, tobacco, raffia, cabinet woods, bananas, and a long list of tropical fruits and vegetables. Hides and preserved meats are important exports.

"One fly in the Madagascan ointment is the existence of hordes of locusts. Myriads of them settle in certain regions and destroy all crops and foliage. But such a visitation never means a famine in Madagascar. With an ability to make the best of a bad bargain that almost amounts to genius, the Malagasy 'harvests' the crop of locusts, eats what he needs, and dries the rest for use as future food. Dried locusts are a food staple, like the northerner's dried fish, sold in every market and 'put up' by every careful housewife.

"There is a fat spider of which the Malagasy is also very fond, and he even eats silk worms with relish. One white traveler who journeyed into the Madagascan back country in a chair borne by carriers, asserts that one of the most delicious of the native spiders, worms, rice, fish and suet," dishes is a stew consisting of locusts,

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Two statements relative to the aridity of Florida, pro and con, recently have come out of that state. One of them was sent by a local man who is spending the winter at New Smyrna, as has been his custom for years, for publication here. The other appeared Thursday evening this week in the court of an article in a New York evening paper, dealing with the reasons for the tremendous development that has been going on in Florida the past five years. Read them and weep!

Says the Danielson man:

I think we had a remarkable experience on our trip to Florida by automobile. We left Danielson Nov. 5, District of Columbia. We passed driving through ten states and the through twenty-eight cities, stopping overnight in ten of them and were out looking the cities over each evening.

We did not see an intoxicated person the entire distance.

We have been in Florida three months, visiting several cities and large towns and have not seen any intoxication. Have asked several who have come by auto from the middle west and they say the same. I consider no comment necessary.

Says the New York writer:

One thing that is giving impetus to the boom must be "whispered." Florida is a wide-open State, and free and independent citizens like it. The Volstead act may have been adopted by the legislature, but if it was they do not like to be reminded of it. Liquor is dispensed nearer to pre-prohibition standards than in any other state. Any one who wants the sporting life can have it. There are no blue laws, no interference with "personal liberty." Even Williams Jennings Bryan, one of Miami leading citizens, has not lifted his voice in protest. But he does lift his voice every day at a noonday booster meeting in one of Miami's great real estate developments, at so much per "lift." A rival development has added Gilda as a counter attraction. Began for the uplift and Gilda for the "shakedown."

The night life in Miami leaves nothing to be desired.

"Which where are you going which, anyhow?" Or something to that effect.

Sale of Norwich Bulletins by a certain one of the dealers in Danielson during the 24 publication days of February, shortest month of the year, aggregated 13,920, another new high record for the month. The matter is of interest to advertisers.

Four seagulls have been disporting themselves on the waters of the Quinebaug river, just above the South Main street bridge the past few days. While the appearance of sea gulls here is unusual it is not unique. Last year gulls were reported at Quinebaug lake early in the spring. One theory accounting for the appearance of the gulls on the Quinebaug is that they came in with the gale of last Sunday afternoon and evening.

A trolley car coming south placed Mr. Musgrave in a difficult position with the machine he was driving and he, north-bound, struck the Allen car from the rear. Mr. Musgrave agreed to adjust the damage to Mr. Allen's car, which was pushed ahead about 30 feet by the impact of the collision. Howard Tillinghast was riding with Mr. Musgrave at the time of the accident. The car Mr. Musgrave was driving was damaged only in a minor manner.

The department considers the appointment of this board "a very important step towards the uniform numbering and marking of highways of interstate character."

Alfred St. Onge, 17 years old school-boy charged with changing ga two dollar bill into a twenty and trying to pass it, did a skillful piece of work, if he is the real culprit. The bill is of a kind that has the numeral two in every corner of both sides. A cipher evidently cut from imitation paper money once used in the bookkeeping course at the High school, or from advertising coupons was pasted after each two on the real bill. At a casual glance the doctored bill looks like a twenty dollar one; but a second look shows that it has been tampered with. St. Onge still denies that he had anything to do with it.

Charles L. Torrey told the court that he had faith in Breault's story and as his wife is in a sanatorium seriously ill with consumption, the hearing was fixed at another date so that the man will not have to remain in prison if not guilty.

LEFT WIFE FOR AFFINITY— CHILD BORN 3 MONTHS LATER

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, March 6.—Kathleen H. Keech was granted a divorce from Leon I. Keech in the superior court this morning and given custody of two minor children. She was married in 1906. Her husband deserted her in November, 1925 Mrs. Keech told the court and went to live with another woman. She knew nothing of his intention to leave until he came into the house on November 1 of that year, told her he was going away and kissed her goodby. Their second child was born three months after he left.

Since then she has made her home with her husband's mother, Mrs. Angelica Keech on Farrows street and has supported herself and the children, one a boy of 13 and the other a girl of nine, by working at Andem's greenhouses. This information ought to end further arugments as to Onion or Union Hill.

SECRETARY KELLOGG ON POLICIES.

When Secretary Kellogg of the department of state indicates on taking office that he will continue the foreign policy of his predecessor, and says that the foreign policy is a continuing one, he gives no indication of opening the door to the Borah idea of recognizing the soviet government of Russia.

He is doing no different than was expected of him. When it was disclosed that he had been picked as the successor of Secretary Hughes it was made known that his selection was pleasing to Mr. Hughes, if in fact he had not actually suggested his appointment. There is no reason to suppose that such an appointment would have been made if it had not been the intention of the administration to stick to its course, and no choice of a head for the department of state would have been made that would have meant a radical change in policies unless there had been a decided difference of opinion existing between the retiring secretary and the president.

It was perfectly clear that the closest harmony existed between the president and the head of the state department. That meant, if it meant anything, that there would be strict adherence to the established policies. The Hughes programme has certainly been based upon sound judgment. It has appealed strongly to the country and one of the reasons for regretting the retirement of Mr. Hughes has been the fear that a change in that office might mean a change in policies.

Had there been a clash between the president and the head of the department of state, or had their views run along different channels, there might have been ground for such suspicion, but on every occasion that has presented itself Mr. Hughes has denounced such a view, the president has established his insistence on the existing policies and the intimates by the new secretary should set at rest any future speculations in this direction. The choice of former Senator Kellogg for the important post of secretary of state insures the continuance rather than the abandonment of Hughes' policies.

ABSENTEE VOTING.

Absentee voting has been urged and received much support in various states. It makes provision for those who are unable to get to the polls on a fixed date to exercise their franchise. Different states have different methods to insure protection to the voters, but there is a growing feeling that a person should not be deprived of his vote just because absence from town or illness makes it impossible for him or her to get to the voting places.

Indiana has such a law. As the result of suggested amendments thereto the Indianapolis News says: 'If the legislature amends the absentee voters' law, the section that refers to invalids should not be molested. Under this provision any person who is sick or a chronic invalid and unable to leave his home is classed as an absent voter and is entitled to vote an absent voter's ballot.' In this manner a citizen, no matter how badly he may be afflicted, is not cut off entirely from participating in governmental affairs and is not disfranchised. This part of the law has not been abused and it has been a boon to hundreds who could vote in no other way."

It is perfectly evident that there are always many who would like to but who cannot get to the polls to vote on election day. They are not in a position to overcome their handicaps and yet they are denied their voice in the choice of officials. Because of this inability to vote there is no recompense in reduced taxes. They must be paid whether they can get to the polls or not. They must be paid whether they can get to the tax collector's office or not. Why then, shouldn't a person who is in his right mind be given the chance to participate in governmental affairs, when as a matter of fact those who cannot get to the polls are in many instances much better able to cast an intelligent ballot than some who are much stronger physically.

The absentee voter is not necessarily so from choice. Isn't it right that he should get some consideration?

ACTION ON AMENDMENTS.

When the dry amendment was submitted to the people by congress there was included a provision that action should be taken within a fixed time. This meant that if the states did not get within the period, seven years as remembered, the chance for ratification would cease.

There was a feeling at that time that the provision had been attached for the purpose of embarrassing, that it was done to aid the opposition and that it was an unjust move. The restricted period in no way endangered the amendment, but it may have hastened action by some of the states where a disposition to delay could easily be encouraged. But more than that it made it possible to end the matter in a fixed time. It did just what is needed but is not provided for in the case of the child labor amendment.

It is expected that the result of the submission of the amendment to the states for ratification will be known in a reasonable time. Certainly if the majority of the states have acted and of that majority most of them are against ratification there can be no question but what the amendment has failed of ratification. But there is no certainty when that "reasonable time" for action expires if, as is claimed, it is possible for states which have refused to ratify to change their minds while states which have ratified are not permitted to change.

What was therefore regarded as an injustice in the case of the 18th amendment is more and more looked upon as the right course to pursue in connection with the ratification of amendments. A definite time which permits opportunity for all states to act should be sufficient, but the country should not have an unratified amendment dangling before it all the time ready to be brought anew at any time a legislature is in session in order to try to get a reversal of the adverse vote. If there is no time in which ratification must take place there should be authority on the part of congress, when there is no question as to the opposition, to withdraw an amendment.

ACTION BY THE REBELS.

Attention is bound to be attracted by the action of three of the rebels read out of the republican party during the organizing of the senate of the 69th congress. Senators Brookhart, Frazier and Ladd may or may not have indicated their future course by the manner in which they acted on Friday. Certainly they have not committed themselves, but by their initial stand they have declared their desire to be regarded as republicans.

The absence of obstructive tactics was refreshing. There have been times when there was no more reason for creating obstacles than there was on Friday and yet there was resort to such methods.

Perhaps it is too early to infer that the rebels are seeking a return to the fold. The fact is of course that while they have been read out of the party they have been given to understand that there was nothing standing in the way of their return if they were able to satisfy the republicans that they could depend upon them as republicans. Something more than a mere sayso may be necessary. In view of their conduct they must expect to be thoroughly tested. They are not pleased at the idea of being classed in a party by themselves and being denied the committee assignments and position thereon which would come through length of service. Perhaps they will realize where the responsibility for their present position out in the cold lies and see the folly of their own conduct. Being powerless to conduct a successful policy of obstruction may be the real reason why they are standing with the party under the banner of which they were elected.

SEEKING STATEHOOD.

For a considerable time Porto Rico has sought statehood. Thus far it has failed to get the action sought, but it is not discouraged. It has set its mind upon such a change and it is not easily discouraged. In the claims which are made in support of such action these facts are set forth:

"Population 1,300,000, about the same as Connecticut's. Whites, French, Spanish and American stock 1,000,000. Education progressing fast.

"Area equal to Delaware's. Location 1000 miles from Florida coast. Exports to United States more than $77,000,000 a year—greater than those of Alaska or Philippines.

"Contributions to national defense, in fighting soldiers and sailors in World war, more than New Hampshire, Vermont, Delaware, Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico or Wyoming."

Porto Rico isn't satisfied because it is being treated the same as other territories, and it isn't discouraged because statehood has never been granted to insular territory by this government. It isn't even halted in its ambition by the fact that those who reside in the District of Columbia do not have state rights and do not have the right of suffrage.

It might be expected that Porto Rico would look at other instances and consider that it was asking much more than it could really expect to obtain. Instead it goes on the basis that if a thing is worth having it is worth seeking, and it is putting forth its best efforts in a direction calculated to obtain it. There certainly is no harm in the course that Porto Rico is following.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Those who diet to grow thin may not notice that they are fattening their pocketbook.

Are you keeping it in mind that the anniversary of the big blizzard comes next week?

The man on the corner says: About time to get the car out and dust it up for the summer.

It is never possible to figure up the coal consumption accurately until the month of March is over.

The finding of graphite in Greenland will make no appeal to those who spend their winters in Florida.

A scientist says that Niagara Falls will be dry in 10,000 years. How long would it take under prohibition enforcement?

Pennsylvania has gone on record against the federal inheritance tax. It is probably too much to expect that it will abolish its own coal tax.

Much is expected from March for the filling of the reservoirs. Its mild and pluvial disposition must therefore be accepted with due regard for our needs.

The senate may well feel disturbed over the way it has been called to account by the vice president in behalf of the country, but it will make an even greater mistake if it declines to place the blame right where it belongs.

Nevada has repealed its inheritance tax law, the third state in the country to be without one, but estates of its deceased citizens will be subject to similar taxes in other states and to the federal government under certain conditions.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

At the recent Washington Missionary Conference, in an address that seemed to reach the high water mark, Dr. E. Stanley Jones of India made this exceedingly significant remark: "First, we are not there (referring to the orient generally) to westernize the east. I would not turn my hand over to westernize the east. I trust I will give my life to Christianize it. We are not trying to make the east a pale copy of the west." The reproduction of our western civilization in the orient would simply mean tragedy. Along its main lines the orient must be forever the orient, and the occident must forever be the occident. The type of mind that is indigenous to the west can no more be natural for orientals, than the clothing of cold countries can meet the requirments of hot countries. It would be like trying to make a cross breeding between the buffalo and elephant. But to Christianize is wholly a different matter.

The majority of people would have better health if they walked more and rode less. All people—if health is to be preserved—must have the fresh air, and for all who are invalids or semi-invalids the automobile is a godsend, but for the strong and vigorous in time it will made a legless race unless they begin to increase their walking and diminish their riding. The average man does not need, and probably could not stand, the severe bodily drill of the professional athlete, and it would be injurious if he could. The professional athlete is not a long-lived man simply because he overdoes it. But walking in the bracing air gives to every physical organ just the stimulus needed for perfect health. Of course it would be extravagant to say that perfect health in every instance can be secured by walking.

If you can stand it, listen to another pararaph on walking! It is important because right walking combines strength with beauty. Watch some people walk! Their steps are heavy, irregular, irresolute; they go slopping along the street as though their feet were made of oak slabs. If the street is paved you can hear them a quarter mile away, half shuffling and half pounding. When they do not shuffle they pound as though trying to drive spikes into the concrete pavement. On the other hand watch the soldier, or anyone who has had military training, walk. His step is light, quick, elastic, uniform and yet firm. He stands erect, he knows how to breathe, he conserves his strength and hence can reel off mile after mile with little physical effort. The training a soldier gets makes the most of his physical attractions, and he learns how to expend those forces with the least physical fatigue.

In the last issue of the Review of Reviews there is a very interesting and suggestive article on Teaching Prosperity. The author draws a clear and reasonable parallel between a financial depression and a bodily disease. A person lying in bed because some disease has gripped him needs a doctor; a great manufacturing plant with silent machinery and smokeless stacks is also sick—at least it is in a sub-normal condition that also needs doctoring. The converse of this proposition is equally true; a man who waddles along because of obesity caused by overeating, needs to diet before something very unpleasant happens. The manufacturing plant that is pushing upon the market more goods than is being sold needs also to look out. As we doctor diseases of the body we should also doctor diseases of the financial system, and both will yield to treatment if taken in time.

The year of 1876 is not so very long ago when measured in terms of centuries or even of decades. But the intervening years loom up big when measured in the terms of scientific invention and development. In that year—just 49 years ago today—Alexander Graham Bell took out his first telephone patent. But what a new world was opened before us when that patent was put into action! Surely since that time "their line has gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world." There is no reason for believing that the Psalmist had the telephone in mind when he wrote those words, but would it not be hard to express better the marvelous growth of this invention in a single sentence? There is no civilized country today without the telephone. It would certainly be difficult to state any invention of modern times that is more serviceable than Bell's great invention.

What the United States forest service is doing in a scientific way to preserve and promote the growth of forests is truly admirable. If we had done nothing to change the policy in vogue prior to Roosevelt's first administration, the timber industry in this country would have ended before the middle of the present century. The inroad into our forests for building purposes and for paper making was enormous. Still greater destruction came from fires, and a majority of them carelessly set. The great lumber merchants as well as the paper makers are working hand in hand with the government in the conservation of forest gowths. Today the removal of trees means the planting of seedlings, so that the rotation of growths shall be perpetual. In this way, and in better protection against fires we shall never be wanting in lumber.

The inauguration of President Coolidge this week shows clearly that simplicity and frugality are not inconsistent with dignity and impressiveness. Some inaugurations have been so overloaded with costly gewgaws as to cheapen the whole affair. Such ceremonies may be very spectacular and yet have only a tinsel glitter; they may be both expensive and thin. But it ought to be said in fidelity to similar occasions they have for the most part comported with democratic simplicity. There may have been in the past a vain show on the part of individuals quite apart from the officials involved for which the program committee are not responsible. When these quadrennial exercises are compared with the show that some of the world's princelets put onto the stage, one may be assured that the United States will not suffer in comparison.

WHAT PRESIDENT HAS DONE IN 18 MONTHS

The record established by President Coolidge under adverse conditions during the eighteen months he has been in the white house stands as a monument to honest character and straight thinking. During that period the president has withstood the attacks and persistent opposition of a congress, tri-partite in its composition, lacking in leadership and responsibility, jealous of the executive department and resorting to most unusual manifestations, writes T. G. Joslin in the Boston Transcript. He has survived three so-called scandals, namely, Teapot Dome, the veterans' bureau and the department of justice investigations, all of which were inheritances of his administration. He vetoed the adjusted compensation and postal pay bills with a courage unsurpassed since Grover Cleveland overthrew the tariff bill enacted by his own party. He has built up a constructive record, which, compared with that of the congress which assailed him, is noteworthy in itself. Finally, he achieved a victory in the last presidential election over two nationally known opponents so complete as to bring to an end, for the time being, that rampant virulence, political and personal, which has characterized the work of congress since 1918, and to pave the way for a return to the days of party responsibility in the conduct of national affairs, a keynote, incidentally, that he struck in his inaugural address.

A Message Dominating Developments

When President Coolige took office in August 1923, he inherited an opposition in congress prepared to assail the administration of Warren G. Harding from top to bottom. At that time republican leaders were counselling among themselves as to whether or not, in view of the known facts, Mr. Harding could be renominated to succeed himself with any hope of a republican victory in the presidential elections of 1924. The scandals which subsequently were revealed to the public eye were brewing and Mr. Harding himself knew that his influence with congress was gone, so far as constructive results were concerned. His untimely death brought upon the scene Calvin Coolidge who, by reason of his position as vice president, had no personal responsibility, either for the policies or appointees of the Harding administration and who, therefore, could only be assailed as leader of the republican party which elected Harding, except for such new policies and new appointees as he might himself select.

After several months of characteristic silence President Coolidge met the sixty-eighth congress with a message so broad and conprehensive and constructive in its recommendations and so right in its conclusions as to place it, in the opinion of leaders of all parties, among the most influential of presidential messages in its bearing on future events. That message dominated the political developments of the past year. It placed this congress on the defensive, where, as a matter of fact, it still remains. While most of its recommendations remain yet to be enacted into law, the country has agreed with the president and congress has been the chief sufferer from its failure to act. Among those recommendations was one for immediate tax reduction. Organized against the president as it was and angered by the astuteness of the man in the white house who had taken the initiative, congress enacted a tax reduction law of its own so full of inequalities and so unscientific in its provisions as to necessitate a complete revision of it at the earliest opportunity. Nevertheless, it would not have been enacted at all had not the president initiated consideration of the subject.

The Pandemic of Scandal Probes

On the other hand, the congress of a year ago had met for another purpose and that purpose soon became manifest. Under the leadership of Senator La Follette, a group of nominal republicans in both houses broke away from their party and, joining hands with the democrats, proceeded immediately to an orgy of investigation, innuendo and attack which has not been equalled in several decades.

Regardless of the merits of these investigations—and none was without some merit—the methods pursued in their conduct were distinctly not in keeping with the dignity of congress. Ex parte testimony was accepted as conclusive and, not infrequently, the accused was never given an opportunity to reply. These investigations were manipulated, in many instances, for party advantage, innocent persons, in certain instances, were stigmatized and punished far beyond their just deserts and every effort was made to connect the new president directly with the acts complained about. In the midst of all this furore, President Coolidge maintained a becoming dignity and restraint while, at the same time, taking the necessary steps to protect the full interests of the government. He ordered the prosecution both criminal and civil, of all persons involved in the oil scandals and he ordered the prosecution of all persons involved in the veterans' bureau scandals. He accepted the resignations of Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty and he went straight ahead in administering the affairs of the executive department and insisting upon the enactment of his constructive legislative recommendations. He followed up his preachments on economy by enforcing it throughout the government service. He vetoed the compensation and postal pay bills on this issue alone and by his courageous stand won the respect of those who favored these measures. When the time for the national political conventions arrived, the republicans awoke to find the president stronger with the country than was congress, while the democratic party was torn in twain by factions. Senator La Follette dominated his own party arbitrarily, but he did not control its rank and file, as the election subsequently showed.

Recommendations and Action Upon Them

The election carried with it sundry lessons which point the way for the future. Republicans in congress, who have been leaderless for many years, now look to President Coolidge for guidance. Both houses of the congress will be organized by the republicans in support of the president for the first time since Roosevelt days. Reduction in taxes, economy and efficiency in government are the ties which principally bind the republican organization in congress to the president. In the meantime, the opposition in congress will be left to its own devices, with the probability that the democrats will formally break their alliance with the La Follette groups in both houses. It is the president's firm purpose to adhere to the Cleveland platform, to his speech of acceptance and to the principles contained in his inaugural address and to restore and enforce party responsibility in keeping with the pledges which they contain.

In the meantime what has happened to the president's legislative recommendations? The economy program of the administration has been literally enforced from the beginning. A tax reduction bill has been enacted and another will follow next winter. American claims against Germany have been determined and an agreement made whereby this government will receive payment on them and on the Rhine army cost. Reorganization of the diplomatic and consular corps has been effected and selective immigration adopted. Treaties with Germany and Turkey have been ratified, the Dawes plan is under way in Europe and Japan, incensed by the passage of the immigration act, by congress over the protest of the president, has deferred to the manifest good faith of the president and been mollified to that extent. The outstanding development, however, lies in the fact that authority in the government has been transferred from congress to the white house, where it will be centralized during the next four years and the dividing line between the prerogatives of congress and the executive has once more been established and will be maintained.

Work Still to Be Done

Those recommendations of the president which have not been carried out by this congress, include the following items: Membership in the permanent court of international justice; railroad consolidations; prohibition of the further issue of tax-exempt securities; legislation necessary to the building of the St. Lawrence and lakes-to-the-gulf waterways; superpower development; reorganization of court procedure and of the prohibition enforcement service; civil service amendments; government reorganization; revision of the laws, regulation of aviation; agricultural and coal reports; while the Muscle Shoals bill also remained suspended in midair at the end.

Aside from the work which congress has left undone, the president has two other policies in course of fruition. The first of these is the debt settlements with allied powers, many of which have been funded, but the most important of which, that with France, remains to be determined. Steps to that end are now in process and any agreement with France will be fundamental and of world-wide effect. Secondly, the president is again bearing down with the view of summoning another naval disarmament conference which shall limit auxiliary ships and, possibly, air forces. This is only another foundation stone in an edifice of universal peace which the president has in mind to build as rapidly as circumstances will permit. Undoubtedly, these uncompleted items will constitute the main objectives of the new Coolidge administration for the first year of its existence.

Mary Elizabeth Gave Up a Musical Career

Following the death of her father and grandfather, there came a crash in the family finances that compelled Mary Elizabeth Evans to give up her dreams of a musical career, and help support the family.

In Syracuse, N. Y., the city of her birth, her father, as a professor at the Syracuse university, had been a genius in the art of teaching singing, and it was hoped that Mary, the eldest of four children, would follow a musical career.

Then came the death of the father, who left so small an estate that the strictest self-denial was forced upon the family. Soon afterward her grandfather died, leaving the property heavily mortgaged. Despite her mother's valiant efforts of four years to save the estate, the crash came, and Mary had to give up hope of a musical training.

Prior to this she had enjoyed making candy that friends had praised and had made a few pounds each Friday and personally delivered it on Saturday. The number of customers had increased, and when the crash came, she, at 16, took a booth in the lobby of an office building, where she kept plates of fresh candy on display, with a price tag on each and a sign inviting customers to help themselves and leave the money in the till, signing her messages "Mary Elizabeth."

The idea and the candy proved popular, the first year's profits were $1,000, the second year's $2,000 and from that time increased even more rapidly. Still making the candy in the kitchen at home, she had to enlarge the kitchen and enlist her sisters, Martha and Fanny, in the work. When the business was nine years old she refused $100,000 for it; when it was 12 years old, she employed 50 helpers in the kitchen alone.

After she had invaded New York and established a Mary Elizabeth shop on Fifth Avenue, she had to move up the street when changing conditions made the location undesirable. She opened shops in Boston, Newport and other places, then added tea rooms.

Four years ago, she married Dr. Henry D. Sharpe, and today is rich, and happy in her home life and business career.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

GOD'S PEACE

Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. John, 14:27.

Jesus bequeathed to His disciples a legacy of peace and assumed them that His gift was absolute. He gave as God gives, not as the world gives; with the gift He gives power to receive and retain it.

Why then are we so often unpeaceful, worried, troubled about the circumstances in which we find ourselves or about other people's conduct toward us? Evidently there must be something wrong.

One cause of our failure to receive this gift may be that we have an entirely erroneous idea of the nature of the peace which Christ promised, or that, understanding its nature we do not desire that kind of peace. "My peace I give unto you," he said. Do we really want Christ's peace?

His peace was not caused by having everything He wanted and living in undisturbed tranquility. He had to face sore temptations, bitter disappointments, and the opposition of contentious men. He had to face privation and discouragement; if He had peace it must have been in spite of, and not because of His surroundings.

Christ's peace was the result of self-conquest through faith in God and loyalty to the will of God. Whatever troubles, or discouragements might come upon Him from without He always had full confidence that His life was in harmony with the will of God and that the will of God would certainly be accomplished in Him, and in the world through Him, and as the accomplishment of God's will was the supreme desire of His life that assurance gave Him a deep-seated and abiding peace.

The fearful storm which terrified the hardy fishermen of Capernaum only sang a lullaby to the Carpenter of Nazareth, and rocked Him to sleep; because He yielded to it trustfully. It spoke not to Him of danger but of the presence and of the omnipotence of His father.

When appealed to for protection by His disciples, He calmed the troubled waters with a word, to give them a vivid object lesson on the truth that the power of God is in everything and over everything, and all nature is obedient to His will; but as far as He Himself was concerned Jesus would evidently have been content to let the winds and waves rage and roar around Him until the storm had passed over in the ordinary way.

CHILD TRAINING

A WOOD TO THE WISE

Peter told his story in some such way as this:

"We fellers had pop-guns; you know the kind that shoot water. They sure did work well. We stood on the street curb and caught the automobiles as they went by. One swell car came along with a millionaire in it and I caught him straight in the eye! Gee, 'twas! —for a minute! But he stopped out. You bet I ran! Down the street, round the corer, into the lane, and he did not let up on the chase either. I dodged into a yard and saw an empty ashcan; in I jumped and pulled the lid down before he got in sight. He stopped right by that ashcan and asked a feller weher I was. The feller didn't know. The man had his hand on the lid! My! how I shook! He told that feller that I just better tell my father about this before he heard of it from him, or I'd get something a lot worse. He didn't find me. Golly! but I was glad when he went back to his car.

"I thought a lot about that thing. I didn't like to tell my father, but if I'd got to, I thought I'd have my supper first. Then, I was afraid every minute that the man would call up on the 'phone, so I told the whole thing. You ouchta heard what my father said. Oh, boy! It was awful! I wished he'd licked me instead. Of course, I had to go to bed, and he took the pop-gun (he's got it yet) and, worst of all, the man never told!"

A few weeks later Peter's mother told me briefly the boy's father had said to him. After shaming him for doing suchas mail, mean thing he had added, "Now think, what if you had injured that man's eye and had made him blind for life, never able to see anything. Think how I would feel to have a son, who could do such a thing!"

As you see the punishment was effective. Doubtless the "millionaire" had heard the rattle of the ashcan and knew where the boy was. I hope he may chance on this article and know the result, for he handed his part well. As for the attitude of the parents, how much more can be done through a child's power of reasoning, if a situation is presented to him with vivid truth, than through physical force—often merely a vent for adult irritation or anger. In the latter case the parent is placing himself on the child's level of development and depriving him of an example to live up to. The power

Never Changes.

She was a stranger in town so felt obliged to seek information from the clerks of the store as to the location of the various departments.

Stepping up to one clerk who was quite busy with her chewing gum, she inquired: "Where is the notion counter, please?"

"Same place," was the laconic response of the clerk who made no allowance for strangers.

When the Two Met.

Various interesting things have happened in getting through that temporary arcade on Franklin square where rebuilding operations are under way.

An ample and rather jovial fat man had elbowed his way through the crowd and was breathing a sigh of relief when the unexpected happened. Just as he was about to turn from the arcade to the curb on the outside he ran into another fellow about his own size. Both took the count.

"Why don't you put out your hand when you're going to make a left turn?" exclaimed the second fellow as he regained his equilibrium.

The first fellow said nothing but began getting his hat on straight, but before he resumed his amble along the street he was heard to ask, "Did any one get the number of that truck?"

Plunger Becomes Too Ambitious

Too much ambition may be bad,
With consequences that are sad.
—Plunger the Osprey.

There are several good fishermen among the little people who live in the Green Forest, along the Laughing Brook and around the Smiling Pool. Rattles the Kingfisher is one. But Rattles is satisfied to catch only tiny fish. Longlegs the Heron is another. He is a patient fisherman. Billy Mink is a third. And of course there is Little Joe Otter. A wonderful fisherman is Little Joe Otter.

But even Little Joe Otter is not more wonderful as a fisherman than is Plunger the Osprey. It is not for nothing that he is called a Fish Hawk. He does not patiently wait like Longlegs the Heron. He goes looking for fish. If he does not find them in one place he goes to another. Sometimes he flies for miles in search of good fishing.

Clutched in those great claws was that big fish

Now that he and Mrs. Plunger had completed their new nest near the edge of the Green Forest and not far from Farmer Brown's, they went fishing. "We should celebrate, my dear," said Plunger to Mrs. Plunger. "We should celebrate. I am going to catch the biggest fish I can find."

So flying high above the Big River Plunger kept those wonderful eyes of his fixed on the water below. From that height he could look down right into the water and see for some distance below the surface. No fish swimming near the surface could escape those wonderful eyes. He flew far, far down the Big River. Several times he checked himself in his flight and hesitated as if about to plunge downward. Each time he saw a fish. Each time he decided that the fish was too far below the surface or was not big enough for a proper celebration. He wanted the biggest fish he could catch. You see he was ambitious.

Now ambition is a splendid thing. Without it no one would get very far in the Great World. But there is such a thing as being too ambitious. Plunger was too ambitious now. He didn't know it, but he was. He wanted to show Mrs. Plunger what a splendid fisherman he was.

At last, just below the surface of the Big River Plunger saw a fish that made his eyes gleam with eagerness. It was a big fish. Never had he tried to catch a fish as big as this one. For a moment he hesitated.

"I wonder if I can carry him way back to the nest," thought Plunger. "Anyway, I can try. If he is too heavy I can rest on the way back."

He waited a moment or two longer, for he saw that that big fish was coming nearer to the surface. At last he was very close to the surface. Plunger closed his great wings and shot down straight for that fish. His great claws were set to strike that fish. He struck the water and disappeared. But he disappeared only for a moment. Then he came to the surface and began to beat with those great wings, but the best he could do was to get just above the water. He couldn't lift that big fish wholly out of the water. He did his best, but that fish was too big and heavy.

Plunger screamed with disappointment. He knew that he couldn't take that fish up into the air and carry him home. He knew that he would have to let him go. With another scream of disappointment he tried to let go of that big fish. Imagine how he felt when he discovered that he couldn't let go! His claws had been driven so deeply into that fish that he couldn't pull them out. He had been far, far too ambitious, had Plunger the Osprey.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

HEBRON FARMERS COMPANY CO. WINS NOTE SUIT

In the decision handed down by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of the superior court in the case of William H. Freese, receiver for Farmers' Co-operative Dairy Company against Sebastain Gambolati, both of Hebron, tried at the December sitting of the Tolland county superior court in Rockville, judgment is given the Farmers' Co-operative Dairy Company for $180 with costs.

The action was brought March 1, 1922 to recover on a note alleged to have been given by Gambolati for $200 payable eighteen months from date. Only $20 was paid on this note which was for four shares of stock. A payment of $10 was made April 1, 1918 and a second payment of $10 August 24, 1918. Gambolati in his defense claimed that the Farmers' Co-operative Dairy Company called a meeting February 9, 1918, of persons in the dairy business and said at that time that the purpose of this firm was for the sale of milk and butter on a co-operative basis. Gambolati testified at the hearing that this firm never engaged in this business but in the sale of general merchandise, which was admitted. The business was admitted as unprofitable but the finding of Judge Nickerson says that the general merchandise business was properly embrassed within the article of the association.

A receiver was appointed. It was also brought out that after the incorporation of the firm a large amount of ice was bought, 300 milk cans bought for the milk business and arrangement made for the lease of land for a creamery. The capital stock was fixed at $50,000 divided into shares of $50 each. The certificate of organization was filed in Hebron March 4, 1918. Gambolati contended that the corporation did not conform to the law in organizing.

He also claimed that he rescinded subscription but it was brought out that he took no action to cancel the note for the payment of the four shares of stock nor did he have it annulled.

OBITUARY

Frederick J. Williams.

The death of Frederick J. Williams, 26, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Williams of 201 Laurel Hill avenue, occurred Friday afternoon in a hospital at Lawrence, Kansas, following an operation a week ago for appendicitis. A telegram bringing the sad news was received at his home about 7 o'clock Friday evening about half an hour after the receipt of another telegram stating that he had had a relapse and was in a serious condition. Previous word from Lawrence during the week had been that he had come through the operation successfully and all the expectations were for his complete recovery.

Mr. Williams had been at Lawrence since shortly after Thanksgiving, going there to attend Haskell Institute where one of his ambitions was to play on the football team. He "made" the team and was to have been with them when they made a tour next fall as he was one of the best all-around athletes developed at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. in recent years. He had a host of friends among the young men of his age in this city who learned of his death Friday night with sincere regret and a sense of personal loss.

Before leaving to attend Haskell Institute, Mr. Williams had been employed by Armour & Co., in this city.

He was born in this city, Sept. 11, 1898, and had always lived here, being a member of St. Patrick's church. Besides his parents, he is survived by three brothers and three sisters, Henry J. R., Minnie Edmund, Hanorah, Albert and Loretta.

Joseph B. Comstock.

After having been in poor health for some time, seriously ill for the past two weeks, the death of Joseph B. Comstock, 60, of 87 Spring street, occurred in this city about midnight, Thursday.

Mr. Comstock was born in Montville, January 26, 1865, the son of Henry D. and Jane E. Bowers Comstock. He received his early education in Montville schools and when 17 years of age came to this city with his parents, living in Greeneville.

For a number of years he was employed in the Norwich Bleachery but for the past 31 years he had been in the employ of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., and made his home with his brother on Spring street. Mr. Comstock was a member of no local organizations.

Surviving him is a brother, George B. Comstock, with whom he lived; a sister, Mrs. A. L. Brewster, of Rockland, Me., and a niece, Mrs. Mildred Jackson of Norwich.

DETECTIVE TRAVELED WITH WOMAN HE WAS AFTER

When Albert Murphy, 45, of Ashwillet, N. H., and Mrs. Minnie Le Fontaine, 32, of West Swanzey, N. H., who were arrested Thursday night here in a rooming house, were presented in the city court Friday morning, their cases were continued for a day.

Friday night the woman's husband, who is said to be wealthy, arrived here and will be in court when she is arraigned.

It is understood that Murphy, who is unmarried came here Wednesday by automobile. Mrs. Le Fontaine followed him by train Friday and had as a traveling companion the detective who was in the employ of her husband. He watched her board the train at Keene, N. H., took the same train, made her acquaintance on the way, paid for her supper en route, and she was so unsuspecting of who he was that she told him the whole story on the way, even disclosing where she expected to meet Murphy in this city.

The ancient structure will be moved back from its present location about 60 feet before alterations are begun.

TWO MORE ARRESTS IN DOLLY WENCH CASE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 7.—John J. Woods, 28 Ocean avenue and Michael A. Day, 29 Cottage street, were taken into custody shortly after midnight by County Detective William Lewis and Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Dolly Wench, 21, Hartford telephone operator, who died in New London three weeks ago of septic poisoning, following a criminal operation. Both are being held for trial in the police court this morning in default of bail of $5,000 each.

Day is 19 years of age and is married and is employed as stock clerk by the Edward Bloom Silk company. Woods, who was the fiance of Miss Wench, was employed until recently as salesman for the S. N. Ellis company. The arrest of Day and Woods resulted from statements made by witnesses at an inquest in Hartford yesterday where witnesses were examined in the belief that the operation that caused Miss Wench's death, occurred in or near Hartford. It was revealed, it is claimed, that the operation was performed in New London by William C. Bartlett, who is already under arrest and that Day introduced Woods to Bartlett for the purpose of arranging for the abortion on Miss Wench. It is stated that Woods paid $200 to Bartlett to perform the operation, of which sum Bartlett received $100 and Day also received $100.

Mrs. Charlotte Wench, and Max Spector, mother and brother-in-law of Miss Wench, also were arrested in Hartford, charged with being accessories, but the charges were dropped and they were released after they had been brought here.

JUBILEE PROGRAMME BY PEERLESS CONCERT CO.

Under the auspices of the Gleaner's class of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Mrs. Ernest Newbury, teacher, members of the church and their friends enjoyed the opportunity of hearing the Peerless Jubilee Concert company, at the church Friday evening.

The opening numbers were entirely of the jubilee type, old plantation melodies and the quaint old songs of the slaves of the southland being a delight to the audience. Members of the company appeared in the garb of slaves for the first part of the program.

The second group was of more recent melodies showing the advancement of music, especially in those numbers written by colored composers. A feature was the negro national anthem, composed by James Rosmond Johnson. Other numbers on the program, all of unusual merit, were the following: piano selection from Beethoven, Naomi Young; contralto solo, Beneath Our Window, Miss Grace M. Thompson; tenor solo, Mother of Pearl, Gladstone Galamison; reading, The Soul of a Violin, Miss Grace M. Thompson; tenor solo, The Star, J. D. Brown; mixed quartet selection, Poor Little Lamb; basso solo, Bells of the Sea, William Wahl; male quartet, Gladstone Galamison and J. D. Brown, tenors; Howard S. Morris, baritone; William Wahl, basso; closing number, The Flag of Uncle Sam, verse by Mrs. A. J. Price, soprano.

STOLEN COTTAGE PROPERTY NOT ALL RETURNED YET

A number of cottage owners on the shore at Gardner Lake, whose summer homes have been looted during the winter, take exception to the statement that all missing property has been recovered.

Furthermore, these losers believe that John Jacobick, of Bozrah, arrested for the thefts from the Pendleton and Corning places is not the only offender implicated. They admit that this man may have acted as the cat's-paw for another, for they hold that some one more astute than was Jacobick was the brains of the crime.

Furnishings, clothing and equipment stolen from the Mitchell, Donohue, Brown and Light cottages are still missing. The losses of one of these owners was placed Friday at $150 at least.

They agree that the state police from Groton barracks have done a good job —as far it goes; but they are still waiting to have their particular and individual property restored.

They were the only witnesses to appear before the committee. It is understood that City Manager William A. Holt will submit a report to the city council at its next meeting, Monday, making such recommendations as he determines for the best interests of the department including any changes in the personnel.

AMERICAN LEGION POST ENDORSES COMMUNITY CHEST

At the meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday night at the rooms on Main street, the post went on record as endorsing the Community Chest. Previous to the vote it was explained that other organizations in the city were in favor of having one drive each year instead of many small ones, thus establishing a Community Chest in Norwich, from which all arganisations which have drives each year will be able to draw to meet the arpenditures planned in the yearly budget.

The meeting was in charge of Commander Webster D. Copp and much business of routine nature was transacted. County Commander William A. Anderson stated that State Commander New White will visit Norwich on Sunday afternoon, March 15th, at which time a county meeting will be held at the local post rooms. Plans for the state convention of the American Legion to be held in New London this coming fall will be discussed and a plan of action mapped out.

The post also voted to back the bill now before congress, known as Flag Code. This would have patriotic subjects taught in the schools. The Legion favors this and believes that every child should become thoroughly familiar with the proper form of respect and the proper use of the flag.

Many items of welfare work and work among veterans in local hospitals were decussed at length and plans are being made to add to the comforts of the veterans in these institutions.

Connecticut College

The mascot hunt ended Thursday evening at 7.30. For the first time in the history of Connecticut College the hunt has ended with the sophomores in possession of the juniors' much-treasured prize.

On Wednesday the sophomores had cautiously stolen the yellow box containing the lion's head from under twenty-six's very eyes, for after the discovery of the hollow log out stone behind the Colonial House, the juniors immediately became aware of their loss and were hot on the trail of every sophomore. Yet, by a series of passes, from runner to runner, each of whom as a camouflage carried a blanket, the lion was safely hidden before 7.30 when the hunt was over for that night.

But at 7 o'clock on Thursday morning the juniors retrieved the yellow box and hid it near the place where the toboggan slide had been, half-way down the slope toward the river. However, it was at this point that they made a fatal error; only the girl who hid it knew where it was; the guard was not told. So, when half an hour later, the sophomores again discovered it, no one was the wiser and no siren blew to warn the juniors of their loss. By 3.30 in the afternoon the sophomores could hardly control their glee and contrary to orders mirth showed plainly on several of their faces. The beaming glances of the enemy class awoke the juniors to the fact that all was not as well as it might be. The girl who had hidden the mascot rushed to see if it still were safe—returned bewildered—and again the siren, that dire warning, spread the dread news all over campus.

Then began a frantic search in the pouring rain. Bewildered, the class of '26 rushed here and there; blindly they searched fields and buildings. But somehow united effort was lacking. The strain was beginning to tell upon them and, instead of the fresh, determined enthusiasm they had shown at the beginning of the hunt, abject despair set in; it slowly grew darker; nothing more could be done.

And so at 7.30 on Thursday evening the sophomores, headed by their president, led the juniors to the hiding place behind Winthrop House, the juniors for the first time admitting their defeat.

However, the sophomores, though having good cause to do so, did not gloat over their victory. Instead they serenaded their rival class, who in turn serenaded them. Then both simultaneously serenaded the little bronze mascot for whom they'd worked so long and hard; peace was completely restored.

The sophomores had magnanimously offered the juniors release from their punishment—the keeping of the mascot for a month as a reward to the class of '27, but the juniors played the game as it should be played—fairly and squarely. The sophomores for the next month will hold in their possession the mascot of the juniors, the lion, being of beasts —a constant reminder to the juniors of their humiliating defeat by the ingenious class of 27.

ANOTHER POISON LIQUOR VICTIM IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, March 6.—The eighth victim of poisonous liquor within the past two weeks was removed to Grace hospital today from a cell in police headquarters. He is John Reilly, of this city, and was arrested on a drunkenness charge. He collapsed in his cell.

At the hospital it was found that he was suffering from alcoholic poisoning. Late tonight his condition was reported somewhat improved but he was still in a semi-conscious state.

Two other men arrested tonight, it was believed by the police, also had been drinking poisonous liquor and they were being watched during the night.

Police authorities have been unable to find any trace of the source of the poisonous liquor.

NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO DEMPSEY

New York, March 6.—(By the A. P.)—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion must accept or decline a challenge filed by Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, within 24 hours or take his place among the blacklisted in this state.

This ultimatum was issued by the state athletic commission today after a stormy session in which both the Wills' and Gibbons' challenges were considered.

The heavyweight titleholder was officially notified of the two challenges in a telegram sent to him in Los Angeles by the commission late today.

Chairman James J. Farley, speaking for the commission, said:

"The commission has decreed that the Wills challenge should be given precedence over the Gibbons challenge because it was filed first. We have taken both matters under careful consideration and feel that the only way we can get any action is by taking the matter right to headquarters.

"Dempsey must make a decision one way or the other, on the Wills challenge now."

"What will be the commission's attitude if Dempsey attempts to sidestep the Wills' challenge and accepts the Gibbons challenge?" Commissioner Farley was asked.

"We will cross that bridge when we come to it," he answered. "But he will have to accept or reject the Wills' challenge before we will talk to him."

The commission said this was the first step taken in a campaign to force all inactive champions to fight or give up their crowns.

The telegram to Dempsey follows:

"There are filed at this office two challenges to you to box for the heavyweight champion—your title: First Harry Wills, filed February 17, 1925; second, Tom Gibbon, filed February 24, 1925. These challenges are supported by a frofeit of $2,500 each.

"The period of time fixed by the law of this state—six months—in which you have to defend your title has expired. You are requested by the commission to accept or decline these challenges in the rotation in which they are filed.

"Please wire your answer to this office within 24 hours."

N. Y. COMMISSION' ULTIMATUM FAILS TO INTEREST DEMPSEY

Los Angeles, March 6—Dictation on the part of the New York state Athletic commission as to whom Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, shall and shall not fight is out of the question, Jack Kearns, the title holder's manager, declared here late today in answer to a demand by the New York commission that Dempsey reply within twenty four house to the challenge of Harry Wills, the negro contender.

"Dempsey and myself are not under the jurisdiction of the New York commission, and are not interested in any way whatever in what it does unless it is interested in such a contest as a promoter," Kearns asserted.

"If the New York commission does care to promote a Dempsey-Wills fight, its offer will be considered along with those of Rickard and Henderson."

Kearns said that a similar demand was made about two yearsago and that he had accepted the challenge, the contest was prohibited by William Muldoon of the commision.

Commenting on the New York commission's lack of jurisdiction, Kearns said that Dempsey's license to fight in that state expired after the Firpo bout and that a renewal of the license would have to be obtained before he could box there again.

Kearns announced he would leave for New York, March 11 to negotiate possible title bouts. The champion, he said, would stay in Los Angeles, where he is now in training.

Farley Refuses to Comment

New York, March 6—James A. Farley, chairman of the state athletic commission, declined to comment tonight on Jack Kearns' reply to the telegram sent to champion Jack Dempsey by the commission today, relative to the challenge filed by Harry Wills.

"I cannot talk for the commission," he said, "we will take whatever action seems necessary next Tuesday when we meet to consider Kearns' official reply. Other than that I would rather remain silent."

FARLEY IS ELECTED HEAD OF N. Y. BOXING COMMISSION

New York, March 6—(By the A. P.)—James A. Farley, of Stony Point, N. Y., a former state assemblyman, was today elected chairman of the state athletic commission for the coming year to succeed Commissioner George E. Brower, who has held the position since January, 1924.

Farley's election came as a surprise to boxing followers as he had not been publicly mentioned for the place before the commission met today. Brower recently said that he expected to be re-elected.

Evidences of a breach in the commission were seen in the failure of Commissioner Brower to attend today's meeting.

In making the announcement of his election Farley said:

"There had been no mention, whatsoever, of the chairmanship of the board until this noon when I told Commissioner Brower over the telephone that I had a desire to succeed him. He said he had the same desire but that we would iron out the matter at the meeting, which he promised to attend.

"When I arrived for the meeting Secretary Skilling notified me that Commissioner Brower had telephoned that he had to go to a doctor and that he would not attend.

"Commissioner Muldoon nominated me and later voted for me. I voted for myself. It was Mr. Muldoon's idea that I take the chairmanship. I can see no reason for Commissioner Brower's absence today.

The new chairman, a democrat, is president of the New York state association of Elks. He was appointed to the state athletic commission in January, 1924, for a two-year term.

BULKELEY FIVE TO PLAY HARTFORD HIGH TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—With its record of consecutive victories broken, the Bulkeley squad of basketeers will embark for the State Capitol on Saturday afternoon to oppose the strong Hartford Public High school quintet at the school gym this (Saturday) afternoon. A squad of two teams besides the coach and manager will accompany the five to the state capitol with only one thing in mind and that to come out the winner in the battle which is in the winds for tomorrow. Nearly 100 members of the student body will accompany the team on their invasion of the stately city, and with their help Bulkeley is expected to bring home a victory.

In the last meeting of the two teams, Bulkeley was forced to a defeat which was undignified from every respect. The final score was 39 to 4, incidently the worse beating Bulkeley was forced to take this season. But with a greatly strengthened five and with general appearances of a fast five which is expected to cope with the play of the Capitol City lads, Hartford will be in for a tougher time than they expected.

The action was brought by Harry Lytchenstein, who holds the claim by assignment of Edward J. Callahan. TAFTVILLE EASILY TAKES MEASURE OF PLAINFIELD IN SECOND GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

Plainfield, March 6—Before a crowd of a thousand eager basketball fans tonight at the Plainfield Community Club, Taftville Army and Navy team swamped the local club 44 to 16. Both teams stared the game showing real pep and crack team work. Venson, fast forward for the Plainfield team, scoring the first basket for the home club. After ten minutes of play the visitors left the Morley, the slippery guard, looped Army and Navy club bewildered as keta at will, scoring seven baskets in the first half. The score at the end of the first half stood 30 to 9 in favor of Taftville.

Normandi and Dessinger were unable to get away as Leonard and Bernet held them down to a basket a piece. Venson was the back bone of the Plainfield team and at times had Fiddle Morley puzzled. Practically every attempt he had scored for the home team. This game drew the largest crowd of chalked court fans to witness a basketball game in Plainfield.

In the preliminary game the Taftville Army and Navy seconds defeated the Plainfield Buddies by the score of 48 to 12. The score:

DEMPSEY MUST FIGHT FOR HIM, SAYS RICKARD

New York March 6—(By the Associated Press)—"If Jack Dempsey fights in 1925 it will be under my promotion."

This statement was made tonight by Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, following a long cnference with Teddy Hayes, Dempsey's trainer and persnal representative.

"Hayes gave me definite assurance from Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, that the champion will risk his title in a match promoted by me in 1925 and no other promoter in the east can get his services.

"Kearns expects to leave Los Angeles late tonight and hopes to arrive here Tuesday. We will definitely close articles at that time."

Rickard said that his idea was to have Dempsey meet the winner of the Wills-Gibbons match which he intends to promote at the Yankee stadium some time this summer. The Dempsey bout he said, would likely close up the outdoor season and would be held sometime in September, probably at the Yankee stadium.

Hayes is in New York to answer to an indictment charging him with alleged conspiracy to transport motion picture films of the Dempsey-Carpenter fight. He was arrested in Los Angeles January 27 but is now out on $2,500 bonds. His case has been called for next Tuesday.

AGGIE FRESHMAN CLOSE TODAY AGAINST R. I. FROSH

(Special to The Buletin)

Storrs, March 6.— Coach Alexander's freshman five will wind up their season tomorrow when they play the Rhode Island freshmen at Rhode Island. It will be the last of a ten game schedule for the yearlings and the team will make every effort to finish their season with another victory over the Rhode Island cubs. The same team that defeated Rhode Island 36-23 here last week will start tomorrow, and they should come through with another victory, provided the Rhode Island narrow court does not prove to be too great a disadvantage. The Aggie freshmen will take the floor with Hell and Watson, forwards; Eddy, center; Bitgood and Donahue, guards. Playing against them Rhode Island will be Johnson and Haire, forwards; Rosen, center; Spekin and Murphy, guards.

Preliminary to the freshmen game the Connecticut Co-eds will play the Rhode Island Co-eds, the first game being slated to start at 1.30.

AGGIES CLOSE SEASON AT R. I. STATE TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., March 6.—The Connecticut Aggies will close their 1925 basketball season away from home tomorrow when they meet the Rhode Island state five in a return game at Kingston, R. I. It will be the last on a 14 game schedule for the Aggies, and the team is in form to wind up with victory. Capt. Balock, O'Brien and College five has won 9 of 13 contests played. Captain Balock, O'Brien and Eddy, three seniors, will play their last game for Connecticut tomorrow when they play against Rhode Island.

Nothing but light practice was attempted in the camp of the Aggies today and the team is in the best of condition and ready for the battle that is expected from the the Rhode Islanders.

The Aggies defeated the Engineers 38-26 last Saturday on the Hanvey Armory surface at Storrs, but that means little or nothing as far as tomorrow's game is concerned. Playing on their own hardwood and cramped court, the Rhode Island quintet will have a big advantage over the Storrs combination, and it is certain to count heavily in the final result of what will be the last game of the season for both teams. Osward Tower of Andover, Mass., will handle the game, and as he is not as strict in officiating as "Dick" Dixon, this will no doubt be another disadvantage to the Storrs quintet. Tower refereed the Rhode Island game here last week, which turned out to be one of the roughest games seen here in some time.

John W. Balock of New Britain, captain of the Aggie five for two years, will play his last varsity contest tomorrow. Balock has been a member of the varsity since his enrollment at the State College, and this year marks the fourth in which he has received his letter in basketball. Playing from both forward and guard positions, Balock turned in consistently good work for the Aggies, and during the past two years he has starred both on the offense and defense. An excellent floor man and an accurate basket shooter, the entire Aggie offense has been a large factor in the success of the Aggies quintet this year. In addition to his work on the chalked court, Balock was an important cog in the Storrs football eleven during the past two seasons. Balock played regularly at halfback and his ability to pick forward passes out of the air made him one of the most valuable men on Connecticut's undefeated eleven last fall.

Marson Eddy of Simsbury, better known for his work on the football field at Storrs, is another senior who will play his last game for the Aggies tomorrow. Eddy has played regularly at center during the past two seasons, and his work in that position has been of high order. His height has enabled him to out jump every opponent this season, which has given the Aggie offense a big advantage from the start. He has put up a great defensive game for the Aggies throughout the season.

In football Eddy has been a tower of strength to the Aggies during the past four years; when he played regularly on the State College teams. He was picked as a tackle of the Courant "All Valley" team last fall and in his summary of the season, the Courant expert stated that Eddy was without doubt the most valuable football player in the Connecticut Valley.

William F. O'Brien of Waterbury is the third senior who will wind up his basketball career at Storrs tomorrow. O'Brien has been a member of the varsity at the State college for four years, and while not playing regularly this season, he has been Dole's first string substitute and has played in practically every game this season. Baseball is O'Brien's best sport, and he has made his letter in that sport since his freshman year.

The Connecticut team will take the floor with Captain Balock and Schofield forwards; Eddy, center; Allard and Makofski, guards. Playing against them for Rhode Island will be Hill and Asher, forwards; Haslem, center; Captain Pinto and Jensen, guards. This is the way the two teams lined up at Storrs last Saturday, and if the Aggies can play their usual style of play on the narrow Rhode Island court they should come out on top. The game is called for 4 p. m.

BULKELEY TEAM TO BE ENTERTAINED BY NORWICH MEN

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6—An interesting letter printed in the "Bulkeley Junior Review" Bulkeley High school's weekly newspaper was received by the Bulkeley Baseball Manager Martin Harris, from Charles F. Noyes, of New York, a former Norwich resident.

The letter deals with the entertainment of the Bulkeley team if the High School baseball team plays in the Metropolis this spring. Together with Francis P. Bent and John McNamara, also from Norwich, they are requesting the dates of the stay of the Bulkeley team in New York, so that an effort will be made to entertain the nine while there. The Bulkeley team from present indications intends to sojourn from Thursday morning until Sunday of the week ending May 2. During the stay in that city, Bulkeley will oppose New York University freshmen and Fordham Freshmen. Contracts have been signed for games with these teams, but the contests with the high school or high schools which will be played have not been definitely scheduled as yet.

Bulkeley as a school, from the Head Master to the student appreciates the thought of Charles F. Noyes for his kind offer to entertain the Orange and Black nine when they play in that city. Although Bulkeley is a bitter rival of Norwich Free Academy, in conquest of foreign territory every one must get behind a team which is to uphold the honor of the eastern section of the state, and Bulkeley will give all that possible in her to come out the victor in the games. To have friends among the Alumni and other sources, such as Mr. Noyes and the other two men he mentioned in the letter, Bulkeley is deeply indebted for the consideration shown by the letter. Their voices and their lusty yells will be looked forward to when the Bulkeley high invades New York.

The letter in full is as follows:

Baseball Manager,
Bulkeley High School,
New London, Conn.

Dear Sir:

I have noticed in the Norwich Bulletin that you are planning to bring the Bulkeley school team to New York this spring to play our local schools and among others is mentioned Erasmus Hall of Brooklyn.

There is quite a strong Norwich society in New York. Francis P. Bent, Municipal building, is one of the active members and John McNamara, 75 Cliff street is another active member. Mr. McNamara is a classmate of mine at the Norwich Free Academy and while I would like to see a team produced at Norwich capable of coming down here to New York, yet the next best thing is to bring the Bulkeley team to this city.

This letter is just to let you know that the Norwich men will root for Bulkeley if they come and I suggest that you send your schedule in advance to Mr. Bent and Mr. McNamara. Let us know when you will come and we will be there rooting for you just as hard as we would root against you if it were a case of Norwich Free Academy against Bulkeley.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Mr. Bent and Mr. McNamara. I will guarantee that we will give the Bulkeley boys a good time if they ever play in New York city.

Very Truly Yours
CHARLES F. NOYES

CHAPMAN LOSES NINTH STRAIGHT GAME

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 6, 1925—Chapman Tech had little luck in breaking into the win column against the Acme five this evening at the school auditorium and dropped their ninth straight game by a score of 29 to 23.

Chapman Tech made a strong comeback in the second half and cut the Acme lead several points. But the points scored in this final period failed to bring the Red and Black total anywhere near the score hung up by the Acme team.

The Purple Acme five lost no time in taking the lead and at half time the visitors were leading by a 24 to 13 score. The Acme played a purely defensive game in the second half and keep their margin over Tech intact to insure victory.

B. Hewitt lead Tech in scoring, sinking seven field and three foul goals for 17 points. Brewer was next high scorer with six field goals. The score:

Lee is Not a Holdout

Boston, March 6.—Reports from Denver that Dudley Lee, youthful Red Sox infielder, is holding out this season because of dissatisfaction with his 1925 contract were denied by President Robert Quinn of the Boston American club who said Lee would report to the New Orleans training camp next Sunday. President Quinn said Lee's wife had been ill, and the shortstop had been unwilling to leave her until her health had improved.

Nurmi Wins Slow Race.

Toronto, March 6—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's speed marvel, negotiated a mile and a half in eight minutes and two-fifths of a second in winning the event on the coliseum track tonight in a listless exhibition. This is more than a full minute slower than the time chalked up by him at Hamilton last night when he ran the mile and a half in 6:55 1-5.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Martin Autrey, first base recruit of the Yankees wins one of the "firsts" of the major league season. He was the first player to suffer an injury in camp, stopping a batted ball at the St. Petersburg training quarters with his right eye. Autrey is from Pittsfield of the Eastern League.

Bill Klepper, former president of the Portland Pacific Coast League club is now in the home-building business in Pasadena, Cal.

Outfielder Walter Oberc of Springfield of the Eastern League, believes he is better than a Class A player and declares he will retire from Organized Baseball if a deal is not made whereby he will be given a chance to make good higher up. Owner Shean of Springfield, says he has made efforts to get a Class AA club to take him, but to date has not been successful.

The sale of the New York National League club to John Ringling, of circus fame, has again been denied. This latest report came about during the trial of President Charles A. Stoneham on a mail fraud charge. Stoneham has since been acquitted.

Bill Moriarty, a catcher from Holyoke, who was given a trial by Pittsfield a few seasons ago, and Bunk Padden, also of Holyoke, have signed Hartford contracts.

Babe Ruth left Hot Springs to join his mates at St. Petersburg, weighing 228 pounds. This means that the Bambino still has some 15 or 20 pounds to slice off before he is in the best of playing condition. Active work on the diamond may do the trick for the big fellow before the season begins, his training at Hot Springs having consisted chiefly of hiking and playing golf.

Pitcher Lynch a left hander, with Hartford last season, has been traded to York of the New York-Pennsylvania League for Alver Eyrich, a right-hander.

Walter (Slim) McGrew, the tall right-hander from Memphis of the Southern League has failed to come to terms with the Giants. McGraw it is said will turn him back to Memphis if he doesn't sign up in a hurry.

MARIE TIFFANY IS SACRED CONCERT AT PALACE THEATRE

On Sunday, March 8, the first of the Lenten concerts to be given at the Palace Theatre will be a Tiffany concert.

Marie Tiffany is singing her ninth season with the Metropolitan Opera Company, of which she has been a valuable member for the past eight years. Her entrance into this famous organization is one of those happy "accidents" which is always the test of preparedness. It was during the season of 1916 when she was on from the West—the soprano hails from California—visiting friends in New York. An informal audience was very suddenly arranged for her with Mr. Gatti-Casazza and she was immediately engaged.

Besides her activities in opera, Miss Tiffany is widely known as a concert artist and has toured extensively in all parts of the United States, and has appeared in concert and opera in France. Her voice is of unusually fine timbre, rare in quality and ample in volume and her splendid sense of interpretation makes an indelible impression. Charm of personality and an easy poise have given her a power and distinction on the concert as well as the operatic stage.

Miss Tiffany's program:

Sunday, March 15, is to be the Farrell-Lester concert, assisted by Lionel Storr, bass-baritone.

Sunday, March 22, an organ recital by a celebrated concert organist, Dr. J. Lawrence Erb, with Mrs. W. Clayton Burgy in soprano numbers.

Broadway Theater

Betty Compson, Theodore Roberts, Kathlyn Williams, Theodor von Eltz and Robert Edeson are featured in the cast of the William de Mille production of Locked Doors for Paramount. It's an original screen story by Clara Beranger, due at the Broadway Sunday, tomorrow.

The story is one of a beautiful young girl who marries a wealthy architect many years her senior. The marriage is a loveless affair for the girl, entered upon mere for the fact of assuring her elderly and crippled father of a comfortable home than anything else.

Theodore Roberts has the role of Betty's father in the production. It is his first screen role in a year and it is said to rival even his character, Grumpy. Edeson is Miss Compson's husband in the picture and Theodor von Eltz has the role of the young fellow Betty meets and falls in love with. Kathlyn Williams is well cast as the architect's sister who sees that her brother is unhappy and in trying to smooth things over complicates matters the more.

Others in the strong cast of the production include Elmo Billings, freckled and extremely clever in the part of the young mountain lad who tells Betty and von Eltz of the "big one that that got away" while he was fishing, and Jane Winton, "Follies" beauty.

Locked Doors is a picture that appeals to everyone in that it is extremely human—a story of what might be happening in the house right next door to you this very moment. It has drama, comedy, thrills and all the rest—a picture you'll never forgive yourself for missing.

Short subjects consist of a comedy news and orchestra presentation.

Watch Monday's paper for a surprise Keith vaudeville program.

Next Week at United Congregational Church.

The March meeting of the Brotherhood is to be held at the Community house, at half past six on Monday evening, with the usual supper, followed by a spelling contest.

All members of the Sodalitas are invited to bring their work with them to the Junior school rooms at half past seven on Monday evening to enjoy the story of "A Summer in Europe," given by Miss Beatrice Sharp.

The Haviland class meets on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Hans Rasmussen, 118 McKinley avenue.

Mid-week worship, Thursday evening, at 7.45. Mr. Abbott will speak on a third word from the cross: "Women, behold thy son; behold thy mother."

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Guild will be held in the Community house at three o'clock on Friday afternoon. An especially attractive programme has been arranged with Miss Amy L. Cogswell to speak. Her subject, "Our Emblem, the Rose." All members of the parish and their friends are most cordially invited to greet and enjoy Miss Cogswell and the social hour to follow her talk.

A fool is an idiot who lays the plans for wise men to hatch out.

Bread Theater

Monta Bell's Metro-Goldwyn picture, The Snob, coming to the Bread theater Sun., Mon. and Tues. boasts a large cast headed by five of the best known players in filmland, and supported by almost a dozen noted character players.

John Gilbert will be seen in a new and unusual role, but a most fascinating one for him, as "the snob," the central character of the story. Being a leading man, it took considerable daring on Mr. Gilbert's part to play this character, which is an unsympathetic one, but he was glad of the opportunity to attempt something new in characterization.

Opposite Mr. Gilbert is the beautiful Norma Shearer, who plays the wife of "the snob." Miss Shearer, who will be remembered for her work in Broadway After Dark, Broken Barriers, Empty Hands, Pleasure Mad and other pictures, is said to add to her laurels by some more excellent work in this picture.

Conrad Nagel has another of his usually pleasing roles as an ambitious artist, and Phillis Haver has a part somewhat resembling that of Mr. Gilbert's in being an unscrupulous, scheming person in love with another's mate. Hedda Hopper has an important role.

The supporting cast includes such well-known performers as Margaret Seddon, Aileen Manning, Jack Curtis, Haze Kennedy, Charles Puffy, Gordon Sackville, Nellie Bly Baker, Roy Laidlow, Mabel Coleman, Blanche Payson and others.

Topics of the Day, a cartoon and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Today's bill consists of Tom Mix in Oh! You Tony the first chapter of The Iron Man, with Albertini, the king of daredevils, the Pathe news and an Educational comedy. Continuous show today 1:30 to 10:30 P. M.

Palace Theatre.

The show at the Palace theatre the last half of this week is well up to the high standard that preceding shows has set. It opens with Zeno, Carl and Zeno in thrilling casting stunts and trameiene bouncing. This is one of the cleverest and most amazing acts of its kind on the vaudeville stage today.

Tom Walters, known as the Mayor of Laughland, and the baron of the piano, is another clever act and holds the audience every minute.

Eddie Cook and the Shaw sisters, the two young ladies are extremely clever musicians and offer very snappy playing, songs and dances. There is no need to comment on Eddie Cook's saxophone playing as he is a past master of this wonderful instrument.

Dobbs and Watkins certainly do spread the sunshine as they get a laugh every second they are on the stage and finally George Griffin and Co. Here is one of the fastest dancing acts in vaudeville today. Every member of this company is an artist in their singing and dancing, leave nothing to be desired and rounds out one of the best vaudeville bills that has been at the Palace in a long time.

The feature picture, "Secrets of the Night," is one hour of real entertainment. It will furnish you with all the thrills you want, yet never scare you to death. It is a most unusual picture, something right out of the ordinary, full of thrills, good comedy and will keep you glued to your seats and when it is finished you will have wished there had been another five reels.

Next week the management offers a bargain three days, there will be seven acts of vaudeville along with the feature picture.

Strand Theatre.

A poet once said—Music soothes a savage beast—this saying can be believed or not, but it is a fact that theatregoers like and appreciate good music, clean comedy, and pretty girls, judging from the reception accorded The Hoyt's Revue now playing at the Strand for the last time today. Noveer has Norwich seen a better miniature musical review and the humor of Bobby Ferguson, and Billy Russell, is the kind that make you laugh from your feet up. The Strand programme today might be termed a perfect show. In conjunction with the musical comedy, "Hoot Gibson" in a pre-release of his latest feature picture "The Saddle Hawk" is a picturization of western type and you are sure to enjoy every minute of the six reels. The double feature offering for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, will be a picture that is a relief from the society tales. It is well produced, realistically mounted, intelligently acted and possessing a plot filled with action and big moments. "Those Who Dare" has a cast of ten of the favorite screen stars headed by John Bowers, Marguerite De la Motte, Claire McDowell, Joseph Dowling and several others of note. On the same programme will also be seen Bryant Washburn and Billie Dove in a six reel Riddle Rider serial and a comedy will furnish an evening of real good reel entertainment.

Y. M. C. A. Special Lenten Season Picture.

The first half of the wonderful and impressive feature "From the Manger to the Cross" in moving pictures will be shown at the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association on Sunday at 4 o'clock. This feature adheres closely to the Bibble narrative of the marvelous life of "The Master." The films on this occasion will portray His birth, the massacre of the innocents, the flight into Egypt, the childhood of Jesus, etc. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the pictures and render vocal solos, and there will be a brief talk appropriate to the pictures. To this showing all persons fifteen and up are invited; others must be accompanied with parents or guardians.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The Surest Way

The common daily tasks of life
Seem poor and mean and small,
And oft we scorn them to respond
To some alluring call.

The tasks that lie so close at hand
Grow irksome to the soul
And are forsaken for some dream,
Some visionary goal.

And yet the surest road to fame,
To deeds that stir and thrill,
Is doing the tasks that lie at hand
With all our strength and will.

The Ploughman

I earn my bread and know its worth
Through days that chill and days that warm;
I wrest it with my strong right arm
From out the bosom of the earth.
Nor think me all uncouth and rough,
For as I turn the furrows o'er.
Far cleaner than the thrashing floor,
I see the tender growing staff.

They lie who say that labor makes
A brute thing, an insensate clod,
Of man, the masterpiece of God;
They lie who say that labor takes
All from us save the lust of self;
For no man need be deaf and blind
Unless he wills it so himself.

This life I live is goodly thing,
My soul keeps tune with one glad song,
The while I turn the furrows long,
A ploughman happy as a king.
—Jean Blewett.

Pull Together

We are helped by helping others;
If we give, we always get;
Seeing others as our brothers
Is life's saftest, surest bet!
If we give what folks are needing,
It will pay us in the end.
And we just can't help succeeding
In the game of life, my friend.

Cheerfulness is always catching—
Certain cure for ev'ry ile;
Happiness is always hatching
In the sunshine of a smile!
Banish gloom, by being cheerful;
Blaze the trail, and set the pace!
And you'll see expressions dreadful
Swiftly fade from ev'ry face!

Life gives back just what we give it;
Give it smiles—and smiles we get;
If we learn this rule, and live it,
We will never know regret;
Give a cheerful word—we'll reap it;
It will come back multiplied,
And will linger—we can keep it
In our "treasure chest," inside.

Get together! Pull together!
Is the spirit that will win!
If the gales of life we'd weather,
We must buck 'em, with a grin!
Help yourself by helping others;
Grab an oar, and join the crew!
Pull together with your brothers,
And they'll win the race—for you!

AIDS FOR HOUSEWIFE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Ethelyn's recipe for pie crust was good. Please try mine. I have had three prizes for this recipe. 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon of cream tartar and 1 tablespoon of sugar sifted three times. Then work in one cup lard until like meal and wet up with not quite half cup of milk.

Dried peaches soaked over night, peel and steam them, make a puff paste of 1 1-2 cup flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, a little butter, 2 teaspoons baking powder, a little salt. Stir up with milk and steam ten minutes with the cover off and ten minutes with the cover on. Cook peaches and cook 20 minutes, serve with puff paste by putting 1 spoonful on with each serving and make a hard sauce to eat with it.

Lay a pin across buttons when sewing them on. This prevents sewing them too lightly and makes neater looking work than when you try to leave the thread a little loose.

To clean an old nail file which has become clogged with dust, dip a piece of cotton in ammonia and rub the file until clean.

Save your orange, lemon and grape rinds, grate them, put into paper bags and dry. Pack in air tight jars and you will have delicious flavoring for desserts and puddings.

THE SOCIAL CORNER'S 15TH ANNIVERSARY

This week the Social Corner reaches its 15th anniversary with the interest and the cooperation of its members never more enthusiastic. Fifteen years seems a long time to look ahead but they have gone rapidly and happily in Social Corner circles. There has been disclosed a spirit of helpfulness and good fellowship, an interest in the common topics and problems of the home, a desire to share with others the short cuts and newly discovered advantages, and there has sprung up as the result many close friendships and valued acquaintances which, as many writers point out, would never have been made otherwise.

There has been manifested a hearty spirit of sociability among the writers, whether known to each other or not, and in every way the aims of the Corner have been admirably upheld and encouraged. In all the 15 years of the Corner the endeavor has been made to impress upon the members that The Social Corner is bound to be what the members make it.

During the year the Corner has lost a number of members by death and the passing of the writers and workers is deeply regretted. It is inevitable in such a large family that there should be numerous removals in one way or another. They will be greatly missed, but their examples stand forth for others.

About 100 new members were enrolled during the past twelve months and the Corner's new year opens with assurances of increased interest and activity.

A NEW KIND OF RUG

Social Corner Family: I must tell you how my Russian friend made a pretty floor mat. They are strong and wear well. She had yards of soft twisted rope, but can use pieces if well spliced. Cut pieces of cloth and sew three or four inches. Put cloth around the rope, have edges even at top of cloth and sew close to the rope but do not catch the thread in the rope. When several pieces are sewed push along on the rope, it will make gathers and when the rope is full sew the same as in a braided mat. You can slash the cloth at the top after the rug is done or not as you please. She does both ways and is making one now five by seven of blue, gold, red, green, wood color and black. Each piece is slashed twice. She makes a profit of $25 for her rugs when ready for the floor. Wish I had ambition enough to make one.

Joan: Wake up. Earthquake. Shall flee to you.

GREETINGS FROM RED CEDAR

Dear Corner Editor: Just a few lines. First, how many have used Duz, a powder? It is wonderful. I had on a new gingham dress and spilled a bottle of ink on the side of it. It was fine to have Duz take it all out. Try it.

I have been sick in bed with a very hard cold but am better but weak and still cough. Hope to be able to attend the Social Corner gathering at Franklin hall March 11th to celebrate my birthday, March 10. Who is my twin?

California Girl: Do write.
Honeysuckle's pen must be lost.
Sea Bird: Hurry up and write.

CLUB NO. 1's ANNIVERSARY, THE 11TH

Dear Corner Members: Club No. 1 will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the Social Corner in Franklin Hall, 793 Main street, Willimantic, March 11. A yellow bow will be in evidence at the entrance. Please bring your dishes, plate, cup, knife, fork, spoon and something for the dinner. We will be glad to see those from the other clubs.

ANNIVERSARY GREETINGS FROM BALSAM FIR

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just a few lines this lovely A. M.—40 above at 8 a. m. Trust the day may be fine for your anniversary dinner. I shall be there in my mind. Six inches of snow fell Sunday evening and Monday everything is dripping with water. Best wishes for shut-ins.

Sincerely,

BALSAM FIR.

PEGGY ANNE ANSWERS ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is rather late to answer present to the roll call, but "better late than never." I've often thought of writing but kept putting it off.

I was very sorry to hear of the passing of H. M. L., Eloise and C. E. S.—all personal friends of mine. They will be greatly missed at the Corner meetings.

Social Corner Member: Thanks very much for the pretty calendar. It is greatly appreciated.

Mavis: Haven't heard from you lately! When are you coming to call on me? Are you waiting for the huckleberries to ripen? I had to go seven miles beyond Winsted for those I picked last summer. Hope there will be some nearer home this coming summer.

Anna Z.: Would very much like to know who you are. Hubby's memory isn't very good for reaching back so far in his school days. Was it at District No. 5 or Kick Hill district that you attended school at the time mentioned in your letter? Hubby's mother is also interested to know. There have been a great many changes made since then.

Jill: How are you and the little ones? Where are you living now?

Aunt Sarah: Am looking forward to that promised visit with you and your baby (?) boy.

N. G. G.: How are you this winter? How many of the sisters have a radio set? We have one and every night we listen to some of the nicest programs of music and lectures. One night I heard the opera music of Carmen. Il Trovatore, and Cavelliers Rusticana sung. Not at the same stations though. We heard the opening of the new Travelers radio—WTIC at Hartford, Conn.

Don't Worry: Hope you are feeling better.

Ma: Are you still looking after those chickens and how is that trotter? It must be a full grown horse by this time.

Persis—Sometime, I'm going to stop at your house, instead of going past. Won't you be surprised? I hear that you have a "rambunctious neighbor". Well never mind. We all have to overlook a lot.

I am afraid that this will find the waste paper basket if I write any more so will close with best regards to the editor and all Corner friends.

PEGGY ANNE.

SOME LENTEN SUGGESTIONS

To the Members of the Social Corner: As this is the season of Lent these recipes are appropriate.

Tuna Fish Salad: I can tuna fish, 2 stalks celery, 3 large boiled potato, salt and pepper. Pick the fish apart and mix with boiled potatoes, chopped. Chop celery and mix with this, adding salt, pepper, paprika to taste. Moisten with salad dressing. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Codfish Cakes: 1 pint shredded codfish, 1 pint raw potatoes, 2 eggs, lump of butter, pepper. Cook potatoes and codfish together till potatoes are tender. Drain and mash. Add butter, beaten eggs, and sprinkle of pepper. Roll into cakes and fry in hot fat.

Water Cress Sandwich: Slice bread very thin and spread with creamed butter. Add a layer of water cress sprinkled with salt. Make these sandwiches two layers thick and cut in strips. If necessary, fasten with tooth picks. Make sandwiches this way for one layer and for the second layer chop red pepper very fine. Cut in strips, the red and green give a pretty effect, and another variety.

Silent Partner: I was interested in your letter. My aunt had a sewing bird and I watched her as she used it. You certainly are fortunate to get just what you wanted. When I visited on farms I wore sunbonnets with slats, but I coaxed my mother to make very short bonnets so a little starch held them in shape.

Jennie: I can't sleep o'nights thinking of you with your one shaker. I had that and was puzzled how to wear them until mother said I could wear the pink one in the morning when it was cool and the blue one in the afternoon. As blue always made one feel and look cool. So I had my first lesson on colors on my little shakers.

Effie M.: Notice you have prize pigs. Be thankful you have no grain bills to pay. Think they will be good while you attend Social Corner meetings.

I can imagine what happened when you saw the prize. Was glad it came to you at that time.

Billie: Thanks for your suggestion. All members are not house keepers. Something to read is interesting.

Mary France: Hope you have entirely recovered before this time.

Best wishes to all.

HUBBY'S INTEREST IN CORNER

Dear Members of the Corner: As I am rather an old member I feel I must write for the page once in a while. I read the letters nearly every week. Mr. Dearie reads them nowadays as he once spied a letter that was very good and written by one of the sisters about her travels somewhere. Well, as he has a bug on traveling he is watching all the Corner pages for more from others. One thing he thinks that Crimson Rambler has a terrible big bump of knowledge and wonders if she got it where she still lives. I guess he means from the big town. He thinks I must be slow, as I can't compare a little bit with her good letters. The fun of it is he doesn't know my pen name and I sure won't tell.

I want to say in the Corner page of Feb. 28 I read a recipe for two egg sponge cake sent in by Rural Aunty. I can't see it says to put in any flour but I suppose I will have to if I try it.

I wonder why Crimson Rambler has never been up to see me and I am not far away either. I have asked you Crimson Rambler to so many times. I have had no way to get to see you and my health doesn't permit much walking or I would have been down I do try so hard to get to some of the gatherings but I get left every time. Hope I can get a chance before hot weather. I just wish I could get to Willimantic, too, sometime.

Best wishes for all

DEARIE.

A DOUGHNUT RECIPE

Editor of the Social Corner: I attended the anniversary meeting of the Social Corner this afternoon, had a very pleasant time and would like to become a member. Will send a recipe for doughnuts like my mother used to make.

Doughnuts: Break 2 eggs in bowl, add 1 cup sugar, beat well together, add scant 1-2 cup sour cream, fill with sour milk, put with egg and sugar, add a little salt, nutmeg, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder sifted with flour enough to roll.

Will take for pen name,

DAHLIA.

THE SEWING BIRDS MY GRANDFATHER MADE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written to the Corner page but always read it just the same every Saturday. I will answer present to the roll call. I know I have been tardy but will now tell you all about my silence.

Two years ago last May a baby boy came to stay with us and we were all so pleased as we wanted a boy. He is now a big boy and walks, talks and does all kinds of things. He certainly keeps his mother busy all the time running after him.

I have read about the sewing birds that so many of the sisters have, and I, too, have one which I prize highly for it is one that my grandfather had. Many years ago my grandfather owned and worked in a pistol shop. One day my grandfather came home with a sewing bird made out of a revelver handle which had been spoiled by some green hand and gave it to my grandmother for a present, as she had been wishing for one. I use it when I make braided rugs and I couldn't get along without it for it holds the work so firmly. It is quite a keep sake as well as being handed down to a granddaughter.

Black Eye Susie: Not so very long ago you mentioned my name and you, too, have been wondering where I have been. I am very busy caring for my little boy and am still making the tatting fly too. Some day I shall give you a surprise for I am now planning to go to a Social Corner meeting when the weather is more settled. I am very anxious to meet you and shall be looking for the yellow ribbon.

Interested Reader: I agree as one sister wrote you had better put your beautiful fancy work up for a few minutes and scratch us off a few lines with your pen as I know you are a very good writer as well as a good needle woman, too. I only wish the sisters could see all the pretty things you have made this winter and all those beautiful quilts you have pieced.

Chic a Dee: Where are you keeping yourself? I think you must have changed your pen name for I know you haven't been keeping quiet all this time. I wish you would drive down this way and stop and see us.

Silent Stranger I suppose you are busy with your school work and Oh! how I did enjoy that big fat letter you sent me, and you will receive one some day.

Eva G.: I have been wondering what has become of you. I wish you would come down and make some more candy. Didn't we have a fine time. Those are the good old times that are never forgotten. The baby has grown so since you were here.

Pansy: I can't see why you don't stop singing and write just a few lines. You have a very sweet voice and I enjoy hearing you sing in church Sunday mornings.

E. L. M.: We wish you would come and call on us often. We both enjoy having you come.

Billie: Where are you keeping yourself these days?

With best wishes to the Corner and am so pleased to see the page so full.

COLD CREAM FORMULA

Dear Corner Members: It has been sometime since I have been able to write, so will now thank all the sisters who have written me, and will try and answer all before long. I couldn't write for I haven't been able to either think or remember anything hardly.

Crimson Rambler: I surely haven't forgotten I owe you a letter. Will try and see what I can do soon.

Mavis: Yours comes next. What on earth can you think of me! Surely I would love to have you call on me and some time before long I am in hopes to get out your way. My hubby got his foot hurt so has been home for over a week but it is most well again now.

E. M. R. C. P.: Many thanks for valentine card. Yes I will try and write as soon as I can. I have done no writing for some time.

Mrs. K.: Your nice letter received and glad you are all well. Will try and write soon. I am feeling some better thank you.

Uncle Sam's Daughter: You surely do keep your end up in the Social Corner page. Have tried your lemon pie quite a few times and it is lovely; also your delicious cookies. We liked the mock oyster stew very much too. One sister was asking for hints about drying hair. I find the electric heater very good and will dry it in a very few minutes. Don't sit too close and shake it all the while. In about ten minutes your hair is dry. If the hair is very long, which very few have these days, braid at ends It keeps it from snarling, and to dry twist in a towel for a few minutes. The furnace comes next if it happens to be hot air or pipeless with a good heat coming up. And if we don't have these we have to take the slow way about one hour. I see where one wanted a formula for cold cream. I am sending in one I had made up and find it excellent. It makes one pint jar full and cost me $1.75 and if you want a good cleansing cream take out about one inch of it form the jar and add white mineral oil enough to make one dollar size jar full, put on the stove in a dish that has hot water in it, heat all together, remove from stove and stir until it begins to get white and thick like. I set mine on the ice and it only took a few minutes to turn white and thick. Of course this is only for cleansing purposes.

Cold Cream: White wax, 1 ounce, spermaceti 1 ounce, almond oil 5 ounces, rose water 1 1-3 ounce, gorax 30 grains, oil of bitter almond, 15 drops. The wax and spermaceti are melted in the oils and as soon as they are blended, the rose water and borax which have previously been made lukewarm are added slowly and the whole stirred and beaten as it cools. As soon as it begins to congeal pour off in jars.

Grandma Gray: I was just reading your letter of Feb. 17. Sorry I was so late for you might have gotten another birthday card. I too like all letters and why should we find fault with them. If we don't like a letter we don't have to read it, but we don't have to tell the writer so. I agree with you to write what we like.

ANNA Z. (April 25.)

A NEW SANDWICH

Dear Sisters: Here is something nice and new for you to try.

Radio Nut Sandwiches: 1 cup grape nuts, 6 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons finely chopped sweet pickle, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 3-4 cup thick mayonnaise. Mix the ingredients until they are well blended, and will spread easily. Use a silver knife and spread on buttered slices of graham bread. This recipe makes filling for 18 sandwiches.

ETHELYN.

GRATEFUL FOR ANSWERS RECEIVED

Dear Sisters of the Corner: First of all I want to say that when I told of the uses I found for a "hot bottle" in my last letter I meant a hot water bottle. Now I want to thank the sisters who have written on dieting as a means to reduce, and to the sister who wrote me a personal letter on the same subject and on taking music lessons by mail.

Owaissa: I thank you for the information you gave me. I have had circulars from the firm you speak of and am so glad to know of some one who really took the course. At present my time is so taken up I could not try it now but think in the near future I may be able to arrange it and when I do will surely let you know.

How I did enjoy reading The Heart of a Hoss and When Old Jack Died. They pull ones heart strings. I think a horse and dog are two of the best friends one can have. Many of them know more than some people we meet and how anyone can abuse them is beyond my comprehension.

Billy: I think you are like a flea—we think you are in the Corner, then you are not.

Do write one of your interesting letters.

Country Sister: Are your initials A. G.?

Would love to go to the anniversary meeting but it is impossible.

BEE.

PLEASED WITH VALENTINE

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters; How do you like the return of winter? Well, I suppose we must expect more cold and snow but am rather inclined to think it is disliked by the most of us after tasting the mild days we had. The month of March will soon pass and then for mild spring days.

I wish to thank Club No. 1. for my nice valentine. I truly am grateful to you and I want you all to know how grateful I am and how I appreciate your many kindnesses to me. Not only Club No. 1, but all who remembered me.

I think of you all often, especially on club days and am always glad to read of your good times. Am glad winter is most gone for with spring I hope to feel better, more cheery and courageous.

I trust that those who have been sick will soon recover, and those who have been called to sorow and grief for a dear one have my love and sympathy. Remember as the days thy strength shall be.

I enjoy both the printed and written personal letters.

I wonder if any of you were alarmed by the earthquake last Saturday evening. Several persons heard it in this town. I am truly glad to see a full Corner page. The anniversary of the Corner is at hand. Long may the Corner live, and send its pleasant suggestions, helps and cheery messages and sympathy to use all wherever we reside. It's influence is felt over a large territory for some of the sisters live far apart, but we feel we have kept in touch with each other through the Social Corner page. We should also thank the editor for his patience to unravel and be able to read some of our writing.

Many thanks ag . for my valentine.

Best wishes.

DIANA.

IN OTHER DAYS AT YANTIC

Dear Social Corner: I'd like to say to Ormandine that I never lived in the little house at the foot of schoolhouse hill, but I know that house very well. As I remember, it was called the Melly house.

I left Yantic about 35 years ago. Was born in one of those houses near the railroad station in the early sixties.

I knew Mr. and Mrs. Peckham very well. Was very pleasantly associated with Mr. Peckham at one time. Think that I knew Jack's Wife also when she first came to Y. to live. She had an Uncle C. on the top of the hill. That is where I first met her. I think that she sang in the choir in Grace church at the same time that I did. J. E. T. did not recognize me two weeks ago but, I think that I know her just the same. Some of her recipes give her away. I remember in her younger days that she was always fond of hash.

I think that she lived very near the foot of that hill. No doubt if she thinks real hard she will recall going to the other little house in the corner for milk and the spelling contests that we had. How hard it was for either of us to get very near the head of the line and when we were chosen number one how easy it was to get to the foot! And what fun we had sliding down that hill! Did not seem to matter very much whether we went through the front door in the brick house or into the pond. We are still alive to tell the story. Now what do you think, I know you, too, Miss Ormandine!

PLAIN CAKE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Just a few lines this lovely morning. It is quite cold but there is a touch of spring in the air and it can't come too soon to suit me. I suppose most people around here felt the earthquake. We did not. Never knew of it until we saw Sunday's paper.

Someone has suggested starting house cleaning early.

I have in my mind. I always do my cleaning twice, once in my mind and once with my hands, so I get twice tired.

I am sending a plain cake recipe that was my grandmother's and has been used in the family a good many years. I know others must be looking for economies as well as I.

Plain Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter or lard, 1 egg, 1 cup milk, 4 level teaspoons baking powder sifted with 2 cups flour (sift twice,) salt and flavor. I cool mine in the pans and don't use it for two or three days. When I'm ready, I set the pans in a slow oven, leaving the door open for about five minutes and it freshens it, so it is like newly baked cake. Try it.

Such good times as you seem to have at the Social Corner parties.

I've never attended one. Maybe I may sometime. Here is wishing you all good health, which I consider a great blessing.

O. D.

IN THE SCHOOLS OF TODAY

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was very glad to see my letter in print, and think, I will write a little oftener.

I do not know any of the sisters, but will try my best to find out, who some of them are, for I am most sure there are some, not living very far from me.

Lucy Acorn: I think you were a near neighbor of mine. Did you live on a farm, 10 years ago? I think you have seen the Westminster parsonage a good many times.

Persis: You live on a hill, while I live under the hill. I think I know, who is who now. Will call up some day, with little one.

I, too, am pretty well acquainted with Westminster, as I used to attend school there on the hill, when at the age of 14 years. Myra Adams was my teacher. I wonder how many of you sisters, went to school to her, and how many knew her. The dear old teacher is now dead and gone. I wish for one that the teachers of today were more like her, although they do the very best they can. The children seems to be all together different than they were in those days.

If you send the children to school well and happy, you do not know, if they are coming back, with a broken leg or arm. Years ago if our teacher had to whip or send any of the children home for not behaving we were sure to get another whipping and sent back. The children of today are upheld by their parents, who often tell the children what they should say, or do, to the teacher.

I really pity a young teacher for I think they certainly have their hands full, and I don't think it is fair, that the parents should interfere. The old saying is they go to school to learn. Learn they surely do, right or wrong, with the oldest ones trying their best to teach the little ones all the wrong they can.

Effy M.: My mails comes to Hampton.

Will wish all the sisters and editor the best of health.

STARLIGHT.

A TRIBUTE TO C. E. S.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: I was so shocked to hear of dear C. E. S. leaving us for her Heavenly Home. Oh how we shall miss her. I have known her ever since I was ten years old. My father moved to the farm adjoining hers and how many happy hours have my sister and I spent in her pleasant home. I can't begin to express what is in my heart in memory of her, but wish to say I was pleased to read Neighbor Eveready's letter and others who spoke of her through the Corner. She was a wonderful mother, the kindest of neighbors and a friend to all who knew her. In sickness she could not do enough, and always so cheerful and happy. In all the years I have known her I never saw her impatient or discouraged. All her relatives have my heartfelt sympathy and will say she is only gone home and we will meet her above some day where sickness and pain are nor more. I attended a funeral the other day of one of my neighbors and the pastor spoke of many of his friends who had gone on and it seemed to him the spirit realm more and more real as we think of those who have parted with loved ones and also to all who are sick or shutin. May they soon be able to be out again is my wish.

I agree with the sisters who say the days of miracles are not all past by any means and they are very real too. If they who doubt would be able to see the change in those lives who have found Christ as their personal saviour they would not it is real. In China Gen. Feng is a real Christian general of a large army and had marvelous victories in battle as he fought not for selfish gains but for the good of the people and such clean well behaved men as are in his ranks. They have had victories that would have been impossible in the human strength and to see his happy face as well as those of his men is the only way one can be convinced of the change of their lives. I haven't space to write much, but just to give a glimpse of the power of God. Only a few hundred men won a victory over several thousand recently. They do not fight only when necessary and are looking for peace and love to rule, not hate.

It does seem good to see signs of spring again and will be glad to see the birds all back again and the flowers blooming.

Best wishes to all.

SPRY BIRD.

MAPLE LEAF'S LOAF CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Pals: Just a few lines to help fill the page.

Crimson Rambler: You would have seen me before but have been shut in two weeks with the grip but am feeling much better now. Took Lizzie out today for a spin with my pal. She was glad to get out once more and try her stunts.

Balsam Fir: I still remember that I owe you a letter.

Country Sister: You have me guessing. Please give me a clue.

Papa's Boy: Was surprised to know you are one of our sisters. I pass your house nearly every week.

Eca: Why don't you come again as you are now one of our members?

Savilla: Hope your cold is better. Would like to see you out this way some time.

Necia: How are the lemons? Are they still growing?

Aries: I saw you would like to receive slips of flowers from the sisters. What kind would you like to get? I have begonias, ovalis; also have a rose bush with 18 buds and a smaller one with six buds on it. I have had roses all winter. What is your correct address?

Here is a nice recipe for loaf cake I wish the sisters would try and report as to their success. I think it is nice and worth trying.

Loaf Cake: First take two thirds cup of water and in it break one compressed yeast cake. Stir in a little flour to make a thin yeast and let stand in a warm place a short time or until it commences to get light. Then take two cups of sugar, one cup of shortening (butter or lard, or half and half either way you prefer, one cup of milk, four cups of flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one cup of raisins, or more if you like it with) more, a little nutmeg and cinnamon and half teaspoon salt, add yeast, stir up and bake the same as any cake without raising. You can put in two eggs or not. It is very good without the eggs. This makes two loaves and is very good.

Yours with success.

MAPLE LEAF.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE

Dear Cornerites: Did you know that 1 cup of shaved beef, 1 cup of cheese and a can of tomato soup and one egg make a hearty meal for supper spread on toast or crackers. Put the tomato soup over in the double boiler and when it comes to a boil stir in the shaved beef, cheese and egg. Spread on toasted bread.

If you will cream your flour and shortening together, put your baking powder with your sugar, stir in milk and the egg with the last of the ingredients you will have much better cake.

With coffee ground fine, 1 teaspoon of coffee to one cup. Pour boiling water on coffee (do not let boil.) When it stands ten minutes pour off the coffee. After putting cold water in let stand three minutes. Do not let the coffee percolate if you do it will taste bitter.

Please, sisters of the Corner, try making your coffee this way once I don't think you will ever make it any other way after you strain coffee from the grounds put in your cream and heat it up again—or heat your cream before you put in the coffee. I keep a piece of cheese cloth in a bottle or jar of cold water and every morning rinse it out—and strain coffee. I for a long time, thought percolating the coffee did not boil the coffee but I find it does boil the coffee. Of course some may not like it but I hope you will try it and report.

UNCLE SAM'S DAUGHTER.

KEEPING THE CORNER OVERFLOWING

Dear Social Corner Members: It has been some time since I have written so thought I would try to write a few lines to help keep the page overflowing after such interesting letters as some of the sisters write. I feel that my bit is rather small.

Grandma Gray: Always like to read your letters. I think knowing the writer makes them lots more interesting.

Rural Aunty: How's that radio working? I was going to try that sponge cake last week and as I looked it over I thought you must have left out some thing, you know inexperienced cooks like myself must have the exact measurements written out for them.

Anna Z: I think if we met we might know who was who. I think I have your number.

Free Air: Am wondering how little Fresh Air is. Heard that he was not well.

If I don't stop writing am afraid this will go into the editor's waste basket. With best wishes to all.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM BON AMI

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I must congratulate you upon 15 years of happy association together. Friendships have been formed and people have met together who perhaps would never have met except through what we call our Social Corner. I have been a member 14 years. I have been on the shelf, in the pigeon hole and also in the Wideawake circle. I have been anywhere the editor wanted to put me. But I kept right on keeping on and never felt slighted in any way or manner.

Some may write to win a prize, others write for fame, but I simply write to sign my name.

BON AMI.

THROWN OUT OF BACK SEAT

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I am glad the writers are filling up the page the editor has given to us and more. But many of the old members' pens must be rusty as we hear no word from them.

I think a good subject to write about is the things that happened to us in childhood days.

Yes, Joan, I was there at the bicentennial in 1859. It was some parade, at least I thought so, as I was quite a small child. My father was on the farm in Preston. He hitched up the two horses and two seater and took a load of the neighbors' children. I being the smaller was to sit on the back seat between two older girls.

Father who was always a very busy man and not very often using the back seat he forgot to fasten it down. Of course we children were anxious to get there to see it all from start to finish and requested father to start up the horses which he did by a snap of the whip. Then over we went into a mud puddle in the road on our backs. Lucky for me I landed on the other girls so did not get hurt. But the air was full of crying for a short while though we were not hurt as much as frightened. But we never forgot that ride and father always remembered to fasten down the back seat after that. Do you think I could forget that centennial, Joan. I think I remember the wagon you wrote about, but do not remember seeing you that day. Hope to see you at meeting of club No. 1 March 11th. I would liked to have been with you at the meeting on the 4th but my health would not permit.

If we do not stop writing about Shaker bonnets and hoop skirts we were folks will begin to think we are getting old and you know that would be a bad thing when we look like guys. But I begin to feel quite grown up and will feel more so before this month is out as I will have a birthday.

I hope we will have good weather for our anniversary the 11th and that all can be present. Our hall is large and will hold all. I hope Remember Me will be able to be there, also Joan, and many others who have been ill. I enjoy the epitaphs and riddles. I think it would be fine to have every one, have a riddle or an epitaph to give us as a part of program. What do you think Mrs. Chairman?

Remember Nannie Lou, you promised to be there if you could make it convenient.

May the wheeling or any other thing not prevent Whirlwind, Foxglove and Olive from coming.

Shall expect you, Mavis, at hall and my home.

All good wishes for the Social Corner from

AMY.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I enjoy reading the Social Corner and would like very much to become a member. Won't you please add my name along with the rest?

CAROLINA SUNSHINE.

A PUFF OF FREE AIR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: When I saw Black Eyed Susie's letter and read that she had some mysterious message for me I decided to sit right down and write. I do hate to say that I can't possibly go to the next meeting. You won't read this till after the meeting is over. Can't you write to me Black Eyed Susie and not keep me in this suspense? I hope you are the one I think you are. I noticed you in particular at the first meeting which I attended at the Buckingham.

Joan: I see you made mention of a sewing bird, too. Now, for pity's sake, tell me what they are! I've thought that I would get me a bird of some kind, but my mind usually runs to canaries. Are the sewing birds fastened to a perch like a parrot or are they kept in a cage? Do they sing? I noticed you said one bird had padded wings. Now why is this thus? Do their wings chafe when they fly? Oh, for some information on the subject.

Anne D: I liked the poem you sent in about the Devil. It seems he is right at my heels lately. I wonder if any of the rest of you feel that way.

We have some new members, I see. There is Silver Sands, Patty, E. C. W. and maybe it would be alright to suggest that E. C. W. take for her pen name Maxie Mum if she weighs more than 250 and if she is small and only weighs 98 or so she could be Minnie Mum.

Kingston Brown never says aye or nay to anything I write regarding her, I am going to keep right on regarding her just the same.

Where is Olga?

Rosalind wanted Primrose's recipe for mock cherry pie. I thought I would send in mine.

Mock Cherry Pie: Mix together one half cup chopped raisins and one and one third cups chopped cranberries, one cup sugar, one teaspoon butter; one fourth cup water. Bake in under crust with lattice stripes across top.

Radio Rose is another new member. You didn't say what that mixture got to be finally, Radio Rose. Was it a sewing bird?

I think it a good plan to greet the new members as they write just the same as we would if they came into a hall where we were. In that case

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Sleighing was excellent in Norwich on March 6th, 1875, there being about eight inches of snow on the ground. Sleighing races to New London were planned and local horse racing was a feature sport. Ice in the harbor was still holding and attempts were to break it up by using gunpowder.

Other interesting news items that appeared in the Bulletin fifty years ago are printed in part as follows:

Monday, March 1, 1875—About half the population of Norwich are in a state of frenzy over the following puzzle—"To five and five and fifty-five the first of letters add; 'twill make a thing that killed a king and drove a wise man mad." It was published first about twenty years ago and has never been correctly answered. It is said there is no answer.
